WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1909.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

TOWN MEETING.

Interurban Railroad Voted Down Almost Unanimously.

Town will Oppose Commission's Plan for Grade Crossing Abolition.

The special town meeting Monday evening was a record breaker not only for the large summer attendance, but also for the interest displayed and the speeches. Once in a while, but too seldom, in fact, Winchester has the pleasure of listening to its most able debaters. They were out in force Monday evening, but not all spoke. The reason for the large attendance was the question of the proposed interurban electric railroad through the western part of the town. The citizens of that part of the town turned out en masse, and rightly so, to oppose with all their power the building of this railroad, and they did so, too, successfully, thus showing the prevailing sentiment. The article next in importance was that relating to the grade crossing abolition, but this latter would have hardly sufficed in itself to bring out the big crowd. This matter long ago became a chestnut because of its being so long drawn out. But Town Counsel Joslin said that this delay was in a sense justified where the town was up against 90 per cent. of opposition. The Selectmen were instructed by an almost unanimous vote of the meeting to oppose to the last ditch the one bridge scheme at the station to be recommended by the Commission and to fight for the bridge at the center. It was nearly half-past ten when the meeting dissolved. The meeting brought into the foreground a new Moderator, Howard D. Nash, Esq. He took to this trying position as naturally as a duck to water, and the result was that everything moved along in good shape. On motion of Mr. James P. Boutwell the meeting adopted the five minute rule for speakers and also that no citizen could speak twice on the same article without the consent of the meeting in both instances. The new rule worked well and all speakers had their say when necessary under extension of time.

On motion of Chairman Dwinell of the Board of Selectmen, $500 was appropriated to reimburse the Edison Co. for money deducted from the monthly bills for lighting. The Selectmen held back 20 per cent. of the bills during the time that efforts were being made to secure the same rates that Arlington was receiving under a 20-year contract. On motion of Mr. Dwinell $600 was appropriated for an extra patrolman. This was the outcome of a largely signed petition from residents of the Highlands that they be given a patrolman for that part of the town.

On motion of Mr. John H. Carter $200 was appropriated for an observance of the Fourth. This is in addition to $300 voted at the annual meeting. Mr. Carter believed it was a questionable proceeding to solicit subscriptions as had been done in years past. In order to have fireworks this money was necessary.

Mr. Harry E. Lunt offered the following which was carried:—Voted, that the Selectmen be requested to confer with the proper officials of the Arlington line and see if arrangements cannot be made for a 15-minute schedule during the early afternoon and early evenings.

On motion of Mr. Dwinell it was voted to accept and allow a new street beginning at the northerly line of Warren to northerly line of Wildwood street; also a new street from the new Sheffield West, and also a new street from the southerly line of Oxford street to Cabot street.

Article ten, also relating to the acceptance of a new street, was dismissed from the warrant as the location was not given.

It was voted to accept the bequest of the late Charles W. Bradstreet for the benefit of the public library, it to be known as the Charles W. Bradstreet fund.

GRADE CROSSING ABOLITION.

Town Counsel Joslin offered the following which was carried by a rising vote of 180 to 6: Voted, that whereas the Special Commission appointed by the Superior Court to act in the matter of the petition for the abolition of the grade crossing at Winchester center have announced their intention to report a plan of abolition by which the street shall cross the railroad location by means of a single bridge at or near the present site of the railroad depot, and an underpass placed at the center, rather than in accordance with the plan favored by the town at its meeting held on the twenty-fifth day of February 1907; and Whereas this meeting is of the opinion that such a plan would prove wholly inadequate to the needs of the town, and would fall far short of being a fair equivalent of the existing facilities.

Now, therefore, the Selectmen are hereby authorized and directed, in behalf of the town, to make use of every method legally open to them to oppose and to defeat before the Board of Railroad Commissioners or in the Courts, if necessary, the final adoption of the plan of abolition contemplated by the Special Commission as aforesaid.

In presenting this vote, Mr. Joslin said that the special commissioners had agreed to report in favor of a bridge at the station, because it was the least expensive. Two of the Commissioners would, however, offer no objection to a bridge at the center if the town would stand the difference in cost. Mr. Joslin said the principal obstacle to the latter was the great expense for land damages. The question of how the crossing shall be eliminated is now up to the town,—one bridge at station, or the center bridge as voted for by the town, and Mr. Joslin favored pressing for the latter.

Mr. W. L. Turk favored abiding by the decision of the Commissioners. Mr. John H. Carter said that a single bridge at the station was an absurdity. In a few years the town would have the pleasure of paying for a second bridge north of the crossing.

Mr. Nelson H. Seeley said that while he did not favor the town plan, as he believed the scheme could be improved upon, yet he would vote for it rather than the single bridge proposed.

Mr. John T. Wilson favored Mr. Joslin's motion.

The motion was then carried by a rising vote.

INTERURBAN RAILROAD.

On the question of the petition now pending for the proposed Boston, Lowell & Lawrence Railroad, Samuel J. Elder, Esq., offered the following: Resolved, the inhabitants of the Town of Winchester protest against the construction of an Interurban Electric Railroad through the town and respectfully urge upon the Board of Railroad Commissioners that such a railroad will be of severe and permanent injury to the growth and prosperity of the town and that public convenience and necessity do not demand this great detriment to this and other towns on the proposed route.

When Hon. S. W. McCall arose to speak in opposition to the proposed road, he was given an ovation. He had intended to be present at the reunion of his class at Dartmouth, but so important did he consider this railroad question, that he decided to come to the meeting and oppose it. He believed that the railroad would seriously injure the western part of the town and put a stop to its further development. It was not needed, and the residents of the town do not desire it.

Mr. Edward L. Dunning believed that the proposed railroad would be a benefit to Winchester, and he asked permission of the meeting that a representative of the railroad be allowed to give the Company's side of the question. This being granted, Mr. Farley, a very bright young man, then gave at length the plan proposed by the Company. Efforts were made as far as possible to keep the tracks out of sight and away from residential property. Some people would be interfered with, but this was to be expected. The road was to be equipped with the latest cars and roadbeds, was to be high powered, thus reducing the time to Boston materially. There would be a station on Church street with half hour trains and a ten-cent fare to Sullivan square. It was not intended to have the railroad come within the five-cent zone.

Geo. L. Huntress, Esq., strongly opposed the railroad, and said that it was not required because of public convenience and necessity. He was looking after the interests of Winchester, and not Lowell, Lawrence and Woburn.

Mr. Elder, eloquently and forcibly opposed the scheme, as one that would put a stop to further development of property, and cost the town more than a million dollars in loss of future building and improvements. The fare on the proposed road would be ten cents to Sullivan square and then five cents more to Boston—15 cents in all. Winchester was one of the most beautiful towns in the State, and he did not believe it should be sacrificed for the benefit of Lowell and Lawrence.

Mr. W. L. Turk claimed that the road was of public convenience and necessity. Mr. Elder's motion was then carried by the vote of 180 to 15.

The meeting then dissolved.

HOW TO CRANK

AN AUTOMOBILE.

A suggestion as to how to properly take hold of the starting crank of an automobile so as to avoid the possibility of injury, has been made by an expert.

"There is more than one way of grasping the starting crank of an automobile. As ordinarily practised, the hand in grasping the handle is so placed that the thumb and fingers encircle it. Such a method is comparatively safe if the operator is pulling upward the crank, but decidedly unsafe if he should press down on the crank and a back fire occur. The safer method, and one which will allow the hand to leave the handle without injury whether it is being pulled up or pressed down, is to place the thumb on the same side of the handle that the fingers are placed so that the handle is not entirely encircled, allowing the handle to slip out of the grasp when it is being pressed down, and permitting the fingers to release the handle if it is being pulled up, at the time of back fire."

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. A. P. BRIGGS.

Monday night at 8 o'clock a farewell reception was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Briggs by the members and friends of the First Baptist Church. In the absence of Mr. Hodge the pastor of the church, the Rev. Arthur L. Winn of this town presided. The chapel was beautifully decorated with choice flowers for the occasion. After the chapel was pretty well filled and Mr. and Mrs. Briggs had shaken hands with all friends present, a number of selections were rendered by the orchestra.

The Rev. Mr. Winn eulogized the work of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs since they have been members of the church and expressed the heartfelt sympathy of all the members who have learned to love and respect them. As a token of their appreciation they presented them with a beautiful tea set of chinaware. After the presentation, Mr. and Mrs. Briggs thanked the church for their appreciation in the same loving spirit that has always been their wont. Prayer was offered by the Rev. A. W. Smith and refreshments were served and a joyful evening spent.

Former Supervisor of Music in the public schools, Mr. Ernst Makechnie, out of respect for Mr. Briggs kindly consented to be one of the orchestra. Also Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell of this town helped to the strains of music on his cello. Mr. Halford Ambler on the piano, Ralph Arnold on the cornet and Geo. Bigley on the clarinet.

Mrs. W. A. Bradley and other ladies of the church had charge of the reception and many thanks are due them for the able manner in which they planned things.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB

At the Winchester Country Club Saturday afternoon, the play was handicap medal, and H. T. Bond won in both gross and net.

ODD FELLOWS VS.

ARCANUMS.

The base ball game to be played at 8 a. m. on Manchester Field by the Royal Arcanum team and Odd Fellows on July 5 promises to be the stellar attraction of the day. The public will be shown the game of base ball from all its viewpoints (viz.) as it should be played and as it is, something the Winchester A. A. has endeavored to do on various occasions. On paper the Arcanum team looks to be the strongest but as luck will be an important factor in this game it is impossible to pick a winner. Houghton will pitch for the Arcanum with F. T. Dotten on receiving end. The battery of the Odd Fellows is a mystery. It has been rumored that A. Hersey was picked to deliver the hardware as he has been detected practicing lamplight, in fact men connected with the two organizations have been known to complain of sore arms for the past week. The line up of the two teams would be given but the two captains are unable to pick their speediest men at this time as the candidates are too lame to show at an advantage.

The position of umpire will be held down by some disinterested party who doesn't know the game. Two rule books will be used (past and present). Don't forget the hour—8 a. m. and the date July 5.

Tickets for this game may be obtained from Warren Foster in front of Abare's Drug Store.

MRS. MARIA E. MUGRIDGE.

Mrs. Maria Eaton Mugridge, mother of Mrs. Fred L. Taitter, died at her daughter's residence on Friday last. She was 74 years of age, and was born in Warner, N. H., her parents being Dr. Leonard and Susan (Evans) Eaton. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. William J. Lawrence, pastor of the Unitarian Church, Monday forenoon. The interment was at Blossom Hill, Concord, N. H.

WADLEIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION.

On Friday night last the graduation exercises of the Wadleigh School took place in the Town Hall before a large and appreciative audience. An interesting program of singing, essays and recitations was excellently given by the scholars closing with the presentation of diplomas to the graduates by Mr. Wingate, chairman of the School Committee, after an address to the class by Mr. Herron, Supt. of Schools.

The singing under the direction of Albert E. Brown, Supervisor of Music, introduced three distinct innovations in that it was given entirely by the graduates, was taken from the daily work of the grade and, except for one number, was without accompaniment. If it may be expected, as certainly seems desirable, that the program of graduation exercises should be related to the regular school work and that while carefully prepared it should not be considered simply a show performance, the musical numbers deserve special commendation. The audience was evidently delighted with the general effect and those who were able to judge from a musical standpoint noted with approval that the parts, first and second soprano and alto were balanced and well sustained and that the singers had definite knowledge of technical music.

It would be difficult to indicate which of the five selections was on the whole best rendered, but possibly in "The spinning maiden" by Jungt, "At parting" by Loomis, and "Adieu" by Schubert, the full fresh, youthful voices were heard to the best advantage. It might have seemed beforehand that it would be difficult for grammar school pupils to sing selections of this character without falling from pitch and that an orchestra or at least a piano accompaniment would be essential, but these boys and girls have evidently been accustomed to do exactly this thing in their regular school work.

WHERE THE TEACHERS PASS THE SUMMER.

Supt. of Schools, Schuyler F. Herron and Mrs. Herron leave the first of the week for Castine, Me., where Mr. Herron will attend the American Institute of Instruction. He will return to town about July 10th and his office will be open for the two weeks following.

GEORGE A. ROONEY.

George A. Rooney died yesterday morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Rooney, on Mason street, after an illness of many months. Tuberculosis contracted in the military service in the Philippines was the cause of his death.

He was in his 39th year and was born in Medford, Mass., although he had lived in Winchester since boyhood. He was a graduate of the Winchester schools and after leaving school was one of the first letter carriers appointed for the Winchester postoffice when the service was established.

He always took a deep interest in military matters and was for several years a member of the Woburn Mechanic Phalanx. At the breaking out of the Spanish-American war he enlisted in Co. A, Sixth Regt. Mass. Volunteers and served with the regiment in the Porto Rican campaign. After being mustered out he reenlisted on March 16, 1899, in the 3d cavalry of the regular army and served for over three years in troop H in the Philippine campaign, being discharged at Angel Island, Cal., April 2, 1902.

Dec. 31 of the following year he again enlisted in Co. E of the 8th infantry, the greater part of the time being stationed at Ft. Jay, N. Y., where he was discharged Sept. 15, 1905. The following day he reenlisted and was assigned to the casual detachment of the 8th infantry and again saw service in the Philippines. On account of the disease contracted in line of duty he was transferred to Ft. Bayard, New Mexico, where he received his final discharge on Aug. 27 of last year.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's church Saturday morning at 9. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

IN APPRECIATION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Those whose privilege it was to attend the old High School during the nineties, especially those who prepared for college, cannot forget the splendid instruction they received in such studies as Greek, German, Latin and mathematics. The teaching force was perhaps then more adequate to the number of pupils, and the esprit de corps was all that could be desired. Teachers and pupils worked together with one aim, and the inspiration of such leadership as Mr. Lovering's left its lasting impression.

Then it was that pupils enjoyed a great privilege. With Mr. Lovering they commenced Latin, and continued with him for the four years. The advantages of such instruction were not perhaps fully appreciated until his pupils were launched in college, when they had a chance to note the comparative merits of preparation undergone by students of other schools.

His untiring patience, not unminged with humor and with sympathy for those to whom "it came hard," his constant insistence upon the rooting and grounding of verb forms and all syntax, the drill in translation accompanied by his own illumination of the text, left an indelible impression upon the minds of the scholars.

If former pupils could be questioned as to the merits of Mr. Lovering's ability as an instructor in Latin, there would not be one dissenting voice. Winchester is fortunate in retaining Mr. Lovering's services, not only as a valuable instructor, but as a man of sterling character and personal worth. It is hoped that with the new arrangement most of the Latin, if not all, may come under his jurisdiction.

CHILDREN'S MITE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The following is a copy of a letter mailed this day, which explains itself: George C. Lee, Esq., Treas. Floating Hospital, Boston.

Dear Sir: Enclosed please find cheque for $10.45, the proceeds of a somewhat impromptu lawn party, (held at the grounds of John Park, Esq., Winchester Highlands, on Saturday evening last, by the "Maple Forest Club") consisting of "4 little maids (just from school)" viz.: Constance Park, Helen Marshall, Marjorie Burwell and Consuelo Burwell, who were ably assisted by Doris Powers, Beniah Chapin, Nat. Chapin, Cherub Burwell and Langworthy Burwell.

The amount while not as heavy as they could wish, represents quite a little work on the children's part—what with selling tickets at a range of only 1 to 5 cents, and refreshments at corresponding prices, besides the pretty way in which they decorated trees and summer houses, with Japanese lanterns.

However, you may be sure they send their very best wishes along with their mites.

CANDIB THE TAILOR.

A Visit to His Busy Workrooms at Arlington

In Arlington is located Candib, the ladies' tailor. We found this master of the making of ladies' fashionable apparel in his pleasant rooms in Post office block.

"Just ladies tailoring" is all Candib does, but he knows this line from 1 to 100.

For 15 years Candib, the Ladies' Tailor has kept in the van of fashion, the last 9 years being located in Arlington.

In Winchester there are scores of well satisfied customers, ladies of Winchester's west side district.

Candib the tailor, is a very busy man these days. Mid-summer costumes for ladies who are going to the beaches and mountains, costumes which must be finished on the dot and be made to the moment are being made.

Every lot of work done at Candib's is performed under the eye of this bright artist. As a designer he is original, as a maker from the crispest Paris styles, Candib is accurate to a degree.

When desired Candib will call at homes for the trying on of gowns.

WATER SPORTS ON THE 5TH.

The Winchester Boat Club will unite with the Medford Boat Club on Monday in holding a regatta on Mystic Lake. The events will be run off at the Medford end of the lake, which is situated to form a good opportunity for spectators.

In the morning at 10 o'clock a sailing race is to be held for canvas canoes. This will be lee-board sailing, and as the sport has taken a firm hold at the Medford club, a large entry and exciting race is anticipated.

At 2 p. m. the water sports, consisting of three trophy races and a number of novel races, will be held.

At 7:45 p. m. there will be dancing at the Medford club.

ATHLETIC MEET JULY—5TH.

On the afternoon of the 5th a boy's athletic celebration is to be held on Manchester Field under private management. The sports will commence at 2 o'clock and there will be a number of events, including 100 yd. dash, potatoe race, sack race, broad jump, hurdle race, etc.

There will be two classes, one for boys of 8 to 11 years and the other for boys of 12 to 15 years. The boys must make their entries by Saturday night, July 3, at the latest, and must specify each event which they wish to enter and give their age. Ribbons will be given to place winners, and a cup to the largest point winner in each class.

WETHERBEE BROS.

Arlington's hustling Automobile men have a finely equipped Garage, repair shop and a big Pierce Arrow To Rent—Established 1900.

In the centre of Arlington, with store directly upon the main street, Massachusetts avenue, is the place of business of Wetherbee Bros.

Nine years ago Ivers L. and Clarence Wetherbee, two young but practical chauffeurs and repair men started the business.

Today they are strictly up to the times in their lines. They have a garage that is worth while, a repair shop where the men and tools are and where electricity for sparking electric vehicles and for sparking batteries is made while you wait and no great wait at that.

They have a system of repair work on inner tubes which knocks the vulcanizing idea higher than a kite. "Special Wetherbee patches" made of new rubber have proved good for more than 600 miles of driving.

A fine Pierce Arrow is for rent. A car good enough for the most finical, seating five or seven persons, carrying a careful competent chauffeur. This car can be engaged by the day by phoning 414-3 Arlington. The car is fully equipped.

STATE TAX.

According to the estimates of the auditor, the state tax this year will be $4,500,000 as compared with $5,500,000 for last year.

The causes for the large reduction are fourfold, and may be described as, first, the unusual vigilance of the tax commissioner in forcing city and town tax boards to hunt up all assessable property, second, the direct inheritance tax which has just gone into effect; third, the economy which has been practiced in the administration of state offices, and fourth, the cutting down of appropriations by the legislature.

The total expenses authorized by the present legislature amount to $12,685,936.42. The auditor's estimate of revenue made in January, he has now raised to $4,000,000 in consequence of the large receipts from the direct inheritance tax, so that the estimate now stands at $7,100,000. Cash on hand, less unexpended appropriations amounts to $1,002,510.34, leaving to be provided by taxation $4,583,426.08.

The Winchester Dining Room

A much needed want filled in Winchester is the Dining Room located in the square, where all cars from Woburn to Boston stop. Today, under the management of C. A. Marsh, this dining room is deservedly popular. Every effort is made to satisfy a customer in a good square meal (home cooking) served amid cleanly surroundings, therefore 578 Main street has become Winchester's favorite place for meals or a quick lunch.

The dining room is open from 5:30 a. m. until 7:30 p. m.

With the 25 cent dinner, soup, two kinds of meat's, vegetables, bread and butter, tea or coffee or milk and pastry are served.

The best market affords is put on the table.

REGULATIONS

OF THE Board of Health of the Town of Winchester

IN REGARD TO MILK.

1. No person shall engage in the sale or distribution of milk in the Town of Winchester except in accordance with the statutes contained in the Revised Laws of Massachusetts, chapter 56, the acts of 1909, chapters 405 and 441, and the rules adopted by the Board of Health of said town.

2. No person shall engage in the sale or distribution of milk in the Town of Winchester without a license so to do; said license may be revoked if the licensee fails to comply with the conditions of his license and the regulations of this Board.

3. No milk shall be brought into, held, delivered, or offered for sale, in this town, from cows that are diseased, from cows that are not properly cared for, or that are kept in a stable that is improperly located, or in a stable that is not kept in a clean, wholesome, and sanitary condition. Manure shall not be stored in any room where cows are kept.

4. No milk shall be brought into, held, delivered, or offered for sale in this town from cows within fifteen days before or five days after parturition, nor from cows having an inflammatory disease of the udder.

5. No person engaged in the business of producing milk to be sold or distributed in the Town of Winchester, shall store, cool, mix, or strain said milk in any room which is occupied by horses, cows, or other animals, or for the storage of manure, or in any room used in whole or in part for domestic or sleeping purposes, unless such room is separated from other parts of the building to the satisfaction of the Milk Inspector. All rooms in which milk is stored, cooled, mixed, or strained shall be kept clean at all times to the satisfaction of the Milk Inspector, and all utensils actually employed in the storage, sale, or distribution of milk shall be washed with boiling water or sterilized with live steam before they are again used.

6. No urinal, water closet or privy shall be located in the rooms called for in the preceding section, or so situated as to pollute the atmosphere of said rooms. No swine shall be kept within fifty feet of a stable or room in which milk is produced, handled, or stored.

7. Bottles shall not be filled except at the dairy or creamery. No can or other vessel used to contain milk shall be transported in a vehicle used for the conveyance of garbage or other material liable to contaminate milk.

8. All milk produced for sale or distribution in the Town of Winchester shall be strained, and cooled to fifty degrees Fahrenheit as soon as it is drawn, and kept at a temperature not higher than fifty degrees F. until delivered to the customer, but said milk shall not be cooled or stored in any well.

9. Milk kept for sale in any store, shop, restaurant, market, bakery, or other establishment shall be kept in sealed bottles and stored in a covered box, cooler, or refrigerator and kept at a temperature not above fifty F. No bottle containing milk for sale shall be allowed to stand outside such box, cooler, or refrigerator except while a sale of milk is being made. Every box, cooler, or refrigerator shall be properly drained and cared for, and shall be kept tightly closed except during such intervals as are necessary for the introduction or removal of milk or ice, and it shall be kept in such locations and under such conditions as shall be approved by the Milk Inspector.

10. Every person engaged in the production, storage, transportation, delivery, or distribution of milk to be sold in the Town of Winchester shall notify the Board of Health immediately on the occurrence of any case or cases of diphtheria, scarlet fever, or typhoid fever, either in himself, or in his family, or amongst his employees or their immediate associates, or within the building or premises where milk is stored, handled, or distributed, and at the same time shall suspend the sale and distribution of milk until authorized to resume the same by the said Board of Health.

11. All wagons or other vehicles used in the conveyance of milk for sale or distribution in the Town of Winchester shall be kept in a cleanly condition and free from offensive odors.

12. No rusty, corroded, bent, dented or mutilated can shall be used in transportation and sale of milk in the Town of Winchester.

13. Every Person in the Town of Winchester engaged in the sale, delivery, or distribution of milk from dairies located outside the town, shall upon request from the Milk Inspector, certify that the re-

Good Things to Eat

Home Market Company, Cor. Church and Common Streets take the lead in Butter and Poultry Specialties.

Winchester folk have pretty well solved the art of living. The question "what to eat" is, say what you will, important. The leading purveyor of eatables in town, is apparently The Home Market Co., A. B. Drew, manager, corner Church and Common streets.

Twice a week there comes to the Home Market, loads of delicious butter from the farm away up in Vermont. Twice a week loads of poultry come down from Groveland, Mass., (up in the Haverhill County). These are but straws indicating specialties of the store. There is never a moment when the meats at the Home Market are not fresh and wholesome.

Chase & Sanborn coffees are features and throughout the store, which is as clean as a pin, there are the specialties in groceries and delicatessen such as the student of foods must admit are some better than the average. Telephone.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The church will be open every Sunday during the summer for morning service at 10:30 a. m. In the absence of the rector, the Rev. C. P. Mills will be in charge. He will be assisted in August by Mr. John Hamilton Robinson. The address of the rector and other details in regard to ministerial supply, etc., will be in the hands of the wardens, and also at Mr. Arnold's store, Common street.

MR. GINN'S HOME

A Star Reporter's Visit to the Beautiful Spot Overlooking Field, Lake and River.

Colonial throughout with suggestions of Venetian and Flemish in interior decoration, is the home of E. O. Ginn, the publisher of school books, who is a resident of Winchester.

When a member of the household arises in the morning and goes outside, there is much to enjoy that is nature's best. There's a glint of blue through the strong, tall young oaks, with here and there a pine for the breath of the thing. The blue is the lake, beautiful Mystic Lake, for this home is in the section of Winchester nearest the waterway.

Looking east or south the eye sees the river, Aberjona. Though it is early a couple of girls are paddling along in a canoe. The field near the Parkway has been mowed and ah! the fragrance of that new mown hay.

AN INTERIOR VIEW.

Around the house is the rose garden. Roses and oak seem to be much in evidence. The oaks were there when the owner came a few years ago and proceeded to make many blades grow where few grew before. But the roses are red and blush, big ones. They make one think of Waterman's lines: "A rose to the living is more than sumptuous wreaths to the dead."

The breeze from the lake, the soft of the hay, the zephyrs that come through oak and the pine, added to the scent of the roses, all these make you think of Mr. Ginn as the "man who has everything." And yet this place was nothing to speak of before he came.

There were the trees of oak and

A LIBERAL EDUCATION.

The people of Boston and vicinity will be given a rare treat this autumn. An electrical show will be held in Mechanics Building during the two weeks from November 15 to 25th inclusive. Electric shows have been held in Chicago and New York during the past years and they have attracted people. It can be truly said, from all over the world. There is no show, no form of entertainment, few courses of study in the public schools that afford greater educational opportunities. Supplementing the public school or any of the special investigations that thousands of bright young people are engaged in now, the value of the electric show cannot be estimated. It will afford magnificent opportunity.

In 1898 the Edison Electric Illuminat-

pine. As everyone in town knows the owner of this colonial home made his way through the world through books. He sold books as a boy and young man and that required, all will admit "gumption." Afterwards he became a publisher of standard school books, which is, another story, in a way.

Mr. Ginn, has, since coming to Winchester, purchased nearly all of Rangely. Ten houses are now his. Rangely adjoins his colonial home, with ideas which are fruition of 70 years admiration of the beautiful, he is rebuilding the noble old estate. A road will be built along the edge under the trees where now and then the locomotive bell tolls. Along the brow of the hill a dozen bungalows. One of the original Rangely homes is being remodeled. Some of the ideas in this are architect Ernest Flagg's of New York. One that is Mr. Ginn's is the making of a good circle in front of the reconstructed colonial house mid the trees.

Inside the home of Mr. Ginn there is evidence of ideas. A visitor recalls those Flemish tapestries, the one of Paris awarding the apple to the fairest he found and the one on

ARLINGTON AUTO CO.

Agents for the Mitchell Car - Fine Storage and Repair Arrangements.

On Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, is a modern garage built of brick and made for the convenience of practical motorists. This is the garage of the Arlington Auto Co., Hollis Gott, president.

Does the motorist wish to have a battery charged, an electrical motor car charged a tire repaired? The big garage has all these facilities.

Is the renting of a car desired? There is a handsome touring Mitchell car and a sedan, seating five, with chauffeur at a reasonable price.

Besides, there is every opportunity for storing, and supplies are furnished in emergencies.

A new feature of this garage is the making of fine auto tops. It is a fact that these makers of tops do compete successfully with makers of cars, in the top line, and often beat the car makers' figures.

The finest of materials are used and Mr. Gott gives to this department his special attention.

It will pay any car owner to look at the samples and figures of this company before getting an auto top elsewhere. There is telephone connection and the garage can be reached any hour of the day or night. The garage is as fireproof as any modern garage can possibly be, as it is made of reinforced concrete, brick, steel and asbestos.

CHAS. GOTT & SON

Arlington's famous Builders of Wagons - A visit to the Shop where Right Wagons are made.

For 20 years I have heard of the wagons "Charlie" Gott built. In the old days when a fine new market wagon was needed upon a Winchester or Arlington farm, it was a case of a run down to Charlie Gott's place and order the goods.

Although Mr. Gott has gone to his reward, the business of making superior wagons still goes on with Hollis Gott, the son at the head.

The reputation for fine work left by the father still holds and in the same old shop with modern improvements, there are made wagons that are standard.

The Gott shops located in the centre of Arlington. In the wagon shop electricity takes the place of foot power. A turn of the water, every bit of machinery is set a going. The giant trip hammer is nothing new. Upstairs, in the molders, the shaping done. An enterprise in Arlington undertaken is having much to do for a business auto.

Every bit of work has been written all over it. As a matter of fact, the shop are able to make the tools and the goods for turning out the standard-of-the-trade work made famous by the name under more primitive conditions.

Served A Good Purpose.

The proposed interurban railroad through the western part of the town was the means of showing to Congressman McCall and Samuel J. Elder, Esq., the esteem in which they are held by the citizens, and also in causing one of the most interesting town meetings held in years.

Late Train for Stoneham.

Stoneham is now rejoicing in a late train which reaches that town after midnight. This train will give the theatre-goers and others of Stoneham an opportunity to witness the last act, and also enjoy a light lunch before starting for the train. Our neighbor appears to be in luck in acquiring this train, also the new electric railroad through the Falls to Boston.

A Welcome Change.

The action of the Metropolitan Park Commission in assigning different bands for the concerts on Manchester Field during July and August will meet with the hearty approval of the inhabitants. It gets to be a bit tiresome hearing the same band over and over, and this no doubt kept many away from the concerts last summer. This year there will be some of the crack bands to delight the stay-at-homes.

Not in Favor of Road.

The town meeting Monday evening made it perfectly clear that Winchester is not in favor of the proposed interurban electric railroad. It would be a pity to have the beauty of the western section of the town marred by an elevated structure and frequent trains with the consequent disquieting noises.

It was no wonder that the residents of the west side felt so keenly the proposed invasion of their section by the road which they did not want, and which would damage many estates and prove a drawback to future development of that part of the town.

LORD—LAWSON.

The marriage of Miss Marion Lawson, daughter of Thomas W. Lawson, to James Fuller Lord of Chicago, which was solemnized at Dreamwood, Mr. Lawson's estate at Egypt, Wednesday afternoon, was one of the most beautiful outdoor events that this section of the country has witnessed this season.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John W. Suter of the Church of the Epiphany, under the spreading boughs of an apple tree that were entwined with bride roses.

Miss Lawson was given in marriage by her father, and her attendants were Mrs. Eben Baine Stanwood as matron of honor and Miss Doherty and Miss "Bunny" Lawson, all her sisters. Her gown was of white satin covered with tulle and rose point lace, and she wore a veil of tulle with orange blossoms. A diamond pin and a pearl necklace were her jewel ornaments.

Mr. Arnold Lawson, brother of the bride, was chief of the ushers.

A reception followed the ceremony in the large mansion of the estate, and refreshments were served on the lawn under a marquee.

Mr. and Mrs. Lord will later occupy a cottage which has been built for them at Dreamwood.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

The local Union has gained thirteen members since the annual meeting in January, an excellent record for the membership contest in the State which closes at the next annual meeting of the State W. C. T. U.

The recent dry victories in the South and West have called forth a wail from the brewers' organization, which nevertheless claims that the tidal wave of temperance has begun to recede. Its contention may be true, but so many States and sections of States have gone dry that for a time at least so many communities will have an object lesson on the value of no-license that the high water mark of temperance will not be very much above the level of popular sentiment. The curve of social progress is an ascending spiral and although there is bound to be retrogression at times there is a steady progression upward. True reformers do not become discouraged because of occasional setbacks; they are inevitable.

During the summer the work of the Flower Mission will continue, and contributions of flowers that will stand transportation will be welcomed. As

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

There were really no votes for the grade crossing commissioners' plan, the six votes against the motion offered by town counsel Joslin being against the town's plan. If as some of the Commissioners think we don't know what we want, we, at least, know we don't want their miserable plan. Wait till the merger takes place.

The Selectmen should make sure of a moderator before hand, for you cannot expect any man to jump into that place without notice and do himself justice.

All street layouts should be published in the local paper two or three times before the town meeting at which they are to be acted upon, so that citizens may have some chance to know about them. This should be either a state law or a town by-law. Reading of the layout in the town meeting amounts to nothing and is only waste of time. The plans should be posted up however.

I heard much complaint of non delivery of town warrants.

The Commoner tries to ride too many horses. He might accomplish something in town meeting if he prepared himself more carefully and didn't go off half cocked. More questions should be asked and answers given, but it must be gone at in a proper way.

The "night before" will of course be quiet this year, but it has been so of late years anyway. Inside of ten years the country will look back with wonder and horror at the death dealing performance it permitted so long. Proper celebrations with stringent laws against other kinds will soon bring about civilized action upon the National holiday.

With band concerts morning, afternoon and evening, baseball games morning and afternoon and fireworks in the evening, the celebration ought to be satisfactory. I trust some flags will be placed upon the band stand and grand stand as usual, and that ample provision will be made for ice water. There is always many details to be looked after, and it seems to be up to the Selectmen this year. Don't forget poster programs and stationery of events either, and get them in this week.

The west side railroad was beaten eleven to one and the few votes it did get were worked up. Mr. Farly very quietly jumped his road from Everett Avenue to Winter pond and did not mention that the proposed width of its location is 80 feet, through which its two tracks will run in a cut between those points. The net result to this town would be a big loss so clearly that it is surprising any citizen should vote for it. Don't forget that the Railroad Commissioners will arrive at the Winchester Arlington line on Cambridge street about 10.15 o'clock Tuesday July 6th viewing the route and that the hearings will go on at their office 20 Beacon street on the following days at 10.30.

Now that Highland Avenue is being completed and the Highlands is to have a patrolman and Cross street has been rebuilt, that section of the town will undoubtedly feel more important. It still, however, has its railroad station in a dwelling house.

I shall be happily disappointed if the celebration the 4th (5th) goes along smoothly. It looks at the present time like a "go as you please" match. The Selectmen should have appointed a small general committee to look after things. There are many small details of importance.

Ancient Skates.

The English chronicler has recorded that the youth of London in the twelfth century understood the art of flying over the ice like birds in the air, but the origin of skating is far more ancient. An Icelandic saga relates how the Norwegian hero Fritthof not only traced verses upon the polished mirror, but also cut the deer name of Ingelbald. Skates have been discovered near Spandau, in Germany, which those competent to express an opinion attribute to a period of 3000 years ago. These skates were made from bones of horses, figured and perforated to attach to the sundial. Similar skates have been found at Moorfields, in Finsbury, and like discoveries have been made in Berlin in the bed of the Spree. These and similar discoveries, we learn, enable the authorities to conclude that the European ice area in prehistoric times extended from Great Britain to Finland and from Norway to Hungary.—London Globe.

Impressions of Sheffield West.

Little Monograph of A Home Spot in Beauteous Winchester

The town which Travelled Men call the Best in the WHOLE WORLD to Dwell.

Sheffield West impressed me as a place that more than lived up to the promises made for it. I asked a small boy on Church Street the whereabouts of Sheffield Road and he replied without slang, yet a certain gregariousness:

"The next is Bacon, next to that is it." Sure enough, Sheffield Road is close to "town" or the "centre." The "West" is the continuation. It is only a short walk from Church Street, a few minutes. This is what I saw:

Level plot, just like maps that George Adams Woods sends out. A view of the heights over Arlington way, a surroundment of oak trees everywhere with here and there a maple. Right round me were the houses built on Sheffield Road and the ones going up on the "West." Fine houses, homes of capable men who have with that sanity that is recognized as standard, put their dollars into handsome homes. Those homes have been erected with an eye to tastefulness and comfort, no two being alike, yet all are harmonious. A splendid breeze comes sweeping from the West rippling the upper Mystic to the South. My impression is that "Sheffield West" will be "Sheffield Built" before a second snow comes.

The idea of Sheffield West originated with George Adams Woods, who interested several Winchesterites in the plan. The appearance of the place today indicates that it is perhaps the best homesite he has ever developed.

Sheffield West being a continuation of Sheffield Road, is a direct thoroughfare between Winchester and Arlington. There's the Wedgemere station at hand, the Mystic Lake and the car line. The road is 40 feet wide and 30 feet around the Park, has a 24 foot gravel macadam roadway with a five foot granolithic sidewalk and three foot loam spaces. Sewer, gas and water pipes are laid. Houses will set 40 feet back from the street. No house can be built costing less than $5000 and no stables can be erected except upon lots 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11. That these restrictions are sensible and advantageous to all, the visitor to Sheffield Road can easily understand.

Bye the bye, lot "10" is sold and a $12000 house is building upon same, another home going up on "17" lots 13, 14 and 15 are sold as one and a $25000 home will go up upon them, lots 16, 18, 19 and 20 are also S O L D.

WINCHESTER TODAY.

By W. H. FENNEY.

Winchester is a good town to live in. If you happen to be a stranger take one imaginary trip with me through the town, and see all its aspects.

Are you sick of city streets? There's a section of Winchester out upon the Cambridge road which will interest you. Get away from the fine houses, if they are too heavy for you.

Let's go away out a mile or so past the old Varnum Locke place, up by the old Joe Burlington place, and Frank Gustin's farm. There's "E.L." Russell's farm on the left. Those gates and bars lead up to the "Back Piece," the 30 acre lot where hundreds of good old boys we know, picked tomatoes and hoed squash and battled mosquitoes bravely 20 years ago.

Up in the "Back Piece" it is Winchester, yet climb the wall where the muskrat traps used to be and walk a quarter of a mile through the white birches and you are on Lexington land.

There's the best spring of water to drink from in the only way natural to barefooted boyhood. Here are the two last Porter apple trees on the land, but the apples ripen later, about mid-September. Climb a tree in the forest along side ploughed ground and the church spires and Cross in Woburn as well as those in Winchester centre, too, are visible. Coming down town we past comfort on one side. Shell beans and peas look well and the serious cabbages have "caught hold" but there is a little less "rough tending" than there used to be. The sash and the hot bed are in evidence, but not nearly as much as the giant greenhouses where glories "Cucis" grow in the winter and spring.

The fine houses near the heart of the town tell the story of Winchester as plainly to you as to the rest of us.

The quiet home, each miles out from Boston for Boston's busy bright men, Men of State Street, Men of Summer Street, clever men of law, finance, of trades, men who do things, that is one meaning of the word "Winchester." But the town is not altogether one for the elite nor for the market gardener. Up towards Woburn a mile is a big tannery, where hundreds of men work hard who live in the Plains. No man ever worked upon a farm or in a currying shop who regretted the experience. Either work makes men out of boys.

At quarter to noon from all sides come little girls and boys with dinner pails, each suggestive of a rousing good mess of corned beef and cabbage and tea.

"Carrying the old man's dinner" is the way a youth expresses this daily diversion.

Hello! Here's a tired, flushed and heated little woman with loaded pail. In the other hand a toddling youngster, too small or too mischievous to leave at home. He stumbles and the tired mother with the heavily loaded pail says:

"Blessed be God!"

It's an interesting town Winchester. At night, come the trolleys from Sullivan Square, Boston, loaded to capacity. The illuminated clock on the fine town hall tells the minute. At the centre the gates are down for an express dashing through from Montreal making a fast finish for Boston, 10 minutes away.

Next come the hill district. Walk up Mt. Vernon street from Pleasant near the Town Hall. Ever notice how the roses take to the hillside soil? They grow riotously on the hillside of the town, not your little primroses but big blushing ones.

Suddenly there comes a change to the rugged primeval growth and we know that here is the Fells, the Middlesex Fells, perhaps, the best bit of parkway in the east.

We know by hearsay that the Fells extend for miles so instead of becoming intoxicated with its beauties you not leave the rest for what Whitcomb Riley calls a "Sunday day" and explore to the heart's content in the directions of Stoneham, Melrose or Malden.

Winchester is essentially a social town, a clubby town, a churchy town—a town where everyone works hard with either brain or brawn and takes all the fun that is coming.

It is good to be alive in Winchester.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

For the week of July 5th, at Keith's Theatre there will be an all round vaudeville such as has never been given before this season, with one big spectacular feature, "The Boys in Blue," which will be particularly adaptable for the holiday.

An event of local interest will be the reappearance here of Vito D'Alia of the famous family of comedians. Haines and Vito, the acrobatic humorists, will also have a whirlwind act, and Lillian Shaw will appear in a new specialty. Another act, which is in a nature a burlesque on "The Boys in Blue," will be given by George B. Reno and Company.

HARDY THE CATERER

A maker of pure foot cream, cake and Pastry, who serves his own product.

Everything is sure to be served first class to Hardy, the caterer of Arlington, is given the catering for the party, ball, wedding or reception. Why?

Because Hardy the caterer has a reputation second to none in the state.

Another reason—Hardy of Arlington knows exactly what he is serving.

He makes the ice, he makes the cake, the pastry, every delicacy he is called upon to serve. At 657 Massachusetts Avenue, Arlington, is the office of Hardy the caterer.

There is telephone connection, and prompt attention is given to every order, whether it be a feast for a thousand, or the wedding breakfast, or the serving for a pretty little afternoon affair at the home.

Ice cream made by N. J. Hardy is served anywhere, at any hour.

The New System Wet Wash

What a Woburn Enterprising Concern is doing to make Monday less dreaded in Winchester Homes. Monday, once a day of toil and sweat and struggle the world is such no longer. Since the coming of the Woburn New System Wet Wash, Monday has been just like Wednesday or Thursday or any other day of the week.

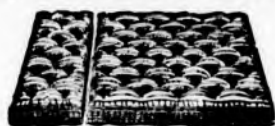

What is this New System?

In a word it is a business which does away with home washing. The expense? A half a dollar. Let us explain. The wagon calls and you gather the whole family washing into a big basket or box or something and the man takes it away. That's all you know about it until it is returned to you fresh and clean.

Where does it go?

The wagon takes your basket of clothes to 255 Main Street, Woburn. There in the old Simonds building is a washing place, such as you never could install at home. See the giant washing machines, with the loads of soap suds. There's a swishing sound, that is all you hear, but inside the washer the power of high soap and warm water aided by the friction of clothes is felt. There are dyes, also, which make hundreds of revolutions per minute electricity the power. After the washing is done, with strong armed men handling the work, every piece is brought back to its original basket and within 48 hours after leaving your house your entire week's wash is back home ready for starching, which is no hard work for any woman. Such is the idea of the Woburn New System of Wet Wash. Phone them a number 3431 for a wagon.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers of those that are the most comfortable and best for your health is the one made of Mattress and Pillow Cases, with a good thick layer of wool cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the excellent Woburn factory in the city, and sold at

This mattress is made to sleep in and for your comfort, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It never gets damp, and is extremely light and fluffy. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

Use the best hair ticking on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests to the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of fine horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

At 674 Main St. it is a pleasure to watch real artists in carriage work. They make carriages to order there at Dover's, all kinds of repainting is done too and done in first class workmanship. But the painting of carriages is carried out to a perfection. The principal letter for the Dover Plant, George Allen, has been 20 years at just that kind of artistic work and to see his results on gold leaf is to appreciate high-water excellence.

The painting, lettering and varnishing are all done upon the second floor of the shop. There one may see all kinds of Winchester vehicles from heretics, express wagons to big automobiles, in various stages of paint dress. The lettering particularly is beautiful to look at. The painting of motor cars is a recent and highly successful innovation at Dover's.

On the ground floor the blacksmithing is done. Much of this is done personally by Proprietor Dover who is an expert. He has been located here for some nine years having previously been a journeyman well known to Winchesterites.

Rubber tire work is a leading specialty at Dover's.

WINCHESTER HISTORICAL.

From a Sketch Prepared by Messrs.
Arthur I. Whitney and George S.
Littlefield on the Occasion of the 250th Anniversary, 1590.

Two centuries and a half ago the territory now embraced in Winchester was a wild, unsettled part of Charlestown, called Waterfield. It was a part of the original territory granted to Charlestown by the General Court in 1633 and defined in 1636 as extending "eight miles into the country from their meeting house" May 13, 1649, the General Court granted Charlestown "two miles at their head line, provided they build within two years." Oct. 7, 1649, they also voted: "Charles Towne petition is granted them, with their former grant to make a village." (Massachusetts Colony Records.)

These last additions to Charlestown's original grant extended much beyond the present northerly line of the eight mile limit or "Waterfield" and embraced the territory of the present City of Woburn and towns of Burlington ("Shaw Shin") and Wilmington ("The Land of Nod.") The wild lands of Waterfield (1633) included only the territory along the banks of our Aberjona river from Mystic Pond to the land of John Harvard (Winchester Highlands) and the territory bordering on Horn Pond and Horn Pond River; as its name implies, it was a waterfield. It was surveyed and allotted to the inhabitants of Charlestown previous to 1638 (See Charlestown Book of Possessions.) By this record, supplemented by a map of Waterfield, drawn by the late George Cooke (Winchester Record, Vol. II, No. 2) Winchester can define and locate her land owners of 1638. They included such men as Edward Converse, Edward Johnson, Increase Nowell, Zachariah Symmes, John Harvard, Thomas Graves, Ezekiel, Samuel, and Thomas Richardson, William Frothingham, George Hunker, and many others whose connection with our early history we are proud to acknowledge.

It is evident from both the Charlestown and Massachusetts Colony records that it was the intention of Charlestown to allot the newly acquired territory to her own citizens and to establish a village near the site of Waterfield, hence our second name "Charlestown Village."

Nov. 4, 1649, a committee of thirteen was chosen by the town to "set the bounds between Charlestown and the village and to appoint a place for the village." It seems that the committee did not agree in their decision, as the Woburn records subsequently state that "it was in part assented to and part denied." It appears also, that after securing the grant of new land a project developed among the leaders of the Charlestown church to establish a new church and a new town. Hence on Nov. 4, the church (not the inhabitants) of Charlestown, of which Rev. Zachariah Symmes, the ancestor of the Symmes family in Winchester, was pastor, chose a committee of seven, Edward Converse, Edward Johnson, Ezekiel Richardson, John Mousall, Thomas Graves, Samuel Richardson and Thomas Richardson, as commissioners for the erection of a new church and town, where a "village" had been originally designed within the limits of Charlestown. (Charlestown Records.) In the colonial days the authority of the Puritan church was equal, if not superior, to the civil authority, thus it was through the instrumentality of the church, not the town, of Charlestown that our territory, first Waterfield, then Charlestown village, was finally annexed to Woburn in 1642. Though the church appointed the commissioners above referred to, yet when a large number came forward to join the new town, the church became afraid that Charlestown would become "depopulated." She therefore discontinued the enterprise and watched all who were in favor of it with a "jealous eye." Subsequently the commissioners seem to have overcome the opposition of the church or to have out-voted the opponents of the new departure, as at a church meeting held Dec. 3, 1640, it was voted "full power is given to Edward Converse and Company to go on with the work."

Johnson says the people were cheerful in these humble habitations. "Every one who could lift a hoe to strike it in to the earth aided in raising the first crop; but they had to stand stoutly to their labors and tear up the roots and bushes which abounded, the first year bearing them in useful vegetables a very thin crop."—so thin, indeed, "that they were forced to cut their bread very thin for a long season." As a help they lived upon fish which abounded in the streams; and they were helped much by raising Indian corn, which they prepared after the manner of the Indians. As for meat they "looked not for any in those times," unless they could barter with the Indians for venison or raccoons, whose flesh was considered not much inferior to lamb. One thing they had learned, in the words of Johnson, that the "toil of a new plantation" was "like the labors of Hercules, never at an end."

The first record we have relating especially to this unexplored country was in 1635, when "Edward Converse, William Brackenbury, and Mr. Abraham Palmer were desired to go up into the country upon discovery three or four days, for which they were to be satisfied at the charge of the town." (Charlestown Records.) Edward Converse, the staunch Puritan, was the leader in this and subsequent explorations. He was one of Winthrop's company and an inhabitant of Charlestown as early as 1630, and one of the selectmen from 1635 to 1649. He established the first ferry between Charlestown and Boston on the site of the present Charles River Bridge, paying $40 per year rental to the Colony for the franchise. He might be called the father of Winchester, as, in 1649, he built and occupied the first house, on the site of the present Thompson estate next to the Post Office. He also established the first "cornmill" on the site of the present Whitney mills previous to 1649, probably in 1641. This was the first business established in Winchester.

Some of the military men of this locality, before the American Revolution, were Josiah Converse, captain, 1706 to 1717; Robert Converse, captain, 1726 to 1736; Samuel Carter, captain of cavalry, commissioned 1744 (died 1787, aged 92 years); Samuel Belknap, Senior, captain and lieutenant, 1748 to 1752; Jabez Carter, captain and lieutenant, 1748 to 1771; Ebenezer Converse, captain and lieutenant, 1753 to 1764; John Carter, lieutenant, 1769 to 1772; William Belknap, lieutenant, 1762 to 1767; Josiah Converse, ensign, 1714 to 1726 (died 1748); Daniel Reed, ensign, 1747 to 1755.

Samuel Belknap, a captain and patriot of the Revolution, lived on the present James Russell estate. Bill Russell, a revolutionary pensioner, was a lieutenant colonel of cavalry in the militia of 1807. Samuel B. White was a lieutenant colonel of militia in 1839. Francis Johnson was a major of militia in 1807. We have not the space to enumerate privateers or officers of a lower rank.

Much more could be written concerning the early history of Winchester, did space admit, but some idea of the importance and ancient character of the hostelry known as the Black Horse Tavern, should be mentioned. This house at one time gave a name to the village,—it being called Black Horse Village. As long ago as the year 1761, Giles Alexander sold it to Noah Wyman, it having been licensed before that time for an inn or tavern, and Wyman continued to keep it. Noah Richardson owned and kept it in 1774. During the Revolution it was an important rendezvous for the patriots. It was also at that time on an important stage route from Boston to Portsmouth. In 1813 the high-sounding name of the route from "Boston to Montreal" was applied to this road, and in the following year the route "to Montreal and Quebec." In 1792 it was described as on the upper route to Casco Bay in Maine.

The town of Winchester was started clear of debt. Her motto was "Economy and prompt payment," and her leading town officers for the first year made no charge for their services, and the service was itself of the best.

The choice of the name of Winchester was fortunate in one respect, that it brought a welcome gift of three thousand dollars to be used in the erection of a Town Hall, or any other proper object of municipal expenditure. Colonel Winchester was informed that the name was given to the town, at the request of its inhabitants, out of compliment to him, and he, not being content with a mere verbal expression of his appreciation, begged leave to present to the new town the sum stated for the purposes before mentioned. The letter was dated at Boston, May 25, 1850.

Colonel Winchester died August 6, 1850, at the early age of forty-nine years, at his residence in Watertown. He was an accomplished scholar in the French, Spanish, and Italian languages. The money presented by Colonel Winchester was first expended on the purchase of Wildwood cemetery. The Winchester fund was returned to the Town treasury in 1885. Recently a part was transferred to the Town Hall account to purchase a clock, bell, and other furnishings for that building. On the bell in the tower an inscription is cast: "This clock and bell commemorate the gift of William P. Winchester to the town which bears his name."

Winchester had one advantage when incorporated: she was a new town, and could avail herself of the experience of many generations, and avoid the errors of older municipalities and shape her institutions after a more perfect pattern. Great attention was paid to schools and the town expenditure was principally for this object. At the outset she had no expensive public buildings to erect, and the fund contributed by Col. Winchester aided in the purchase of land for a cemetery. The school committee had charge of all the schools and schoolhouses,—there were no school districts, and no district or prudential committees,—and one common and uniform system of administration was applied to every school and school division. This arrangement was at that time an improvement on the methods in other towns, though common enough now. From the first year of her corporate existence there was a High School kept, in which the town had commendable pride, although the number of families did not require the maintenance of such a school. She was then the smallest town in the State that sustained a High School. When the whole of her population was but eighteen hundred and one, and her valuation but half a million dollars, her standing among the towns and cities of Massachusetts, in the comparative amount of money expended for education, was in one year, the second.

In the civil war of 1861 to 1865, the town furnished 244 men, at a pecuniary cost of nearly thirty thousand dollars; this amount was raised by hiring money for a term of years, by taxation, and by subscription; the town officers and others giving their services and expenses. The number of men who died in the service was ten. In her quota were five persons bearing the rank of major—one on the staff, two of the commissary, and one of the medical department, and one in the line—including the well-known names of Bolles, Norton, Richardson, Ingalls, and Prince. Seven bore the title of captain, four in the line, one in the navy, one paymaster in the navy, and one acting-master in the navy; including the names of Bacon, two Richardsons, Williams, Spier, Weld and Ford. The last two lost their lives in the service. There were also two lieutenants—Abrahams and Hartshorn—five minor medical officers, one acting assistant paymaster in the navy, and three sergeants, and two corporals. A good record for a town which started in 1850 with thirteen hundred population, and two hundred and fifty voters.

In 1887, the corner stone of the Town Hall and Library was laid, and the building was completed in 1889. The hall has a seating capacity of 1,300. The town officers have suitable and pleasant accommodations. The Public Library, established in 1859, is located in a wing of the building, well adapted for its purposes. Since occupying its new rooms, the increase of books given out has been thirty-two percent.

Winchester has always been noted for the devoted interest of her citizens and officials in municipal affairs. Their public spirit has made her what she is and its continuance will ensure future increase in population, wealth, and culture.

Winchester Automobile Co.

From three points in the town of Winchester one may enter the well appointed garage of the above mentioned Company. Once inside the motorist finds the supply shop and the repair shop that are necessary adjuncts.

Just at present there is being built a fine new entrance from Main street next to the Middlesex County Bank. This will be wide enough to admit the largest motor cars. At present cars arrive from Pleasant Street via Converse place.

Cars stored at this garage are given the best of care.

The management of the garage is in the hands of Geo. O. Fogg, who is widely known in the fire insurance circles of Boston and vicinity. The Company is agent for the Maxwell and the Ford automobiles. Associated with Mr. Fogg is George C. Tedford, who acts as manager of the company.

"Flower Bed Time"

What a Little Visit to Newmans' Greenhouses Suggests

At Bacon and Central streets in Winchester are the greenhouses of J. Newman & Sons Corporation, the florist, with store at 24 Tremont street, Boston. While the product of these houses is needed for the trade in the "big town" yet local folks find Newman's greenhouses quite convenient for affairs like weddings, receptions, etc., etc.—Plants, decorations, you know.

Now is "hanging basket" time. A visitor to this place saw some baskets there the other day which were good to look at. Imagine a geranium, flower and all, lobelias, petunias and others in a big round affair, and all for one dollar. Other baskets with more floral growth were quoted at $2.50.

The Newman greenhouses are an old reliable institution of the town. Visitors are always welcome and a complete visit is a half hour well spent.

Palms and ferns are noticeable in their profusion. Roses are everywhere. Of course the visitors expect this for it is not this month the month of Roses?

If you have in mind a garden and would have some fine plants for flower beds call at the greenhouses. Bacon and Central streets.

CARL LARSON

DECORATOR

Located in the heart of Winchester in the Whitney buildings, off Main street, at 580, is the shop of Winchester's expert decorator, Carl Larson.

For five years decorator Larson has furnished his skill and materials in making beautiful the interiors of Winchester's fine homes. All of Capt. Nickerson's work is done by him as well as the work in such lines in hundreds of fine west side places.

Painting, hard-wood finishing, paper-hangings, are all done in strictly up-to-date fashion.

At these rent's homes a fine variety of wall paper samples will be shown.

Here is the advantage of having a local man's work. The many beautiful papers from Larson's can be taken into the home in good light, shown with the furnishings and "harmonized."

The telephone number of Carl Larson is 115-2. A force of efficient workmen are employed the "year round."

No job is too big or too small for the Larson shop and every attention is given to make a patron satisfied.

AT McNELLY'S

Sketch of a Blacksmithing Shop, where every bit of Work Done is "Classy."

The town of Winchester witnesses many changes in business, but when it comes to expert blacksmithing those who know the worth of good work go to J. F. McNelly's as in many years past.

The McNelly shop is located on Converse place in the heart of Winchester, just a step from Main street.

The proprietor, J. F. McNelly knows every line of the blacksmithing business from start to finish and personally oversees every bit of work done. A force of horsehoofers are constantly employed, men who can shoe the most carefully raised trotter, or the crippled old family horse with the ease of shoeing the heavy dray horse.

The carriage work at McNelly's is on par with the horsehoofing. The telephone number of McNelly's is 282-4.

At rubber tire work, Mr. McNelly's shop is the original specialist.

PICCOLO BROS.

Winchester's leading Fruitlers have gained unbounded popularity—What may be seen in a visit to their Pleasant Street store.

Piccolo Bros. have, in the 20 years or more of business in town made of every customer a firm friend.

In the business of supplying fresh fruits and vegetables with a choice line of fresh bakery goods they have made good in every detail. In the estimation of their customers.

Yesterday when a writer for the STAR entered the store, located next to the STAR office, there was every indication that Winchester would have plenty of delicious fruits for the 4th of July dinner.

Luscious strawberries, big, red, sound yet melting natives were there, clustered in boxes. Such berries! And such watermelons cooling beside. There was an aroma such only comes from the red, red fruit, the giant oblong prize of the season.

There were bananas and oranges in quantities, lemons for decoration that goes in a pitcher with a drink, and in fact, a whole host of the best in fruitland. And besides, there was the bread, the browned bread, fresh in from the ovens. Pastry, cake, cookies, popcorn and the rest of comfort there.

Piccolo Bros. are purveyors in fruit line.

FARROW'S WALL PAPER

A visit to the busy Main Street Store shows real art. Prepared Paints a specialty—Papering and Painting done in first class style.

Gene B. Farrow's wall paper and paint store is the headquarters for those who keep in mind the beautifying of the home.

Until one has seen the pretty and new designs at 620 Main street, and that in Farrow's store, one does not realize what designers in beautiful wall paper and borders have accomplished. And more, the prices are little. Some very attractive figures in bright blues are selling at 5 cents a roll. At somewhat higher prices are the elegant designs for the stately mansions, the magnificent country home.

Everybody who knows anything about paints prepared for use has heard of Devoe's paints. Gene B. Farrow carries the full line of Devoe's paints and varnishes. Any man who can wield a brush can paint his home with Devoe's for it is all ready to use.

At Farrow's one sees the most attractive in friezes, mouldings, the best in varnishes, dry colors, plaster paris, tile cement and like tile, the newest covering for bathrooms, frescoes—in fact the best in painters' supplies are there. For 17 years Mr. Farrow has been in this business in Winchester and Boston.

Latest and best prices, hand orchestra and song are features in the line of the Columbia graphophone repertoire carried by Farrow's store. The instruments are the best and sold at lowest city prices.

FIRE'S LONG REACH

Money locked in a safety deposit vault is pretty safe from fire, but almost every other possession of value is more or less at the mercy of flames.

It takes a big scare to drive some men to action. That is why after every big fire so many come in to get insured.

Don't wait for a fire to spur you into securing protection, because that blaze might strike YOU and then it would be too late.

If you are not standing upon a good and sufficient insurance foundation see me at once.

Your Salary

Are you dependent upon it, and it alone?

Then you shouldn't be paying rent. A salary is but a temporary means of support.

Suppose it should be reduced, or cut off altogether. If you had a home of your own you wouldn't mind it so much. If renting, then what?

It is not well to always look upon the "dark side," yet these are matters that we cannot well avoid considering. And that is why I say to buy a home.

Come in and see what I have.

A Few of the Attractions the Island Offers to Vacationists.

The Massachusetts Press Association took its annual outing this year at Nantucket. This was a striking occurrence, because for the first time in its history the same place was visited in two successive years. Sixty-six persons, representing twenty-seven newspapers made up the party. In the midst of the usual Saturday crowd at the South Terminal in Boston, they found their way to a special car attached to the 1.25 train. Herbert Ellis, press agent of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. was a guest of the Association, which extended to him this privilege as a slight token of appreciation of his successful efforts in arranging for the comfort of the party. The facility with which the crowded train was handled, without accident or delay gave strong testimony in favor of the efficient management of that great railroad system, whose control over New England transportation facilities seems to be so much feared by many. Certainly there was no sign that "a great, gigantic octopus" was in control.

The steamer Nantucket started from Woods Hole promptly at 4 o'clock and after a brief stop at Oak Bluffs, where George F. Parker watched us from under his umbrella, a two and a half hour sail landed us in Nantucket.

The destination of the party was Sea Cliff Inn, operated by a corporation of which Clifford Folger is treasurer and manager. Born on the island, Mr. Folger has a full measure of the loyalty, which is so strikingly displayed by all who have that start in life. Though Mr. Folger has not always been a hotel man, his early business experience has taught him how to please his customers and the success of this house is a testimony to his qualifications for his present occupation. He aims to please, and consequently there is no time during the season from June 15 to September 25, when he escapes the daily distress of turning away those who would be his guests. There may be better hotels, but it would require a diligent search through the world to find them. The table service is unexceptionable, due to the fact that Mr. Folger secures the best of chefs and waiters.

The best drive about the island takes in Sankaty Light the village of Siasconset and the wireless station. It is seventeen miles in extent. The principal points of interest outside this are Surtise, the old mill, the Post's corner, the Coffin house, the Observatory (built by Maria Mitchell) and the Historical Society Room (including the old Quaker Meeting House) all these were visited. The poet, named Gardner, served in the war of the rebellion, came back to Boston, was in the express business for a while and was for some years connected with the fire department. A few years ago he moved to Nantucket. He lives alone in a cottage, which is easily found by reason of the signs along the road which bear the inscription, "To the Poet's Corner," with a hand pointing the way. The poet makes a good living selling copies of his poems, which are not quite of the standard of Whittier or Longfellow. In fact several members of the party gave indication of possessing fully as much poetic "effluvia."

The poet adds to his income by the sale of peanuts, pictures and knickknacks. The old mill has been out of service for sixteen years, but visitors are allowed for a small fee to climb its stairs and listen to an explanation of its construction, given by Capt. Downs its custodian.

The old Quaker Meeting house is kept intact with its fine pews, gallery reserved for colored people and the seats for the elders. Even some of the umbrellas left in the racks at the last meeting are to be seen.

When the whaling industry was prosperous there were ten thousand inhabitants on the island. Now the number is twenty-eight hundred. But about sixteen thousand summer visitors enjoy its quaintness and beauty during the season.

There are several good bathing beaches and the water is quite warm. At all times a good breeze prevails. The temperature is quite constant. During our visit the thermometer ran from 65 degrees to 75 degrees. Three times during June it has reached 80 degrees, which is the highest record. During the hours from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. there is usually no change in temperature.

The Association held a business meeting on Monday evening. During its session Capt. Doten, the Historian, read an appropriate original poem in honor of the occasion, which concluded as follows:

L'ENVOI.

Nantucket, Nantucket, Nantucket,
The pearl of the sea—none can tuck it;
Inside of our heads we have tuck it;
Safe and tight as if tuck in a bucket;
Nought can from our memories pluck it;

We are mightily glad that we struck it,
And feel what a piece of good luck it
Was, Nature concluded to chuck it
Out where the great ocean could duck it, Washing off all the dirt that might muck it.

While great big and juicy clams tuck it,
And hens everywhere seem to tuck it,
Why! even the storms hardly tuck it.
The islanders in their hearts tuck it.
PAWtucket, SATucket, SHTucket,—
Not "any old kind" of a tucket,
Is pretty as NAN with her tucket.
That's why every man loves Nantucket.
Dear, dainty and sweet Nancy Tucket.

WHERE THEY ARE.

With the closing of the schools and the passing of the 4th Winchester sinks into the dull quiet of a country town, as a large majority of its residents seek comfort during the heat of July and August at the shore or mountain. During the past month the names of many have been published as having taken up their abode at this or that resort, and we give below the list of departures of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smalley are occupying their cottage at Harwichport.

Mr. George A. Fernald's family are spending the summer at their farm at Lancaster, N. H.

Mr. George G. Kellogg and family are at North Leeds for the warm weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gleason and family are spending the summer at Newport, R. I., being located at Purgatory road.

Mr. Erank M. Gerrish is at Rye Beach, N. H.

Mr. L. H. Spaulding and family are at South Harpswell, Me.

Mr. Geo. A. Woods and family are occupying their cottage at Megansett.

Mr. Clarence H. Lewis and family are at their cottage at Allerton.

Miss M. McE. Noyes is spending the summer at South Byfield.

Mr. Raymond Himes and family are stopping at G. at Chebeague Island, Me.

Miss G. S. Lawrence is at Annisquam.

Mr. George W. Fitch and family are spending the summer at Lake Pearl, Wrentham.

Mr. Oren C. Sanborn and family are occupying their cottage at Megansett.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Clark and family have taken a cottage at Manomet for the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. French are at Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. Josef Sandberg are spending the summer at Friendship, Me.

Mr. Henry C. Ordway and family are at West Hampstead, N. H.

WENT OVER THE ROUTE.

Mr. W. L. Tuck in an interview with a STAR reporter, says that he was the only Winchester man to go over the entire route of the proposed Boston, Lowell & Lawrence electric railroad with the Railroad Commissioners Tuesday. He says that he believes a majority of the people of Winchester are in favor of the road and that he has many letters from citizens from all parts of the town favoring the project. He further said that while he appeared to be the under dog in this fight, yet he knew for a fact that he had many citizens with him.

MEREDITH L. CHAPMAN.

Meredith L. Chapman, 8 years, 10 months old, son of Charles H. Chapman, jr., of Highland avenue, died Wednesday afternoon at the home of his grandparents, corner of Fells road. The little boy had scarlet fever about seven weeks ago, followed by rheumatic fever, pneumonia and heart failure. He was a particularly lovable child and died under very sad circumstances as his parents had recently purchased a new home on Highland avenue, and were waiting to take him to it. The body will be taken to West Groton, Mass., and the services and burial will be at the family lot there.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Sad Accident Only Drawback to a Very Enjoyable Celebration.

The glorious 4th as celebrated on Monday was enjoyed as one of the most perfect days of the summer: clear and cool with an elegant morning and evening. It seemed more like a day in early fall than July. As has been the tendency of each year, the day was the quietest yet, with few accidents and much enjoyment for everyone. Some anticipation of a noisy Sunday evening was wholly without realization, for the town was absolutely quiet until four o'clock Monday morning—the time decreed by the Select men for the opening of the celebration by the youth of the town.

The most serious accident occurred on the Saturday evening preceding, the victim being Arthur S. Adams, 13 years of age, son of Charles S. Adams of Mystic avenue. The lad had a fire cracker cannon which he had loaded with powder. The act attracted the attention of his father, who told him he must not shoot it, and the boy went to the cellar to take the charge out. His father followed him, but before he reached the scene Arthur had attempted to drive the charge out with a nail, exploding it in some way and receiving severe injuries to the upper part of his leg. He was attended by Doctors Putnam and Church and later taken to the Mass. Gen. Hospital, where he is reported as doing nicely with no serious consequences anticipated.

John Tansey, while standing near the centre fire station during the afternoon of the 5th, was struck in the neck by the handle of a lard pail, blown by an exploding giant cracker, and quite badly lacerated, three stitches being taken by Dr. McCarthy. Tansey was particularly unfortunate, in that he was over 100 feet distant from the pail and farther away than any of the spectators. The handle did not cause a very serious wound, but when Tansey felt it about his neck he pulled it off and enlarged the cut.

The fires were three in number, all genuine and all during the afternoon of Monday. The first was box 43, coming in at about three o'clock. This was for a house on Salem street, owned by Daniel Murphy and occupied by Edmund J. Gendron. It was evidently caused by a firecracker on the roof, and had burned inside upon the arrival of the department. It was extinguished with chemicals and the loss was slight. Almost immediately following this alarm box 64 was sounded for a fire on the piazza of the residence occupied by Rev. Mr. Dwight of Fells road, it catching on burning grass. This also was quickly extinguished with chemicals. Later in the day box 57 was rung in for a fire in the house on Harvard street occupied by C. H. McCarthy. The fire was in the attic and was caused evidently by children playing with matches. The damage was slight.

The Winchester band gave three concerts during the day on Manchester Field which were much enjoyed and well given. In the evening the fireworks called out a big crowd, with a large attendance from Woburn and Stoneham. The display was very fine and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

BASE BALL.

The game between members of the Royal Arcanum and Odd Fellows on Manchester Field during the early morning hours was chock full of fun. The air was kept continually full of holes, and in many instances the use of bases signified nothing. A fine hit would bring a man to first or second base, but ignorance of the fact that being off his base meant being quickly touched by the ball resulted in chagrin to the unlucky player. Stiff and sore limbs were common among the players the next day. The spectators enjoyed the fun immensely. At the end of five innings the score stood 13 to 4 in favor of the Arcanumites.

At the conclusion of this game the Columbians and Hiawathas crossed bats, the former winning by the score of 20 to 2.

In the afternoon Winchester A. A. in an interesting game before a large audience defeated Somerville 9 to 5.

HIAWATHA'S SWAMPED.

The base ball game in the morning between the Hiawathas, Henry J. Lyons capt. and the Columbians, Geo. D. LeDuc capt. was very disappointing to the spectators, as the morning game has always been a very good one. The Hiawathas suffered their first defeat and perhaps are suffering yet. The third base line was crowded with all Hiawatha rooters but they did not have much chance to root.

When the Hiawathas scored their first run, which was a gift, manager Lyons proceeded to put up a fire-ball in imitation of the Columbians "going up in the air" but it would not rise in the air and ended with catching fire. This disheartened the Hiawathas for they seemed more dead than alive afterwards.

Manager Lyons had the idea that he could rattle Foley the High school pitcher and thereby win, but he has another idea coming. He was asked to call the game off when there was no hope for him but he would not do it.

The Hiawathas played like a grammar school team if not worse, while the fielding and batting of the Columbians was a treat to the spectators.

The band did not play "Hiawatha" but played a funeral march for "Bucky." He has not put in an appearance since the game and perhaps will not for two or three weeks.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB

The play at the Winchester Country Club on Saturday was four ball foursomes with one-quarter added handicaps. G. M. Brooks and H. T. Bond turned in the best score, both in gross and net.

The summary:

GRADE CROSSING ABOLITION.

Does Not Believe in Insisting on Centre Bridge Scheme.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your last week's issue was the first opportunity to see in print the vote of the last town meeting in regard to the grade crossing. The only information the citizens had of the wording of the vote was such as they were able to gather from the two readings accorded it at the meeting.

What is the effect of the vote on the proceedings to abolish the crossing? I have great confidence in the framers and supporters of the resolution and hope their action is justified by the facts in their possession.

It should be borne in mind that the proceedings to abolish the crossing were begun at the instigation of the town and have since proceeded on their way through the various stages provided by the Statutes and were about to be concluded, after a long delay, by a decision from the special commission having the matter legally before them in the usual manner. Now the town steps in and by a resolution votes "to oppose and defeat the final adoption of the plan of abolition contemplated by the special commission."

The trouble would seem to be that, unless a certain method of abolition is adopted, the supporters of the resolution would rather see the proceedings fall altogether.

My only interest in the matter is to see some of the dangers of the two crossings eliminated and, in order to do so, believe the proceedings should be carried through to a final conclusion without interruption and opposition on the part of the town, which petitioned to have the crossing abolished in the first instance.

If the special commission should report a plan that was entirely unreasonable and inadequate, which they have not yet done, the town would probably have ample opportunity to drop the proceedings and would very likely be encouraged to do so by the two parties to the proceedings whose expense is the largest.

I am not sufficiently wedded to one particular method of abolition to wish to see the whole proceedings fall if my plan is not adopted by the special commission, but I fear the effect of the vote passed will be to kill the present proceedings, unless the "town plan," so-called, is adopted. The town plan has been pronounced impractical so many times, by reason of the expense involved, that for no other, that we would seem to be jeopardizing the success of the whole proceedings by continuing further to pass votes in its favor.

Very truly,
FRANK E. BARNARD

McCULLOCH—PLUMMER.

The wedding of Miss Blanche Marion Plummer, daughter of Mrs. Henry W. Plummer of Lincoln street, a well known young woman of this town, and Mr. William Lester McCulloch of Boston was solemnized on Wednesday morning by Rev. John W. Suter, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was of a quiet nature and attended only by relatives of the couple and a few intimate friends.

The house was decorated for the occasion with potted plants, ferns and cut flowers, and the wedding march was played by Mr. Halfred Ambler. The bride was given in marriage by her mother, she being dressed in white silk and carrying a shower bouquet of roses. Her attendant was Miss Caroline McCulloch, sister of the groom, and Mr. William C. Ross of Dorchester was the best man. The bridesmaid was gown in white silk batiste and carried pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, attended by guests from Arlington, Dorchester, Stoneham, Rockland and Lynn. Many beautiful gifts were received by the couple, among them being a cut glass punch bowl from the men in the engineering department of the Henry Siegel Company, Boston, where Mr. McCulloch is chief engineer and where his wife has been employed for the past three years.

Upon their return from their wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch will reside at No. 8 Lincoln street.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The church will be open every Sunday during the summer for morning service at 10.30 a. m. In the absence of the rector, the Rev. C. P. Mills will be in charge. He will be assisted in August by Mr. John Hamilton Robinson. The address of the rector and other details in regard to ministerial supply, etc. will be in the hands of the wardens, and also at Mr. Arnold's store, Common street.

H. A. Wheeler and family left last week for Intervale, N. H.

WINCHESTER BOYS

WON EVENTS.

At the joint regatta between the Medford and Winchester Boat Clubs on Mystic lake Monday, the Winchester boys won three of the six events and took one second. The sports were held at the Medford end of the lake in the presence of a large crowd from both organizations, although the high wind somewhat marred the sport the races were all carried off without an accident.

The tilting tournament was won by John and Philip Sheridan over the Medford team. In this event H. D. Murphy and August Guilford reached the finals and came near tilting off with their club-mates.

The tail end race was won by Fred M. Bates, he capturing first place easily over the field.

The four hand paddle was won by the Winchester team, composed of Ernest Evans, August Guilford, John Barnard and George Cummings.

In the evening dancing was enjoyed until a late hour by a large number.

THE MIRAGE.

Conditions That Make Possible This Beautiful Illusion.

About that natural phenomenon, the mirage, much mystery clung to days of old, but science explains it as readily as the rainbow.

The fata morgana of the strait of Messina and the specter of the Brocken were nothing more in sober reality than mere mirage.

A mirage may occur at any place where the denser stratum of air is placed above the lighter stratum, thus refracting the rays of light, the common surface of the two strata acting as a mirror.

In looming mirages distant objects show an extravagant increase in vertical height without alteration in breadth. Distant hummocks of ice are thus magnified into immense towers and pinnacles, and a ship is sometimes abnormally drawn out until it appears twelve or thirteen times as high as it is long. Rocks are seen drawn up to ten or twelve times their proper height. Houses as well as human beings and animals appear in like exaggerated shape.

Another form of mirage is when a ship or some other object near the water seems greatly elongated and a second inverted image meets it from above.

Sometimes the proper image of the object is elevated far above the sea, while the second image strangely appears inverted beneath it, the whole surrounded by a sheet of sky which is mirrored and repeated within it.

In 1882 in the arctic region Captain Scoresby recognized by its inverted image in the air his father's ship, the Fame, which afterward proved to be seventeen miles beyond the visible horizon of his observation.

One August evening in 1806 Dr. Vince saw from Ramsgate, at which place only the tops of Dover castle towers are usually visible, the whole of the castle. It appeared as though lifted up and bodily placed on the near side of the intervening hill. So perfect was this illusion that the hill itself actually could not be seen through the figure.

Some forms of mirage are lateral as well as vertical, arising from unequal density of two contiguous vertical bodies of air. Thus on Lake Geneva a boat has been seen double, the two images some distance apart.

Persons have been duplicated in the same way. Any one on a hot day by placing his eye near to a heated wall may see lateral mirages of objects at a distance and nearly on a line with the wall.

Mirages are very frequent on deserts or the large sandy plains which abound in the southwestern states and territories. Many a panting wagon train has pushed on in joyous haste at the sight of a green grove or limpid lake, only to be cruelly disappointed at the fading away of the vision. Is it any wonder that the natives and Indians regard the phenomenon as the work of evil and tantalizing spirits?

Lake Ontario is famous for beautiful and wonderful mirages, during which the opposite shore of the lake is plainly visible from either side.—Pearson's.

Court Dwarfs.

Until about little more than a century ago dwarfs were frequently kept as court toys. Records of them might be multiplied almost indefinitely.

Bebe, the dwarf of Stanislaus, king of Poland, lived to be ninety years of age, dying in Paris in 1858, and is variously described as having measured thirty-five inches and twenty-three inches. Julia, niece of Augustus, had two dwarfs, each twenty-eight inches in height, and Henrietta Maria had two whose joint height was seven feet two inches. The Emperor Augustus had a dwarf named Lucius whose height was two feet and weight seventeen pounds. The last court dwarf in England was Coppern, who belonged to the Princess of Wales, mother of George III.

An Isle of Man Oath.

What is regarded as the quaintest oath still in use is that taken by the high court judges in the Isle of Man, the terms of which are as follows: "By this book and the contents thereof and by the wonderful works that God hath miraculously wrought in the heaven above and the earth beneath in six days and six nights I do swear that I will, without respect of favor or friendship, loss or gain, consanguinity or affinity, envy or malice, execute the laws of this Isle justly between party and party as indifferently as the herring backbone doth lie in the midst of the fish. So help me God and the contents of this book."

Selfishness.

Jones worked so hard and denied himself so much in order to pay his life insurance that he had neither the time nor the means to be sick, and he outlived all the beneficiaries, who were meanwhile engaged in the relatively unhealthy business of lying back and waiting for him to die. Moreover, in thinking of the matter he became convinced that he had a good deal of fun, after all—more fun, indeed, than most. "I'm a terribly selfish fellow," exclaimed Jones guiltily.—Puck.

Politely Bounced.

A good example of the extremely courteous in public correspondence was the notice sent to Charles James Fox that he was no longer a member of the government of George III. It read thus: "His gracious majesty has been pleased to issue a new commission in which your name does not appear."

"To cast away a good friend is like casting away one's life.—Aristotle.

RAW DRUGS.

Castor Oil Comes as Pretty Little Brown and Black Beans.

Upon going into a pharmacy and looking over the mysterious jars and bottles and boxes that line the shelves did you ever wonder where on earth all of the drugs came from and how they appeared before they were ground up and made into pills or dried or pulverized or crystallized into queer shaped lumps? Each jar and box seems to hide some secret which you immediately become curious to solve. How many different lands do they represent? And, after they leave the jars that hold them now, what are they made into?

Who, for example, would connect a great pile of dry, thin twigs, neatly tied into small bundles, with sarsaparilla? These twigs are the creeping roots and rootlets of a prickly shrub that grows in Jamaica, and they are worth from 10 to 50 cents a pound.

Somewhat similar in appearance is Ipecacuanha, which also comes to us in dry twigs, which are part of the trailing root of a plant found in the damp forests of Brazil.

These roots receive no preparation save drying before they are shipped off to the United States. They are packed in large sacks, and the workmen who open the bales must beware of breathing the pungent, irritating dust given off, which is productive of unpleasant results if incautiously inhaled.

Castor oil, too, is hard to recognize in the pretty little brown beans, spotted with black and with polished skins, that arrive in bags from India. They look far too attractive to suggest the much hated dose of our early days.

Aloes, the base of many nauseous medicines, may be seen in its crude form as a solid mass resembling brown sealing wax, packed in heavy wooden boxes, from which it is chipped out in flakes with a chisel and hammer.

It is of different qualities and prices, according to whether it comes from Arabia, Socotra or the West Indies, and may bring any sum from $4 to $45 per hundredweight. Aloes is the juice of the big fleshy leaves of the plant of that name. This juice is pressed or evaporated from the leaves and poured into chests or kegs in a semifluid state, hardening presently into a solid block. Not infrequently it is inclosed in the dry skins of monkeys and in this strange form brought to market.

One of the most interesting of drugs is opium, both on account of its awful potency and by reason of its great value. A case of opium, about 225 pounds, is worth $400 roughly. The case is of rough deal lined with tin and contains a number of soft, dark lumps, like large handfuls of dough packed very closely together in a quantity of dry, chaffy seeds.

The opium which reaches America is of two qualities, one for medicine, the other for smoking, and comes from Persia and Asia Minor, China and India.—St. Louis Republic.

MONEY OF THE RICH.

Of More Use Foolishly Spent Than Hoarded or Lying Idle.

A great reservoir of water undistributed leaves men and women to perish of thirst and growing crops to parch and die. So also vaults bulging with stagnant money leave men and women to perish in abject poverty and ripened crops to rot within the fields and orchards that grew them. Therefore what happens to the dollars of the millionaire is a question of the first importance.

Those of us who believe in praying for material blessings will do well to pray long and earnestly that rich women will never cease to buy $100 hats and $1,000 gowns, with diamonds and other jewels to match; that they will continue to give balls and teas and entertainments of the most expensive kind; that they will be recklessly extravagant in gewgaws and fenderols of every description, because it will be good for us who depend upon an income drawn from the multitude of operations involved in producing, merchandising and transporting all those gewgaws and other glimmerings that go to keep extravagance at a high pitch.

Let us hope that rich men's sons will continue to spend their fathers' money as foolishly as they are reputed to do—not because it will be good for them, but because it will be good to have the money poured into the wage earner's money channels.

Let us doubly hope that the rich men may be prospered in their money getting, because they will not let it lie idle. Whatever their wives and children do not spend they put into stocks and bonds and thereby turn it into the wage earner's money channels. Let us be thankful, too, that neither the dollars of the rich nor the dollars of the poor are of any value save as they go into the wage channels of active circulation.—F. W. Hewes in Harper's Weekly.

His Shrewd Idea.

"Who is that sour looking girl with the heavy underjaw?"

"That is the only daughter of old De Milyuns."

"And who is the dainty bit of sweetness with the blue eyes and golden hair?"

"That's the chaperon."

"What's the explanation?"

"Why, it's old De Milyun's clever idea. He thinks his Jane will be perfectly safe as long as Miss Blossom is around."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"What can a doctor do when he gets a patient who neither drinks nor smokes?"

"Tell him to stop eating certain things. Everybody eats."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WOES OF THE PURSER

He Has Troubles of His Own on the Trip Across the Atlantic.

MUST HAVE A GOOD TEMPER.

His Time Wasted by Foolish Questions and Trivial Appeals, Mainly by Women Passengers. Yet He Has to Be Always Polite and Agreeable.

"Yes," said the purser on one of the big liners recently to the writer, who happened to be taking a trip from Liverpool to New York, "we have our own troubles. I can assure you, and I sometimes envy the captain his solitary enjoyment of the bridge, even during a sixty mile gale. Passengers seem to think that the purser is put on a ship simply to answer foolish questions.

"Of course there is a good deal which we have to put up with as being part of our legitimate duties, though when a passenger brings us a hundred dollar yellow back and asks to have it changed into English, French, German and Spanish money and stipulates that there must be twice as much French as German and half the remainder in English silver coins, presumably for tips, is it any wonder that we occasionally lose our tempers?"

"And then, again, the purser is always appealed to for the most trivial things. A woman passenger comes to the window, and if it is closed she will bang on it till it is opened, no matter if the sign is there as large as life that the office hours are from 11 to 2 and 4 to 6 o'clock and she is honoring me with a call at 3 p. m. Then, when the window is raised for fear she will smash it to smithereens, she says, with a sweet smile: 'Oh, Mr. Purser, I am so sorry to disturb you. I know it is not your hour of business, but could you tell me if we will really land next Thursday, as I told my brother we would, and I know he will be waiting for me on the dock?'"

"Of course I am polite, but I have some difficulty in persuading her that I am not running the ship, and neither can I control the elements. She goes away with an expression that clearly shows she thinks I am keeping something back and it will be my fault if we do not arrive at the time appointed."

"I remember on one trip when the weather was particularly stormy a woman passenger knocked at my door—after office hours, of course—and begged that she might speak to me for a few minutes. I politely asked her to enter, and then, her eyes starting out of her head with the excitement of suppressed emotion, she implored me to draw up her will. I protested that I was not a lawyer, but do you think she would be satisfied with that excuse? Not much! There and then I had to draw up a document in the best legal phraseology I could muster."

"When it was finished and I and my assistant had signed it she gave the young fellow a sovereign for his trouble, and as for me—well, she took off a very handsome ring and insisted on my accepting it. I have that ring yet, but what because of the donor I never knew, for when the storm abated and we were safe in port she never so much as bade me goodbye, though I had repeatedly asked her to take back her ring. She was a very rich woman evidently, and the 'bequests' in that will I drew up made my eyes bulge."

"Most passengers when we have been a day or so out bring the purser all their valuables, for which they receive a receipt. Some nervous women seem to think that a 'strong room' at sea is not a very secure place for their jewels, and they insist on seeing their treasures at least every day. One woman passenger made my life a burden during a recent voyage by taking her valuables out and putting them in again three times a day until I told her that the next time she called for them I would not take them back again, whereat she told me, with a sour look, that I was impertinent and she would inform the captain. I believe she did so, but the captain gave her a word or two of advice regarding the implicit trust which should be placed in a purser, and this quieted her. In fact, she afterward came to me and apologized for her seeming rudeness."

"As a rule, I conduct church service on board, as the captain does not enjoy the work, but prefers to remain on the bridge. Many a funeral service also has fallen to my lot, and I have even officiated at a christening. I am usually the one to whom a passenger dies when he is dissatisfied with his cabin, though the duty of changing a stateroom really rests with the head steward. Then, again, it is the purser who is appealed to when the passengers elect to hold a concert, and the young folks usually rush to him also when they want to have a dance on deck. A purser can be very popular or the reverse, and unless you have an excellent temper you stand a good chance of being the reverse."

"The funniest experience I had was on a recent trip, when there was on board a little girl about twelve years old. She struck up a warm friendship with me and would walk the deck for miles if I would only accompany her. She fell very ill during a storm and refused to be comforted. Her mother asked her if there was anything she could do which would ease her suffering, and the young imp said there was. If she would only 'skidoo' and let the purser read a book to her she would feel better. And the indulgent mother came to me, stated the case, and—well, I complied with her request and read to the child for a little while each day until she was well enough to come on deck again."—London Tit-Bits.

Perfectly Absurd.

The more one considers the proposed findings of the special grade crossing commission that a single bridge at the station is an equivalent for the present grade crossing at the centre, the more ridiculous it seems. Winchester is entitled to the facilities for reaching either side of the town equivalent to those of the present, and the citizens are perfectly right in opposing any scheme to curtail them as this single bridge greatly does.

A Popular Order.

The order issued to the Boston police department by Commissioner O'Meara that all girls found on the streets the night before the Fourth be arrested, was one that is pretty certain to receive the indorsement of the people. This order should also be pronounced by our Chief of Police next year. There is no occasion for young girls to be upon the streets late in the night accompanied by boys, and if parents do not take interest enough in them to keep them off the streets, the police should.

CIGARETTES AND MINORS.

The law relating to the sale or giving of cigarettes to minors, as amended by the last legislature, went into effect on Friday July 2, and is to be vigorously enforced. The law provides that: Who ever sells a cigarette to a person under eighteen years of age, or who ever sells snuff or tobacco in any of its forms to a person under sixteen years of age, or, not being his parent or guardian, gives a cigarette to a person under eighteen years of age, or gives snuff or tobacco in any of its forms to a person under sixteen years of age shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars. A copy of this section shall be posted conspicuously in the shop or other place of sale used by any person selling cigarettes at retail, and whoever violates this provision shall be punished as above prescribed.

It shall be the duty of the police department of cities and towns where such exists, and of constables in towns not having a police department, to see that a copy of the said section is posted in a conspicuous place where it can be read, in every shop or place where cigarettes are sold at retail. Any person unlawfully removing the said copy while cigarettes are still sold on the premises where it is posted shall be subject to a penalty of ten dollars.

MORE DELEGATES.

The Massachusetts Republican state convention for 1909 will be entitled to 1816 delegates. The basis of representation will be one delegate for the first seventy-five votes cast for the Republican candidate for governor in 1908, in each ward of a city and in each town; one delegate for each succeeding 150 votes cast for the Republican candidate for governor in 1908, in each ward of a city, and in each town, or for a fractional part as large as seventy-five votes so cast. Each ward of a city and each town is entitled to at least one delegate.

To the representative conventions the basis of representation is as follows: One delegate for every fifty votes cast for the Republican candidate for governor in 1908, in each ward of a city and in each town, or for a fractional part as large as twenty-five votes so cast. Each ward of a city and each town shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

THE ANGELL MEMORIAL

BUILDING.

The Directors of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and of the American Humane Education Society are planning to erect a Humane Building as a permanent memorial to their late President, George T. Angell. The undersigned have been appointed a committee to consider what style of building would be best. The first point to be considered is what funds may be available, and for the purpose of determining this, we ask that everyone send such sum as he wishes to contribute to Messrs. Kidder, Peabody & Company, 115 Devonshire street, Boston, or direct to the Treasurer of the Societies, 19 Milk street. Pledges of subscriptions, payable January 1, 1911, will also be received. Contributions may be made at once.

Mr. Angell always hoped for the erection of a building in Boston in which should be housed both our Humane Societies, and it is earnestly hoped that the interest and sympathy of the public will warrant such a building as other cities possess for similar organizations and one which shall be suited to the growing needs of humanitarian work.

Mr. Angell's work was not limited in its influence to this city or even to this country, where so many societies exist as the result of his efforts. We earnestly bespeak for this enterprise the hearty support of all friends of humanity everywhere. There is now in the treasury of the two Societies $29,000, which has been contributed for this purpose. Future receipts will be acknowledged in a special column in Our Dumb Animals.

All persons desiring information on the subject are requested to communicate with the Secretary of the Societies, 19 Milk street, Boston. All inquiries will be cheerfully answered.

Edward H. Clement, chairman; Nathaniel T. Kidder, Charles S. Rackemann, committee.

ELECTRICAL SHOW

IN NOVEMBER.

An Electrical Show—the first of the kind in this section—will be held in Mechanics Building, Boston, November 15 to 27 inclusive. Such shows are held annually in New York and Chicago. They have proved of great educational value to the general public.

Exhibits will be made by the leading electrical supply houses. All the novelties in time and labor saving and comfort-giving devices in fact, everything up-to-date in the electrical world will be displayed and operated.

The decorations and lighting effects will be novel and elaborate. The show will be a "wonder world."

The Edison Company will make no exhibits of apparatus or methods of banding business, but extensive plans are being made for entertaining customers and friends from every city and town in its territory. All will be made welcome and nothing will be omitted for their comfort. Pleasant surprises will happen every minute.

REMEMBER THE CLERKS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The following is respectfully submitted to the consideration of the public of Winchester and specially to the consideration of the mistresses of the houses.

The clerks employed in the stores of Winchester (with perhaps a few exceptions) have a grievance against certain merchants of the town who are so narrow minded and mercenary, as not to be willing to give their employees a half day off during the months of July and August and who see a profit of a few cents in keeping their places of business open on holiday mornings while the rest of their competitor's places are closed on those days.

Now the clerks believe that they merit a little vacation once in awhile and they also believe that they should have the whole day on holidays and not be obliged to be in the store or on their teams delivering groceries, meats and provisions from six until nine, ten or eleven o'clock in the morning on such days. The fact is that the majority of our merchants are willing, and to a certain extent, do give their employees the half day of rest during the months of July and August and do not open their stores any holidays; but it is not general and the present indications are that the clerks will not receive those favors much longer, unless influences are used to force those who are unkind of the comfort of their clerks.

Who takes pride in having clean stores, clean benches for their meats, clean frocks for their help, wholesome meats and groceries for their trade.

The strongest and best influences would be your support. Will you help them? for you can if you will. The clerks are your servants, (the bosses are not). Do they work hard? They certainly do, their hours of labor are from 6.30 in the morning until 7.00 and sometimes until 10, and 11 o'clock at night.

Are they attentive to your wants? Do they merit your sympathy? Will you second them in their efforts to secure a few hours of rest and recreation? If you are willing please permit a few suggestions.

1st. See that your orders are given in time so that you will not be wanting on the days and hours that the stores should be closed.

2nd. Just give your merchant a good sound clean hint that he should be liberal with his help and give them a half day off every week and that he should not open his store for business on holidays.

3rd. If he is one of the kind that wants to run this business to suit himself without any regards to your solicitation or the entreaties of his competitors do come to an agreement, why just drop him right then and there and give your patronage to those other merchants who have more consideration for their employees. Hoping you will take favorable action on the humble request.

Respectfully,
ONE WHO IS INTERESTED.

W. C. I. U. NOTES.

Steadily the limits of freedom for the liquor traffic are being narrowed. Mississippi requires common carriers in that State to pay $5000 annually for each office or place of business where in intoxicating liquors are delivered. And every express company that delivers liquors shall keep a daily record of the name and place of residence of every person to whom a package of intoxicating liquor is delivered.

The Illinois Central railway will not accept shipments of liquor to prohibition States. This is the point over which there has been constant warfare between the temperance forces and the liquor dealers and it is a notable victory to have one great railroad ally itself with the reform element.

The Nurses have lately had some conventions and they passed some very strong resolutions against the use of alcohol, pledging themselves to do all they can "consistent with professional propriety" to spread the gospel of total abstinence.

One Hlasky of East St. Louis, Ill., has been denied citizenship because he has steadily violated the Sunday closing law. He is a liquor seller and has done what all the others of the city have done but he may not do it as a full-fledged American.

These are all signs of the times when the common sense of most is coming into control of the situation. Massachusetts, it is true, lags behind in temperance reform, but even she will some day see a great light.

NOT A FAIR EXPRESSION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It was unfortunate that the vote offered by Mr. Joslin at the late town meeting referred solely to the single bridge at the station and the bridge at the centre. No reference was made to any other plan, so that the many advocates of the two bridge plan had no alternative except to vote against the former and in favor of the latter, although not being in favor of it. It is a mistake to irrevocably tie the town up to the centre bridge, and the vote at the late town meeting should not be considered as a fair expression. THE OTHER SIDE.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As I feared last week many of the details of the 4th of July celebration were neglected. No program, poster or notice in the local paper were issued; not a flag was flown on Manchester Field; no lines were marked to keep the crowd back off at the games; the prizes for the ball games were not properly looked after and at the afternoon game money was allowed to be collected on the field. The town appropriated $450.00, nearly double previous sums. The Selectmen drew the motion that it should be expended under their direction and they were in duty bound to properly look after it. The Fourth of July Assn. sent notice to the Selectmen of its disbandment and offered to turn over to them its balance, about $85.00 June 30th. One of the Selectmen said Monday morning this statement was not so, and that the association dumped the business upon them at short notice. The Chairman said a week was time enough. So there you are. There will always be of course slips made every year, try your best, but that is very different from neglect.

The Railroad Commissioners were evidently taken wherever Mr. Elder listed Tuesday when they made their view of the Boston, Lowell and Lawrence electric railroad route, but although the Selectmen and their counsel were on hand in their auto, they didn't seem to get much attention although they represented the town by the town meeting vote. The route and the town was well covered however which was the principal thing. Commissioner White was not able to be present on account of injury to his leg recently, but we should try to get him to go over the route in this town if possible later. If our west side residents will read the Commissioners' decision on this road in their 1908 report they will not lose a sleep for fear a certificate will be issued, nevertheless we must take no chances, it is of such great importance.

Those new stores on Main street in the centre are less than no ornament. But perhaps it is expected that they will soon have to be removed anyway on account of the grade crossing abolition. Oh yes!

BAND DID WELL.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

After listening to the different compliments paid to our Winchester Band for the able manner in which they played July 6th, and the pleasing patriotic tunes rendered, I think it only fair and right to acknowledge the same to the Director, Mr. George Bigley, and his band through the columns of your paper. They certainly kept the music going with very little rest all through the three concerts, and without doubt there was the biggest crowd on Manchester Field to see the fireworks and listen to the Band that has ever attended a Fourth of July celebration. Keep up the good work Band. PATRIOTIC CITIZEN.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the Winchester Fire Department publicly for the quick time and efficient service rendered at the fire in my place on Salem street on the Fourth of July.

DANIEL MURPHY,

THE HORSE.

He is So Stupid That He Can Be Taught Any Habit.

There have been on exhibition at various times horses that are apparently prodigies of mathematical insight—that can do anything with numbers that the trainer can do. Yet we absolutely know that no animal can so much as count at all. Furthermore, it is always the horse that performs these marvels, though the horse is the most utterly stupid of all the dumb creatures that man has made his friends.

That is precisely why the horse is always taken to be made into an arithmetician. He is so stupid that he can be taught anything—any habit, that is—and, having no mind to be taken up with his own affairs, can be relied on to do exactly as he is told.

All these arithmetical tricks, whatever their details, are worked in essentially the same way. The horse is taught, by endless repetitions, some mechanical habit. A given signal, and he begins to paw the floor. Another signal, and he stops. Press the proper button, and he takes a sponge and rubs it over a certain spot on a black board or picks up a card lying in a certain position. That is all he does. The meaning of the act exists for the spectator only. The pawings count the answer to a problem in addition, but the horse does not know it. He merely follows a blind habit, just as he will stop when you say "Whoa!" though you interpolate the word into your recitation of the Declaration of Independence.—McClure's Magazine.

Practical.

"I send you 10,000 kisses," he wrote "Bah!" she exclaimed, tossing his letter aside. "Why doesn't he come and look over his terminal facilities in person?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE SONG OF THE SHIRT.

Is a Pleasing Song as it is Sung at THE WINCHESTER LAUNDRY—the Laundry that Loves its Work.

We take care of thousands of shirts a week and every one of them is better off for the careful treatment it receives at our hands. We have the apparatus and the system that makes easy work of a difficult, delicate job.

That is why the man looks pleasant as he puts on an exquisitely laundered shirt from our laundry.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Week after week at Keith's big attractions are following each other in rapid succession, the next to come being the famous Romany Opera Company, the largest organization of the kind ever presented in vaudeville.

The Romany Opera Company will be the leading attraction on another exceptionally strong bill, which will include a great Boston favorite, Charlie Case, the fellow who talks about his father, James Horne, the Boston leading man will return in the sketch "How to Win a Woman," which the leading part will be taken by Kathryn Punnett, one of the best known actresses, who for years has been out at the head of her own company. In the cast will also be the old time actor, who has since won fame as a dramatic author, Justin Adams, author of the play "Quincy Adams Sawyer." Still another local feature will be Henry D. Gardner, formerly of the Cadets, and Minnie Allen in a unique entertainment. Others on the bill are the Four Londons; Paul LaCroix, the hat juggler; the Van Brothers in their musical absurdities, Wilson, the spinning cyclist and Gillette's Company of trained animals.

Mr. Robert Coit and family are spending the summer at Rockport.

CINDERELLA AT WONDERLAND.

In addition to all the other great and pleasing attractions of Wonderland, that famous recreation park down by the sea at Revere, the management now announces a free show of high cost and surpassing brilliancy and beauty, the fairy spectacle "Cinderella." The first performance will be given Monday night the 12 inst., on a specially constructed stage in the centre of the great board walk area so that it can be easily and comfortably seen by thousands. There will be absolutely no extra charge of any kind connected with this captivating production in which about 50 young and pretty girls will appear in the dances, choruses, marches and so on. Brilliant and novel electrical effects will be used and everything done to surpass, if possible the highly successful production of last season, "Alice in Wonderland."

As Willard Hudson was driving an automobile up Mt. Vernon street yesterday afternoon one of the springs broke, letting the body of the car down on the steering gear and rendering the car unmanageable. The auto ran onto the sidewalk at the junction of the Parkway, breaking an iron lamp post and being badly wrecked. Hudson was thrown out, but was not injured.

MATHEMATICAL SIGNS.

Origin of Plus, Minus, Multiplication and Division Symbols.

The sign of addition is derived from the initial letter of the word "plus." In making the capital letter it was made more and more carelessly until the top part of the "p" was finally placed near the center; hence the plus sign as we know it was gradually reached.

The sign of subtraction was derived from the word "minus." The word was first contracted in m. n. s., with a horizontal line above to indicate that some of the letters had been left out. At last the letters were omitted altogether, leaving only the short line.

The multiplication sign was obtained by changing the plus sign into the letter "x." This was done because multiplication is but a shorter form of addition.

Division was formerly indicated by placing the dividend above a horizontal line and the divisor below. In order to save space in printing, the dividend was placed to the left and the divisor to the right. After years of "evolution" the two "d's" were omitted altogether and simple dots set in the place of each. As with the others, the radical sign was derived from the initial letter of the word "radix."

The sign of equality was first used in the year 1557 by a sharp mathematician, who substituted it to avoid frequently repeating the words "equal to."—St. James' Gazette.

UNCLE SAM.

The Way Our Nickname Is Said to Have Originated.

This familiar nickname for the United States is said to have come about in the following manner:

During the war of 1812 the United States government entered into a contract with Elbert Anderson to furnish supplies to the army. Whenever the United States buys anything from a contractor it appoints an inspector to see that the goods are up to the specifications. In this case the government appointed a man by the name of Samuel Wilson. He was a jolly, whole souled man and was familiarly known as Uncle Sam.

It was his duty to inspect every box and cask that came from Elbert Anderson, the contractor, and if the contents were all right the cargo was marked with the letters "E. A.—U. S." the initials of the contractor and of the United States.

The man whose duty it was to do this marking was something of a joker, and when somebody asked him one day what these letters stood for he said that they meant Elbert Anderson and Uncle Sam.

Everybody, including Uncle Sam himself, thought this a very good joke, and by and by it got into print, and before the end of the war it was known all over the country, and that is how the United States received the name of Uncle Sam.—Des Moines Register and Leader.

Worshipping a Turtle.

At a place called Ketron, on the French Ivory Coast, the natives believe that to eat or destroy a turtle would mean death to the guilty one or sickness among the family. The fetich men, of which there are plenty, declare that years ago a man went to sea fishing. In the night his canoe was thrown upon the beach empty. Three days afterward a turtle came ashore at the same place with the man on its back alive and well. Since that time they have never eaten or destroyed one of that species, although they enjoy other species.

If one happens now to be washed ashore there is a great commotion in the town. First the women sit down and start singing and beating sticks; next a small piece of white cloth (color must be white) is placed on the turtle's back. Food is then prepared and placed on the cloth, generally plantains, rice and palm oil. Then, amid a lot more singing, dancing and antics of the fetich people, it is carried back into the sea and goes on its way rejoicing.

Too Much Expense.

"Yes," said Mr. Tyte-Phist, "I was just stepping on the car when the conductor gave the motorman the signal to go ahead, and the car started. My foot went out from under me, and I sat down on the muddy crossing, ruining a twenty-two dollar suit of clothes."

"Then you sat there, swore like a trooper and gnashed your teeth in rage, I suppose," remarked the sympathizing listener.

"No," said Mr. Tyte-Phist. "I may have sworn a little, but I didn't do any gnashing. My teeth are new and cost me $30."—Chicago Tribune.

Waked Them Up.

Dr. Hans Richter, the famous conductor, while supervising a rehearsal in a London theater once was much annoyed at the calm way the players were taking the impassioned music. "Gentlemen, gentlemen," said he, suddenly stopping short, "you're all playing like married men, not like lovers."—Westminster Gazette.

Not His Fault.

Howell—A good deal depends on the formation of early habits. Powell—I know it. When I was a baby my mother hired a woman to wheel me about, and I have been pushed for money ever since.—London Mail.

On Time.

"Does he ever do anything on time?" "Oh, yes. He quits work."—Detroit Free Press.

When you sell an article by weight, remember that other people have scales.—Athenian Globe.

RACE WAGERS IN INDIA.

Native's Method of Choosing a Winner and Making Bets.

The native of India wagers his money according to the colors worn by the jockeys and takes no heed of the merits of the horses, or he will back a horse ridden by his favorite jockey, no matter whether the animal is a rank outsider or not.

His ideas of gambling, in fact, are distinctly novel. Some of the more wealthy Indians form rings and back every horse in the race, thus gaining the satisfaction of getting a winner every time. It is really only of late years that the native of India has become a habitual gambler on the turf, and nowadays the bulk of the betting of the various racing centers in India is done by natives. Indeed, the authorities are somewhat concerned about the growth of the betting which takes place among Indian natives, it being asserted that as many as thirty lacs of rupees (about $300,000) is lost and won in the course of a season.

The ignorant masses have not a great deal of actual money to wager, but so badly bitten are many of them with the craze for betting at race meetings that they frequently wager what little property they possess on a horse, and if they lose they simply replace their loss by stealing a neighbor's goods. The consequence is that when the racing season comes around the police are kept very busy dealing with cases of petty larceny and other crimes involving loss of property.—London Tit-Bits.

NOT ANNOYED.

The Directors Were Rather Pleased at the Barrister's Refusal.

Mr. Reader Harris, K. C., was once offered a brief marked 50 guineas on behalf of a railway company that wished to obtain a refreshment license for a particular railway station. He returned the brief on considerations grounds, but later on it was sent back to him with a fee of 100 guineas marked on it. This time he returned it with a note in which he explained that his refusal was due to a matter of principle. Subsequently he met one of the directors of the company and expressed a hope that he and his colleagues were not annoyed at his conduct.

"Not at all," said the director. "I'll tell you all about it. So-and-so, the big brewer, was sitting on the board for the first time at the meeting at which the solicitor reported that your brief marked 50 guineas had been returned. 'Who's this posing snuffing humbug?' he asked. 'Mark the brief 100 guineas and I'll bet you anything you like he'll take it.' 'Oh, you will, will you?' asked the chairman. 'You see, we all knew you, Harris. We took the brewer on at 5 to 1 in five pound notes. He looked the bets with every one of us, and he has paid up.'—London Scraps.

A Curious Receipt.

Hanover's registrar discovered a very curious document some time ago as he was looking through a bundle of papers that date back to the eighteenth century. The document is a receipt—probably the only one of its kind in existence—which was given to a Hanoverian captain by a canon of Duisburg during the Seven Years' war. "I, the undersigned," it reads, "hereby acknowledge that I have received fifty blows of a stick, which were inflicted upon me by a lieutenant of Captain B's regiment as a punishment for the stupid and frivolous culmenies which I have uttered in regard to the regiment of chasseurs. For my imprudent words I now admit that I am profoundly sorry. I received my punishment lying on a heap of straw and held by two men, and I bear testimony to the fact that the officer struck me as vigorously as he could with a stick that was as thick as my finger.

"In proper form and with due gratitude I sign this receipt and avow that all therein is true."

Hard to Kill.

A crocodile's tenacity of life is most remarkable. "I remember one time," says a traveler in India, "I was with a shooting party on the Ganges when the natives brought in a six foot crocodile. They hoped some one would want to buy it, but to one did, so it was determined to kill the creature. It was hauled out of the tank and tied to a tree. Bullets from a small rifle or an ordinary gun seemed only to irritate the saurian, nor did he seem to care very much when a native thrust a spear down his throat. Finally they were obliged to dispatch him with axes. Even then the tail thrashed about for no little time after."

Not That Kind.

"Once in a Bible lesson," said a Sunday school teacher, "I repeated the text, 'Arise and take the young child and his mother and flee into Egypt.' And then I showed the children a large picture that illustrated the text in bright colors.

"The children studied this picture eagerly. Then they all frowned; all looked rather disappointed. Finally a little girl said:

"Teacher, where is the flea?"

Where to Sing.

"I will sing something useful to you, dear," said a lady to her morose husband. "Shall I sing 'Far, Far Away'?" "I wish you would," was the bitter reply. "It would save the trouble of apologizing to the neighbors."

Had Forty Homes.

Yolton, the painter, was a unique personage even among the odd characters of Paris. While he was essentially a Bohemian, there were times when even his patience was taxed to the utmost, and to obviate the necessity of meeting unwelcome people he conceived the idea of multiplying his lodging places. At the time of his death he owned no less than forty homes, all in apartment houses, situated in all the out of the way corners of Paris, plainly furnished and with just enough accommodation for himself. He changed from one to the other all the time in order to escape importunate acquaintances and to take refuge from his friends. It was in order to throw them all off the scent that he engaged rooms all over the city. He finally died in the Rue de Dunkerque, where he had as many as three different apartments, all within a stone's throw of one another.

The Stone Houses of Easter Island. The remarkable stone houses of Easter Island are built against a terrace of earth or rock, which in some cases forms the back wall of the dwelling. They are built of small slabs of stratified basaltic rock piled together without cement. No regularity of plan is shown in the construction of a majority of them. The average measurement is as follows: Height from floor to ceiling 4 feet 6 inches; thickness of walls, 4 feet to 10 inches; width of rooms, 4 feet 6 inches; length of rooms, 12 feet 6 inches; average size of doorways—height, 20 inches; width, 19 inches.

Skeptical.

"I kind of agree with the folks who say that story about George Washington and the cherry tree is a myth," said Farmer Cornstossel after a thoughtful silence.

"For what reason?" inquired his wife.

"Well, human nature is purty much the same in all generations, and if I had a boy who picked up an ax and voluntarily went out to chop wood I wouldn't chide him. I'd hand him a medal."—Washington Star.

PROBATE COURT.

To all persons interested in the estate of Henry F. Johnson, late of Winchester, in said County, deceased:
WHEREAS, Stephen W. Reynolds, the executor of the will of said deceased, has presented for allowance the first account of his administration upon the estate of said deceased.
You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County, on the twenty-seventh day of July, A. D. 1909, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.
And said executor is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate of said deceased, at least before said Court, and by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, said County, and by mailing, post paid, a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.
Witness, CHARLES J. MCINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this eighth day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine.
W. E. ROGERS, Register.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are most in demand, are first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It never gets damp, and is extremely light and clean. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

Use the best hair ticking on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Made in just ticking, two parts, five inch box, and full weight.

TRAPPING A GORILLA

Story of a Vicious Struggle in the African Jungle.

A NET THAT FAILED TO HOLD.

The Snared Monster Broke Through Its Meshes and Was the Cause of One Death Before He Was Himself Killed by the Attacking Party.

Captain Fritz Duquesne, the Boer hunter, was commissioned by a German naturalist society to capture one of each species of African quadrumania. He was entirely successful in the work, except that he could obtain no gorilla. Finally a pygmy pointed out a portion of the dark jungle in which a gorilla had been seen.

The captain immediately arranged his camp and laid his plans and made preparations to trap the monster and get him alive if possible, though he fully realized the danger of the undertaking.

"For four days," said the captain, "we camped in this hotbed of disease. Beaters went out in all directions searching for the gorilla. At last some deep, wide scratches were found on a cluster of vines. On close examination the unmistakable hair of the gorilla was found on a broken twig.

"After some hours we found the tree where the gorilla lived. We could tell it by the greasy appearance of the bark, made so by the repeated rubbing of the gorilla's body. We could tell by the fresh marks, with sap still wet, that the animal had recently ascended the tree. The scratches were short and deep, showing that it had lifted itself up and had not slid down, which would have made a long, shallow scratch.

"We spread a strong net around the tree in a circle sloping upward on the outer side. Around the top of the net there were hand ropes from four directions, held by half a dozen natives hidden in the bush. These were to bring the top of the net together and thus bag our game.

"After waiting some hours the leaves above rustled and then opened as a six foot male gorilla descended unsuspectingly and entered the trap. I signaled, the four ropes were pulled at once, and we had our animal—for a moment. He roared in fury, twisting, jumping and biting the rope into pieces. The natives were pulled about like dolls as he tried to reach first one and then another. The professor jumped about in excitement, trying to focus a camera on the infuriated animal.

"At last the mighty arms of the gorilla broke a hole through the net, and he tore the rest from him as though it were a rotten rag. Most of the natives fled in dismay. The professor dropped his camera and tried to escape. In a moment the gorilla grasped him in its terrible hands.

"I seized my rifle and fired in the air to frighten the animal. In my position I could not shoot at him without hitting my friend. For a moment the gorilla stood still, holding the now unconscious man as though he were a baby, the brute's lips drawn back from his glistening teeth.

"I thrust another cartridge in my rifle. As I did so there was a buzz in the air, and an arrow, shot by a native, pierced the gorilla's side. A roar burst from his red throat, and he dropped his victim. Like a flash, before I could shoot, a native sprang from the leaves and, half throwing, half thrusting, drove an assegai into the gorilla's heart. With a groan the brute fell dead.

"Examining the professor, I found that his right arm was broken and that some of his ribs were crushed into his lungs. We gave up the effort to get a live gorilla and, placing the injured man in a hammock, carried him back toward the east coast.

"He died on the road. Out on the veldt beside a native village a lonely little slab marked 'Carl Bloch' sticks up above the grass. It is the professor's grave. Hunting is not all exciting adventure and laughing victory. It has its tears, like other things."—Hampton's Magazine.

Chances in Gambling.

Henri Poincare, the leading mathematician of France, declares that there is no infallible martingale or method of doubling one's stakes after every loss. "All one can do," says M. Poincare, "is to combine one's play so as to have a great chance of winning a little and a little chance of losing much or a few chances of gaining much and many chances of losing little. One can arrange his play so as to have one chance of winning a million francs and a million chances of losing a franc or a million chances of winning a franc and one chance of losing a million francs—and that's all."

Incompatible.

Towne—Well, well, the idea of his marrying Miss Goldie! Why, he's a dyspeptic. Browne—What has that to do with it? She's got plenty of money, and so—Towne—That's just it. She'll never agree with him; she's too rich.—Catholic Standard and Times.

It Had a Charm.

"I do miss Mrs. Jones. She told me all the news of the parish."
"Oh, that was only gossip—no truth in it."
"Well, there, I liked to hear it. Truth or lies, 'twas all news to me."
—Punch.

The hours we pass with happy prospects in view are more pleasing than those crowned with fruition.—Goldsmith.

STEALING A SIGN.

That Was the Policeman's Charge, but It Was Not Sustained.

Stealthily the policeman stole out from behind the side door of the saloon and quickly pounced on some Columbia college boys who were carrying a long board sign that had hung over some tobaccoist's shop. The youths protested against the officer's interference, but he told them that they would find it a hard job to turn little old New York into a college town, and off to the lockup they went, college boys, sign and all.

"What's the charge?" asked the sergeant as he looked out at the aggregation of the coming great men of learning.

A RUN WITH THE EXTRA FREIGHT.

Through a Burning Forest With a Train Load of Powder.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

To live within sight and hearing of a railroad, to have a big brother who is an engineer on that railroad and to make trips with him whenever he will allow and school does not interfere is a state of things calculated to please the average boy, and it did please Roy Kinsley, who was rather more than the average.

When he could sit on the high seat opposite Hal he felt like a king, and the only thing he needed in order to make him perfectly happy was a chance to run the engine, if only for a few minutes. But that was something which Hal, who was a very careful engineer, never allowed.

Yet Roy seldom lacked occupation while on the engine, for if the bell was not to be rung nor the whistle to be blown he could always help Jack Dunn to fire.

One afternoon Hal came home looking vexed.

"Roy, do you want to go up to Silverton with me tonight?" he asked as his brother met him at the door. "Here I'm just back from my run and have got orders to take an extra freight up the branch tonight, which means only four hours' sleep, if I get any. But that isn't the trouble. Dunn's sick and not fit to be out of bed, much less at work. I can't get another man before morning, so you see how it is. Will you fire this trip for me?"

"Of course I will," exclaimed Roy.

"It's just what I want. Hooray!"

He rushed about to get his cap, overalls and heavy coat. Hal smiled at the boy's excitement.

"You won't be quite so chipper by the time we get to Silverton," said he.

"It's hard, rough work enough when you have to keep at it steadily even for a strong boy like you. It isn't like taking a turn at the shovel whenever you fancy."

"Well, I can go and will," declared Roy, following his brother toward the station, "and when I get too tired and lazy to work my passage I want to be put off."

A few minutes later the freight train pulled out of the yard. There were only three cars, and Hal grumbled to himself that it wasn't worth the trouble it caused. This seemed to be the opinion of the conductor, who wore a remarkably gloomy countenance and appeared to be much out of humor, although he said nothing whatever.

The Silverton branch ran through an almost uninhabited country to a large mining settlement some thirty miles from the junction.

The single track was shut in by thick woods on both sides throughout the greater part of this distance and was consequently far from presenting any objects of interest along its way. But Hal Kinsley did not find fault with it on that score. He had no grade crossings, switches nor signals to watch, no stray cows nor reckless men to avoid running over and no other trains to bother him.

"If railroad was always like this," he remarked at the end of a few miles, "there would be a good many less accidents and a good many more engineers dying of old age. But still there's always a drawback somewhere."

"I don't see any now," Roy objected between two shovelfuls.

"You will, though, before we've gone much farther. Look at all this smoke!"

Hal and Roy looked at him half frightened. He had certainly lost his senses, they thought.

"No, and I don't care," said Hal. "But what is it?"

"Blasting powder!" screamed the conductor.

"What?" cried the brothers together.

"Yes, tons of it for the Silverton mines. And the handlers loosened the staves of two or three kegs when they loaded it, so that there's loose powder scattered all about the next car."

Kinsley pulled the throttle wide open.

"Sit down, Tom," he commanded calmly without looking at the conductor.

"We can't go back. The fire's all along that way by this time. We must put her through. Coal up, Roy, but not too much. Quick, boy!"

When in a position of peril a determined, strong-willed man makes up his mind to a certain course there is something about him which makes all others yield to his plans. Brainerd did not attempt to assert his authority over the train, but sat perfectly still, his fists clenched, his eyes set. Roy, pale faced, but steady, fed the firebox as if he were a part of the machinery.

The engine leaped and bounded under Hal's hard driving, crashing and rattling so fiercely that the roaring flames on either side sent no sound to the ears of those in the cab.

Suddenly Brainerd sprang up, took a spare shovel, some cotton waste and a bucket of water and left the cab. Roy, turning, saw him on top of the freight car, scraping off the sparks and swabbing out the little fires which started upon the dry boards of the roof.

"Tom's a brave fellow," said Hal.

"It was the worry and dread that made him weaken. You see, he knew where the fire was and knew what he had got to carry through it if he met it. But he's all right from this on."

Hal had momentarily taken his eyes off the track while saying this. When we've seen a brush fire. Don't you remember last fall down on the southern branch when we?"

"Yes, yes; I remember that well enough," snapped the conductor in an irritated manner. "But there's some difference between then and now, I can tell you. If we get through all right it'll be because—"

He stopped short in what he had been about to say, took another long stare ahead and then, without speaking again, climbed back over the tender, swung himself upon the first car and disappeared.

"What's got into Tom Brainerd tonight?" said Hal. "I never saw him this way before. If I didn't know he never touches a drop I should say he'd been drinking, but that can't be."

During the next half hour Brainerd repeatedly appeared on the top of the car, gazing toward the rapidly increasing light ahead. The occasional glare from the furnace door showed the same anxious, alarmed expression upon his usually stern face.

The cars were so few that he had no brakeman with him. This fact might account for his restlessness, since it obliged him to keep watch of the train. But why did he come here? He could have kept watch as well from his proper position in the lookout on the rear car.

"What can be the trouble with him?" Hal asked when Brainerd appeared for the tenth time above them. "He seems to be terribly afraid of that fire, but I can't see why he should be scared."

The train, making good time, had half finished its journey. The smoke had become so thick that nothing could be seen a rod away, and through it came the intermittent, nearing flashes of the great fire.

The air grew hot, and little drifts of ashes formed against the projecting parts of the locomotive. Sparks and dead embers rattled against the car windows.

"We are running right into it," said Hal, coughing and wiping his inflamed eyes upon his coat sleeve without removing either hand from the machinery.

"And it looks to me as if we are sweeping up on both sides of us," added Roy. "Is there any danger, Hal?"

"No," answered the engineer—"that is, not unless the heat warps the rails which isn't probable, for the roadway is too wide for that. We'll blister our palat a trifle and maybe have to put out a blaze or two on the cars, but that'll be all. I've been in just such places before."

A few minutes passed, and then, as if a curtain had been drawn away, the smoke disappeared and the train plunged into relatively clear air between two lines of flaming trees which sent up great gushes of fire under the hurrying clouds of black vapor that they had rolled into the sky.

As far down the track as one could see, away to the vanishing point where the two burning fronts of the forest seemed to join, it was the same.

"Whew!" exclaimed Hal. "This is a scorcher! I'll let her out a bit and make a rush through it."

Just then Brainerd leaped into the cab.

"What are you doing, Kinsley?" he shouted. "You are not going on!"

"Going on?" gasped Hal, utterly amazed. "Of course I'm going on. I'm not afraid of a little fire. I hope; but by George, Tom Brainerd, I believe you are."

"Reverse quick, man, and back us out!" said Brainerd in a harsh, vehement voice, seizing the engineer's arm with both hands. "Yes, I'm afraid Reverse her, I tell you."

Hal pushed the conductor aside with a thrust of his strong elbow. "Don't you know better than that?" cried he angrily. "What's the matter with you, Tom Brainerd? You act like a crazy man."

"I'll be a dead one and you and the boy, too, if you don't back out," persisted Brainerd. "Do you know what we've got for freight?"

Hal and Roy looked at him half frightened. He had certainly lost his senses, they thought.

"No, and I don't care," said Hal. "But what is it?"

"Blasting powder!" screamed the conductor.

"What?" cried the brothers together.

"Yes, tons of it for the Silverton mines. And the handlers loosened the staves of two or three kegs when they loaded it, so that there's loose powder scattered all about the next car."

Kinsley pulled the throttle wide open.

"Sit down, Tom," he commanded calmly without looking at the conductor.

"We can't go back. The fire's all along that way by this time. We must put her through. Coal up, Roy, but not too much. Quick, boy!"

When in a position of peril a determined, strong-willed man makes up his mind to a certain course there is something about him which makes all others yield to his plans. Brainerd did not attempt to assert his authority over the train, but sat perfectly still, his fists clenched, his eyes set. Roy, pale faced, but steady, fed the firebox as if he were a part of the machinery.

The engine leaped and bounded under Hal's hard driving, crashing and rattling so fiercely that the roaring flames on either side sent no sound to the ears of those in the cab.

Suddenly Brainerd sprang up, took a spare shovel, some cotton waste and a bucket of water and left the cab. Roy, turning, saw him on top of the freight car, scraping off the sparks and swabbing out the little fires which started upon the dry boards of the roof.

"Tom's a brave fellow," said Hal.

"It was the worry and dread that made him weaken. You see, he knew where the fire was and knew what he had got to carry through it if he met it. But he's all right from this on."

Hal had momentarily taken his eyes off the track while saying this. When he turned them back he gave a nervous start and then, seizing the whistle cord, signalled "Down brakes!" while with the other hand he closed the throttle.

"Jump, Roy, and put on our brakes back there!"

A great burning tree lay across the rails ahead. Even while Roy threw his weight on the brakes he was thinking, "What shall we do now?" and before he had finished turning the iron wheel he had thought.

The drag and jar behind showed that Brainerd, obeying Hal's signal, was setting the car brakes, and soon, the reduced speed allowing it, Hal reversed.

The locomotive, sliding and grating along, came slowly to a stand some yards from the blazing obstruction.

Before the train stopped Roy had opened his knife and cut away the leather curtain which closes the back of every engine cab. Rolling up the curtain, he plunged it into the water tank, drew it out dripping wet, threw it over his shoulders and, with an ax in his hand, jumped down and ran forward toward the burning tree.

Now he felt the heat as he had not felt it before, when under cover and fanned by the current of air made by the speed at which they had moved. The hot atmosphere struck through the soaked leather, and on his bare hands it was like glowing iron.

Roy chopped blindly on, and as he did so he wondered confusedly whether he could hold out long enough to finish his task and, if he could, how the ponderous trunk might be moved off the track. All the time he had in his mind the terrible contents of those tinder box cars now standing motionless beneath a shower of sparks.

"It's all up with us, I guess," he thought, still swinging the ax.

A voice came faintly to him from the rear. It was Hal's.

"Come back, Roy!"

With one final blow he felt the tree trunk break. Then he somehow managed to stagger to the side of the engine, and his brother lifted him on board.

"I can do the rest," said Hal.

He turned on the steam, backed some distance and then ran full tilt at the divided tree.

The pilot caught it, tossed it aside and it fell end over end into the ditch. Once more the train flew on with wide open throttle.

The smoke came down again; the fire receded into the woods; the scorching heat diminished. As the train leaping out of the forest into the clear land around Silverton, drew up at the little station, Roy, who had lain exhausted on the footboard ever since his brother had pulled him up, looked up. He saw Tom Brainerd coming in black, blistered and without a particle of hair, eyebrows or mustache remaining.

"Well, boys," said he cheerfully, "the fast powder freight's on time."

It was ahead of time, too, and in a badly damaged condition. The engine's gay paint and varnish were peeling off in great flakes, and the bright brass work was tarnished and blackened. The seared, charred cars were wonders to look at, especially when one thought what they held.

Tom Brainerd must have worked desperately all the time the train was in the burning forest in order to save them.

"Well, I did jump around rather lively," Tom admitted, "but it was no more than right for me to pay for my scare somehow."

Hal was the same as ever. The only praise he gave Roy was contained in one remark, but this remark conveyed the greatest compliment he could bestow.

"You'll make a railroad man some day, sonny," was what he said.

The Mirrors in the Stores.

"Shoplifters will do well to take notice of the position of mirrors in department stores," said a floorwalker. "It is not just for the sake of pleasing women customers that store proprietors put in so many mirrors. They serve a much more important purpose in helping to detect thieves. If you were to keep your eye on the watchers in some of the big stores you would notice that they don't watch the patrons directly. They look at their reflections in the mirrors. Naturally their watching done that way is much less easily perceived by a shoplifter. The thief glances at the watcher, sees that his back is toward her, and then she secretes a pair of silk stockings or a bolt of lace in her shirt waist. The next moment, however, she may feel an unfriendly tap on the shoulder, and the watcher, having detected her by the mirror's aid, requests her to accompany him to the office."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

SAVE THE RENT--- THAT'S THE POINT

Every man knows if he properly protects his family he must do something more than merely earn a living.

He knows that he should be getting ahead; that each year he should be in a little better shape financially than he was the year before.

But the average man finds this difficult to accomplish, with his grocer, butcher and sundry other bills to meet every month, besides his rent.

Rent—ah! there's the point. Why not save the rent? Then you'll get ahead. You can do it by making a payment upon a home and assume an obligation to meet the balance. What you now pay for rent you can put into the home.

Come in and look over my list and learn about terms of payment.

A TRIP TO THE "LAND OF THE MAYFLOWER."

We left Boston Thursday, July first, at noon. Our twenty hours' sail on "The Calvin Austin S. S." was a most delightful experience. There were 500 passengers on board. The sunset was a glorious sight. The crimson and gold touched the blue waves with a soft and tender glow that is seldom seen, on a coast where the fog horn disturbs one's repose. A full moon, quiet sea, blue sky, no fog, but the fading afterglow gone; the silvery path followed us until sleep compelled us to our state-rooms, no fog-horn to dread. At the advertised hour, the great City of St. John appeared in the distance, and the well wooded coast of New Brunswick threw their shadows of a summer greeting to the passengers from the "Old Bay State."

How many friends waved their welcome to the home comers from the dock! How many home greetings we heard that morning, to the strangers all about us, who, no doubt, were expecting just what they received with fullest measure! "Glad to welcome you home!" It must have sounded to them like the sweetest morning music. Soon we were whirled away to the "Dufferin Hotel," a historic name in the story of the Canadian Dominion. Queen's Park is an attractive outlook from our room windows. Saturday, July 3rd, we took steamer for Fredericton, the Capital City of New Brunswick. The sail of eight hours up the St. John's River, reminds us much of the Rhine; the St. John's River is broader and has many more turns. At Fredericton we spent the Sabbath. The city is small, but very beautiful. The residences are most beautiful, with side-walks bordered with immense trees, forming arches. Every street might be called "strait" as there are no corners to turn, as far as one can see. The Government buildings are imposing, and the official homes attract much attention.

Monday, July 5th, we returned by the River to St. John. Tuesday, July 6th, we left "the Dufferin" at 7.30, and took passage on "The Prince Rupert" for Digby, a sail of less than three hours. Passing through "Digby Gut" we enter a beautifully enclosed harbor of safety and soon find ourselves at the "Manhattan," a quiet lovely home place, overlooking the little bay. Here from every State in our great Republic tourists find rest and comfort; and a most hearty, gracious welcome. Digby is lovely, sweet and attractive; with its grass grown walks and simple hospitality one feels at once "at home." Come! those who are weary and breathe the clear sea air.

JENNIE E. SKINNER.

Mrs. G. H. Hazeltine is a guest at the Mt. Vernon House, Mt. Vernon, N. H., where she will remain until September.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

July 12, 1909.
Board met at 7.30 p. m.
Present, Messrs. Richards, Winn, Wadling and Smith.

In absence of the regular chairman, Mr. Richards was chosen to act as such. Received petition signed by residents of Vine street and vicinity remonstrating against the granting of license to merry-go-round. Taken under consideration.

Proprietor of the merry-go-round came before Board and informed them that he intended to move out of town. E. B. Badger and W. M. Belcher were present asking for some repairs to Prospect street. Were told that something would be done this season.

Received letter from E. C. Starr in regard to condition of his sidewalk. Referred to Supt. of Street to investigate and report.

Voted to grant permission to the Arlington Gas Light Co. to lay a gas main on Lakeview road from end of present main, to Ravenscroft road; also, on Highland avenue from end of present main to Hancock street, same to be done under supervision of the Supt. of Streets, who is to be notified before work is begun.

Received application from R. Giaccone for common victuallers license, corner of Swanton and Florence streets. Referred to Chief of Police to report.

Alexander J. Mullen, 6 Bridge street was nominated for police patrolman to April 1, 1910.

Received letter from F. B. Jordan in regard to condition of brook running through his property. Referred to the Town Engineer.

Warrants drawn for $8500.42 and $1294.44.

G. H. LOCHMAN, Clerk.

MAY REGAIN USE OF ARM.

Master Benjamin Robinovitz, son of Mr. Nathan Robinovitz of Middlesex street, called at the STAR office Wednesday afternoon and exhibited his arm, which was so terribly lacerated by a stray dog last winter. The muscles of the upper part of the arm were badly torn and the scars are even now deep and ugly looking. As was said in these columns some weeks ago, a form of paralysis set in and it was feared the boy would lose the use of his left arm. For some months he has gone twice a week to a Boston hospital where the arm has been treated, and the improvement has been marked, and it is now thought that he will regain the use of it to a great extent at least. The little boy's school teacher before going on her vacation Wednesday, remembered him with some toothsome dainties, for Master Robinovitz is bright and well liked by all who come in contact with him.

ONE MORE PARKWAY

IMPROVEMENT.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Will you kindly allow an outsider to call attention to one feature of park improvement which Winchester seems to have overlooked? With others from Mystic Lake I attended the band concert last Saturday afternoon and it was all we could do to get our canoes up the stream as far as the band stand on the play-ground owing to the filthy condition of the river channel. Mud, weeds and street washings seem to have taken possession of the once pretty Aberjona. It seems as if Winchester does not fully value the water beauty which might be developed by doing a little cleaning up of the stream from Mystic Lake to Winchester centre. A hundred canoes could well use the river on such occasions as the Saturday afternoon concerts if it contained a little more water and less mud. Every parkway feature is perfect in Winchester for such gala occasions except the untidy and almost unhealthy appearance of the river which winds its way through your beautiful park. This stream is much more worthy of improvement than Alewife Brook in Medford and Arlington upon which the state is spending so much money. Cannot something be done to improve the Aberjona thus putting on the finishing touch to Winchester's beautiful park system? It is well "to see ourselves as others see us" sometimes and I therefore write this friendly criticism hoping that it may lead others with more influence than my self to see the possibilities of improvement in what may be sometime, a beautiful feature in Winchester scenery.

MEDFORD.

TWO CRIBS WANTED FOR VACATION PLAYROOM.

In the nursery of the Vacation Playroom several of the children are a little over a year old. These little ones greatly need a few minutes nap in the morning. So far no provision has been made for such a purpose, and the tired child has to sleep in the most uncomfortable manner, often sitting upright in his chair.

A gift of two cribs with the mattresses would add greatly to the comfort and happiness of the children in the nursery.

BURNED BY ELECTRICITY.

While at work about five o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the plant of the Edison electric illuminating company at 516 Atlantic avenue, Boston, Augustus W. Coffin, aged 26, living at 14 Fairmount street narrowly escaped death, by the short circuiting of a switch on which he was at work. He was burned severely, about the neck and arms. He was taken to the Relief hospital.

THE MOTHER'S ASSOCIATION.

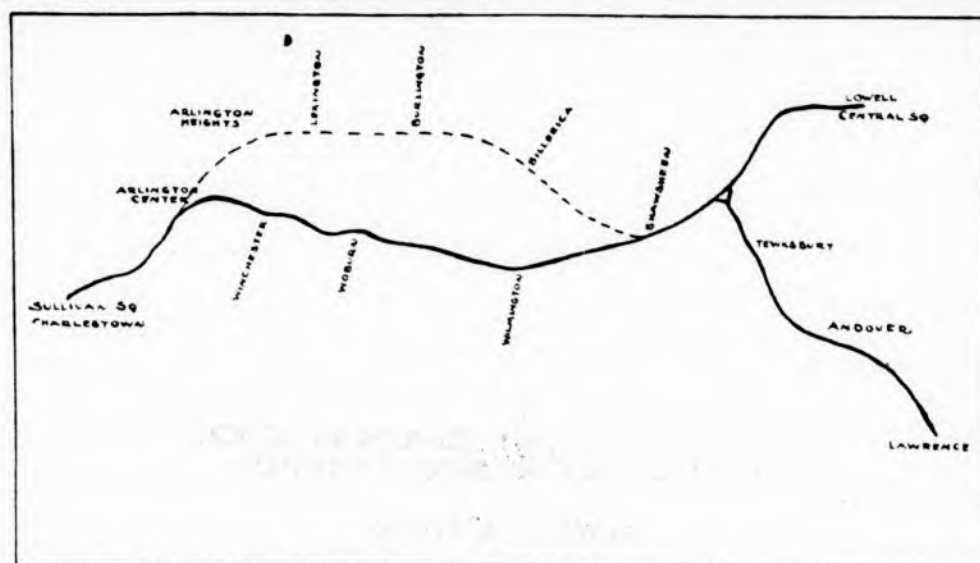

Mid-summer Meeting, Wednesday, July 21, 4 to 6 o'clock.

Miss Anna Folsom, 144 Highland avenue, cordially invites the members of the Mother's Association to an informal social meeting, on the lawn.

Any teachers who are in town will be cordially welcome to the meeting, whether they are members or not.

POLL TAXES.

In a few days the Collector of Taxes will send out the poll tax bills, when they will be due the town. On Sept. 1st all bills remaining unpaid will be placed in the hands of a constable, with the added extras for summons, etc. The Collector proposes to push the collection of these bills as his office requires him to do.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator recently had a Winchester gentleman tell him that there is a lack of cordiality and hospitality among our modern church congregations. This raises an interesting question. The Spectator has seen men and women attend churches here in Winchester as strangers, sit as near the door as possible, flee headlong at the close of the benediction, and then give utterance to the complaint that no welcome had been extended to them from ushers or neighbors in worship. Last winter a certain Winchester pastor received an epistle from an ardent gentleman who believed that he had been slighted in the service to which he had been urged to come. Careful inquiry disclosed the fact that he had come there and really invited and almost provoked the condition which his diseased way of looking at things construed into a slight. It is the opinion of The Spectator that the stranger has a duty toward the church as well as the church toward the stranger. If it is the duty of the church member to shake hands with a visitor and express pleasure at seeing him and hopes that he will come again, is it not equally the duty of the stranger to approach a fellow worshipper and express pleasure at having had the privilege of attending the services? The duty is mutual, and the matter of reproach against the church must be considered in the light of the equal ground of reproach against the inhospitable stranger.

The Spectator is grieved to say that there are cruelly indifferent people in Winchester just as there are in other communities. His attention has been called to the fact that a number of felines have been deserted by their owners this summer. It's a mean specimen of a human being who would deliberately abandon the family cat, and yet how many there are here in Winchester who do this shameful thing. The offence is punishable by law to the extent of $250 (the maximum sum) or imprisonment for as much as a year. The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals offers a reward of $10 for information leading to the connection of anyone guilty of this crime. Sometimes on the best residential streets people move away and leave these poor felines to haunt the deserted homes where they were formerly petted and cared for.

The glory of the western sky these July evenings bring to the mind of a Winchester gentleman these words of Emerson: "If the stars should appear one night in a thousand years, how would men believe and adore, and preserve for many generations the remembrance of the city of god which had been shown."

In gardens as in life, one must gain experience at first hand. Books are sometimes as deceptive as the flowers that bloom only on the face of a seed package. As Huxley's gardener said: "They'll say anything in a book." The Spectator would emphasize that there is no better place in which to cultivate the moral virtues than a garden, and the Winchesterite may come in time to take pride not only in sweet peas, but in the sweet principles gained from contact with the soil.

Saint Paul was once accused of being made mad by too much education. Are there any amongst the good citizens of Winchester who are not quite sure that our country is not being made mad largely from the same cause? Dr. Arthur McDonald finds that in spite of all our education, suicide, insanity and crime have been steadily on the increase for the past 40 years in this country, and what is still more startling, that the increase of crime and abnormal conduct has been greatest in exactly those States where the growth of education has been greatest. It does not follow from this that education is demoralizing, but The Spectator believes that one may fairly conclude that the more stuffing of schoolbags of pupils with book knowledge will never save Society. In looking over the figures of our vast progress in education, in trade and in national and civic growth, we must never assume that mere size means progress. It is not that we grow, but that we grow up rather than grow down that we need to be proud of. If we progress so rapidly as to create a prominent strain on the nerves of the public that causes insanity and crime to grow faster than education, we are unconsciously erecting a false social structure that is liable yet to fall upon us and crush us.

THE SPECTATOR.

DIED IN POLICE STATION.

On Tuesday afternoon shortly after five o'clock, Philip Hyde, 50 years of age, employed at T. F. Boyle's tannery, Woburn, died at the police station of alcoholism. The man was found by the Park police lying on the railroad bank near Bacon's felt mills shortly before three o'clock. Officers Kelley and Hargrove of the Winchester force went to the spot and found the man unconscious with two empty quart bottles beside him. They brought him to the station and summoned Dr. McCarthy, who remained with him until he died.

Hyde came to Woburn from Milford and is said to have a brother in Salem, but the police were unable to locate him and it is considered doubtful if he is found. The remains were taken charge of by Undertaker Cosgrove.

WINCHESTER TEAM ON TOP.

At the Winchester Country Club Saturday the home team defeated the Tedasco club in a team match four-somes, 2 to 1.

The results:
H. T. Bond and G. M. Brooks, Winchester, beat Coulthurst and Watson, Tedasco, 2 up; Clark and Palmer, Tedasco, beat E. R. Rooney and D. N. Skillings, Jr., Winchester, 2 up; D. P. Wingate, and P. T. Buford, Winchester, beat Ingalls and Bunting, Tedasco, 5 up, 3 to go. Total, Winchester 2, Tedasco 1.

THE NEW MYSTIC BRIDGE.

The commissioners recently appointed to apportion the cost of the new Mystic Bridge, between Charlestown and East Somerville have filed their report in the Superior court. The apportioned 10 per cent of the expense to the City of Boston, 41.2 per cent to Somerville, 18.1-2 per cent to the Boston Elevated, and 67 per cent jointly between the Boston & Maine and Boston & Albany railroad. The construction work is to be under the supervision of the Boston & Maine. Although Medford, Malden, Woburn, Winchester, Stoneham, Arlington, Reading and Everett are benefited by the new bridge, the commissioners find that under the statutes they are not specially benefited and so will not be required to assume any portion of the cost.

W. E. WHITTIER.

William E. Whittier, one of Stoneham's well known citizens, and a member of the firm of Whittier Bros., publishers of the Stoneham Independent, died Wednesday morning after a week's illness of Bright's disease. He was born in Stoneham 55 years ago, and had been engaged in printing and publishing in Stoneham square, in the building in which he was born, for the past forty years. His brother, with whom he had been associated in business, died about a year ago. He is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Funeral services are to be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

MYSTIC VALLEY

TROLLEY CLUB.

Owing to business cares of several members, the number of excursions this season will not exceed four in all. The first trip was taken on July 15, to Fields Point, near Providence, R. I. The party was quite limited. Start was made on the Colonial Express from the South Station at 9 o'clock, the members arriving by trolley just before the starting time. In Providence an Eddy street car was taken at 10.15 and stop was made at New York avenue. A walk of ten minutes and we arrived at Field's Point; at quarter before twelve the members were ready for the old-fashioned clam bake, which was set before them. At 12.45 the steamer Squantum started the return trip, landing near Market square, Providence, at 1.10. The Taunton car left at 1.35 arriving at its destination at 2.50. The Brockton car was taken at 3, arriving at 3.55. The Mattapan car started at 4, arriving at 5.15. A short stop for rest and refreshment and at 5.30 car for Dudley street elevated train at 5.45; arrived at Sullivan square at 6.14. Caught 6.17 North Woburn car and arrived in Winchester in 5 hours and 15 minutes including stops. Total fare 65 cents.

On July 29 a trip will be taken to Salisbury and Hampton Beaches, starting on the Reading car from Centre at 6.50 a. m. A third trip to Nashua and Canobie Lake on Aug. 12 is expected, start on 7.38 Lowell car.

SCHOOLHOUSES RENOVATED.

During the next six or eight weeks all of the school houses in town will be thoroughly renovated and put in first class condition for their opening at the commencement of school in September. In addition to the usual cleaning some of the buildings will undergo special repairs as follows:

Three new dry wells are to be dug at the Gifford school and new conductors put up. The boiler in this school will also be thoroughly overhauled.

The Prince school is to be repainted, and the Washington building will be shingled. The Wadleigh building will have the brick work at the entrance repointed. At the Mystic school, the flag pole, which blew down during the high wind of last week, will be set up again, this time in a bed of cement.

The floors in all of the buildings, with the exception of the High school, will be oiled during the summer.

The seeding of the newly graded portion of the High school lot will not be done until September, at which time the shrubs will also be set out. It has been deemed inadvisable to plant any grass during the dryness of the summer months.

ALTERATIONS AT CALUMET CLUB COMMENCED.

Work was commenced this week on the alterations at the Calumet Club. One third of the present billiard room is to be made into a lounging or smoking room. Two high backed settees, reaching up two-thirds of the space between the floor and ceiling, will effectively screen the new room from the billiard tables and the walls are to be paneled to an equal height and topped by a ornamental frieze. New rugs and furniture will be placed in the room upon its completion. This portion of the billiard room has always remained vacant since the enlargement of the Club house, and the new room will be a pleasing addition. A part of the proceeds received from the opera given by the club in February are to be used to defray the expense.

Mr. Clarence H. Lewis of Glen Road has purchased one of the new houses on Ravenscroft road, built by Niles brothers.

IT CAME TRUE.

The Large Party and the Calamity That Followed.

"You can't make me believe," Uncle Abner Jarvis was saying, "that there isn't something in fortune telling."

His auditors were grouped round the stove in the corner grocery store. "Ever have any experience with it?" asked one of them.

"That's what I was going to tell you," resumed Uncle Abner. "Once when I was at the county fair I saw a little tent with a sign on the outside of it that said 'Mime. Somebody-or-other would tell your fortune for 25 cents. I stepped inside just for fun."

"A woman with a thick veil over her face was sitting in a chair on a raised platform. I gave her a quarter, and she looked at my hand. One of the things she told me was that I was going to have a large party at my house in less than a month and that it would be followed by a calamity."

"I laughed at that. Thinks I to myself, 'We haven't had any parties of any kind to our house for two years, and I don't reckon we'll have one quite as soon as that.'"

"But it did come true. In about two weeks my wife's Aunt Jane came to visit us, and if you think she ain't a large party you ought to see her. She weighs 287 pounds."

"But how about the calamity?" inquired the man who was sitting on the nail keg after a long pause.

"Well," said Uncle Abner slowly, "she broke down our spare bed the first night she slept in it."—Youth's Companion.

ORCHID HUNTING.

The Terrors and the Dangers of a Tropical Forest.

It is not a pretty story, this narrative of a trip up the Orinoco, but you may understand orchid people better if you read it.

"It began unluckily," said he. "I took a partner because I'd learned that the dark places of earth are hard upon a man by himself. I met him at Port of Spain, and he was eager for the adventure because he had just absconded from a British mercantile house in Havana and the Orinoco sounded to him like a haven."

"We hired a few negroes. Our real guides we would pick up at Angostura. One day while waiting for the stores to be packed I took my partner out to show him what an orchid was."

"Near the Pitch lake I saw one in a tree and ordered one of the negro boys to climb up and get it. He would not. A deadly snake dwelt in that tree, he declared. He was afraid of snakes! Nice, efficient, helpful boy to take into tropical forests, wasn't he?"

"It was insubordination before the expedition had even started. So I cuffed him and handed him my hunting knife. Bring down that flower and also the snake's head," I ordered, and, whining, trembling, he went up the trunk. He was detaching the orchid from where it clung when a thing like a spear, as black as his own skin, suddenly struck at the boy's wrist. He screamed with terror and, toppling down, writhed with pain. He died, and I felt a gloom settle on my spirits."

"Well, at Angostura we took rafts and six guides upstream. First one guide died of fever; then another was bitten by poisonous insects. One fell in with—or into—an alligator. We needed meat, and the skin was worth a good deal, so half in revenge, half in curiosity, we went out and plucked holes in the monster. When the guides cut it open they stooped and drew things out—the bones and the cotton clothes of the guide this cannibal reptile had swallowed. The very knot was still in his sarong. Oh, don't squirm! This is orchid hunting."

"We had three guides left at the end of the second month, when, paddling along one day where the vines overreached and let snaky tendrils draggle down, we came to a fifty yard clearing. We saw there the sides of three canoes, half smothered with rapid growing vegetation, and 1,500 alligator skins well salted, but decaying. Hanging to the roof of what had been a kind of lean-to were 100 orchid plants—withered and dead. On the floor lay two rusty rifles and two skeletons. Out by the ashly place where the fire had been was a third skeleton. Up between the ribs were cheerfully growing some gay weeds."—Everybody's Magazine.

Aroused Her Curiosity After All.

"Don't want any," said a housekeeper from her second story window to a street vender whose covered wagon was standing a few steps away and who had just pulled the bell.

"Don't want any what?" gruffly asked the vender, who hadn't had even a chance to tell what his wares were.

"What have you got?" asked the housekeeper, whose curiosity was getting the better of her annoyance.

"Oh, never mind. You don't want any. Git up, Bob."

"Now, I wonder what that exasperating man is selling, anyhow?" she exclaimed as the wagon disappeared around the corner.—Exchange.

Silenced Him.

The young man in the barber's chair had been annoyed by suggestions of the white coated artist, although he had said clearly enough when he sat down that he wanted only a hair cut and a shampoo. Singeing, facial massage and hair tonics had been offered vainly.

Finally the barber perpetrated what is with barbers the crowning insult. Passing his hand over the young man's face, he said contemptuously:

"Shave yourself, don't you?"

"Sure," said the young man. "Don't you?"

And there was silence.—Washington Post.

Cutting the Finger Nails.

Cutting the finger nails appears to have been the most indispensable service the ancient Roman barber rendered to his patrons. Martial, chaffing a fop who had tried to dodge the barber by using plasters to remove his beard, asks triumphantly, "How are you going to manage about your nails?" And the miser in Plautus collects the parings of his nails from the barber to make something out of them, apparently never dreaming that he could save money by cutting them himself.

He Didn't Bet.

"A man in my county," said a Kansas congressman, "was always anxious to bet on his game of checkers. One time he was about to play a game for $10 with a fellow called Three Fingers Jack. Suddenly one of his friends exclaimed:

"Don't bet, Charlie. Don't you know that fellow wore off two fingers playing checkers? That's why he's called Three Fingers Jack."

"That settled it. The bet was never made. A man who had worn off two fingers by brushing them up and down the checkerboard was too much for my friend."—Kansas City Journal.

A Bitter Disappointment.

"When I was in Paris," remarked the collector of curios, "I discovered in a bookstall a volume which I knew at first glance to be of extraordinary value. I could scarcely believe my good luck. Breathless, I inquired the price of the dealer. Just think of it! I could have had that treasure for a song!"

"Well, why didn't you get it?"

"Never could sing a note in my life," cried the collector, bursting into tears.—New York Times.

The Audience Moved.

He had been trying to start a revival fervor, but the audience was unresponsive. "O ye of flinty hearts," he cried, "will nothing move you?" "Pass the hat, boss," answered the gamins, "and we move immediately."—Florida Times-Union.

BOSTON LETTER

Fitzgerald in Bad Odor Since His Court Testimony

NEW CAND DATE IS LIKELY

Justification of the Boston Finance Commission—Councillor Barry Would Be District Attorney in Suffolk County

It is not at all certain now that ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will be a candidate for a second term as mayor of Boston. Up to the time he was named as a witness in the case against Mitchell and Maher, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city in the case of a flagstone contract, Mr. Fitzgerald was an active, hustling candidate for the Democratic nomination. His testimony on the stand consisted largely of a failure of memory; to nearly all the important questions put to him he replied that he did not remember or did not recall, notwithstanding the fact that his testimony before the grand jury was quite full and ample. He was not able even to recall his own testimony before the grand jury in the same case. Such an amazing loss of memory in a person of vigorous health and comparative youth has dumfounded even his Democratic followers. Everywhere among Democrats it is being quietly whispered that it will never do to put Fitzgerald in the field again. If he has so lost his grip as not to remember essential facts, they feel it will hardly be safe to present him to the people of Boston as a candidate for mayor. A mental condition like that would hardly be expected to appeal to the voters.

Above and beyond all that, however, is the significant fact that the two men whom he tried to protect by his lapse of memory were both convicted of conspiring to defraud the city, have now accepted the situation, and are serving their sentences at Deer Island for one year.

It was a little peculiar that Mitchell, before he began his term, should give Fitzgerald a character. From such a source as that a certificate of standing would hardly be considered worth while.

As a result it is more than likely that some other Democrat will shortly be pushed forward for the Democratic nomination. There is an amplitude of candidates, the only task being to select one who will command the confidence and support of the Democratic masses.

Gaston Named For Governor

There is renewed talk of Colonel William A. Gaston as the Democratic nominee for governor. There is, of course, no doubt that the colonel would like to be elected chief executive of the commonwealth. He has often said that inasmuch as his father was at one time governor of Massachusetts he also would be pleased with the honor. Of course if the big men in the party like Charles S. Hamlin, Robert M. Burnett, John T. Burnett, Nathan Mathews, John R. Thayer, Henry M. Whitney and various other moneyed men should wish to nominate the colonel, it would not be difficult to do so. The rank and file of the Democratic party know that without money it is almost impossible to wage a successful campaign. The men mentioned, and others like them, are those who in the past have made the contributions to the campaign fund which have enabled the men running the party machine to organize effective campaigns. No doubt not only the leading conservative Democrats but the rank and file also would hail with joy the advent of a man whose nomination would mean a sufficient campaign fund to organize the commonwealth, something which has not been effectively done for years.

It is not likely that Colonel Gaston will be the nominee. He has never been a vote-getter, owing partly to the fact that he is not a good mixer, partly to his close connection with the Moran interests in New York, and partly to the antagonism of labor men throughout the state. When he ran for governor some years ago, he evidently believed there was a chance to win. He was defeated, however, by a very large majority.

On the other hand, Governor Draper is certain to be the Republican nominee. It is acknowledged by everybody that he has made a good governor. He has shown that he is no such man as the labor men painted him and on the whole has pleased the fair-minded citizens of the state, regardless of party affiliations. He got many Democratic votes last fall and will get a great many more next November. He got them last fall against Vahey and he would get them this year against Gaston if nominated.

In the end Mr. Vahey will be nominated for governor and, unless all signs fail, will be defeated by a significant vote. If the strong men of the party felt that the Democratic had any show this fall they would see that a conservative was nominated and that Mr. Vahey was defeated.

Finance Commission Justified

The justification for the appointment of the finance commission to investigate municipal affairs in the city of Boston lies in the fact that already, owing to this probing of city affairs, five men are now in prison on charges unearthed by that commission, six have paid fines and twenty-five are out on bail awaiting trial. At the time the bill was passed through the Massachusetts legislature for the creation of this commission, practically all the Democrats on Beacon Hill opposed it as wholly unnecessary and as a political move. As a matter of fact it was the best thing for the city of Boston that has happened in a great many years. Up to that time the position of district attorney had been held in Democratic hands. It had been held by men who had never attempted to convict anybody of conspiring to rob the city. When John B. Moran came into office he promised to do many things but failed to perform most of what he promised. It remained for a Republican, Arthur D. Hill, to set in motion the machinery of the district attorney's office, and to mete out justice to grafters. He has started in well, much better indeed than most people thought possible. In the few months since his appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Moran, Mr. Hill has done all the work which has made practical the efforts of the finance commission. With such a record it would seem impossible that he could be defeated for re-election this fall.

Barry Would Run This Fall

There will be no vacancy on the state ticket for the Republicans to fill this fall; consequently the state convention will probably be a rather tame affair. It has been called for Oct. 2 in Symphony hall and will be entitled to over 1800 delegates, the largest for many years. There are to be changes in the membership of the executive council. Councillor Edward P. Barry of South Boston, a Democrat, has told his friends that he intends to run this fall as a candidate for district attorney against Arthur D. Hill, who will be the Republican nominee. Mr. Barry is a lawyer and is a part of the Democratic machine.

He would probably be a pretty strong candidate at the polls but undoubtedly many Democrats will vote for the election of Mr. Hill. There are liable to be other candidates for the Democratic nomination. Felix W. McEtrick is one and Alonzo D. Moran another. It is quite possible that Joseph A. Dennison, who opposed Moran for the nomination last year, will be a candidate. This is one of the most important positions to be voted for at the state election this fall.

Spontaneous Combustion.

Spontaneous combustion can only occur when oxidation causes the temperature to rise to the ignition point of the material. Spontaneous combustion of the human body is impossible on account of the heat regulating effect of the 75 or 80 per cent of water contained. The enormous heat necessary to dry the tissues sufficiently would destroy life long before ignition could take place. An old idea was that the alcohol in a confirmed drunkard might promote combustion, but Liebig showed that even if the body could give off inflammable vapor and this could be come ignited the body itself would not be set on fire.

"You're been courting me now for a number of years, George," remarked a girl to a young man, "and I want to make a little leap year proposal."

"I am not in a position to marry just yet," stammered the youth, "but—"

"Who said anything about marriage?" interrupted the girl. "I was going to propose that you stop coming here and give somebody else a chance."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

During an inclement spell of weather a lady of the order of the newly rich was so unfortunate as to contract a painful affection of the throat, and she accordingly accepted the advice of a friend that she consult a great London specialist noted for his expensive fees.

"Your ailment is not a serious one," said the specialist after examination. "You'll soon be all right. I'll just indicate to your family surgeon precisely where to touch your throat with nitrate of silver, and I think that will meet the case exactly."

"Oh, doctor," protested the wealthy matron in a tone of mingled surprise and indignation, "do order him to use nitrate of gold! Expense is a matter, I assure you, quite immaterial to me!"—London Answers.

Ancient Greek Training.

The manner in which the Athenians brought up their children is worth remembering. At seven years of age the Athenian lad entered the palestra, which was essentially a playground. All the first and better half of the day was spent in gymnastics, dancing, games and play. In the afternoon there were singing, some writing, some reading, all in the open air, and then came a long period of play again. Such was the schooling of the Greek lad up to the age of ten or eleven, and it did not differ essentially up to the age of sixteen, except in the severity of the exercises. And yet the world has not ceased to marvel at the results of the Greek education. It produced the highest type of man, physically and intellectually, that the world has ever seen, which Galton says was as far in advance of the modern Englishman as the modern Englishman is in advance of the native African. In physical beauty, courage and patriotism, in philosophy, literature, architecture and art, the Greeks have been the unsurpassed models of the ages and are still the inspiration of our schools today. But they placed the emphasis upon hygiene, exercise, games and play, which are too much neglected in these days.—Kansas City Star.

Geographical Knowledge in 1492.

But very little was known in regard to the extent of the world in Aristotle's day. In the fourth century before Christ, all but very little more was known about it 1,800 years later. In the time of Columbus. In 2000 years the world had in reality retrograded rather than advanced. It was the popular belief in the time of Columbus that the world was flat, though many contemporary scholars thought differently. The great civilizations of the world at that time were grouped around the Mediterranean sea, although England was a considerable power and the Scandinavians were a great maritime people. But Europeans at that time knew but little of Asia and but little of Africa and America, of course, was undreamed of. Even after Columbus had discovered the latter continent he was perfectly oblivious of the fact. He thought Haiti was Cipango or Japan and for a long time regarded Cuba as a part of the mainland of Asia.

A Famous All Potato Banquet.

One of the most remarkable menus ever drawn up must have been that of the feast in Paris to which Benjamin Franklin, Lavoisier, the founder of modern chemistry, and other distinguished men sat down as guests of Parmentier. Every dish at this banquet was made of potatoes, and even the brandy and liquors were the product of the same vegetable. This was Parmentier's final proof to his skeptical fellow countrymen that potatoes were not poison, as they persisted in believing. Louis XVI. himself was one of Parmentier's earliest converts, granted him land on which to grow his plants and did not disdain to wear the potato flower as a buttonhole. Then Parmentier cleverly posted guards round his potato fields by day and withdrew them by night, so that people were tempted to come then, steal, eat and be convinced. The all potato banquet was the climax of the great campaign.—Chicago News.

Horses in Pantaloons.

"Equine sunbonnets are very well," said a veterinary, "but what would you say to equine trousers? You'll see them in Guayaquil. There the mosquitoes and greenhead flies are so thick that horses and donkeys, unless their legs are cased in cloth, become unmanageable with the pain. Guayaquil is in Ecuador. It is directly under the equator. The heat there is insufferable. Up and down its narrow and foul smelling streets in bluish clouds of buzzing insects walk horses and donkeys in sunbonnets and pantaloons."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No Accent.

Many stories are told of a former Canadian bishop who had passed his youth in Scotland, but flattered himself that not a hint of his origin could be gained from his speech or manner. One day he met a Scotchman, to whom he said at last abruptly, "Hoo lang hae ye been here?" "About six years," was the reply. "Hoot, mon!" said the bishop sharply. "Why hae ye na lost yer accent, like myself?"

It Didn't Work.

"I haven't anything fit to wear," she said. "Neither have I," he replied. "Let's stay at home." Taken up thus, there was nothing for her to do but hurry and get ready.—Buffalo Express.

Time and Life.

What we call time is but a single sun ray thrown across the infinite void of eternity, and life is but a floating flicker or mote that vanishes even as it becomes visible thereon.—Exchange

Perhaps.

"Who was it that said that art was long?" "I don't remember now, but I think it must have been somebody who was trying to learn to fiddle."—Chicago Record Herald.

Half a man's wisdom goes with his courage.—Emerson.

The Planet Mercury.

Though Mercury is one of the smallest of the planets, it is perhaps the most troublesome to the astronomer. It lies so close to the sun that it is seen but seldom in comparison with the other great planets. Its orbit is very eccentric, and it experiences disturbances by the attraction of other bodies in a way not yet fully understood. A special difficulty has also been found in the attempt to place Mercury in the weighing scales. We can weigh the sun, the moon and even Jupiter and other planets, but Mercury presents difficulties of a peculiar character. Le Verrier, however, succeeded in devising a method of weighing it. He demonstrated that our earth is attracted by this planet, and he showed how the amount of attraction may be disclosed by observations of the sun, so that from an examination of the observations he made an approximate determination of the mass of Mercury. Le Verrier's result indicated that the weight of the planet was about the fifteenth part of the weight of the earth. In other words, if our earth was placed in a balance and fifteen globes, each equal to Mercury, were laid in the other the scales would hang evenly.—"Story of the Heavens."

When Her Turn Came.

The Journal had taken on a "woman editor," whose duty was to look after the "woman's page." Space being scarce in the "local room," a desk was given her in the managing editor's room, directly adjoining. For a week or two to fault was found with her work, but one morning the managing editor said to her:

"Miss Penfield, your style of writing is a little too terse and epigrammatic for the needs of your department. You must study expansion."

"Very well, Mr. Ringgold," she answered. "I will try."

Thereafter her work appeared to give entire satisfaction, for there was no further criticism. About six months later, however, the managing editor after a morning spent in working at his desk suddenly wheeled in his chair and said:

"Miss Penfield, I want a wife. I want you. Will you marry me?"

"Mr. Ringgold," she responded, with a mocking smile, "that is rather terse and epigrammatic. Don't you think you ought to study expansion a little?"—Youth's Companion.

A Word of Warning.

"You never proposed to her on your knees," cried the veteran married man in dismay.

"Sure I did; sure," the youth repeated, a glad, proud light shining in his eyes.

"Well," said the veteran, "you'll regret it about twice a week for the rest of your life. After you get married the slightest argument, the first impatient word, will cause your wife to say, 'You weren't like this when you went down on your knees and begged me, with tears in your eyes, to marry you.'"

"It's pretty bad to have an angry wife read out your old love letters reproachfully," said the veteran, "but that is nothing to being reminded of your kneeling proposal every week till you are a great-grandfather."

"You proposed on your knees yourself?" the youth hazarded.

But the veteran frowned and made no reply.—Los Angeles Times.

The Seven Wise Men of Greece.

The seven wise men of Greece were Thales of Miletus, Pericles of Corinthus, Cleobulus of Lyndus, Chilon of Laedaemon, Solon of Athens, Bias of Priene and Pittacus of Mytilene. Some fishermen of Miletus sold a draft of fishes to a bystander. When the net was drawn in it contained a golden tripod, and the purchaser claimed it was his, while the fishermen contended that they sold only the fish that might be in the net. The dispute was referred to the oracle of Delphi, who awarded the tripod to the wisest man in Greece. Thereupon it was taken to Thales, who declined it and suggested that it be given to Bias. He in turn refused to accept it, and thus it was successively declined by all the seven, and they were thereafter known as the seven wise men of Greece.

The Number 4.

There are four cardinal points, four winds, four quarters of the moon, four seasons, four rules of arithmetic, four suits of cards, four quarters to the hour, four legs for furniture, most animals go on four legs, the dead are placed between four planks, the prisoners between four walls. We have four incisor and four canine teeth, and our forks have four prongs. All animals when butchered are cut into four quarters. The violin, greatest of all string instruments, has but four strings. Four of a kind is a pretty good hand at poker, even if they are only fours.—Exchange.

Dressed For the Part.

"What subject have you taken for your address at the Civic club?"

"Woman's moral obligations as a citizen."

"What a lovely subject! And what are you going to wear?"

"That new gown I brought home with me from Paris. And just think! I had it so cleverly packed in with my old clothes that the customs house inspector never discovered it was there."—Baltimore American.

An Explanation.

"How in blazes did the compositor happen to head my foreign travel letter with the words 'Foreign Drivel'?"

"I don't know. Perhaps he read it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sponges are great germ collectors. They should be scalded out thoroughly every little while.

Giving the Bride a Tip.

"Here's a little pointer for you," said the bride of last year to the bride of this year. "I'll tell you my own experience, and you can judge for yourself what to do. When we returned from our wedding trip and I began to rummage through George's belongings I found six or seven pairs of gloves and at least nine pairs of silk hose, things that he had never had on. They had been tucked away in all sorts of places. Most of them I at once recognized as presents I had given to him from time to time. Besides them, I found a lot of handkerchiefs still unused, handkerchiefs that I had embroidered his initial on with my own hands.

"What do you suppose I did? Foolishly I gathered them all together and spread them out on the bed where he would see them when he came home and feel ashamed of himself for never using my presents. Just think what a lack of forethought I showed! Consider what a saving of pin money it would have been if I had put the things away and then doled them out to him for Christmas presents or birthday presents one by one. It would have served him exactly right too."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Are You a Beggar?

All the beggars are not holding out a hand to passersby in the street. You probably know the man who is ever whining for help. If a farmer, he thinks his neighbors should help him get in his grain or do his plowing. If in business, he is always trying to borrow or wanting some one to boost him or drum up customers. He never seems to think of relying on his own efforts. There is a well known fable about the larks in a grainfield. As long as the farmer depended on his neighbors and relations to come and cut his grain the larks felt perfectly safe. When the man determined to cut the grain himself the larks knew it was time to seek safety elsewhere.

There are times when every one needs help, but help should be asked only when one has made every possible effort for himself.

Too much help given a man weakens his character.—Milwaukee Journal.

A Quiet Rebuke.

An "object admonition" like the one described by Warren Lee Goss in his article, "Campaigning to No Purpose," published in Johnson's "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War," is often more efficacious than storms of reproach.

One day the colonel of the regiment noticed a soldier on parade wearing a badly soiled pair of gloves.

"Corporal," said the officer, "why do you set the men such a bad example as appearing before them in dirty gloves? Why is it?"

"I've had no pay, sir, since I entered the service," returned the corporal. "I can't afford to have them done up."

The colonel drew from his pocket a pair of gloves, spotlessly white. Handing them to the corporal, he said quietly: "Put these on. I washed them myself."

It was an unforgotten lesson to the whole regiment.

Von Holstein's Dress Coat.

Prince Bulow once invited Herr von Holstein to dinner, telling him that it was to meet the emperor. "But," replied Holstein, "I don't believe that I have a dress coat at present. I will try, however, to get one made in time, and if I can't perhaps the emperor will take me as I am." This, the Times says, was reported to his majesty, who said that Herr von Holstein was to appear in any garb he pleased.

When the meeting took place Holstein was in his usual frock coat, and the emperor laughingly tapped him on the shoulder and said: "I see that dress coat wasn't ready. It doesn't matter."—London Standard.

Cheering Him Up.

"Bill," said the invalid's friend, "I've come to cheer you up a bit like I've brought you a few fairs, Bill. I thought if I was too late they'd come in handy for a wreat, yer know. No, don't get downhearted, Bill. Lummy, don't yer look gashly! But, there, keep up yer spirits, ole sport; I've come to see yer an' cheer yer up a bit. Nice little room yer 'ave 'ere; but, as I says to meself when I was a'comin' up, wot a orkard staircase to get a coffin dahn!"—London Globe.

An Epitaph.

In the churchyard of Leigh, near Bolton, will be found a tombstone bearing the following amazing sentence: "A virtuous woman is 5s. to her husband." The explanation seems to be that space prevented "a crown" being cut in full, and the stonemason argued that a crown equals 5 shillings.—London Notes and Queries.

Musical Note.

"How do you sell your music?" asked the prospective customer.

"It depends on the kind you want," replied the smart clerk. "We sell piano music by the pound and organ music by the choir."

A Blowing Up.

"Now, Willie," said the teacher to a small pupil, "can you tell me what dynamite is used for?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered Willie. "It's used to blowpheme things with."—Chicago News.

Before and After.

"Before or after she is dressed to go out?" queried the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

The Tariff.

The completion of the revised tariff is in sight. The STAR would like to learn Congressman Mc-Call's opinion regarding the revision. It might make interesting and illuminating reading.

RASTUS NOT THE ONLY OFFENDER.

In court this morning an Italian man and a boy were charged with the larceny of a hen in Winchester. The man was discharged and the boy's case was placed on probation.

The pair, according to the story told in court, dandy passed a hen roost and evidently their appetite was aroused.
The man had the boy secure a bag and going to work in the morning the elder caught one of the bunnies and placed it in the bag, hiding it nearby in the bushes until coming home from work.
When the boy went to get the prize he was caught. He squealed on his companion and they were brought into court. The arrest shatters the old theory that "rastus" was the only lover of henflesh. [Woburn News.]

WHY THIS SOLICITUDE?

Some Woburn people are hesitating about endorsing the interurban railroad because, forsooth, it appears not to be acceptable to Winchester. When, pray, has Winchester shown any such solicitude for Woburn?

When we had an express train in the late afternoon to Woburn, the Winchester people made such a holler to the B.
& M. that the B. & M. surrendered and thereafter the train stopped at Winchester. Winchester looks out for herself, as is right and proper, and will respect Woburn for looking out for herself. [Woburn Times.]

HOW IT LOOKS.

The line up on the Butler Ames interurban high speed electric is pretty well defined now. The promoters have the cities with them and the towns against them. The B. & M. and B. & N. are opposing them, and the "L" has bitched up with them. It promises to be a stubborn contest—with the chances now against the proposed road getting a certificate. Demonstrating a "demand" is the great natural obstacle, especially as the railroad commission has once ruled against practically this same project. [Boston Record.]

in your last issue by Representative Barnard, I wish to remind the citizens that he did not offer any opposition by a word of objection to Mr. Joslin's motion of delay at the last town meeting. That words are good and only so, when backed up by deeds. A bill was reported at the last meeting of the Legislature that the charges to towns for abolishing grade crossings in the state be not over 5 per cent. of the cost.

On this bill, Mr. Barnard voted no.
He wants Winchester to pay 10 per cent. not 5 per cent.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Have you visited the Vacation Playroom yet?

The management welcomes visitors and some one is always ready to show about all friends interested in the work.
The school is on Swanton street at the Chapin school. Both Arlington and Medford cars pass the street. Morning sessions from 9 to 12 every day except Saturday.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing this in Middlesex. Fells opposite a sign, reading, "Road closed for repairs." a similar sign, shuts off to travel another road. Neither sign tells the truth, as no repairs are going on.
Why this unnecessary imposition upon the riding public?

Undoubtedly some citizens can be got to sign petitions in favor of the railroad through the West Side because they will be told but one side of the proposition of course, and it will be set forth in very rosy colors, but such endorsements are worth nothing and have no weight.
The net result of the building of this line can be so clearly shown to be a tremendous damage to this town that it would get practically no support in any town meeting. The service over the present roads should be much improved undoubtedly, and this the Commission has the power and duty to compel, but a new railroad is not needed to serve the territory proposed by either route.

The macadamizing of Cross street is a great improvement that will be much appreciated by both man and beast and it is too bad that the B. & M. will do nothing to improve the bridge at the Highlands station. This bridge certainly looks unsafe, stones are out, pointing up gone and timbers badly decayed.
Cannot the B. & M. spend a dollar until the merger is accomplished?

At the annual town meeting money was appropriated for an Inspector of Wires. Has anything been done about it since? Why was it recommended?

Why does not the STAR give the detailed score of the base ball matches played upon Manchester Field? Can it be there is feeling between the managers and the paper? People like to know what the program is before and how it was carried out afterwards.

If there is a sidewalk in town that should receive attention more than any other it is the walk from Swanton street to the Woburn line. It is on a main thoroughfare and used by a very large number of people. The rocks and stones stick up like spikes and the walk has been sadly neglected for many years.

I have been waiting to see in the Selectmen's meeting's records word that the companies maintaining poles in our streets has been notified to paint them. There are lines of poles on some streets that have not been painted for so many years that every vestige of paint has disappeared.

If the Republican party did not promise to revise the tariff downward how is it that everybody understood it that way? The longer any party remains in power the more it is owned by big interests, but the people are slow in learning it. The Massachusetts Senators are able but controlled, our representatives with few exceptions are men of little ability and force.

DECISION OF THE RAILROAD COM-MISSION IN 1907.

Has anything occurred since to change it?

The Boston, Lowell and Lawrence electric railroad as planned would pass through Charlestown, Somerville, Medford and Arlington, connecting with the Boston Elevated system in Charlestown.
Residents of these cities and towns earnestly remonstrate against the building of this railroad. Though these remonstrants cannot rightfully set up their local interests as an impassable barrier to all new facilities for travel between Boston and more distant cities and towns, they may reasonably ask that their interests shall not be heedlessly overridden.

It cannot be gainsaid that the railroad which is proposed would interfere with important extensions of the Boston Elevated system which have long been awaited as a public blessing in these suburban towns. Are prospective benefits from the new enterprise such as to justify the sacrifice of those other public interests?

New freight facilities and low fares were prominent features of the prospects of the Boston, Lowell and Lawrence electric railroad. The suggestion of better freight accommodation was attractive in Lowell and would explain much of the interest in the enterprise at first aroused in that quarter; but all intention of carrying on a freight business has since been disavowed. A five cent fare from any point in Arlington, Medford and Somerville to all parts of Boston was attractive in those communities and explains certain support secured in each; but it has since become evident that this assurance had no substantial basis. The freedom with which stations have been promised and the manner in which methods of operation have been explained challenge faith in the fulfilment of prophecies regarding train service. In general it may be said that the method pursued in placing this project before the public at different times and in different places in the early days of its promotion was notable for indifference to law and conditions and to the possibility that promises made might call for performance. Then, too, the structure which the company proposes in Sullivan square is undesirable and unsightly and the selection of that connection with the elevated system makes rapid transit improbable and aggravates conditions that already vex and menace the public at this terminal.

Nor can the company build the structure which it has planned without special legislation, and such legislation has been expressly denied.

Stripped of all the glamour given it by unsubstantial proclamations there is little in the enterprise to recommend it to the business judgment of investors or to give it standing with the public; too little to warrant the exercise of the right of eminent domain or the interference with other public works that the building of such a railway would involve. The standing and character of members of the temporary board of directors who were enlisted in the undertaking cannot be challenged and able counsel have endeavored to show substantial merit in what the company proposes to accomplish, but the more careful the study and the closer the scrutiny of the history and character of this transportation scheme the less there is found in it to call for a certificate that public necessity and convenience require it.

gage deed, will be sold at public auction upon the premises described in said mortgage deed all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, viz:

A certain parcel of real estate situated in Winchester, Massachusetts, being the lot numbered one hundred and eleven (111) on a plan made by G. F. Hafford dated May 25, 1894 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book of Plans 70, plan No. 4, and being described as follows: 32-1/2 feet south westerly by Irving street thirty-five (35) feet; north westerly by lot numbered one hundred and seven (107) on said plan ninety-two and 82 (100) feet; north easterly by land lots of form 73 of Joseph Stoughton thirty-three and 1-3/4 (35.01) feet; and south easterly by lot numbered one hundred and fifteen (115) on said plan ninety-eight and 59-100 (98.50) feet.
Containing 3.45 square feet.

Said premises will be sold subject to the restrictions mentioned or referred to in deed by G. F. Hafford to Annie Alvin Yull dated December 26, 1900, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 2965, page 270; also to all unpaid taxes, tax sales or other municipal dues, if any.

Three hundred dollars will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; further terms and particulars may be then and there announced.

THEY AIM TO PLEASE.

Hutchinson's Market of Winchester has its own farm and supplies the table from "Soup to Nuts." Choice Sirloins a specialty.

In the centre of Winchester is Hutchinson's Market. Manager Kenna showed the reporter for this paper through the store one day this week.

It is a busy place—Hutchinson's. From the Hutchinson farm in Arlington a big market wagon comes loaded with string beans, peas, lettuce, fresh cucumbers, summer squash, strawberries and other delicious things to eat.

These, the man from the farm, which is run specially for the store, supplying the tables of Winchester's connoisseurs on what is good to eat—comes in with these products of the soil.

Picked in the early dew of the morning these vegetables present a delightful sight to the marketer for the household.

In the great ice chest are the meats—choice sirloins, etc., etc.

This market aims to get the best and it is hard to see where improvement could be made in the goods, or the treatment of customers.

There is telephone connection. "Ask our customers" is the reference given by Manager Kenna who has conducted the Hutchinson Market in Winchester for three years.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

There is no better indication of the rapid strides made in vaudeville and the degree to which it is drawing upon the legitimate stage than is shown by the Romany Opera Company at Keith's. Here is a company as large as one you would find on the road, giving a full evening's entertainment of the most pretentious operas.

For its second week a number of changes will be made although the demand for the selections sung last week will make it impossible to keep some of these in the programme.

From the dramatic standpoint Richard Crolius & Co. will furnish another example of high class legitimate comedy reduced to twenty-five minutes which will ordinarily take a whole evening. Others are Hoey and Lee, two Hebrew comedians who are always popular; the 4 Readings, remarkable gymnasts; Anderson and Goines, two well known entertainers; the Three Mullers and Chum; Henry and Lazel in a dancing act and Louis Granat, the famous whistling soloist.

"BIG TOURIST TRAVEL OVER PLANT LINE."

The heavy tide of tourist travel to the Maritime Provinces is now on in earnest, and every out-going steamer of the Plant Line is crowded with persons from all parts of the country, some of whom are visiting Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island for the first time, while others are just repeating past experiences, which means their vacations are always spent "down east."

The sail out of Boston Harbor, across the Bay of Fundy, along the coast of Nova Scotia and through the Straits of Canso is an ideal ocean voyage, and you will make no mistake if you are looking eastward for your vacation and have tickets reading via Plant Line. Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday sailings.

WILLIAM E. MANZER.

Expert Horse-Shoer of 736 Main Street. Has Had a Long and Varied Experience.

As one climbs the hill leading to Woburn from Winchester, there is noticeable the blacksmith shop of William E. Manzer who has shod horses for 25 years. When one comes to review the past, 25 years is a long time to be doing the same line of work.

Twenty-five years of it has left Horse-shoer Manzer confident of his capabilities in the shoeing of a horse. Back in 1884 in Northboro he began as an apprentice. Afterwards he went to Stoneham, master of his trade and started a shop. For 17 years he shod Stoneham horses satisfactorily. Five years ago he came to 736 Main Street, the old Cutter village district, and since then his shop has been busy enough.

Miss Beniah Chapin is visiting friends in New York City.

Wasted Time.

Mrs. Newrich was growing accustomed to power. She enjoyed it and was irritated when any one presumed to differ from her in opinion. When the sailing party of which she had been a member landed on the shores of the lake rain soaked and frightened, Mrs. Newrich was the only one who cared to talk.

"It could all have been avoided if that captain had gone as I told him," she said between the chattering of her teeth as the party stood huddled under a small shelter.

"When I saw that cloud coming from that corner of the lake I said to him, 'I think you'd better make straight for home and not spend any more time tacking,' but he paid no more attention than as if I hadn't spoken!"—Youth's Companion Wasted All Three Wishes.

An Irish legend has it that a good fairy once visited an old couple and promised them that any three wishes they would make would be granted. After racking their brains for some time in an endeavor to discover what they desired most the couple decided to visit the county fair to see if something there would suggest what they wanted. They did so, and after rambling around all day and not seeing anything that exactly suited them, toward evening they found themselves before a display of kitchen utensils. Among them was a soup ladle, cheap, but likely to appeal to a woman, so the old woman in an absent moment said, "Oh, I wish I had one of those," and immediately she had it. The old man was so enraged because his wife had thoughtlessly thrown away one valuable wish that he retorted, "I wish that was stuck down your throat," and immediately this was done. Thereupon he was at once sorry at what he wished, and the only thing left to do was to wish the ladle out again. So all three wishes went for naught.

How Snakes Get Over Ground.

Although the snake appears to have no legs or feet, it may be said to be practically supplied with upward of a hundred pairs of them. In fact, each joint of the backbone bears a pair of ribs, which are mobile and have their points attached to the inner surface of one of the large transverse, platelike scales which clothe the undersurface of the body. Thus by the movements of the ribs attached to it each plate can be drawn forward and its margin applied to the ground. By the successive application of these multitudinous plates the body can be drawn forward in a straight line without its being thrown into undulations from side to side. But rapid movements are also effected by such undulations, and serpents can by pressure and appropriate muscular action climb trees and sometimes spring forward. They also swim easily by lateral flexures, but no serpents advance by vertical bendings of the body, though they are so often drawn in such an attitude.

Bolivia's Electrical Storms.

Owing to the peculiar topographical formation of Bolivia, electric and other phenomena are of constant occurrence, the principal zone where such disturbances take place being the Altiplano, or grand plateau. As the atmosphere is heavily charged with electricity both in summer and winter, dry or electric storms are of frequent occurrence both on the plateau and in the valleys. Before the rainy season sets in electrical accumulation becomes considerable on the plateau region, its most violent manifestations taking place toward the eastern section of the tablelands. An electrical storm in these regions is always a most imposing spectacle, as the tremendous force of the wind, almost equal to a hurricane, and the heavy electrical accumulation in the clouds produce terrible atmospheric explosions and violent detonations, while the surface of the ground sparkles and crackles.

Vacation by Think.

Make a compact with your soul to take a vacation and the way is simple. There are portions of your time over which you have control. Probably your evenings and your Sundays are your own. Set apart a month or so eliminate the self assigned tasks for those hours out of business and give yourself up to the pursuit of pleasure. Get others to join you. Call a vacation club. Adopt a real vacation spirit and go in for a good time. Resolve never to speak of work out of business hours, but to fill to the full that time which is your own with recreations which most appeal to you. Did you ever sing? Sing now. Did you ever paint? Paint now. Remember nature's gifts to you and find occasion to praise nature within as well as without.—Exchange.

He Got It Wrong.

A lady while going downstairs to dinner had the misfortune to step slightly on the dress of a lady in front of her. The man on whose arm the former was leaning said aloud, rudely, so that the couple in front might hear: "Always getting in the way, like Balaam's ass."

Upon which the lady whose gown had been trodden on, turning round, replied with a sweet smile: "Pardon me! It was the angel who stood in the way and the ass which spoke."—Tit-Bits.

OLIVER L. BEAL.

Oliver L. Beal, who passed away at Hingham recently, and who was father to Mrs. A. W. Lombard of this town. He was born in that town 61 years ago, and shortly after arriving at manhood he went to Gloucester where he went into the express business. Selling out after a number of years he went to Reading and purchased Cummings' Express. In 1896 he retired and 10 years ago came to Medford Hillside where he was employed in the office of the Locke Coal Company until last May.

Mr. Beal was made a Mason in a Gloucester lodge, but when he went to Reading he transferred his membership to Good Samaritan lodge. He was also a member of Security lodge of Odd Fellows and What Cheer lodge of Pilgrim Fathers. While his health permitted he was an attendant at the Universalist church at Medford Hillside, of which his wife is a member. He leaves a widow and two daughters, Mrs. A. W. Lombard of Winchester and Miss Louise A. Beal, who makes her home with her mother.

Awkward, but No Chump.

Once there was a pretty woman who came upon a huge ostrich in the desert.

"Foolish bird," said the pretty woman. "You cover your head with sand and think you are out of sight."

The huge ostrich laughed. "My dear madam," he chuckled. "There is nothing foolish about that. Don't you cover your head with a hat decorated with my feathers and think you are out of sight?"

Moral—The ostrich is an awkward bird and eats horseshoes, but he can hit back in other ways than with his big feet.—Chicago News Man's Superiority.

Warren

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand are, first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss. The same kind that is used in the pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It never gets damp, and is extremely light and flexible. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

These two best fast sellers on this mattress, and I can assure you that your guests in the morning will be rested well.

A mattress that has proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse manure. This horse manure, from the manure of the horse, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resiliency and spring, and for sound sleep has no equal.

IDLY WANDERING.

When the Overwrought Worker Cuts Loose From Care.

When a business man suffers from overstrain or a student from overwork sometimes, instead of taking to bed, he disappears. Suddenly he is missing, all trace of him lost. His family and friends invariably fear the worst. They imagine he has met with accident and is lying unconscious in a hospital or has parted with his wife and is confined in an asylum or has even taken his own life.

These things are all possible, but the probable thing is none of them. The probable thing is that the overwrought man has yielded to a natural impulse and instinctively has sought a cure by becoming a wanderer for the time. He has put the cares of the old life behind him and with them the people that recall the old life and has given himself up to the healing of the road. To drift with no well defined object, to see strange places and faces, ever to answer the call of the beyond—"die ferne," as the Germans call it—is more than a dream lying somewhere in the back of every man's mind, where it is lodged by some ancestor of the nomad period; it is one of nature's own remedies for the worries of life.

For the man with a great sorrow, for the man with a troubled conscience, for the man whose nerves are not treating him right, travel, change of scene, is one of the things the wise physician will prescribe. If it be a veritable tramp about the cure will be speedier and more complete and may work physical regeneration into the bargain.—New York Mail.

A FLOWER AND A WISH.

The Romantic Marriage of De Lesseps of Suez Canal Fame.

Sir Henry Brackenbury tells in Blackwood's Magazine the story of the romantic marriage of M. de Lesseps. A Frenchman living in Reunion was compelled by the illness of his wife to take her to France. He sailed with his wife and two young daughters, but the wife died on the voyage. Some time afterward the Frenchman called on M. de Lesseps, told him of his misfortunes and of his sufferings on the long sea voyage and expressed the wish to dedicate the remainder of his life to the furtherance of the construction of the Suez canal. De Lesseps gave him an appointment at Ismaïlia, and employment was found in one of the workshops there for his daughters.

One day De Lesseps' attention was attracted by these two girls, with whom he entered into conversation. He came again next day and gave to each of them a flower, saying that they should frame a wish the last thing at night and that if in the morning they found that the flowers had opened the wish would be granted.

On the following morning he went to their house and found one of the girls smiling, the other in tears. He asked the cause of the latter's sadness.

"My flower has not opened," she replied.

"Tell me your wish, so that if possible it may be granted," responded M. de Lesseps.

"Ah, to you least of all men I can tell it," was her answer. The great engineer married her.

Chinese Dramatic Crudities.

Here is a sample of one of the naïve bits of Chinese stagecraft. Hom Ling, leading tragedian, playing the part of the younger son, renders a solo which means that the widow and orphans are going to the temple to celebrate funeral rites. The property man sets on the stage a little box for an altar and throws over the widow's head a white veil, symbol of mourning. Then Hom Ling, as the younger son, waves his hands and kicks his foot like a man punting a football. This signifies that the rest of the family is out of his sphere of action. The scene has officially changed from a house to a temple. So, while the rest of the family kneels before the altar, Hom Ling strolls over and chats with one of the musicians who happens to be resting. —Everybody's Magazine.

What Forty Poles Make.

A good story is told about a certain professor whose business it was to lecture to a number of students on surveying. During one of the lectures the professor said that in his opinion the pole was of little or no value. To the astonishment of those present a Polish gentleman arose and after accusing the professor of insulting his countrymen demanded an apology.

The professor thereupon explained that the pole to which he referred was merely a term of measurement. The Polish gentleman, seeing his mistake, asked the professor to forgive his apparent rudeness. To this the professor smartly replied:

"You could not be rude, sir, even if you tried, for it takes forty poles to make one rod!"—London Mail.

The Amazon River.

Although not the largest or longest river, the Amazon is the most wonderful river in the world, with a mouth 150 miles in width and with a force of water that repels or at least over-comes the ocean to a distance of more than fifty leagues. Yet in spite of the weight of the river the tide makes its influence felt for 500 miles from the coast. The easterly trade winds blow almost invariably upward, so as to be ready to help the vessel against the adverse currents.

THE THEFT OF THE EBONY BOX.

A Detective Story Involving Costly Gems and a Cipher.

By HOWARD FIELDING.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

In the possession of the Olmstead family there was a jewel casket more quaint and curious than any other that I have ever seen, though I have encountered some oddities in that line in the course of nearly thirty years of detective work. It was made of ebony ornamented with silver and measured 9 by 7 inches by 4 in height. There were many peculiarities of the silver inlay, and the design was thought to be highly artistic, but the chief point to be noted here is that the thing ap-

He caught his right wrist. He appeared to be solid, even upon the closest inspection.

The hinges of the lid were ingeniously concealed. The line between the two parts was invisible, and the hidden lock was operated by secret springs most cunningly devised. Naturally so strange an object was the centerpiece of many queer stories, which were collected by one of the Olmsteads about sixty years ago and set down by him in manuscript in a leather bound book originally intended to be a ledger. At the end of the book is a very difficult cipher which contains the directions for opening the casket.

But for this cipher the secret would have passed out of the world. A few months ago, when the present head of the family, Mr. Stephen Olmstead, stumbled upon the old book of traditions, the casket itself had been forgotten.

Stephen Olmstead found the casket in a sort of vault in the wall of the country house which his father built in Marchmont twenty years ago, and, having solved the cipher after a protracted struggle which nearly wrecked his intellect as he informed me, he opened the ebony box and was disappointed because there was nothing in it. He had no reason to expect any discovery of treasure, but he is not the sort of man to be indifferent to the possibility.

He was engaged to Mrs. Clara Holton, a rich and charming widow, with a country house near the Olmstead place. Mrs. Holton's lack of enthusiasm for jewels is conspicuous. She has never been known to wear an expensive ornament. Nevertheless Olmstead had no sooner found the casket than he was possessed with the idea of buying something rare and precious to put into it, ostensibly as a wedding gift.

Accordingly he appeared at his Marchmont home one evening with a dazzling diamond piece of historical as well as intrinsic value, a stomachacher that had once been worn by a titled lady of the old world. Miss Sylvia Olmstead, sister of Stephen, ridiculed this purchase when the gem was displayed to her and told Stephen that Clara Holton would divorce him rather than wear it.

"She'll like the casket," said Sylvia. "It's quite in her line. How do you open it?"

The diamonds were already within and the lid closed.

"Couldn't tell you," said Stephen. He put the casket away in the vault and locked the door. Immediately after this they heard some one on the veranda, just outside the windows of the library where the conversation which I have tried to reproduce from their recollection of it occurred. Both supposed that the person on the veranda was George McKellar, a neighbor, and that he was coming to call on Sylvia.

Neither Olmstead nor his sister spoke of hearing the footsteps, for McKellar was a delicate subject with them. Olmstead opposed him as a suitor for Sylvia's hand on the ground that he was not financially sound. McKellar had inherited from his father a business in a rather bad tangle, and he was having a hard struggle with it.

They waited for McKellar to be announced, and one of them was disappointed, while the other was agreeably surprised. Half an hour later McKellar called Sylvia by telephone and told her that he was occupied with business affairs.

It may have been about 1 o'clock when Olmstead, who was wakeful, heard sounds in the lower regions of the house. He was one of those nervous Yankees who fear everything except danger. A hundred petty anxieties assailed him, including the dread of taking cold, as he grumblingly made his way downstairs.

In the lower hall he listened. Beyond doubt there was some one in the library. Olmstead opened the door and entered. The room was dark save for a feeble, fluttering light which suddenly settled upon Olmstead with a brilliancy that surprised him.

"Throw up your hands!" said a voice.

"Oh, nonsense!" said Olmstead, and he felt about on the wall for the button that controlled the lights. The burglar's lantern revealed it to him, and he instantly made the room bright.

Seeing that Olmstead had no weapon the burglar did not retreat, but took some steps forward, holding his revolver ready in one hand while with the other he clasped the ebony jewel box as a football player holds the ball.

When they were quite close Olmstead sprang upon the man so suddenly and with such skill that he caught his right wrist and held the arm straight up in the air. The burglar let fall his weapon, which made a loud noise on the floor. Olmstead buried him backward and stooped for the revolver, whereupon the burglar drew another from the side pocket of his coat and fired with a considerable coolness of aim from a distance of about ten feet. The bullet struck Olmstead on the upper edge of the left eyebrow and glanced off. He was stunned, but only for a few seconds. When the servants came running at the noise of the shot their master was already on his legs again and feebly attempting a pursuit of the marauder.

The case was immediately reported to the local authorities. The suburb of Marchmont has a chief of police and twelve patrolmen.

The chief and ten of his men turned themselves loose on the trail of the Olmstead burglar, with no result whatever. The eleventh man remained in charge of the station house. The twelfth man patrolled old Marchmont village and caught a thief in the bakeshop of Mrs. Sophia Neely, where there was the sum of $1 in the till. He had effected his entrance through the adjoining barber shop of Gustav Swartz, where there was no money.

Three days later my services were requested by Mr. Olmstead, who was walking about with some plaster over his eye and not much the worse for his adventure.

After hearing his story I was able to give him hope of the rascal's capture, for the description furnished to me was excellent. Its most salient feature was a reddish, brushlike mustache. The burglar's hair was dark brown, but his mustache was undeniably red and not false in Olmstead's opinion.

Singularly enough, this description perfectly fitted the only suspicious character then known to exist within the limits of Marchmont, except the petty thief above referred to, who was smooth shaven. The suspicious character was Gustav Swartz, the barber.

Swartz had borne an excellent reputation until about a month ago, when some silver, stolen from a Marchmont residence, had been found in his shop. The barber said that the parcel containing the silver had been left with him by a customer who was to call for it and that he himself did not know what the contents were, but the story had obtained no credence.

Upon hearing Olmstead's description the local police immediately exhibited

"Swartz looks very much like my burglar," said Olmstead, "except that he has a good eye. The other fellow had a bad one. I don't believe Swartz is the man."

The case stood thus when I took hold. That evening, while I was talking with Miss Olmstead and her brother and Mr. McKellar in the library, there came a loud, sudden rap at the window. Olmstead, who was naturally nervous, nearly jumped out of his skin, but he was the first man to reach the window. He raised the curtain and the sash, and by the light that streamed out from the room he saw the ebony box lying on the veranda. The person who brought it had escaped.

Olmstead was overjoyed. As the box showed no mark of violence the diamond stomachacher must be in it, and with the anticipation of seeing this treasure again Olmstead's hands shook so that he was fifteen minutes opening the casket. He did not let us see how he did it. The casket was empty.

I will not enlarge upon the mysteries involved in this performance. There was no reason why anybody should have returned the jewel box except upon the belief that the diamonds were in it. I was doubly convinced of this fact after I had persuaded Olmstead to show me the trick of opening the casket.

Somehow my suspicions rested upon Swartz, and I made a searching investigation of the man. I discovered that he had a brother who was a professional thief, no doubt the man who had left the silver with him. This brother was unknown in Marchmont except to Swartz himself, and I could not trace him up until a sudden inspiration came to me.

The petty thief captured in Mrs. Neely's bakeshop had entered Swartz's shop first. The police believed that he had done so to steal and had then passed on to Mrs. Neely's. I had a different theory. I believed that the man had broken into the barber's shop to shave and, being alarmed, had fled through to the other building, not to steal, but to escape.

With this idea in mind I took Olmstead to see the thief. Olmstead could not be sure. He said, however, that if he had to choose he would identify this man by his eyes rather than Swartz by his mustache.

"They look very much alike," he said, and I had begun to think so, too, though at first I had not seen the resemblance. I made up my mind that this was Swartz's brother, although both Swartz and the prisoner denied it.

At this stage of the investigation I was switched to a wholly new theory by a discovery which was partly accidental. I learned that George McKellar had encountered some sort of good fortune and had tided himself over his difficulty. Where had he got the money?

I asked myself this question and set to work to find an answer. It appeared that he must have raised about $20,000, which could have been done by selling the stolen diamonds. But the money seemed to have come from a loan by McKellar's bank, although he had already owed the bank an uneasy sum.

It was in the midst of the late money stringency, and I could not believe that the bank had obliged him to that extent. Well, I had a friend inside that bank, as I have in some others, and I learned the facts. A lady unknown to my friend and without McKellar's knowledge had deposited $25,000 in cash to secure this loan.

This must have been done by some woman from whom McKellar would not accept a loan, and it did not take me long to work down to Sylvia Olmstead. But here I came upon a queer thing. Miss Olmstead was worth about $150,000 in her own right, but it was chiefly in real estate and very hard to realize money upon in a time of panic—in fact, nearly impossible.

I learned that she had raised $30,000 or thereabouts by a great sacrifice, but she had not succeeded until one week after the $25,000 had been put into McKellar's bank.

There was no way by which she could have got the money unless she had stolen the jewels from her brother. But how had she opened the casket? Did she know the secret? In order to test her I arranged a little comedy. I told one of my assistants how the box could be opened in order that he might be able to work with it cleverly in Sylvia's presence while I watched the girl's face. Then we went to the Olmsteads and held a little session with the brother and sister and McKellar.

I explained that it was absolutely necessary for me to discover whether a person could guess the trick of opening the box. My theories had advanced, I said, to the point where I must have evidence as to the real difficulty of the puzzle. Undoubtedly the thief had been lurking outside the window on the night of the robbery and had seen the jewels put away. He had stolen them in the casket. Could he have got them out of it in a half hour's work?

"Certainly not," said Olmstead. "My friend here," said I, "thinks he can do the trick, and I'd like you to try. Mr. McKellar, and you also, Miss Olmstead."

"I'll wager," said she, "that I can open the box inside of fifteen minutes."

"Nonsense!" said her brother, but Sylvia took the casket, while I held the watch, and she won, not in fifteen minutes, but in as many seconds.

THE DIAMONDS HAD COME BACK.

"There!" she cried and gave the box to her brother.

He uttered a yell like a wild Indian. The diamonds had come back to the ebony casket.

It required no very great penetration to see through this case. Sylvia had learned the secret of the box from the cipher in the old blank book. Desperately anxious about McKellar's affairs, she had striven to raise money to help him secretly, since he would not have accepted open aid from her. But she saw that she would never get the money in time to save him.

The jewels had inspired her with a wild idea. She had taken them as soon as her brother was safely upstairs—borrowed them, let me say, for she put them in pledge and raised the money to redeem them at the earliest moment.

Barber Swartz's brother stole an empty box and was nearly a murderer for the sake of it. After shaving in his brother's shop he was suddenly alarmed, and he fled, leaving the box behind him. His brother found it next morning, and as he was a thoroughly honest fellow he returned it.

Of course with the discovery of the jewels my work ceased.

VOL. XXIX. NO. 3.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1909

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

"A woman's greatest annoyance is her hand," remarked a Winchester gentleman to The Spectator Monday afternoon as we stood in the square waiting for a Lowell car. "She doesn't feel at all comfortable in the street unless she has something to hold in her hand, and she cannot carry her hand in her pocket. No wonder she is so ready to give her hand to a man who already has two of his own, thus exemplifying the text, 'To him that hath shall be given.' And then consider how much it costs the average Winchester woman for gloves!" Verily, The Spectator would emphasize, the Venus of Milo was a fortunate individual when she lost her arms, and consequently her hands.

Nothing is wholly bad in the weediest garden in Winchester since flowers are found. The Winchesterite who is always talking about himself has neither time nor inclination to talk about his neighbors and acquaintances.

It has been pointed out to The Spectator that those people who keep vicious dogs on their premises should be compelled to call at the post office for their mail. One Winchester gentleman with whom The Spectator discussed the subject proposed that the owner of a vicious dog be compelled to stick up the sign "Cave canem," but the postmen of Winchester being somewhat rusty in their classics, it was finally decided that the mail carriers would be better protected by relieving them from delivering mail to dog fanciers than by depending upon their readiness in making free translations of Latin warnings. The Spectator submits the suggestion for what it is worth.

The Spectator declares without the least hesitancy that Winchester can justly claim to be one of the finest looking towns in the Commonwealth. The Spectator has never heard a citizen declare to the contrary and everyone agrees that Winchester is positively beautiful—not merely in spots but generally. A former prominent Chellean who recently took up his residence here declared to The Spectator that he regretted that he did not locate here years ago. One thing that impresses the visitor to our town is the clean condition of the public thoroughfares. A few days ago The Spectator was standing near the postoffice when a young lady and her father emerged therefrom. The young lady was engaged in perusing an epistle and presently she tore the envelope in two and threw it down. Her father was greatly vexed at her conduct and compelled her to pick up the scraps. That parent had the right idea. It is the citizen's of his stamp who is making Winchester the beautiful town it is.

A Winchester gentleman who takes a great deal of interest in the Woman Suffrage question, assumes that grave difficulties beset the extension of the franchise to women. That assertion recalls to the mind of The Spectator the fact that precisely the same assumption did duty as an argument against the extension of the franchise to the majority of those who possess it now. As a further reason for excluding our women from the political sphere, the gentleman in question gives The Spectator to understand that all the principle injustices under which women suffered have already been righted. But when? Only "within the past half century," that is a damaging admission. Were The Spectator to recall here the gross iniquity under which women suffered much nearer the present time than half a century ago, those Winchester gentlemen and others opposed to the extension of the suffrage to women, would have but a very poor case.

The Fourth of July of 1909 is now nearly a month old but The Spectator considers it not too late to point out to the good people of Winchester that there remain two tasks for the people of this town as for the people of all other towns in the Commonwealth. One is for the elders to overcome their liking for the senseless and dangerous toys that are grouped as "fireworks," so far, at least, as their own use of the articles goes. The other is to direct to other and more sensible and tasteful ways the energies of youth who have been taught to believe that in flash and bang lay the expression of growing patriotism. A Winchesterite of The Spectator's acquaintance has within the present week urged the use of flowers as a means of patriotic celebration. There is something in the suggestion worth thinking over, provided a look of spontaneity can be given to the carrying out of the idea. Unhappily The Spectator has to confess, we are not a people of quick sentiment, and are too ready to introduce what we call business ideas into every public occasion. The "floral tribute" appears on Memorial Day as regularly as on the first night of an actress whose manager is determined to make the unsuspicious believe that she is a universal favorite. Flowers at a funeral service are often offensive because of the very business like air which they wear. One habit is, too often, to measure beauty by the cost, and lookers on at a floral procession would. The Spectator fears, be more touched by a monster column or other design made from calla lilies, than by a grassy mound of fresh green, gilded by buttercups and lightened by daisies. It is not desirable that men shall walk the streets of Winchester with tulips or lilies in their hands, but it is desirable to have flowers impress by their own beauty, and not to attempt a Fourth of July floral procession on any other base. But the fireworks are still with us, and no matter what substitute may be devised, to be rid of them is the first necessity. The use of fireworks in any form by private citizens should be forever prohibited.

"The preachers of today, if you have noticed it," says a friend of The Spectator, "occasionally neglect to seek the text for their Sunday sermon in the Bible. They are falling into the habit of taking an episode in modern life as the starting point of their sermons and then apply to them certain Biblical texts, or leaving their congregations to do this for themselves. And there is assuredly much in contemporary ways and means from which lessons may be drawn."

LECTRIC TRAP FOR MOTHS.

The authorities in Saxony are waging a successful war against the caterpillar plague by means of a trap which consists of two large electric search lights or reflectors and a number of powerful suction fans.

At night two great streams of light are thrown from the reflectors against the wooded sides of a mountain half a mile distant. The moths, from whose eggs caterpillars develop, follow along the brilliant beams of light until the powerful currents of air swirl them down into a receptacle. On the first night no less than three tons of moths were caught.

It seems quite probable that swamps in this country could be cleared of winged pests in the same manner.

"SEA TRIPS TO MARITIME PROVINCES."

A delightfully cool ocean voyage of 25 hours between Boston and Halifax is what the Plant Line is now offering Wednesdays and Saturdays, and many are taking advantage of this splendid opportunity to escape the heat through an inexpensive three day sea trip.

Tourists are also going in large numbers on the Tuesday steamer to Charlottetown, and as Prince Edward Island has long been noted as an ideal vacation land beneficial results are sure to follow, and there turn trip made all too soon, but with pleasant reminiscences.

SEVERAL HAD TO PAY A $5 FINE.

A Winchester young man who gave a party in his mother's house and invited his guests from the highways and byways furnished the district court some business Monday morning. Chief McIntosh presenting a half dozen of the guests for sentence on the charge of disturbance of the peace.

It appeared that a portion of the guests were in the cellar and while locked there started a fight, which was continued outside after a false alarm of police had sent them out through the window. Each paid a fine of $5. (Woburn Times.)

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

It was a battle royal between the Murray Bros. and W. P. Haley & Son's team on Manchester Field Wednesday afternoon, although the first inning looked like an easy win for Murray, four runs being knocked out in this inning, with Murray and Foley both hitting it out for three baggers. The final score was Haley's 5, Murray's 4.

On Wednesday noon Coleman Connelly of Walnut street, Woburn, employed by the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. received a broken leg as a result of the horse which was attached to the company's wagon running away. The animal was eating its dinner on Water street when it took fright and started to run. Connelly caught it and tried to stop it but was dragged along until opposite the freight yard on Swanton street when he let go exhausted and was run over by the wagon, which broke his leg. A peculiar incident in connection with the accident was that a doctor had to be called from Woburn, every physician in Winchester being out at the time.

Mrs. John C. Sullivan and son George, of Vine street are spending their vacation at Nahant.

FELL FROM STAGING.

John McMaisters, a carpenter living at Woburn met with an accident while at work on a house on Ogden avenue, Winchester, about 9 o'clock Saturday morning, when he fell from a staging a distance of 40 feet to the ground. Fortunately he landed in the soft earth and beyond a bad shaking up and some bruises, was not thought to have been seriously injured. He was taken into the house and Dr. Cummings was summoned. Finding no bones broken he went to his home.

Mr. McMaisters was employed by Contractor George C. Ogden of Winchester.

MRS. HARRIET RICHARDSON WHITE.

Mrs. Harriet Richardson White died July 16 at her home on Forest street. She was the widow of George Lamson White who died nearly ten years ago, and a daughter of the late Samuel Richardson of Winchester Highlands, a descendant of one of the first settlers of our town.

Mrs. White left four children, Viola M., Emma H., Kate A., the Rev. C. L. White, of the Am. Bapt. Home Mission Society of New York City, and five grandchildren. She was a sister of Moses P. Richardson of Winchester and Jesse Richardson of Painesville, Ohio. Mrs. White was a member of the First Baptist Church for many years, coming to Winchester from Woonsocket, R. I. The family home has been at 120 Forest street since 1880.

She was an invalid for more than ten years and during all these years of suffering, her steadfast, uncomplaining and constant faith in her Lord has been an inspiration to all who knew her, and is a precious legacy to her children, by whom she was tenderly cared for during all these years. The funeral services were on Sunday afternoon and were conducted by her pastor, the Rev. Henry E. Hodge, who spoke very feelingly of the beautiful life of Mrs. White. "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "In the Sweet By and By" were very tenderly rendered by a quartette from the First Baptist Church—Miss MacDonald, Miss Downer, Mr. MacLean and Mr. H. E. Richardson. The bearers were the son, brother, and three nephews of Mrs. White.

She was laid to rest beside her husband in the Samuel Richardson lot at beautiful Wildwood. Prayer was offered by Rev. W. S. Richardson of the University of Minnesota and the prayer of committal by her only son—Rev. C. L. White.

"No tender yet sad farewell
From her quivering lips was heard,
So softly she crossed that quiet stream
That it was not by a ripple stirred."

MRS. EDWARD A. BRACKETT.

Mrs. Elizabeth Folger Brackett, widow of the late Edward A. Brackett died at Dr. King's sanatorium, Arlington Heights, on Sunday of tuberculosis. Mrs. Brackett had been seriously ill since last February, at which time she was first confined to the house. Her condition grew gradually worse, and a little over a week ago she was taken to Arlington in hopes that the change might prolong her life for a period. She was in her 70th year.

Mrs. Brackett was born near Cincinnati, Ohio, her parents being James and Harriet Bellville. She came to this town about thirty years ago and had made her home here ever since. She was one of the early members of the Unitarian Church and of the Fortnightly, and was also a member of the Ladies' Friendly Society. Her husband died a little over a year ago. She leaves but one child, Mrs. Josef Sanberg of Wolcott terrace.

Funeral services were held from the Unitarian Church on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. William I. Lawrence the pastor. The interment was in Wildwood.

AUTOS IN THE PARKWAYS.

New Rules Governing their Use to go into Effect Aug. 1.

Beginning August 1, a new set of rules governing the use and operation of motor vehicles on roads and parkways under the care and control of the Metropolitan Park Commission will go into effect.

These regulations increase the number of roads open to motor vehicles by the addition of Lynn Fells parkway in Melrose, the road on Quincy Shore reservation, and the border road in Middlesex Fells reservation from Lynn Fells parkway in Melrose to Wyoming avenue in Stoneham.

The only substantial change made in the rules is in regard to the rate of speed allowed. The previous rules allowed a rate of speed not exceeding 15 miles an hour on Middlesex Fells parkway, Revere Beach parkway, Neponset River parkway, Charles River road in Watertown, Lynnway, Furace Brook parkway between Adams and Willard streets, the driveway of Lynn Shore reservation and that portion of the driveway of Revere Beach reservation from Lynnway to Revere street. The rate of speed allowed on all other roads to which automobiles were admitted was not exceeding 10 miles an hour under the old rules.

The new rules establish the uniform rate of not exceeding 20 miles an hour over all roads in the Metropolitan Park system to which automobiles are admitted. This rate of speed, however, is an absolute limitation and will be strictly enforced. In establishing this rate the commission has recognized the desirability from the standpoint of the automobilist of having the speed limit on park roads and ways conform as closely as circumstances will allow to the general automobile law.

In taking this action, however, the commission desires it to be clearly understood that it does not commit itself to the opinion that a rate of 20 miles an hour is a safe rate, even under the most favorable circumstances. Further experience seems to them necessary to demonstrate this fact conclusively. On the contrary, the commission is firmly of the opinion that the rate of 20 miles an hour is too fast a rate to travel around curves, across intersecting streets and particularly upon certain portions of Revere Beach and other reservations and parkways, where at certain seasons of the year, travel on foot and in vehicles is very congested.

The commission, however, did not establish lesser rates of speed at such places of particular danger, mainly for two reasons. First, in its opinion, the danger at such places is so obvious that none but a reckless person indifferent to the safety of the public would drive his machine there at other than the very lowest rate of speed. As to such reckless persons the commission has been advised that they may be punished for reckless driving. In the second place, the commission is of the opinion that it is not practically feasible to enforce the provisions of the general law relative to the rates of speed within and without thickly settled portions of a city or town, and around curves and across intersecting streets or to enforce a fixed limit of speed at such places without maintaining "traps," a course which would entail considerable additional expense in policing.

The commission believes that without the maintenance of "traps" the only practical proceeding at present against persons driving motor vehicles at too great a rate of speed at such points is a prosecution for reckless driving. The commission has, therefore, instructed its police officers to proceed against any person who drives his motor vehicle in a manner to endanger the public, whatever the rate of speed may be.

Another change of interest to automobilists is in the hours during which automobiles are allowed on that portion of Revere Beach reservation lying between Revere street and Revere Beach parkway. Under the former rules automobiles were excluded from this section during the hours from 2 p. m. to 11 p. m., inclusive, on June 16, and also during said hours on Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays, occurring during the period from June 16 to September 14, inclusive. Under the new rule automobiles are excluded between the hours of 3 p. m. and 10 p. m., on the days mentioned.

MRS. HAROLD S. BERRY.

Mrs. Florence Beatrice, wife of Harold S. Berry, died at the home of her brother, Mr. Walter F. Colwell on Church street, on Monday of rheumatism of the heart. She was in her 20th year, and leaves her husband and a little son.

Funeral services were held from the First Baptist Church on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Henry E. Hodge. The burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

A CLOUD BURST.

One of the severest rain storms in recent years broke over Winchester last Friday afternoon. It was a veritable cloud burst that swept all obstructions before it, and doing considerable damage to side hill streets. The electric service on the Winchester-Arlington line was tied up for some time because of the tracks at places being covered with many inches of mud and sand. The telephone service in the Highland avenue district was put out of commission until the day following. The streets were almost overflowing with water and at the station the horses of the public carriages stood in water that reached above their bellows.

Contractor Fitzgerald, who is building the surface drainage system on Washington street experienced the anxious time of his life. The deep trench being open near the foot of Webster street, the water rushed down the hill like a small river, and despite all that his men could do to dam the water from reaching the trench it was quickly filled to the brim. He had just completed building a section with cement but fortunately this was not injured. Many of his men worked nearly all night pumping out the water. At Nelson street Supt. Dotten of the water department was undercutting the water main at that point so that the surface drainage pipe could pass over it. While this was being done the water was shut off from the houses in the vicinity, and while in the midst of the work the rain came and the large hole was filled to the brim. When the rain had ceased, the water was pumped out but this was not until after dark, so that it was not until late in the evening that connection was made and the neighborhood again supplied with water.

The damage to the streets must have been quite heavy.

JAMES P. WALSH.

James P. Walsh, 31 years of age died at his home, No. 762 Main street, on Wednesday after an illness of a month. He was the son of Isabel Thorne and the late Patrick Walsh.

He leaves a mother, five sisters, Mrs. Emil Beauchamp of Woburn, Misses Margaret and Belle Walsh and Emily and Catherine Thorne and one brother, Albert Thorne, all of Winchester.

Funeral services were held this morning from his late home. High mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. The burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

Oddity of Dreams.

"Nobody ever feels pain in a dream," said a psychologist. "Rage, terror, joy, grief—these emotions stab us as poignantly in dream as in reality. But physical pain, no. I have interrogated 2,000 persons, and none of them ever suffered dream pains. Yet they have dreamed of dreadful motor accidents, tortures, death. One young girl, indeed, dreamed time and again of being eaten alive by cannibals, yet even in that horrible nightmare she felt no pain."

INCOME TAX.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On the 12th, Cong. McCall was one of 14 to vote against the joint resolution to submit the income tax amendment of the constitution, to the states for ratification. It was advised by the President, passed the Senate unanimously, and 317 in the House voted for it.

WHITEFIELD TUCK.

Mr. McCall spoke against it, and in closing he said, "Wm. J. Bryan is the only man in the United States who has carefully considered it." Now that it has passed by the more than the required two-thirds vote, with only 14 dissenters in the House and none in the Senate, the 46 States are now to vote on it—requiring the vote of three-fourths of the States to pass it.

Mr. McCall is not supporting his party, the President nor the Democratic party. Every voter in the District should know of his acts on this most important question at this critical time and I ask you to give these facts to your readers.

WHITEFIELD TUCK.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

For a number of years the event of the summer season has been the engagement of the Fadedette Women's Orchestra. And this summer they return after an absence of two years. Boston has always taken particular pride in this splendid organization, without question the greatest woman's orchestra in the world, and one that is as popular in other cities as it is here at home, even more so.

This season they will give a series of popular concerts both afternoon and evening before the regular vaudeville performance. The Fadedettes will be a distinct feature on a vaudeville bill of unusual character. It will include the Dankmar Schiller Troupe, one of the greatest companies of acrobats that ever came to this country; Marion Carson; Fox and the Millership Sisters, Emerin Campbell and Aubrey Bates. Others are Morrow & Schellberg in a singing and dancing sketch, Veronica & Hurl-Falls in an acrobatic novelty and Ed. Morton whose voice is familiar to everybody through the phonograph.

AI STEVENSON & JOHNSTON'S

Sketch of a Reporter's Visit to Woburn's Busy Machine Shop.

In Woburn at 275 Main street is the bustling machine shop of Stevenson and Johnston. Not only machinists, these men who have had more than a score of years' experience, are also expert millwrights and steamfitters. Engine repairing is a specialty.

When a Winchester STAR representative called one day recently both members of the firm were engaged in repair work upon tannery machinery. At this work, the firm has a splendid reputation. But the biggest piece of overhauling required does not take up all the firm's time. The place is so well equipped with lathes, drill-presses, planers, grinders, circular saws, hand-saws,—all kinds of wood-working machinery, that about any kind of contrivance of wood or steel can be turned out and the shop has yet to see the repair job that they couldn't handle satisfactorily.

In steam-fitting Stevenson & Johnston are well to the fore. In the old Freeman shop, located for many years opposite their shop on the present site of the St. Charles Parochial School, they cut pipe for hundreds of steam-fitting jobs and also installed these systems.

One cannot visit Stevenson & Johnston's without being impressed with the fact that the firm is there with the skill, and the tools and that no job in steamfitting, machinist, or millwright line is too big or too difficult or too little to handle.

Zeke Was Right.

A farmer employed a boy to guard his strawberry patch from birds. The berries—fancy fruit as big as peaches—kept disappearing, and the man suspected the boy of eating them. So one morning he came down to the patch, looked it over and then said: "I know you don't touch these berries, my lad, but Zeke says you do. Today I'll test you—just to convince Zeke."

He took out a little lump of chalk and pretended to chalk the boy's lips, but really it was only his finger that he rubbed over them. "Now," he said, "when I come down here this afternoon we'll see who's right about you, Zeke or I."

And with pretended carelessness he tossed the chalk on to the ground. On his return, some hours later, it was plain who was right. The boy's lips were chalked with a white, stiff layer half an inch thick.—Los Angeles Times.

Weak? Tired? Run-down?

Etiquette at Covent Garden.

Etiquette at Covent Garden is at most as strict as that which prevails in the servants' hall of a great mansion, says London M. A. P. No prima donna must be addressed by an inferior, and the presentation of bouquets is a delicate matter, regulated with due regard for the feelings of the ladies. The claque still prevails; but, as only the less eminent singers employ these "aids to success," nobody is ever deceived. The management knows nothing of these men, who are hired by the singers to go into the gallery and applaud their employers vociferously. The custom is very common on the continent, where it also takes the more objectionable form of hiring men to hiss rivals off the stage. Happily that sort of thing would not be tolerated in England, and so the claque is confined to the minor members of the company, who bring over with them an insatiable desire for applause and are so determined to get it that they leave nothing to chance. The claqueurs receive a fee of 2 shillings, in addition to the payment for their seats.

Couldn't Pass Him.

Dr. Caleb Munn back in 1803 or 1804 was making a professional call one night at a road house, his horse and buggy standing outside, when a young fellow staggered out and mounted the horse and started off at a wild gallop, not noticing the wagon attached to the horse. After a time the young man realized that a wagon was following close in his rear, so he held in the steed and shouted:

"Go on past if you want to—if you're in such a hurry!"

Of course the rattling ceased, and nobody responded, and nothing was visible in the darkness, so he lashed the horse into a gallop, saying, "They'll never overtake us." The wagon clattered on behind up hill and down dale. When Dr. Munn overhauled him, having followed on a fleet horse, the young fellow said:

"I was bound that man in the wagon should not pass, because he wouldn't when I offered to let him. I don't hear him now, and I guess he drove off the bridge."—Newark News.

Meal Monday.

The students in the Scotch universities annually enjoy their "Meal Monday," but few of the undergraduates remember how the holiday was instituted. In faroff days, when learning was really nourished on "a little oatmeal," the students before leaving home for the universities provided themselves with a quantity of meal sufficient to make "halesome parritch" half through the session. By the end of January their "meal kists" had run low, and "a day off" was given in which the student was expected to journey halfway home, meeting at this point his parent or brother, who brought with him a second load of the simple diet. The holiday was fixed on a Monday so as to allow the undergraduate the benefit of the preceding Saturday. In times past the journeys would often extend to fifty or sixty miles. The modern student goes home for "Meal Monday," but he travels with a week end ticket and has no thought of the painful journeys of his ancestors.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Biggest Cracker.

The "kasabi" torta (we get our word "tart" from torta) of Hispanic-America is the biggest regularly made cracker on earth. It is made from the kasabi root and lightly fired in cakes about the size of a small parasol.

A cracker for a hat—such indeed is sometimes the use made by the Latin peons of the kasabi torta when needing a temporary sunshade (sombrero). The torta is always made bowl shaped so it can be balanced on the head without any particular effort—and provided no wind interferences. Rain, however, quickly soaks and collapses this singular edible headgear.—Baker's Weekly.

In Regular Order.

A miner took his boots for repairs, but was not in a hurry to pay for them. After a few weeks had elapsed the shoemaker called and asked for the money.

The miner's wife answered the door, and on being told by the shoemaker that he had called for the money for the boots she shouted into the house and told her good man what was required.

"What?" exclaimed the miner. "He wants paying for repairing the boots? Tell him it's not his turn. Why, the man that made them hasn't got paid yet!"—London Scraps.

Can you believe your senses?

When two of them, taste and smell, having been impaired if not utterly destroyed, by nasal catarrh, are fully restored by Ely's Cream Balm, can you doubt that this remedy deserves all that has been said of it by the thousands who have used it? It is applied directly to the affected air-passages and begins its healing work at once. Why not get it today? All druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

Ancient Concrete.

That the Romans were very familiar with concrete and gave consideration to its use examination of the concrete work in the forum clearly shows. Their concrete contained generally only two kinds of stone, travertine and sciele, in equal parts. Sciele is a hard, closely knit rock, very similar to our bluestone or trap rock in color as well as quality. Travertine is a volcanic rock not so hard as sciele, considerably lighter in color, and was desirable on account of its porosity, which insured a good bond with the cement. In all the Roman work the combination of the travertine and the sciele is clearly distinguishable.—Cement Age.

Ably Defined.

A certain archbishop when asked whether it was a grievous sin for a woman to misstate her age replied:

"A lie may be defined as a statement made by one rational being to another rational being with the intent to deceive. Now, as no rational being would think of asking a woman her age with the expectation of being answered truthfully, one of the elements of the lie is lacking, and the woman's statement cannot, strictly speaking, be defined as such."—Judge.

Johnnie's Excuse.

"Why don't you say 'Thank you,' Johnnie, when you are handed anything?" said Mrs. Brown at the table. "Your sister always says it." "Yes," replied little Johnnie, "she's a woman and always wants to have the last word."—Once a Week.

A PERILOUS PERCH.

Two Nights on a Ledge of a Lofty Peak in the Tyrol.

In the northeastern corner of the Tyrol is the best skie ground in Europe, writes W. A. Baillie-Graham in "Tyrol." The region has many lofty peaks, which make mountain climbing of interest. The author gives one of his adventures on a peak near the village of Kitzbühel.

On one of these peaks occurred to me many years ago a little adventure which gave me an opportunity of admiring the grand view rather longer than was pleasant.

I was out stalking chamois, and, having some unoccupied hours in the middle of the day, when stalking is practically useless, as the beasts are resting, I thought I would ascend one of those pinacles upon which at that time few human beings, I suppose, had ever set foot.

The very first bit was a smooth broad rock not more than twelve feet high, but absolutely unclimbable if unaided by rope or another man upon whose shoulders one could get and so obtain a hand grip of the top and thus draw oneself up. As I was alone I had recourse to a short length of rope I had in my rucksack. Making a slip noose, I threw it upward till it arched some projection. Then I drew myself up.

While looking about me an unfortunate movement of my legs, which were dangling over the brink as I sat, caused the rope to slip and fall down to the small ledge on which I had stood when flinging it upward. This ledge or band of rock was uncomfortably narrow, not wider than thirty inches, and the abyss below was a perpendicular wall four or five church steeples in depth.

At first it did not seem such a serious fix to be in. By letting myself drop to the ledge, my extended arms gripping the top, the distance between the soles of my feet and the ledge was not more than four feet or so—nothing to speak of if that yawning gulf had not been there and I had had boots on my feet. But, having taken these off and left them below, together with my coat and rifle, I should have to drop on to sharp rocks barefooted and hence would be very apt to lose my balance.

The more I considered the position the more I fumed that drop, and, to make a long story short, I stayed on that pinnacle two nights, until the morning of the third day, before hunger drove me to risk the drop, which I did in safety.

How I got down the remainder of that descent, "shinning" down chimneys and creeping along narrow edges, was a mystery to me afterward, for I was faint with hunger and my knees trembled and shook under me. When I reached the first habitation where I happened to be known the peasant woman at the door hardly recognized me.

A BUSINESS EXTENDER.

The Kind of Man For Whom There is a Big Demand.

"I am looking for a clerk, a man with a personality, a man who can do things and increase my business. Money is no item. I will not take salary into consideration. I will pay $100, $125 or whatever he is worth. I want the man." That is what a successful merchant said some days ago.

Let us pay our respects to the merchant who is looking for a clerk of this kind. A good clerk deserves a good salary and usually gets it. This matter of good pay for good services is the basic principle of the relations between employer and employee. While all merchants are not willing to pay enough salary to their clerks, there are more merchants who are glad to pay all a clerk is worth than there are clerks who are glad to be worth all they are paid.

Every village, town and city is looking for the man who can "increase business." The man who will work for the interests of his employer is wanted the world over. The world of business is crying out for such men, for men whom it can trust and in whom it can place confidence that a thing will be done when the "boss" back is turned. This man is wanted in every store, factory, at every post and in every great business in the land.

If you are attempting to avoid responsibility and as much work as possible you will, unless by great mistake, escape promotion or increase in salary. There are two kinds of clerks, and only two kinds. One the entire business world is anxiously searching for, and the other the entire business world is anxiously waiting to get rid of.—Town City Commercial Bulletin.

Where Women May Not Pray.

In some parts of the world the women are not even allowed to pray. Certain Hindu congregations deny their women this privilege, and among the Ainus women can pray only in very rare cases as the deputies of their husbands. The natives of Madagascar, however, stretch a point and permit their women to intercede with the powers of evil, but prayer to their supreme being is strictly a masculine prerogative.

Expensive.

"Yes," said the young wife proudly, "father always gives something expensive when he makes presents."

"So I discovered when he gave you away," related the young husband.—Exchange.

"Well, sir, don't eat it then!" the waiter advised pleasantly.—London Scraps.

A FATAL FRIENDSHIP.

Devotion of Princess Lamballe to Marie Antoinette.

SLAIN BY A PARISIAN MOB.

The Assassination of the Princess Who Escaped and Returned to Comfort Her Friend, Was One of the Worst Acts of the Reign of Terror.

It was in the historic Carignano palace at Turin that the Princess Lamballe was born. Her father was Louis Victor of Carignan, of the royal house of Savoy.

Her childhood was spent in Turin during the period that followed the defeat of the French through the brilliant military tactics of Prince Eugene of Savoy. At eighteen she was married to Stanislaus, son of the Duke of Penthièvre of France.

The chief place of this duchy was the town of Lamballe, about fifty miles from Rennes. The Prince de Lamballe died in one year, and as soon as etiquette allowed a marriage with Louis XV. was contemplated. This did not go into effect, however, and the princess withdrew from the court.

She met Marie Antoinette when that princess first came to Paris, and they were naturally attracted and became friends. The Princess de Lamballe saw the dangers to which this young foreigner was exposed, and when Marie Antoinette became queen of France in 1774 and appointed the princess superintendent of the royal household she entered upon her duties with the sympathetic understanding of a loyal friend.

The closest ties of affectionate regard drew these two young royal personages together. Through the careless gaiety of court life the Princess de Lamballe was the judicious friend. When illness came to the queen she was faithful and devoted.

When the storm of adversity broke over the royal family and it was arranged that an escape should be effected Mme. de Lamballe got safely to England, going across from Dieppe, but the royal family were arrested at Varennes and declared traitors to France.

Mme. de Lamballe's devotion was so true she at once hastened back to Paris to be with the queen. Her friends urged and implored her to think of the danger to herself and pointed out that she could be of no real service at such a critical time. But she knew better than they did what a comfort her presence would be, and her heart was entirely occupied with the sorrows of her sovereign.

She was allowed to become a prisoner with the royal family in the temple, and for one week she was a cheerful and helpful companion, full of affectionate arts to make the hours less bitter and giving to Marie Antoinette the loving, devoted care that only a friend so loyal could give.

When those about the prison saw what an influence of joy Mme. de Lamballe brought to the royal prisoners an order was issued for her removal to the prison of La Force. From here she was taken for a mock trial and offered her life if she would take oath against the monarch. With scorn she refused to do this.

Then came one of the most terrible acts of the period of the reign of terror. She was delivered to the people, wild with the desire for blood, and was killed in the courtyard of La Force prison. They stabbed her with sabers, cut off her head, tore her heart from her body while it was yet palpitating and then dragged her body through the streets to the temple.

On the way there they stopped at a hairdresser's and made him rouge the beautiful face and friz and powder the hair. This man nearly died with fear while at this awful work. When it was done and the head set on a pike, the long, fair curls of her pretty hair fell about the neck. Those of the mob who suggested this hideous work upon the head said, "Antoinette will now recognize her friend."

The heart was also put on the end of a pike and the route to the temple resumed. The royal family were together, and Louis was reading to them, when they heard the sound of the mob and loud, high voices. Suddenly the door was opened violently, and as they all started to their feet some men pushed themselves past the guard and shouted to the king: "The people have something to show you. If you don't wish them to bring it up here you had better go to the window."

With the deadly fear in their hearts they did as directed and looked into the dead and painted face of their devoted friend and also saw her tender heart and her poor body, hacked by the sabers of these wretches.

With a cry of horror and despair Marie Antoinette fell into a state of stupor. Mme. Elizabeth forced her into a chair, and her children clung to her and cried with fear. Louis tried to control his voice as he said with pathetic dignity, "You might have spared the queen the knowledge of this frightful catastrophe."—Boston Globe.

To Make a Hit.

"You send me violets every morn," said the beautiful girl.

"I do," responded the ardent lover, "no matter what the cost."

"Quite so. Now, why not send up a bunch of asparagus tomorrow instead. It would be just as expensive, and would make a big hit with you."—Pittsburg Post.

In adversity it is easy to despise life. The true, brave man is he who can endure to be miserable.—Martial.

THE "BREAK" IN THE GAME.

Baseball Almost as Much Psychological as Athletic.

Nearly every baseball game is won and lost on one play—a play that comes at the psychological instant. Among the players who do not study psychology the crucial moment is known as "the break," a phenomenon which no one has analyzed and which the players themselves do not understand. Twenty men on the bench are watching closely and intently every move of the pitcher, every swing of his arm. The tide of battle rises, ebbs, and then suddenly at the start of some inning something happens. What it is no one outside the psychic sphere of influence ever will understand, but the silent, tight lipped, watchful, alert fellows on the bench see something or feel something, and the mysterious "break" has come.

"One ball!" The players on the bench suddenly stiffen and prepare for action.

"Two balls!" Two players jump for bats and begin swinging them; the coaches, who have yelled only because it was their duty, suddenly begin railing, screaming and pawing the dirt, and the manager, who has appeared half asleep, makes a trumpet of his hands and leads his men, bawling loud orders and wild taunts.

The spectators do not understand anything has happened. Other batters have had two balls called many times, and it looks the same to the spectator who is beyond the mysterious "break" sphere. In two more moments the players' bench is a madhouse, with twenty men shouting, screaming, ordering, moving. "Three balls!" and a madman rushes out to the "dock." "Four balls!" and the spectators join the players in the demonstration. The madness is spreading. Crack—a base hit, a bunt, a wild throw; another base hit, screams, shouts, imprecations, a roar of frantic applause, a final long fly. The manager reaches for his glove, splits into it and says quietly, "Four runs—we've got 'em." The "break" is over, and the players' bench is again the quietest part of the grounds. The surge of enthusiasm, confidence and noise subsides, and the game is won.

Baseball is almost as much psychological as athletic. Why one team can beat a stronger one regularly and lose to a weaker with the same regularity, why one batter can hit one pitcher and is helpless before another, why one pitcher is effective against a strong team and at the mercy of another that cannot bat half as hard, are psychological problems.—American Magazine.

A MISER'S END.

Meanness of M. Vandille and the Way He Hastened His Death.

M. Vandille was chief magistrate at Boulogne and by miserly habits left a fortune of $1,000,000. His usual diet was bread and milk. The bread cost very little, and after eating his loaf at home his habit was to become his own public milk inspector, whom as chief magistrate he had the right to appoint. And so, as he declared, to protect the inhabitants from being imposed upon by an inferior quality of milk he took his walk immediately after eating his loaf and demanded to taste the milk of every salesman he passed, thus saving himself from purchasing any. Misers are generally strong men—they have to be so in order to live a life of privation—but eventually Vandille, like other misers, was seized with illness, and the surgeons had to be called in. In those days they bled their patients. The surgeon asked Vandille half a livre for the operation, but the millionaire ordered him at once out of his sight and sent for the apothecary. The apothecary refused to cut the price down, so Vandille sent for a poor barber, who undertook to open a vein for three sous a time.

"Aye, but," said this worthy economist, "how often, friend, will it be necessary to bleed me?"

"Three times."

"And what quantity of blood do you intend to take each time?"

"Eight ounces."

"Well, but why can't you take the whole twenty-four ounces at once? You want to make a job of me, you scoundrel! Here, sir; there are your three sous. Take the twenty-four ounces immediately." The barber was generous to obey. M. Vandille lost the twenty-four ounces of blood and died in a few days, leaving all his vast treasures to the king, whom he made his sole heir.—Strand Magazine.

The Oldest Bridge in Paris.

The Pont Notre Dame is the oldest bridge in Paris. It was first built in 1413 in the reign of Charles VI., but it was carried away, together with the houses which lined it, by ice floods when the frost broke in 1409. A new bridge was begun at once under the direction of Jean Joconde of Verona and was ready for traffic in 1507. On that bridge stood the famous picture shop of Gersaint, which had a sign-board specially painted for it by Watteau.—Westminster Gazette.

Jolting Him.

Hashful Youth—Miss Bella, does—does your mother object to my coming here so much? Fair Charmer—Oh, I think not; I heard her telling papa the other evening that you merely came to pass away the time; you didn't mean anything serious.—London Tit-Bits.

The Division.

"What?" exclaimed Mrs. Flatfeigh. "You don't mean to tell me you pay a girl $10 a week for cooking?"

"Oh, no!" replied Mrs. Urbanville. "We only pay her $2 a week for cooking. The other $8 is for staying."—Chicago News.

Mystic Valley Sewage.

From the appearance of the waters of the pond and river after the heavy downpour of rain last Friday, the supposition is that the Mystic Valley sewer again flowed over into Black Ball pond. This sewer outlet into the pond was put in a few months ago, just for this purpose, and at the time the STAR said that the first heavy rain storm would cause the sewage to flow from the two outlets into the pond. This prediction appears to have been correct. Furthermore it will occur again.

VACATION PLAYGROUNDS

A Visit to Those of Boston and Somerville.

Under the care of three young girls the poor children of the North End are being entertained at the Hancock school yard every day except Saturday. They are admitted at 9.30 in the morning and allowed to remain until 5 in the afternoon. The writer was able to see these children not only at their play in the yard but also in an impromptu concert which they were giving in the corridor of the school during a shower which had driven them indoors. Their evident desire to entertain and please and their thorough good fellowship and behavior were charming to witness. In the yard swings and teters and slides have been provided and the boys are allowed to play ball. A tennis court also gives a popular pastime and quoits are played by the older ones. About 300 children avail themselves of the privileges of this yard and showed in every way the value of the work.

In Somerville the Old Prospect Hill School gave the opportunity of witnessing the work done among the younger children of the neighborhood. Here Mrs. Carrie Doane Ryan dispenses justice and hospitality with a most impartial hand. She has been trained in the Sargent Normal School and last year was House Mother in the George Junior Republic. Her wide experience brings her safely and happily through the most trying episodes of plugged keyholes and stolen toys and the other trifles which beset one who is trying to do her duty by the submerged tenth. Her unvarying tact and patience are equal to all emergencies. In this playground about 100 children are cared for. The swings are very popular and two sand boxes provide entertainment which is not only popular but most profitable. Here construction work of a very high order was going on, and the writer was compelled to yield admiration to the work of a small boy who had built a set of farm buildings of the sand with twigs for cows and sprays of elm for trees in the yard. One day of the week simple sewing is allowed the little girls and all the boys who care for it. Here "little mothers" come with their tiny charges in baby carriages and in this way earn a little playtime which otherwise would be denied them. In this playground as in Boston, great harmony prevailed, due largely to the charity and patience of Mrs. Ryan.

From these a short walk brought us to Lincoln Park where the older boys are receiving a training in athletics from two young college men. Here cricket for the younger boys and baseball for the older ones seems to be a perennial source of delight. There were also many appliances for athletic sports which the boys are learning to use. Here the effort is distinctly for a betterment of the physical body in order to make good in the approaching meets for which they are preparing. So tobacco in all its forms is forbidden. The residents in the neighborhood report a great improvement in the morals of the vicinity.

About 150 youths were in attendance at this playground, all apparently enjoying themselves and each other in the most edifying manner. These Somerville playgrounds are maintained by private subscription under the direction of a Playground Committee.

THE VACATION PLAYROOM.

The Fortnightly has instituted many things for the good of the town. But none will have any more influence in keeping it a beautiful garden spot than the Vacation Play-room, which is also a school.

Someone asked in surprise, "Have you any poor in Winchester?"

Go to the region of the tanneries for your answer. Here are homes of poverty teeming with untrained children whose parents know not how to train them. Whoever gives them a knowledge of order, thrift, moral sense, and obedience, gives to the town future citizens who will do it credit, and help to pay its taxes.

From just such homes as these and worse have come some of the most honored men of our country. Sometimes work like this to those engaged in it seems almost hopeless. But to see its usefulness, we need only to review the records of what has been done.

This band of ladies have done well in putting their hand on this blot and saying it shall be removed. If New York could purify the "Five Points" can not Winchester make of this forlorn settlement a neat thrifty place?

Someone is making money out of these people but,

"I'll face the land, to threatening hills a prey, Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

The school is now on a splendid basis. Homes are being helped. One mother came a few years ago and thanked the teacher for what she had done for her boy, in teaching him to be helpful to her at home.

A mother said this summer that it was worth $2.00 a week to have her children kept in the baby room while she did her sewing that had accumulated. Girls are learning to make their own clothes. How much that means to families in the way of economy and decency!

Boys are cobbling all the family shoes and cane seating the chairs, as well as learning a trade that will bring in money by and by and keep them from crime. The smaller ones are taught how to play properly.

Girls who have to care for their younger brothers and sisters can bring them here where they will be better cared for while they have a little ease and learn to do something properly. The vacation playground is becoming popular; but here is a play-room and industrial school combined.

Is it not better for these boys to be learning some useful art in a cool, clean comfortable place a few hours a day, than to play all summer long while their parents, especially the mothers toil to support them.

Not so did Lincoln, Edison and other "poor boys who became famous" rise to their positions of honor. Many people in good circumstances think the summer too long a play time for their children, and seek work for them that is not beyond their strength. A young man now holding a fine position as superintendent of a large chemical plant in Maine, with a fine salary, went year after year from boyhood to his uncle's farm in Vermont and helped on the farm through the summer, until he entered the Institute of Technology. Is it not a kindness to these boys to give them a chance for industrial training?

This is a grand work increasing in usefulness year by year. As it increases in usefulness of course the need of money, will increase. But these wealthy citizens of Winchester whose hearts are as kind as their pocketbooks are full, surely will not let the ladies slacken their efforts. What they need is to visit the school and study the work.

Many pathetic incidents have taken place. There is the poor little girl whose father drinks and whose mother neglects her, just what you might expect her to be, now brightening wonderfully under kind treatment and careful training.

There was the girl of 8 or 10 who came with a baby in arms and a child 2 and one 4 clinging to her. She looked up into the worker's face with such confidence that they would all be received that it was hard to say no. But every teacher had more than she could comfortably care for. There was no room. Think of it ye whose children would think it a hardship to forego the summer pleasure trip. This cool clean school-room was to her what a seaside sojourn is to better favored children. Fortunately later on room was found for the family, and they are all happily cared for in different rooms.

AN OUTSIDER.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The church will be open every Sunday during the summer for morning service at 10.30 a. m. In the absence of the rector, the Rev. C. P. Mills will be in charge. He will be assisted in August by Mr. John Hamilton Robinson. The address of the rector and other details in regard to ministerial supply, etc., will be in the hands of the wardens, and also at Mr. Arnold's store, Common street.

TRADERS' DAY.

On August 4th the Town Will Take a Vacation.

Bear the date in mind—Aug. 4th—for on that day the town will be shut up tight, and the housewife who forgets to lay in an extra supply of provisions or any other necessities will have to wait until Thursday before her needs will be supplied.

Practically every store in town will close, and it is planned that those of the merchants who desire to enjoy an outing in company with their fellows, all go to Bass Point.

The Post Office will probably close for at least half of the day, so Postmaster Richardson says, with one delivery of mail in the morning. The National Bank will close at noon, and the drug stores will lock their doors between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. The electric cars and trains will probably run as usual, and the police will be on duty, but so far as Winchester as a town is concerned—it will be away on its annual picnic.

Woburn merchants will have their Traders' Day on the same day and at the same place. The Woburn clerks are going to try to arrange a game with the Winchester clerks to be played at Bass Point on that day.

Following is a list of the merchants who will close their places of business:

Richardson's Market

FIRST AGENCY

IN WINCHESTER.

The first agency in Winchester of one of the Massachusetts savings banks which have established life insurance departments has just been opened at the Winchester Laundry. Miss Davida French, secretary of the savings insurance committee of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, began work at the laundry on July 19 for the purpose of familiarizing the employees with the benefits of the life insurance and old age annuities which are offered at actual cost to wage earners under this plan. Literature has been distributed and Miss French has talked with many of the young ladies personally. Several applications for policies have already been sent to the office of the State Actuary, 161 Devonshire street, Boston. This work has been started in accordance with a programme by which the Women's Educational and Industrial Union cooperates with employers employing large numbers of women. Miss French has already spent some time at the Harvard Knitting Mills in Wakefield.

Although this is the first occasion on which savings bank life insurance policies have actually been written in Winchester the town has heard a great deal about the subject from time to time. The address of Rep. Norman H. White of Brookline at the Calumet Club in March, 1907, is well remembered. The measure at that time was before the legislature. The bill was, of course, subsequently passed. One of the seven men appointed by Governor Guild as trustees of the General Insurance Guaranty Fund was Mr. Preston Pond of this town, who had already shown keen interest in the project. The system has since been introduced successfully into the Dennison Manufacturing Company of South Framingham with which Mr. Pond is connected.

The Winchester savings bank, like most Massachusetts saving institutions, has thus far been content with watching the progress of the experiment of savings bank life insurance. Thus far nearly a million dollars' of savings insurance has been written in the state, for the most part in industrial establishments whose managements, like that of the Winchester Laundry, are anxious that their employees shall get the maximum of insurance protection at minimum expense.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Our Park officials places are well watered and kept green, why is it then that they do not see to it that public places under their charge are given as good or better attention? The town gives them all the money they ask for, no charge is made for the water, the fire engineers have always been ready and willing to give the services of their department if wanted for Manchester Field or the Common, and yet these gentlemen let the grass burn up. Why? It looks to me like neglect. If some of our officials do not look after these things we will have to begin doing what they do in some other towns, pass specific votes on details.

Commoner Tuck rather has it on representative Barnard on the town meeting grade crossing vote. What was he there for, but to take part in the meeting or ever after hold his peace. There were no votes favoring the Commission's plan. The vote on the town's plan was 180 to 6. The previous vote upon it was 205 to 5. So Mr. Barnard can have the satisfaction of the gain made against the town's plan.

Why, nothing can be done about clearing up and out the river so that boats and canoes may use it until the grade crossing is abolished. Nothing can be done toward finishing up the northerly end of Manchester field until the grade crossing is abolished. The very much needed central fire house must wait until the grade crossing is abolished. Building about the Centre must wait until the grade crossing is abolished. When will that be? When he B. & M. gets under new management.

The electric wires were removed from the band stand as soon as the 4th. had been celebrated for fear, I suppose, that they might lead to a concert in the evening, in which case the field and town would be overrun with anarchists, murderers, thieves, robbers and suffragettes and would suffer such a set back that perhaps our prominent citizens now at various summer resorts, here and abroad, might not return, and all expenditures would have to be cut down and the morale of the town might suffer so that even the proposed electric railroad might abandon this field. Isn't it awful to contemplate. But come to think of it there was a band concert Monday evening, July 5th.

Watertown has punished itself by raising by taxation this year the entire amount of the deficit found when its accounts were really audited last winter for the first time. The amount is $61,000 raising the tax rate about $4.00 on $1000. This is not the only town or city whose affairs have been conducted in a loose and wrong manner, as the coming report of the Bureau of Statistics will show.

Winter before last a sand box was made of one of the toy entrances to the Linden street town yard by nailing up a lot of mean looking boards. It is still there and from Main street looks wretchedly. Will not the present Superintendent of Streets either pull it down or paint it? New sheds are much needed and the whole yard and stable is no credit to the town. No more is the dwelling house there, which the Selectmen do not even take sufficient interest in to collect any rent for. As this whole property stands the town some $15,000, is it not worth taking care of? I wonder if any of the Honorable board ever go up there?

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

July 19, 1909.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. All present. Voted, that Alexander J. Mullen, of No. 6 Bridge street, be appointed as police patrolman to April 1, 1910.

On the application of R. Giaccone for common victuallers license at the corner of Swanton and Florence streets, it was voted that it be not granted.

Letter received from Lewis Parkhurst, Esq., in regard to condition of junction of Brooks and Sanborn streets. Referred to the Supt. of Streets to report.

Letter of Charles E. Fish in regard to condition of Curtis street. Referred to Supt. of Streets to report.

Petition received from G. H. Eustis and others for laying dust on Stevens street. Referred to Supt. of Streets.

Voted to grant permission to Oscar Lowande to give his circus in this town on payment of same fee as last year, viz. $15.

Received letter from Winchester Stone Co. in regard to purchasing stone. Placed on file.

Town Engineer reported that grade had been set for sidewalk of Mr. Fish on Curtis street.

Approved jury list as made up at previous meeting.

Warrants drawn for $1565.70.

FLOWER DAY.

Next Tuesday The Boston Journal, with the co-operation of the clergy of greater Boston, the suburban newspapers, the florists and the good people at large, is to hold a "Flower Day" for the benefit of the poor-children of Boston.

Never before has such a mammoth affair of its kind been attempted and the call for co-operation in the project has been answered a thousandfold more enthusiastically than was ever dreamed of.

With Boston as a common center flowers will be received on Monday morning between the hours of 7 and noon at designated places already established in every city within a radius of twenty miles.

Receiving places will also be in readiness at the terminals of both the Elevated railway and the steam railroads. Thousands upon thousands of blossoms are needed for the work and it goes without saying that the children who seldom see the gay warm color of the garden and the green of the fields will thrill and marvel at the beauty and fragrance that will pour into the stuffy and unclean streets of the Boston slums on Monday.

Floral contributions can be left Monday morning at the following places: opposite track 17, North Station, and at Sullivan Square news stand.

A VISIT TO THE HUTCHINSON FARM.

W. K. Hutchinson, successful market-man, grows much of his vegetables on 60 acres.

Imagine a farm 600 feet above the sea where the owner raises crop after crop of vegetables for Winchester folks. Strawberries and blackberries as well. Seed onions, set out and pulled and tops cut by picturesquely attired Italian women and even while these onions are being taken to the store at Winchester, the soil, virile, is being ploughed and raked for celery, to be set out by the same bright head-dressed Italians with the nimble hands.

And this farm is not more than 7-1/2 miles from the State House, the Hutchinson farm of some 60 acres in all.

W. K. Hutchinson, who runs the Hutchinson market, at the Heights and Centre, Arlington, and the Hutchinson market, Winchester, knows how to "farm it" as well as to buy. From the strawberry patch as many as 1000 boxes a day he received during the season. The cabbages look well and the peas are being picked many bushels daily.

The air is splendid and the place ideal. There are the cows who give the milk the pigs the pork, hens the eggs. There are beets and the parsley and even the mint. Men are setting out or planting while women are mainly gathering.

These are reasons perhaps why the Hutchinson markets are popular. The vegetables and fruits at Hutchinson's have grown and flank well the choice strains for which the markets bearing the name are far famed.

Prosperity Here and Manufacturing Booms Greatly

THE FIGHT FOR COL. GASTON

Boston Lost $1,400,000 on a Ten-Year Light Contract—The General Political Situation in the State

There has seldom been a time in the history of Massachusetts industries when business was so brisk as at the present moment. From all over the state come reports of industries in which it is necessary to work two shifts in order to fill the orders which are coming in. Many enterprises have been greatly augmented in the last few months by additions to the present equipment and the construction of new plants, made necessary by the demands of the customers for goods. In the city of Lawrence, for instance, the Wood Worsted mill is being greatly enlarged and the various other corporations like the Arlington Mills, the Pacific Mills and others are building new factories. The same is true of New Bedford and various other large manufacturing cities of the state.

All the railroads are ordering new rolling stock and preparing for a great increase in business.

There has been entered at the custom houses in Massachusetts more raw material for the use of our manufacturers than ever before within the limits of a single year. The bureau of commerce and labor at Washington has just reported that the importations of raw materials to be used in manufacturing for the year ending June 30 are greater than in any previous year in the history of the country by a large amount. The raw material largely used in Massachusetts consists of silk, cotton, wool, hemp, tobacco, India rubber, hides, skins and leather; copper, tin and lumber.

Another indication of prosperity is seen in the enormous building operations now going on in Boston and noticed in most of the other cities of the commonwealth. More large office buildings are now going up in this city than for a great many years past, and this, notwithstanding the fact that office buildings, while offering a safe investment, have yielded small returns, not, in many instances, as large as would be received from deposits in the savings bank; although there is always a slow but steady increase in the value of land upon which such buildings are erected. In the past, building operations have always been regarded as a correct barometer of business conditions; when times are bad there is very little building and much when they are good.

Gaston Seems Loath to Run

The effort of the conservative Democrats to induce Colonel William A. Gaston of Boston to stand as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination has not met with any great success. If one is to judge by surface indications, Mr. Gaston, in replying to a question, declared that he is not a candidate for the nomination, and that he regards James H. Vahey of Watertown as entitled to the distinction, if there is any in it. Notwithstanding this attitude of the colonel, his friends are still hopeful that the sober sense of the Democratic party will prevent the nomination of Mr. Vahey and result in the choice of Colonel Gaston.

Last year, when Mr. Vahey announced his candidacy for the nomination, a number of names were presented by the conservative wing of the party in order to test party sentiment throughout the state. Last year was of course an exceptional year. The presidential contest was being waged and there was great dissatisfaction among Democrats in Massachusetts with William J. Bryan as the Democratic candidate. A great many Democrats, both conservative and radical, felt strongly that it was not only foolish but almost a crime against the party to nominate for president a man who had been twice defeated and, so far as anyone could see, was amply justified in expecting to suffer the same fate once more. For that reason Democrats generally took very little interest in party matters and made no effort to control the nominations. As a matter of fact, probably one-tenth of the Democratic party in Massachusetts last year made the nominations for the entire party, and the other nine-tenths did not care a rap whether Vahey were nominated or some other Democrat secured it.

This year it is somewhat different, but it is not unlikely that the final result may be the same. As a matter of fact, Democrats themselves admit that Governor Draper has been so successful in his administration that no one but a party giant would hope to defeat him. Democrats have hoped that there would be so much dissatisfaction with the Republican party in connection with the enactment of a tariff act that this would help them in the state election this fall in Massachusetts. While no tariff was ever passed which was pleasing to every individual, yet there is nothing to indicate that the present bill, when completed, will not be a fairly satisfactory measure to the people of this state. Democrats themselves have largely given over the hope that they would be greatly benefited by any dissatisfaction arising from this legislation.

Democrats Expect Labor Vote

They have hope and still expect that they will be benefited to some extent, at least, by Governor Draper's veto of the so-called eight-hour bill, applying only to employees of the cities and towns in the state. It is very well known in this connection that Governor Draper was perfectly willing to sign such a bill if it been properly drawn. He objected to some of the provisions in one section of that measure and stated to the labor men that if this were corrected he would sign it. One of these strongly urged that the changes be made to meet the governor's views. Two others refused to consent to such amendments and the bill was therefore vetoed. The rank and file of labor men who have a knowledge of these circumstances are thoroughly convinced that their representatives, in thus declining to meet the governor's objections, made a fatal mistake and thereby lost a measure which the labor men greatly desired.

It is quite a distinction for Massachusetts that President Taft should have selected one of its delightful summer resorts as his vacation home. No state in the union is more beautifully situated in regard to summer leisure than is the Old Bay State. The north shore between Salem and Gloucester shelters more distinguished people during the heated months than any like section in the entire country. This shore is so delightful that it has shorn the summer of all its terrors for those who seek its seclusion, while Cape Cod and its islands are little if any behind the north shore in attractiveness as a summer home for distinguished people.

Mr. Taft has always had a very warm feeling for Massachusetts, as it was for so many years the home of his mother and the state from which the family originated. The charms of the Berkshires have long delighted the wealthy from all over the country, and, taking the state by and large, there is no other commonwealth in the galaxy of states which excels it either in summer or at any other time of the year.

Where the Money Went

According to the report of the old finance commission of the city of Boston, the Hub has lost considerably in excess of a million dollars by reason of her light contracts, entered into by previous administrations. The finance commission did not at first make this report public, but it has now come to light and furnishes interesting reading to the taxpayers of the city. In exact figures the sum said to have been lost by reason of one-sided contracts is $1,400,000, covering a period of ten years. The other party to the contract was the Edison Electric Light company, and the stock of the Edison is selling at nearly $250 per share, the par value being $100.

The finance commission should take active steps to secure a contract which should protect the city. The new commission which has now taken office ought in some active way attend to this matter. If it can save the city a million dollars on the next ten years' contract, it will have earned its salary a great many times over.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

There are 7000 women members of the W. C. T. U. of Sweden and might be more if there were not so many who are members of other temperance organizations. The temperance reform has spread over the whole country and total abstinence is very common in all classes of society. In the Scandinavian sections of the United States the W. C. T. U. is also very strong and in the National Union the work among Scandinavians is being pushed with excellent results.

Illinois temperance folks are especially active this year and the battle between the Anti-Saloon League and the liquor interests is very fierce. The latter are fighting for their life in the down state sections but the city of Chicago is still their bulwark of defence. Their frantic appeals for personal liberty sound especially convincing to those new citizens who left lands of close espionage to become dwellers in the land where they fondly think every man is free to do his neighbor all the harm he can. Personal liberty like foreordination is a dangerous doctrine for the ignorant to espouse because they are unable to see beneath the surface. It is, however, the rallying cry of the liquor dealers and sounds well to the unthinking.

Drunkennes among women is the chief object of attack of a recent organization in England where a drunken woman is an every day sight. It is not unknown, however, in our own country, and more than one woman in the highest circles of society is known to be addicted to the habit to an alarming extent. The Gould divorce case recently brought the subject into the limelight but it was no new revelation to the majority of the people.

The Winchester Auto Co. has taken one of the new stores, at 541 Main street, as headquarters for automobile supplies. The store will be lighted with Tungsten electric lights, and two new electric signs will add to the brilliancy of the street at night-time. The lighting service here will be furnished by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company.

BASE BALL.

The A. A. team defeated the strong Malden Athletics Saturday on Manchester Field in a very interesting game. The feature of the game was the batting of Paul Badger and McCall.

The makeup of the team is as strong a combination of ball players as one will find in some semi-professional teams, and the only necessary thing to do now is to give the team support.

On collections at the field it is impossible so far to exceed $9.00 and that will not pay the expenses. To get a good fast team here it is necessary to pay from $10 to $25, and the A. A. expenses are $4.50 as we have to pay umpire, balls, police, incidental expenses.

If every person attending the games would be willing to give 10 cents, we would then be in a position to have some of the strongest teams in the State here to play, and thereby giving the spectators a very interesting game.

BERRY PICKERS SHOULD BE CAREFUL OF PLACES.

A sharp warning should be given those who are engaged in picking berries within the infested moth area, because many of the trees and necessarily the shrubbery beneath have been sprayed with arsenic of lead, which is poisonous. The danger of fatal result from eating the berries is not so great as the possibility of a serious sickness. A gentleman who had occasion to travel through the suburbs noticed berry pickers within the area, and notified the newspapers of what is being done.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand are, first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top, and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Fibre, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk Fibre is a non-absorbent, vegetable fibre, which grows near the equator. It never gets damp, and is extremely light and strong. The strong points of a silk Fibre Mattress are its lightness and softness, great ventilation for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

I guarantee the best hair ticking on this mattress, and if you have ever in your sleep when you have not been able to sleep your head in the morning it has been well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added to its popularity for making it more comfortable than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American moss hair. This hair is taken from the mosses and barks of the forest, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will not be affected. It has great resiliency and softness, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Make no mistake, this price is for the best, and full weight.

A COSMOPOLITE IN A CAFE.

An Incident That Proves All Men Have Patriotism.

By O. HENRY.
[Copyright, 1909, by McClure, Phillips & Co.]

At midnight the cafe was crowded. By some chance the little table at which I sat had escaped the eye of incumbers, and two vacant chairs at it extended their arms with vernal hospitality to the influx of patrons.

And then a cosmopolite sat in one of them, and I was glad, for I held a theory that since Adam no true citizen of the world has existed. We hear of them, and we see foreign labels on much luggage, but we find travelers instead of cosmopolites.

I invoke your consideration of the scene—the marble topped tables, the range of leather upholstered wall seats, the gay company, the ladies dressed in demitasse toilets, speaking in an exquisite visible chorus of taste, economy, opulence or art; the sedulous and largess loving garçons, the musk wisely entering to all with its aids upon the composers; the melange of talk and laughter—and, if you will, the Wurzburger in the tall glass comes that bend to your lips as a ripe cherry sways on its branch to the beak of a rooster. I was told by a sculptor from Munich that the scene was truly Parisian.

My cosmopolite was named E. Rushmore Cogan, and he will be heard from next summer at Coney Island. He is to establish a new "attraction" there, he informed me, offering kindly diversion. And then his conversation rang along parallels of latitude and longitude. He took the great round world in his hand, so to speak, familiarly, contemptuously, and it seemed no larger than the seed of a maraschino cherry in a table d'hôte grapefruit. He spoke disrespectfully of the equator, he skipped from continent to continent, he divided the zones, he mopped up the high seas with his napkin. With a wave of his hand he would speak of a certain bazaar in Haidarabad. Whiff! He would have you on skates in Lapland. Zip! Now you rode the breakers with the Kanakas at Kaulakahi. Presto! He dragged you through an Arkansas post oak swamp, let you dry for a moment on the alkali plains of his Idaho ranch, then whirled you into the society of Viennese archdukes. Aun! he would be telling you of a cold he acquired in a Chicago lake breeze and how old Escamilla cured it in Buenos Aires with a hot infusion of the chuchula weed. You would have addressed a letter to "E. Rushmore Cogan, Esq., the Earth, Solar System, the Universe," and have mailed it, feeling confident that it would be delivered to him.

I was sure that I had found at last the one true cosmopolite since Adam, and I listened to his worldwide discourse fearful lest I should discover in it the local note of the mere globe trotter. But his opinions never flattered or dropped. He was as impartial to cities, countries and continents as the winds or gravitation.

And as E. Rushmore Cogan prattled of this little planet I thought with gloe of a great almost cosmopolite who wrote for the whole world and dedicated himself to Bombay. In a poem he has to say that there are pride and rivalry between the cities of the earth and that "the men that breed from them, they traffic up and down, but cling to their cities' hem as a child to the mother's gown." And whenever they walk "by roaring streets unknown," they remember their native city, "most faithful, foolish, fond, making her mere breathed name their bond upon their bond." And my glee

"EXCUSE ME," SAID HE.

Give Your Money a Chance

Don't you want to give your money a better show than the small interest it earns in a savings bank?

"There is no savings bank anywhere as good as a good real estate investment," said Grover Cleveland.

Andrew Carnegie says: "The wise young man or wage earner of today invests his money in real estate."

Buy Winchester Property

Money invested in Winchester realty will grow and unless all signs fail, it will grow fast. Many have sold at a handsome profit after holding but a short time.

There are many things to know about and to be attended to in buying real estate. I will help you to the best of my ability.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Middlebrook of New York have moved into the house corner of Highland avenue and Webster street.

Hen thieves have been making things lively at the Highlands lately. Several hen yards were entered on Forest street last week, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. Eight hens were missing at Mr. Burrell's, while hens were also missing from Mr. Ryan's and Mr. Hodgen's and a choice mahogany chair was taken from the piazza of Mr. Welcomes, corner of Washington and Forest streets. Two officers were put on duty and one arrest made. A man trying to gain an entrance at a chamber window at the residence of Mr. David Chapin, Maple road, was seen and scared off by Mr. Chapin's son, Thursday night.

At a meeting of the Directors of Winchester Boat Club last week five new members were elected to the club. It was decided to strictly enforce the house rules for the rest of the season. Owing to the increase in the demand for berths at the club a number of the sailing canoes have been placed in the Shu Shu Gar canoe club house. The last dance until the fall will be held at the club this Saturday evening.

Mr. J. W. Skillings and family are spending the summer at Mouse Island, Me.

Arthur Campbell, colored, of Boston, was arrested in town last week, charged with begging from the stores about the centre. Investigation revealed that the man was a professional beggar, having been committed to Bridgewater for the same offense and subsequently released on condition that he leave the State, his fare to North Carolina having been furnished him. He was taken back to Bridgewater on Saturday.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Anna Margaret Lyons and William Healey Bowen of Lynn, which takes place at St. Mary's Church on Wednesday, Aug. 4th, at 10 a. m.

Mrs. George R. Tower and children of Highland avenue are spending several weeks at Sandwich.

Italians know enough not to jump backwards into a ditch, and yet they will repeatedly do so from an electric car, unless the conductor holds them back.

Mr. Charles H. Chapman and family are at Brant Rock for a few weeks.

Order Covell's ice cream now for your Sunday dinner.

Lebanon street stood up in fine shape after the recent severe rain storms. The surface of the street is about as good today as when first laid.

With the exception of the Unitarian Church all have services on Sundays.

The Woburn Brass Band will hold forth on Manchester field Saturday afternoon. The Waltham Watch Co. Band last Saturday afternoon brought one of the largest crowds since concerts were inaugurated on this field.

The Assessors book containing the street and alphabetical lists of names, location of streets, fire alarm boxes and telephone numbers of town officials can be had at the Star Office and drug stores for the asking. It is a very useful book.

At a meeting of the directors of the Yuba Consolidated Goldfields Company yesterday George L. Huntress, personal counsel for the late Robert D. Evans, was elected president of the company, succeeding Mr. Evans. J. A. Meyers was elected vice president and R. E. Paine secretary and treasurer. A semi-annual dividend of 17 1/2 cents, or 3 1/2 percent, was declared upon the outstanding 2,400,000 shares of stock. [Boston Evening Transcript, July 16, 1909.]

Dr. and Mrs. George P. Brown are both seriously sick.

The little daughter of Mr. William P. Widowsky, which was taken sick last week, is at the Newton Hospital.

Last Saturday morning Peter Mawn of Mystic place had one of his hands so badly lacerated at the Bacon Felt Mills that it was necessary to amputate it.

This last week the rate of burglary insurance, $7.50 per thousand, was reduced to $2.00 per thousand, this was owing to a rate war between the different companies, but this condition will not last. See F. V. Wooster's ad on last page.

The residents of the Highlands are feeling quite happy now that they have a police officer in the neighborhood.

Rev. Walter J. Roche is spending his vacation at Old Orchard, Me.

Woburn's tax rate is $19.80—no change from last year.

Medford's tax rate is $20.20—last year $20.80. Does it pay to become a city?

The road men found the steam road roller pretty heavy when they attempted to pull it onto Cross street after it had run over onto the soft earth last week. Considerable difficulty was experienced in getting it back onto the hard surface of the street.

Keep cool this hot weather by eating Covell's ice cream.

Members of The Fortnightly who have not yet sent in quotations for the calendar are asked to send them at once to Mrs. J. S. Woods, 69 Parkway, as the list cannot be held open later than next week.

George E. Hicks is at Brookside Stock Farm, Orwell, Vt., for the summer.

Dr. Benjamin Lewis has returned from a few days' stay at his old home, Centerville, Cape Cod.

Owing to the indisposition of the soloist announced for last Sunday at the First Congregational Church, Miss Evelyn G. Blair, soprano soloist of The Second Universalist Church, Boston, sang "Come Unto Me" by Coenan and "Spirit of God" by Neidlinger.

Mr. Sherard Clay and family of Lloyd street are at their bungalow at Sutton, N. H., for the summer.

Miss Harrington, manicure and hairdressing, will close Wednesday and Thursday during the summer. jy23,2t

Just remember Covell's for strictly pure ice cream.

During the shower of last Sunday evening the lightning struck a large tree in the vicinity of Winter pond, shattering it into many pieces. It is not uncommon to see a tree which has lost a limb or its top from a lightning bolt, but this specimen appears as if it had simply been blown to pieces. It has been visited by many people and some interesting pictures taken of it.

The executive committee of the Choate Memorial Hospital have arranged a rate schedule for service at the hospital. Until the hospital is put on a self-sustaining basis by the generosity of Woburn people by endowment or otherwise it will be necessary to make a fixed charge for maintenance. Winchester has a $50,000 endowment to work out hospital plans on, but much of it will have to be used in buying a site and the erection of buildings. In comparison the city of Woburn is far ahead of Winchester in its hospital venture as it is in good working order today. [Woburn Times.]

Mr. Chas. A. Lane with a party of friends went on an automobile trip to Bar Harbor last Saturday where they enjoyed themselves until Tuesday.

It is a regrettable fact that persons who would not be trusted with a baby carriage are permitted to drive touring cars. [Boston Post.]

The scales of weights and measures, of Medford, has seized over 700 short raspberry boxes during the past week that were being offered for sale in Medford by peddlers and stores.

A complaint has been registered against local milk dealers or their drivers who are careless in leaving broken milk bottles in the street, to the detriment of automobile and bicycle tires and probable injury to horses feet. The milkmen do not, of course, deliberately break bottles on the street, but they are frequently dropped accidentally and there is seldom any effort made to remove the fragments.

Samuel McFeely who for many years has resided in the far West is visiting his sister Mrs. Susie Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman D. Murphy plan to attend the A. C. A. meet at Sugar Island next month. Mr. Murphy will send his sailing canoe along and enter the races. Mr. Farnum F. Dorsey of New York, formerly of Winchester, will also take his sailing canoe and try his skill against Mr. Murphy.

The attention of our readers is called to the ad of the School of Successful Salesmanship, which will be found in another column of this paper. This school, founded five years ago, and working along original and unique lines, has already made a name for itself by the results it has produced. Many instances have been shown where they have taken young men from underpaid positions of from $10. to $15. a week, and made it possible for them to start in commercial life at salaries of from $1200. to $3000. per year with expenses. Graduates of this school are eagerly sought by leading Boston Houses, and the school already has more opportunities for its graduates than graduates to fill them. We would advise any young man who is looking for a desirable opening to call upon them or write them at their address, 15 Beacon street, mentioning this paper and receive full information.

Diary of A Winchester Woman:

After all, the Home Market Company, corner Common and Church street has the store where one gets satisfied treatment. While beef rises everywhere else, at Mr. Drew's store sirloin remains the same. They try to satisfy every want and their butter, poultry, etc., are absolutely the best to be had anywhere. Chase & Sanborn's coffees are specialties.

VOL. XXIX. NO. 4.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 30, 1909.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

TAX RATE $16.20.

A Reduction of $1.20 Over Last Year.

At a meeting of the board of assessors last Saturday morning the tax rate was fixed for the year at $16.20, which is a reduction of $1.20 from the rate of last year, $17.40. The reduction in the rate is a pleasing variation from the tendency of Massachusetts cities and towns to increase taxes in the past few years.

This reduction, the assessors say, is not wholly due to the expected decrease made possible by the small state tax this year, but is contributed to by several causes, all of which are interesting. In the first place the population of Winchester is at present just about what it was five years ago. About that time the McKay shoe factory was moved from this town taking with it over 1000 employees, whose removal affected the population considerably. Since then, however, their departure has been fully offset by the great influx of high-class residents whose coming has mainly been responsible for the increase in taxable property.

The land valuation of the town has increased $200,000 in the past year, building valuation has increased $250,000, and these causes, with the great increase in the number of high-grade residences has brought about an increase in personal property of $450,000 over last year or a total increase of $950,000 over last year.

For this reduction, the work of the Appropriations Committee in keeping down expenses is due in large measure.

SCHOOL NOTES OF INTEREST

The contracts for school supplies were awarded this week. The paper and pencil supplies were mostly awarded to the Milton Bradley Co., of which Mr. E. O. Clark of this town is manager. This material for the schools amounts to about $1200.

The sloyd supplies were awarded in part to George W. Blanchard Co. and Parker - Lane Co., Miss F. J. Bowser received the order for sewing supplies.

At a meeting of the School Committee on Monday night it was decided to place drinking fountains in seven of the school buildings as follows: One on each floor of the Rumford, Washington, Wyman, Gifford and Prince buildings, and one each in the Mystic and Highland buildings. This will make every building equipped with these fountains, which does away with the old and unsanitary drinking cups. The Sanitas drinking fountain will be used, and they are to be installed by George E. Pratt Co.

Another room is to be opened in the High school building in the fall—that at south east corner, now used by the Handicraft Society. The Society will be given a room on the top floor. The new room will be used for recitations. The teaching force at the school will be increased by one this year, as Mr. Wixom has been appointed principal and ex-principal Lovering will continue with the Latin classes.

Do not forget that school will open for the fall term on Wednesday, Sept. eighth. Superintendent and Mrs. Herron will spend Sunday in Byfield, and next week they will go to Cobleskill, N. Y., for the month of August. Supt. Herron will open his office on August thirtieth and it will remain open until the commencement of school.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.

The children's bathing beach on Mystic Lake came near being the scene of a drowning accident on Tuesday, when little Helen Lynch jumped off the raft into the water over her head. The children were playing on the raft, which was in shallow water, when it was moved out. The little Lynch girl either did not know it had been moved or else thought it was not over her head, for she jumped off. A companion, Doris Shevlin, saw her struggling and tried to get her out, but the task was too much for her. The cries of the two girls attracted George Richardson, one of the small boy bathers, who swam to them and effected the rescue. It is said the little girl was sinking for the third time when he arrived.

NEW TEACHER AT WADLEIGH SCHOOL.

Miss Marion Pierce, for seven years a teacher in the schools of Northampton, daughter of Mr. Thomas N. Pierce formerly of Warren street, this town has been appointed assistant at the Wadleigh grammar school to succeed Miss Vandalia Dexter who has resigned to accept a position in the Medford schools. Miss Pierce is now living in Melrose.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smalley return from their cottage at Harwichport tomorrow.

Miss Maude Swan of Main street has gone to East Norton for two weeks.

GATES AT CROSSING.

Said a prominent citizen this week, "I do not agree with Mr. Arthur E. Whitney in all that he says, but I do fully in his suggestion of settling the grade crossing abolition question, now that the matter has become so complicated. Mr. Whitney, said, you will recollect, that with suitable gates and alert men guarding them that the danger to life and limb at the crossing would be practically eliminated, and now I agree with him. The citizens have got to be pretty watchful, if it should be decided to build a bridge at the centre. You know it has been intimated by the interested parties that they have no objection to this scheme, provided the town will stand all the extra expense over what a bridge at the station would cost. Some persons have been rash enough to express the opinion that it would cost $50,000. Unless I am greatly mistaken it will cost the town double, or perhaps, three times $50,000. In fact no one can gauge what the actual figures will stop at. So it behooves the town to be pretty careful what it commits itself to do regarding this bridge at the centre. Then, again, I have heard it said that the property owners in the centre, who are likely to be damaged, are an obstacle to the successful accomplishment of the scheme because they will hold out for large awards. All fairminded men will concede that these property owners should be treated fairly. There is no reason whatever why they should stand the burden of expense when the town as a whole is to receive the benefit. And now, just because the whole thing is in a muddled condition, I hope Mr. Whitney's suggestions will not go unheeded."

STREET SUGGESTIONS.

We acknowledge with thanks receipt of the current report of the Commission on Metropolitan Improvements, from Mr. Sylvester Baxter, Secretary. In the comments on conditions in Winchester from Mr. A. A. Shurtliff's report as landscape architect, relating to suggested highway improvements, are the following paragraphs:

Forest street which with Maple and Franklin streets, Stoneham, forms a cross-district road of much importance, deserves better connections with Cross street. That is to say, the narrow and roundabout portion of Forest street between Washington street and the Winchester Highland station should be widened and straightened. Forest and Marble streets should be improved in profile and Cross street should be widened.

The northern end of Highland avenue should be relocated to secure a proper gradient of approach to the entire upland portion of the town from Marble street. A branch road should be built to connect Highland avenue with the border road of the Fells Reservation near the South dam.

Judkins Pond should be either filled in or permanently reserved. At present it serves to handicap the development of all streets upon its borders.

In a note regarding ponds of this nature, the Commission says: "Another common characteristic of the town is the presence of amputated or rudimentary streets terminating in dead ends upon the borders of railway property and along river and pond borders. In Malden and in Waltham this situation has been prevented at the start by the provision of a border street paralleling the railway and the river respectively. Property upon the margins of ponds and streams is safeguarded by border roads of this kind, since they allow houses to be built facing the water, rather than backing upon it, and insure ready policing to prevent disorderly misuse of the water frontage. Such roads are needed at the present time around Wedge Pond in Winchester."

Two Photographs of Miss Dorothy Lawson, Another Dreamworld Bride, and Henry McCall She is to Marry.

MISS DOROTHY WILL BE A JANUARY BRIDE.

Third Daughter of Thomas W. Lawson to Wed Son of Cong. McCall.

After bidding goodspeed to a harvest bride and a summer bride in turn Dreamworld, the South Shore country home of Thomas W. Lawson, is to take on gala attire for a "snow bride" in January, when Miss Dorothy Lawson, Mr. Lawson's third daughter, is to be married to Henry McCall, second son of Hon. Samuel W. McCall. The betrothal was announced Saturday evening at a family dinner at Dreamworld. Miss Dorothy was bridesmaid at the weddings of her two sisters, Miss Gladys, who married Eben Blaine Stanwood in October, 1905, and Miss Marion, whose wedding to James Fuller Lord less than a month ago was set in Dreamworld's wonderful garden of roses.

The girls of the Vincent Club will take special interest in the coming nuptials, for Miss Dorothy is one of the most popular members of that famous society organization and has taken a prominent part in several of its annual "shows."

Like her sisters, Miss Dorothy is an expert whip and rider and is fond of the horses. She is just 20 and is the tallest of the Lawson girls. She is an ardent devotee of baseball, and therein lies the story of the romance that will end with her marriage to Mr. McCall next winter. For three years the young man was the star baseman on the Harvard varsity baseball team. In 1906, 1907 and 1908 he made his mark as a fielder and batter, ranking especially high with the stick. It was while watching him "elout" the ball for frequent "three-baggers" that Miss Lawson took a fancy to him. Mr. McCall is 23 years of age. He graduated from Harvard University this year having completed his four-year course in three years. He is a member of Hasty Pudding, Polo, Diddle and A. D.

While Miss Lawson's athletic affections go out the strongest toward baseball, she is also devoted to all other outdoor sports and a regular attendant at football and hockey games, rowing races and tennis tournaments. Early in September Miss Lawson goes abroad and will tour Europe until Christmas week. Her betrothal gives general pleasure to the many friends of the couple, who deem them exceptionally well mated.

WILL COME SOMETIME.

On being congratulated this week because he had been drawn on the jury list, Mr. Preston Pond said, "Well, it beats the Dutch how often I get on that list. I never served on a jury in my life, and I don't want to because of business reasons. However, if I should be unfortunate enough to be drawn as a juror, I would not hedge, I would serve and do the best that I could, as I believe all citizens should when called upon." That is the proper light to look upon this duty that goes with citizenship. Mr. Pond, as the energetic manager of the Dennison Manufacturing Co., is no shirker.

SALEM CADET BAND.

The Salem Cadet Band will give the concert on Manchester Field this Saturday afternoon, and no doubt there will be a large attendance to hear this excellent musical organization.

The concert last Saturday afternoon was by the Woburn Brass Band. A pleasing feature of the concert by this band is the large number of selections given which are tuneful, catchy and enjoyable. This band gives the people a good return for the investment.

RAIN OR SHINE.

Merchants Go To Bass Point.

Next Wednesday, Aug. 4th, is Traders' Day. As we announced last week, all the stores and business places of every description in Winchester will be closed, and the committee appointed by the Winchester Merchants' Association has made the final arrangements for an enjoyable day's outing at Bass Point, Nahant, where ball games, bathing, sports and dinner will occupy the day.

The Woburn traders will observe their holiday on the same date and at the same place, so this section will be a dead place for all who remain at home. A base ball match between teams from Woburn and Winchester is to be played during the day. All the townspeople are cordially invited to attend the outing.

Following is the program: Special electric leaves centre at 8:24 a. m. Steamer leaves Otis Wharf at 9:30 a. m.

Round trip tickets 30 cents. For sale at John F. O'Connor's drug store, Winchester News Co., Gene B. Farrow's. Badge may be obtained with ticket. Dinner will be served at Greenwood Cottage Cafe.

"THE REGION OF THE TANNERIES."

A number of residents in the vicinity of the only tannery in Winchester have taken serious exceptions to the article published last week on the vacation playground, wherein it contained reference to what the writer termed the "region of the tanneries."

That the article was written with the sole object of setting forth the benefits of the vacation school goes without question, and without doubt there was no intention in the mind of the writer to place the name of slum on any section of Winchester. Rather it was an unfortunate wording to illustrate the work of the playground.

It is absurd to assume for a second that the writer would liken any part of Winchester to the slums of New York; equally absurd is it that any one should assume that citizens who are owners of their own homes, citizens who are in good standing in the community, or citizens who care for and foster their children, cannot be living in the vicinity of a tannery.

We would suggest that the writer of the article visit the neighborhood of his description before again using a foreign illustration of a Winchester charity, but citizens who feel offended should not "put on the shoe unless it fits."

A USEFUL BOOK.

The town directory issued by the Board of Assessors, can be procured free at the drug stores, the Winchester News Co. and at Wilson's. This book as a means of reference is invaluable, and can be had for the asking as long as they last.

WINCHESTER POLICE CAPTURE CLEVER SWINDLER.

Though the efforts of Chief of Police McIntosh, Boston inspectors took into custody Tuesday morning Samuel Stone of East Boston, wanted in almost every town in this vicinity for working the film-flam game of selling valuable goods, which when opened consisted of only fly paper.

A little over a week ago the man visited Winchester and under guise of leaving a bundle supposed to have been ordered from a Boston firm collected $3. When the bundle was opened it was found to contain about fifty cents worth of cheap note paper. The trick was well worked, a receipt book of the Boston firm being offered for signature to the clerk. In other places the bundle varied in that it would contain only a nickle's worth of fly paper.

Fortunately the name of the firm manufacturing the stationery was obtainable from the Winchester swindler, and Chief McIntosh investigated. From the firm he learned that Stone was in the habit of buying small quantities of fly paper and stationery. A watch was kept for him and on Tuesday, after having escaped detection when making another purchase, he was arrested.

In court Wednesday forenoon Stone was found guilty and sentenced to the House of Correction for two months. He appealed.

The arrest of this man was a clever piece of strategy on the part of Chief McIntosh who had been working on the case for several weeks. The only clue was the uncertain trade mark on the envelope boxes, and from this, step by step, the dealer was located and the swindler finally arrested.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Vinal left town this week for a three weeks' stay at Orr's Island, Casco Bay, Me.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Any one interested in the work of the Flower Mission is urged to visit the W. C. T. U. headquarters at the Congregational House, 14 Beacon street, Boston, any Saturday morning during the summer. If any one has the leisure, a trip through the tenement district with one of the distributors will serve as an object lesson that will not soon be forgotten. After that it will be easier to remember to carry a bunch of flowers to give away to the little folks who swarm the streets about the station and are by no means backward in asking for some of the bright blossoms.

The four great express companies of the United States carry free boxes of flowers of less than twenty pounds weight to the W. C. T. U. flower missions in the large cities, providing they are duly tagged, but the supply never exceeds the demand. At the close of the season potted plants are especially acceptable and if each amateur gardener when rooting slips for her own window garden would do a few for some of the tenement dwellers it would give great pleasure to some whose lives are cheerless.

Winchester Union's flower mission work is in the hands of Mrs. A. A. owe who will be glad of contributions of flowers or money for carrying on the work.

The August McClure's has a strong article on alcohol slaves written by one of them. It is a terrible arraignment of the liquor traffic, showing the way in which recruits are gained for the army of drinkers. The writer avers that forty per cent. of all the drinkers are minors and gives figures to prove his points. No one reading the article can be unmoved by his appeal to keep the boys away from temptation. Very few boys who attain their majority without acquiring the taste for intoxicants ever become slaves of the habit. The potential drunkard is the young boy who begins to drink and by the time he becomes a citizen is no longer a free man. All drunkards are first moderate drinkers, and not one intends to become a slave to the habit, of course, and yet the chances for him to become one far outnumber those against it.

SAMUEL W. TWOMBLY
Who observes his 87th birthday tomorrow.

87TH BIRTHDAY.

Why Mr. S. W. Twombly Receives So Much Enjoyment.

Mr. Samuel W. Twombly, Winchester's respected citizen and the originator of a great deal that has made the town so beautiful, will observe his 87th birthday at his home on Wildwood street this Saturday. He will make no special feature of the event, but will be happy to receive calls from his numerous friends and acquaintances. Mr. Twombly is in the enjoyment of excellent health and is busy about all the time, working in his garden, doing chores, etc. On being asked why he enjoyed such good health, and why he appeared to be getting so much enjoyment out of life, he said:

"In the first place my health is first rate. I have a very pleasant home with my dear children and grandchildren who do all in their power to make me happy. Then I have lots of real good friends whose society I enjoy very much. To keep from rusting out, there is the garden to keep me busy, and work which I really enjoy. And it is with feelings of pride that I look back sixty years and compare Winchester as it was then and as it is now—one of the loveliest towns in the Commonwealth. After the comparison, I feel very thankful that, in my humble way, I have been able to assist in laying the foundation for this beauty. Surely with all the blessings that have fallen to my lot, any man ought to be happy."

THE "ELECTRIC" LIFE IS AN EASY ONE.

The boarding school boy who upon retiring at night always arranged his essential clothing so that two motions of his legs and arms presented him completely clothed and ready for the breakfast table had no advantage over the occupant of a modern home, who makes the most use of up-to-date electrical appliances.

Nowadays the model house or apartment can be connected with electric service so that at the appointed morning hour an alarm bell arouses the sleeper, closes the windows in his chamber and turns on the heat. On winter mornings the electric lights can be turned on by the same arrangement.

An addition to this convenient service is now available whereby the electric heat is started under the coffee percolator, cereal cooker and the egg boiler.

Another practical convenience and safeguard for the home provides for the connection of different steps along the stairs with an electric light chandelier in the sleeping room. It is so constructed that any intruder walking up the stairs will turn on the lights in the chamber, first one and then another, so that the occupant of the sleeping room can tell exactly what point on the stairs the intruder has reached and be ready to meet him on the landing.

THOUSANDS AT WONDERLAND.

"Cinderella" And Many Other Attractions In Great Favor Nowadays.

Evidently many thousands of New Englanders, particularly the residents of the Greater Boston, have got the Wonderland habit and pronounce it good. One can be almost certain to find friends any evening enjoying the fine concerts by Teel's Military Band of Boston. Upon all sides can be found attractions of the highest character.
Every day now, at 3.30 o'clock promptly, is given an extra performance of the dainty fairy spectacle "Cinderella," in which a fine company of fifty young and pretty girls appears.

Every week sees a complete new bill in the vaudeville theatre, many changes in the girl minstrels, new groupings by Breng's artists' models, (The Golden Graces) new films and new illustrated songs in the moving picture theatre and new concert programmes by Teel's Band. About every visitor to Wonderland rides on the Scenic Railway or the Clutes or takes a trip to Hell Gate.
Many hundred dance in the ball room and the great dining hall is splendidly patronized by thousands who can appreciate a fine fish dinner or a dainty lunch. Children accompanied by adults are admitted free to Wonderland nowadays, up to six o'clock.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The public is certainly getting its money's worth at Keith's Theatre these days, for not only is the vaudeville the strongest that could possibly be secured, but in addition, the Fallettes, augmented to forty, are giving a popular concert preliminary to the regular show.

Next week there is an attraction that is bound to cause a lot of comment. It is called "A Night in a Monkey Music Hall." It was brought to this country especially for the Keith circuit, and for the last few months has been the biggest kind of a sensation on the Hammerstein Roof Garden in New York.
One of the largest monkey companies ever brought together, and all of them trained to give an entire performance, without any humans on the stage, they clown and a number of others, all of which are amusing.

FUNERAL OF JAMES P. WALSH.

Funeral services were held last Friday morning for Mr. James P. Walsh, 31 years of age, who died at the home of his mother, on Main street, with High Mass at St. Mary's Church, Rev.
Fr. Keleher officiating, assisted by Rev.
Fr. George Mullin of Lowell, cousin of the deceased.

The bearers were: William Sweeney,
Alex. McKenzie, Jeremiah Foley,
Michael Queenin, Owen Queenin and Charles Dennen.

There was a profusion of beautiful floral offerings, including:
Large pillow inscribed "James," from family.

Bouquet of roses and pinks, Mr.
Thomas McCall, Winchester.
Spray of white pinks and sweet peas, an unknown friend.

Pillow inscribed "Our Friend," Michael and Owen Queenin Spray of Easter lilies, Winchester
Telephone operators.

Pillow inscribed "F. of A.," Foresters of America.

Spray of purple and white asters,
Mr. and Mrs. Manning, Cambridge.

Spray of pink carnations, William Sweeney.

Bouquet of pinks and white carnations, Miss Mzie Kerrigan, Woburn.
Spray of pink roses, Mr. and Mrs.
Sandy McKenzie of Winchester.

Spray of white roses, Mr. and Mrs.
Dennen of Arlington.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The church will be open every Sunday during the summer for morning service at 10.30 a. m. In the absence of the rector, the Rev. C. P. Mills will be in charge. He will be assisted in August by Mr. John Hamilton Robinette.
The address of the rector and other details in regard to ministerial supply, etc., will be in the hands of the wardens, and also at Mr. Arnold's store, Common street.

I came in on the train from West Medford last week with Mr. and Mrs. James F. Lord, the latest bride and groom of Dreamworld. Mrs. Lord, who was Miss Marion Lawson, was charmingly gowned in a blue tailored suit with tan shoes, a broad sailor hat of blue straw, trimmed with blue, and wore a dainty dark red tie. They walked over to the North Station "L," and I presume took a train uptown for lunch before going down to Egypt.—Boston Journal.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A gentleman, whose long residence entitles him to be called a Winchesterite, some time since had the misfortune to lose his wife, who was really the most agreeable woman The Spectator ever had the pleasure of knowing. In the course of a few weeks he ordered a monument to be placed over her last resting place, with this inscription following the name and customary formula: "She was the best of company." With such a marital tribute to her mental and moral worth, any woman ought to rest in peace.

The all comprehensive truth, to the sway and application of which there is scarce a single exception, that every privilege or enjoyment is subject to some qualifying abatement or element of annoyance, has found plenty of illustration in Winchester this summer.
In the experiences visited by the pest of stinging and virulent insects. One of the most coveted experiences of the sojourner in town for the summer, is to sit with a friendly group in the evening, after a heated and busy day in Boston, in large and comfortable seats upon a broad piazza. Hardly any spot in Winchester this season has offered any immunity. The expected and coveted pleasure has for more than a hundred of The Spectator's friends turned out to be what, in various forms and irreverence of speech, has been pronounced "a perfect misery." And what shall
The Spectator say of experiences within doors? By courtesy of clan or species, the mosquitoes, with an acute deference, seem to surrender opportunity to the flies, when family or friends gather around the dining table. The food spread there does not suit the dainty taste of the mosquitoes, as does the flesh and blood of those who are partaking of it. So they allow the flies to have their chance and wait their own opportunity. The night watches, the break of early dawn, gives them that opportunity in the bed chambers of Winchester. How gleefully and vigorously do they use it, as they wind their merry horns, and dropping their prophesies upon the flesh, bore till they reach the red juice of their revels. In vain does the suffering Winchesterite seek to protect himself. He deals a blow which might knock down a horse, at where he thinks the daring assailant may be. He is not there, but at the moment somewhere else, with a change of time. A wretched victim is ready to listen to the prescription that the best protection is to be found for a grown Winchesterite in having in the chamber a healthful child in a crib. Other prescriptions are to hang a piece of red beef over one's head by a string from the ceiling or to strew the pillow with pennyroyal. Meanwhile let the sufferer in bed waiting for his assailants reflect on the small agencies of great miseries!

The Spectator believes our faithful work horses will in a few years be enjoying their millennium. Poor miserable beasts! How soon of them must long "to go," even some of them right here in cultured Winchester. Every humane man and woman in Winchester longs for that day when this community and all other communities will be rid of at least one source of suffering for this class of dumb animals. As a general thing, the masters of work horses in Winchester are considerate of their dumb servants, but hardly a day passes that The Spectator does not see one or more cases of overloading or overdriv-ing thereby causing these creatures pain and anguish that amounts to nothing short of torture. No one who travels upon the most travelled thoroughfares of this town can be blind, if they are indifferent, to this phase of the situation. The motor wagons now coming into use in all departments of teaming are, The Spectator asserts, the salvation of our equine Knights of Labor, and the sooner every person having much heavy teaming to do adopts the motor method of transportation the better it will be for man and beast.

Many Winchesterites pay large sums of money in order to build houses that have fine, large rooms, and, because of bad taste in decorating their apartments, counteract the fine effect their money has gained. It is the experience of The Spectator that there is opportunity for the use of a great deal of ingenuity in decorating the walls of a room to affect its apparent size. An apartment is always enlarged in appearance by light paper. If the walls are light and the ceiling dark, the effect would be along, wide and squatty room, whereas if the walls are dark and the ceiling light the apparent height of the room is increased. The same principles applied in arranging the perspective of a picture would be appropriately used in producing desired effects in a room, though the chief feature of such effects is merely that of shade. The Spectator has noted that the border used in papered rooms also has an influence on apparent height, the extremely wide border that has been occasionally used in Winchester of late, looking like wainscoting pushed up under the ceiling, makes the apartment look very limited in height. Whether the decorations are cheap or very expensive there is no reason why every

A Winchesterite of The Spectator's acquaintance does not look at a salary as he does at a wheelbarrow. He thinks it ought to be drawn in advance.

The Spectator is very proud of Winchester's fire department and believes it as efficient as any to be found in a town of like size in the Commonwealth.
Every time The Spectator sees the apparatus responding to an alarm (which fortunately is seldom) not only is he thrilled at the fine showing made by men and horses but is genuinely fascinated. There is something fascinating in seeing the handsome, spirited animals galloping along, straining every muscle, as if they knew how important it is to lose not a single moment in getting to a fire. And one thing that impresses The Spectator is the kindness the drivers and men in general show to the animals in their charge. Winchester is to be congratulated that it has such a fine fire department. It is also to be congratulated that its firemen and firehorses understand each other so well.

"A young man has reached an important turning point in his life when he goes down a side street to avoid meeting a man who has loaned him money," said a prominent Winchesterite to The Spectator the other day.

A Winchester minister of the gospel with whom The Spectator is very intimate thinks the wise reading of the daily newspaper is a symmetrical educa-
graph of human life, he says. He says he even reads the advertisements and find in them wit, power and a so the pathos of life. He says the newspapers have given him many living sermons for which he is very thankful. When The Spectator sees a clergyman who wisely reads the daily paper, he is sure he is growing in grace, at least on that spot where it is thought the average minister is sadly deficient.

Curious Habits of Spiders.

The water spider carries air down with it when it dives. Dr. McCook saw one remain forty-five minutes under the water. One water spider builds a nest under the water attached to the stem of some plant and in the shape of a diving bell, with the opening downward. It fills this bell with air by taking down a bubble at a time. Coming to the surface, it incloses an air bubble under its body and instantly descends. Getting under the nest, the bubble is allowed to escape into it, and this process continues until the nest is full of air. The spider then lays its eggs there, enclosed in a cocoon, and leaves them to grow in this underwater palace, safe from all flying foes. When these water spiders are seen under water they look like little balls of shining silver. Little bubbles of air seem to cling among the hairs of their bodies. As spiders, like insects, breathe the air at little holes along the whole length of the body, they can easily make use of these bubbles of air for breathing.—London Standard.

Drinking Cups of the Ancients.

Silver cups made by such famous workmen as Myron, Myos and Mentor were preferred to gold cups. They were very beautifully engraved and of workmanship which has never been equaled. When gold cups were enriched with precious stones they sometimes became pears of the engraved silver vessels. Of all sizes, shapes and designs were these drinking cups, and their value was measured more by their form and design than the material of which they were made. Some had two handles, some only one and some none at all. They were large and small, low and tall, narrow and oblong. They were purely the product of the varying fancy of that prodigious age, which seemed to scorn uniformity. The early Greeks and Romans drank hot water from cups, as we now drink coffee and tea, these beverages being unknown to them. Coffee originated with the Assyrians, and tea was first used by the Chinese at a very early age.—National Food Magazine.

Curzon and Davitt.

Once in the house of commons, when George Curzon was making some defense as to alleged harsh treatment by Turks of Cretan prisoners, he was interrupted by a query from Mr. Davitt, "Were these prisoners handcuffed?" Quick as lightning came the reply, "Yes, and some honorable gentlemen ought to be no strangers to handcuffs." This was of course the signal for a violent parliamentary tempest. A day or two after Mr. Curzon went up to Swift MacNeill and expressed his sorrow at having used the expression and his desire to apologize for it in the most public manner. "Why," he said, "I thought the interruption came from you and that you, of course, would not mind. I was horrified when I discovered that it was Davitt who had made the remark. Of course I would not be capable of joking on the subject of imprisonment and handcuffs with a man who had endured nine long years of penal servitude."—London Globe.

Making Men's Hats.

Men's hats, stiff or soft alike, are made from the fur of the rabbit. A copper cone, whose very top is more or less the shape of the crown of a derby hat and whose sides are covered with minute holes, is revolved very swiftly over a suction fan. The fur is fed on to the cone, and the suction and the swift revolution draws this against the cone in the form of a fur cone very far in shape from the finished hat, but which rapidly becomes a finished hat by sizing, shrinking, shaping and trimming. Individual skill of a very high order counts for everything.—Argonaut.

A French Joke.

Two tramps on the banks of the Seine:
"How can we raise the wind?"
"I have it. You throw yourself in, and I'll jump in after you and take you out. Then I'll get the reward from the Humane society."
"Good! Here goes!" He jumped into the water, and after floundering about for some time he was getting tired out. "Well," he asked, "how long are you going to remain sitting there? Why don't you come in and take me out?"
"Because I think I might make more out of you in the morgue."—Paris Journal.

An Optimist.

"I am going to buy a raven," a gentleman informed his neighbor.
"Really?" rejoined the latter. "What for?"
"I want to see if these birds really do live 900 years, as people say!"—Westminster Gazette.

Ready Excuse.

Beggar—Say, boss, won't you help a poor fellow out of a job? Junkie—Gracious! Can't you get out of it without my help? Friend you're sick or something.—Philadelphia Press.

The Insanity.

"How was he acquitted?"
"Insanity."
"He doesn't seem crazy."
"He isn't. It was the jury that was off."—Kansas City Times.

His Task.

George—With the assurance of your love I could conquer the world. Grace—That will not be necessary. All you have to do is to conquer papa.—London Tri-Bits.

Every real and searching effort at self improvement is of itself a lesson of profound humility.

Getting Ready For a Fresh Start.

Gwendolyn de Courtenay, the handsome society favorite, was nervously agitated. Even a blind baggage car could see that. She paced up and down in front of the large cheval glass in her room. Evidently she was greatly aggrieved over something. Finally her high strung nerves got churned up to such a pitch that she lost control over herself and began to clutch and tear wildly at her hair, pulling it out in large handfuls.

Your sympathetic nature is around and you cry: "The poor woman is temporarily insane. Why doesn't some one stop her before she does herself bodily injury? She must be in terrible mental agony to stand the pain of pulling her hair out by the roots."

But list! Be not too lavish with your sympathy, friend. Up to now Gwendolyn has pulled off only fourteen pounds of puffs, three miles of interlocking switches and a few detachable curls. She has some distance to go yet before she touches the real, cross your heart hair. Gwendolyn is merely distracted because her maid cannot get her floating hirsute equipment on in becoming array. She is simply getting ready for a fresh start.—Puck.

Seeds as Aeroplanes.

It is strange that man has been so long in learning to fly. Nature in the seed has for eons shown him a good working aeroplane. The seed of the silver maple and the ash often fly in the summer forty or fifty yards. The seed's wing is an extension of the pod. When the seed breaks loose from its bough the wing whirls rapidly round the body as an axle, its front edge striking the air higher than the rest of its surface and thus producing air pressure in an upward direction that carries the tiny aeroplane on and up in Wright-like flight. The linden seed clusters show an aeroplane of tremendous strength. The seeds hang on a single stem from the center of one large wing. When this seed aeroplane sets forth the wing revolves and points upward, bearing on its weight of seeds with a power greater than any bird puts forth. The box elder, the pine and the catalpa are other trees whose existence is perpetuated by the aeronautical skill of their little seeds.—New York Press.

Why Women Are Afraid of Mice.

In all ages women were supposed to be more prone to superstition than men, and who knows but that the dread of a woman on the appearance of a rat or a mouse may not be due, in part at least, to an ancient superstition which has traveled down the ages from the time when our remote forefathers believed that rats and mice were the souls of the departed? Numerous are the stories which made the ancients believe that souls were rats and mice, and some of these stories are very curious.

"In Thuringia, at Saalfeld," says Baring-Gould, "a servant girl fell asleep while her companions were shelling nuts. They observed a little red mouse creep from her mouth and run out of the window. One of the fellows present shook the sleeper, but could not wake her, so he moved her to another place. Presently the mouse ran back to the former place and dashed about, seeking the girl. Not finding her, it vanished. At the same moment the girl died."

The Oyster Shell.

Every one who has handled an oyster shell must have noticed the successive layers overlapping each other. These are technically named shots, and each one marks a year's growth, so that by counting them the age of the oyster can be determined. Up to the time of its maturity—that is, when four years of age—the shots are regular and successive, but after that time they become irregular and are piled one upon another so that the shell becomes bulky and thickened. Fossil oysters have been seen of which each shell was nine inches thick, whence they may be guessed to be more than 900 years old.

Cornmeal as Food.

Cornmeal is one of the most healthful, nourishing foods and the best bone, muscle and tissue builder of all the breadstuffs. Our forefathers fought their wars and tamed the wilderness upon a corn bread diet, and they were a hardy, heady set, many of whose examples we might profitably follow. Of course cornmeal to be perfect should be ground upon stones turned by water power. The steam ground roller mill product of today has some advantages in the way of economy of production, but it kills the delicacy of the grain, so 'tis said by some.—Dallas News.

Always There.

Mrs. Binks (reading)—John, I read where a scientific expedition explored an extinct crater 2,000 feet deep and at the bottom they found the bones of a prehistoric woman. How do you account for it? Mr. Binks—Oh, that's easily accounted for, Martha. You know a woman is at the bottom of everything.—New York Globe.

Equine Pride.

Lord Chur-chumouse.—That horse I had of you is all right, but he doesn't hold his head high enough. Dealer—Oh, that's 'is pride, m'lud. 'E'll hold it up when 'e's paid for.—London Telegraph.

Ability.

Irate Passenger—I believe you're driving over every stone in the road. Driver—Waal, sir, it takes a pretty good driver to hit 'em all.—Boston Herald.

A good and faithful judge prefers the honest to the expedient.—Horace.

Bonner's Famous Advertisement.

When the New York Ledger was wavering on the brink of failure Robert Bonner, the proprietor, sent to the New York Herald a brief advertisement, to be set up in a single line. So Greeleyesque was Mr. Bonner's handwriting that the advertising manager interpreted the directions as ordering that the copy be run in full page, which instructions he obeyed, though marveling greatly. The Herald came out the next morning with one whole page devoted to the crisp advertisement to read the Ledger's new story. The effect upon Mr. Bonner was almost fatal, first from chagrin at the thought of the possible bill, then from amazement as subscriptions began to pour in and finally from satisfaction as they continued to flood the office until the fortune of the publication was made. The novel though accidental device had struck the public's fancy. Mr. Bonner was hailed as the pioneer of a new and daring theory of exploitation, and the advertisement gained tenfold currency by being commented upon as a feature of the news.—Collier's.

Trumpeting Ancient German Choral.

The most notable ornament of Rothenburg is the Rathaus, which no artist who visits the town fails to sketch. It is of a most imposing beauty, consisting of an older gothic building dating back to the middle of the thirteenth century, with an elaborate renaissance facade. It was from its darkening dungeons that many of the instruments of torture in the museum at Nuremberg came, for Rothenburg was not tender in its treatment of prisoners. The earlier building has a high square tower crowned with a bell cupola, where thrice a week the choir of St. Jakob's, a reverend church lying within its shadow, painfully climbs, armed with trumpets and other musical instruments. The sweet Lutheran chorale is repeated four times as the musicians respectively face the four points of the compass, and the ceremony, so in keeping with the quaint, old time life of the town, is one of the visitor's unforgettable memories of Rothenburg.—Rothenburg (Bavaria) Letter to Vogue.

He Was Superstitious.

He was a big, hearty workman, and when a spare, thin little man entered the tram car, stumbled and sat upon him he said in reply to the little man's apologies:

"Don't trouble, sir; it's all right. There's no harm done."

When we saw the big man a week later we were shocked at the change in him. He seemed to have shrunk to half his former bulk.

"Why, whatever's the matter?" we exclaimed.

"You remember that little man who sat on me in the train last week, sir?"

"Yes."

"Well, it's all through 'im I'm wastin' away like this!"

"Preserve us!" we cried. "How? Why?"

The shrunken giant wrung his hands in despair.

"I found out next day," he groaned, "that 'e was the coroner. An' 'e sat on me! I'm shupershtishus, an' it's lookin' ahead I am. O Lor!"—London Mail.

The First Postage Stamp.

The black penny postage stamp of 1840, the first stamp ever issued, was distinctly unpopular and gave place to a red one after a year's existence. Great Britain was the first country in the world to use postage stamps, and the English schoolboy of the period seems to have regarded them as a nuisance rather than a national benefit. "Have you tried the stamps yet?" wrote one of them to his sister in the year 1840. "I think they are very absurd and troublesome. I don't fancy making my mouth a glue pot, although, to be sure, you have the satisfaction of kissing the back of her gracious majesty the queen. This is, however, I should say, the greatest insult the present ministry could have offered the queen."—London T. P.'s Weekly.

Fields and Orchards of France.

From Avignon to Lyons the railroad runs through a rich country, the fruit trees covered with blossoms and the forests assuming their robes of green, altogether making a picture beautiful to look upon. From Lyons to Paris the orchards, the vineyards and the growing grain delight the eye of the traveler from oriental deserts and remind him of Macaulay's poem:

Now let there be the merry sound of music and of dance

Through the cornfields green and sunny

Vines, oh, pleasant land of France!

For truly it is a pleasant land.—Paris Letter to Denver Post.

Consideration.

"You say you once had a home?"

"Dat's what I had," answered Phodding Pete.

"Why didn't you do something to make your folks comfortable and happy?"

"I did. I left!"—Washington Star.

In Accord With the Weather.

Mrs. Passe (to her maid)—How is the weather today, Marie? Maid—Fresh and windy, madam. Mrs. Passe—Very well, you will please put a healthy dash on my cheeks this morning. I am going out.—New York Life.

He Told Her.

"Tell me frankly, sir, what do you think of my daughter's voice?"

"Well, madam, I think she may have a brilliant future in water color painting."—Paris Figaro.

It's when a fellow thinks he is out of sight that he feels all eyes are upon him.—Pittsburg Gazette.

President Disliked.

President Taft has deceived the stand-patters grossly. In other words, when he spoke for tariff revision downward, he really meant it. No wonder that they are pained and angry, says the Charlestown Enterprise. The blow is almost like that of perfidy, in their opinion. The President believes in being honest with the people, and that the tariff question should not be a sectional issue, but of benefit to the whole country.

A Pleasing Reduction.

The large reduction of the tax rate from $17.40 to $16.20 is unquestionably very pleasing to the inhabitants. A decline of $1.20 on $1000 will perhaps be the largest of any city or town in the State for this year. In fact the majority of rates thus far noted show increases. It is to be hoped that this will not lead to lavish expenditures, for if it should, then it would be apt to serve as a check on conditions that have made this reduction possible, through the erection of costly houses and the coming here of desirable families.

Country Loses Millions Yearly.

Over 2,500,000 of the 17,000,000 school children enrolled in the United States have during the school year just closed, been systematically instructed concerning the dangers of consumption and the methods for its cure and prevention, according to a statement issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Besides the 2,500,000 children thus regularly instructed in their schools, the National Association estimates that fully 1,000,000 more have received instruction at the various tuberculosis exhibits held in all parts of the country or in separate classes and organizations.

A number of investigations conducted in various parts of the world show that a large percentage of the children in the public schools have tuberculosis before they are eighteen. That a larger number of them do not die, is due to the fact that healthy children are able to resist the attack of the consumption germ. On account of the prevalence of the disease among children, the National Association considers their education to be of prime importance.

In Boston, a special commission which recently investigated the subject, found that over 5,000 school children in that city alone had positive cases of tuberculosis. In New York, a recent study showed over 25,000 tuberculosis children in the schools. On the basis of these and other investigations, it is estimated by certain authorities that there are nearly 1,000,000 school children in the United States today, who will probably die of tuberculosis before they reach the age of eighteen. This would mean that the public schools of the country are paying annually about $7,500,000 for the education of children who will die before they reach the age of eighteen. At least one-half of this sickness, and possibly three-fourths of it, could be prevented, if the municipal and state governments would adopt better and more hygienic methods of controlling and teaching the children, and if the public in general were alive to the need for tuberculosis prevention.

The National Association declares that the best way to wipe out consumption among the children is to educate both them and their parents so that they will know that tuberculosis is a communicable disease, that it can be cured and that it must be prevented.

Voters Like His Independence.

The Lowell Courier Citizen, which is inclined to criticize the methods and procedures of Congressman McCall, in his attitude towards the Republican party and affairs in general, printed an article which has been quoted in other papers entitled "McCall Right for Once." The quotation is as follows:—

"Whatever be the logic of Mr. McCall's present argument, we believe he is perfectly right in saying that an income tax isn't desirable. It isn't that the theory is bad, but simple that in practice it would not work the justice that its advocates assume. If it only would, no argument could be made against it, and Mr. McCall would be rightly criticised for standing against it—as usual, among the few. The trouble isn't with the principle that 'the more a man has the more he ought to pay in taxes'; it is simply with the fact that an income tax wouldn't lead to that admirable result with such certitude as its sponsors allege. On the contrary it is bound to be merely a further step along a road which we have already sampled quite enough to recognize its undesirability. Don't be too severe on Mr. McCall this one time; he's on the right track, for once, even if he is following his usual roll of minority star."

It is Mr. McCall's independence in voting on measures before Congress that has made him so popular with the voters in this district. The Courier Citizen might also have mentioned the fact that he is working tooth and nail for New England's interests in the tariff fight. The party lash has no effect on Mr. McCall's voting.

MYSTIC VALLEY

TROLLEY CLUB.

The trip for July 29 was to Salisbury and Hampton Beaches. Starting on the 6:50 Reading car, transfer was made to the 7:30 Lawrence car, arriving at Andover Square at 8:07. The Haverhill car left at 8:10 and arrived at the Bridge just before 9. The steamer Merrimack started at 9:10 and arrived at Black Rocks at 11:15. In former years the beach cars ran to the boat landing, but last winter's storms washed considerable sand over the tracks, and the railroad company has been so busy with more important work, that the track has not been put in running order, and a walk of half a mile over the hot sand is an unpleasant feature of the trip. However the car was reached at last and at 11:45 the party arrived at the Cushing House, Salisbury Beach. Dinner was served at 12:15 and as the land breeze was quite hot, car was taken at 1:15 toward Hampton Beach, transferring at the North End to the car of the N. H. Traction Co. and arriving at the beach at 1:45. When the Hampton river was crossed a strong easterly wind prevailed and refreshed the travellers, but as home was far away it was necessary to turn back at once.

The trip here was alternately in New Hampshire and Massachusetts, a considerable part of the way through the woods and the good speed of the car made a fine breeze. Haverhill was reached at 3:30. After a short wait the Andover car was boarded and the return trip brought the party through Reading to the Arlington car and all were at home at 6:15. Car and boat fares $1.40. Dinner 75 cents. Incidentals ad libitum.

The only other trip this season will be on August 12, for Nashua and Canobie Lake, starting on Lowell car from the centre at 7:55 a. m.

85TH BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Susan V. Carter, one of the most respected ladies of the town, quietly observed her 85th birthday Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. R. Cowdery, who gave a special dinner party in honor of the occasion. Four generations of children graced the occasion, and the affair was of a most pleasant nature. Mrs. Carter is in the enjoyment of good health, takes much interest in every day affairs, and enjoys life to the fullest.

The above statement indicates that the school savings system inaugurated in grades three to six, inclusive, last December and January, has shown its utility and that its place in the educational system of Winchester is assured. In order that the column headings may be clearly understood it may be said that "Pupils" means the number of pupils in the rooms mentioned, "Accounts" means the total number of pupils making deposits in each room, "Bank books" gives the total number of individual bank books held in each room, "Total deposits in savings bank" includes the total amount that has been deposited by pupils in the Winchester Savings Bank through the school savings system, "Balance in school account" includes the total of individual accounts of less than one dollar now credited to pupils in the office of Superintendent Heron, the lump sum being deposited in Middlesex County National Bank, and "Withdrawn" includes all amounts withdrawn by pupils and not deposited in the Savings bank.

It will be observed that over 50 per cent of the pupils in grades III to VI, inclusive, have made deposits, that over 50 per cent. of those have made deposits and over 31 per cent. of the pupils in these grades now have savings bank books; that in several rooms over half of the pupils have savings bank books (one room, Miss Lyons', Principal of the Chapin School, reaching 100 per cent.), that the average amount now on deposit after a period of six months is $1.35 and, what does not appear in the table, that many boys and girls have over ten dollars to their credit.

This is worth while. As has previously been stated in these columns the children are trained in accuracy, in neatness, in business forms, and in reasonable thrift. The extra work for teachers has not been felt to be a burden and the foundation has been laid for the economic independence of many future citizens. If due regard is taken, as doubtless will be done, that thrift be not exaggerated into sordid acquisition, parents may well encourage their children to take part in this movement.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My! My! What a funny world, as Hal Coffman says. The newspapers are very much disturbed because the returns do not show how much the various lobbyists got and who paid them, and yet the press reporters at the State House know all about it. Numerous big interests say they paid their man only his regular annual salary. Why, of course, but for said salary he must accomplish results and he pays his understrappers out of said annual salary and said annual salary is made ample to cover all such pre, con and after expenses. The lobby act is not only a farce, but worse than that is rank hypocrisy. Big interests must have men to look after their affairs during the legislative season and proper expenditures need not fear publicity. Improper ones should not be permitted. There is little corruption in this state anyway.

Disraeli once said, "Public health is the foundation upon which rests the happiness of the people and the power of the state, and that is why I consider that the first duty of a Statesman is the care of public health." What is our local board doing or planning to do on this line? Would a year round public bath house help? How about our ponds and rivers. Are you fully awake to the possibilities for good of your department? The public is not, of course, but it will back you up on this line.

Without the details before me, particularly the overlay, it certainly looks as if the Ap. Com. would have quite a problem before it to decrease the tax rate again next year. There will be toward that end, $8500 less debt to be paid and increased valuation, but against it will be less corporation tax receipts, on account of the new law, and, in all probability, increased appropriations. The outside taxes are not likely to be larger, in the aggregate, but our per centage will be increased because of our greater valuation. However, we can now afford to issue bonds or notes, for proper purposes, and the certain increase in valuation will meet them, so that the amount to be raised by taxation can be kept down thereby. It looks as if the water rates would take care of that department. Sewer works will be needed if any considerable construction is called for. Also grade crossing bonds, if and when—New Central Fire Station ditto. Some school-house enlargements soon, probably. Bridges and drainage (main) will be needed, and are proper subjects for bond or note issues. So are new heavy rock roads. It would be wise for the Ap. Com. with the Treasurer and Auditor to get out a table looking ahead several years and print it in the yearly town reports.

The Metropolitan Improvements Commission report just out may be obtained at 20 Beacon street and is well worth getting, being full of matter and maps. Of Winchester it says, "Forest street from Washington to Cross street should be widened and straightened." "Forest street should be improved in profile." "Cross street should be widened." "The northern end of Highland avenue should be relocated to secure a proper gradient." "A branch road should be built to connect Highland avenue with Border road of the Fells Reservation near South dam." "Judkins pond should be either filled in or permanently reserved. At present it serves to handicap the development of all the streets upon its borders." It has general remarks about street improvements all over the district as well as specific ones for each city and town. It is funny that it should pitch upon two streets, one of which we have just rebuilt this year and the other now building. (Cross street and Highland avenue) as needing changes. I think myself that the Selectmen should have consulted with the Highway Commission on Highland avenue, but such things will never be done until we have a board of public-works, and the town will continue to suffer from the lack of such a board until it is established. Why not do it now?

"10 VACATION PARADISE."

Each year sees Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island becoming more popular as a vacation land, and thousands now go where only a few once went. The tourist can hardly comprehend the beauty that nature has showered on this peninsular and island, and is amazed at the grandeur of the rugged rock bound coast and the miles and miles of beautiful valleys and fertile farms.

The ocean voyage from Boston to Halifax and Charlottetown is full of rest and pleasure, and can only be had in connection with the large and comfortable steel steamers of the Plant Line, sailing direct every Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Maud and Mildred Gurney, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Gurney of Winchester Park, are to spend the first two weeks of August in Maine.

A party of young people enjoyed a very pleasant day on a trolley ride to Revere Beach yesterday. The party was under the direction of the Misses Marion Sullivan, Lillian Morse and Mary Kelley. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. John J. Sullivan.

RELIEF FOR ASPARAGUS GROWERS.

For many years asparagus growers have been put to great trouble and expense in protecting their beds from the ravages of a destructive beetle which feeds upon the foliage. Dr. H. T. Fernald, entomologist of the Experiment Station in Amherst, has discovered a parasite which feeds upon the eggs of this beetle. In its perfect form the parasite is a minute fly. It appears to lay one of its own eggs in each of the eggs of the beetle, and the larva lives upon the contents of the egg of the beetle. The work of the parasite appears to have been extremely effective this season. In localities where it has heretofore been necessary to spray repeatedly with poisons, very few beetles could be found and no spraying whatever has been necessary.

It is of course possible that in some seasons the parasite may not effectively hold the asparagus beetle in check, but the insect which has been at work this season must apparently hereafter prove a most effective ally in the fight against it.

The Experiment Station has published a circular on this parasite which may be obtained by addressing, Mass. Agr. Exp. Station, Amherst, Mass.

BOSTON LETTER

Relation of High Prices to the Gold Supply

CHARTER PLANS OF INTEREST

Boston Democracy May Take O'Neil, Keliher or Fitzgerald—All Are in the Field at Present

The decided increase in the prices of various commodities in the United States has caused no little comment among consumers for several years. Among statisticians and students of political economy the matter has been given careful study in an effort to locate the cause. With many people there has been a strong suspicion that it was due in part at least to the control of the market by trusts, to the large increase in the wages paid to labor, and to the diminution in the area of free lands open to settlement, and thereby a curtailment of production, and to various other causes.

Among scientific investigators, however, there has all along been a conviction that this increase in prices has been very largely due to the enormous growth in the supply of gold and money. During the last ten or fifteen years there have been new gold fields discovered, not only in Alaska and the British Northwest, but in many other sections of the world.

Even within the last five years the world's stock of gold has increased 50 percent, and within the last twenty-five years it has more than doubled. The process of piling up gold from the bowels of the earth has evidently disturbed all standards of value. Anyone who can remember no longer than fifteen years ago will be able to take a backward glance to recall the moderate prices which then prevailed in comparison with the prices of 1909.

An Era of Low Prices

Between 1893 and 1897 was an era of low prices. This was no doubt due in part to the industrial, business and financial depression which prevailed during that period. Prices had begun to increase as far back as 1892, but there was a recession covering the period during the life of the Wilson tariff bill, enacted during the administration of Grover Cleveland and a Democratic senate and house. Along many lines prices then were not more than one-half or two-thirds what they are today. With the repeal of the Wilson bill and the return of normal conditions the prices of commodities began again to take an upward trend and have continued to the present time in a ratio more or less commensurate with the increase in the world's stock of gold.

In some quarters this increase in the prices of commodities has been imputed to the Dingley tariff. It should, however, be borne in mind that this price increase is by no means confined to the United States, but extends to every civilized country in the world. Therefore the tariff cannot properly be charged with it. The same phenomenon was observed after the enormous discoveries of gold in California and Australia in 1849 and has followed every abnormal and world-wide production of gold for many years if not during all time.

With the superficial observer, however, it is much easier to explain an increase of prices by charging it to the workings of the tariff measure or the manipulation of trusts.

The Increase in Gold

Only ten years ago the amount of gold money reported in the United States was $25,000,000, while at the present time it is $1,613,000,000 in circulation or in bullion form here. This is an increase of about 65 percent, and the increase of the world's supply of gold is practically the same. The circulating medium, therefore, has increased much faster than our material wealth and this condition is manifested in the present high prices of commodities of all sorts.

Many scientific investigators in the past have advocated a different money standard to the one now in use. It has long been recognized that great fluctuations have occurred in the volume of money from decade to decade and this has led to the proposition that a medium of exchange be established based upon a certain number of the more stable commodities, such as steel, wheat, corn, etc., that is to say, that a dollar shall have the power to purchase at all times a certain quantity of the staple products of the world. Such a standard of values could not then be manipulated or be liable to the fluctuations which which now so frequently occur under a metallic standard.

Boston Municipal Campaign

Interest in the municipal campaign in Boston is being aroused unusually early owing to the new charter and the question of which plan shall be adopted by the citizens. Today plan No. 1, so-called, providing for the convention method of nominating candidates, is most in favor. Plan No. 2 is the one favored by the reformers, as opposed to the politicians. This would mean the nomination of candidates by direct popular vote, and as some think turn the party machinery over to an irresponsible and unthinking mob.

The reformers hope to carry their plan through, and they have the support of some of the newspapers, but the chances are very much against such a plan. The party machines are all in favor of the convention plan, naturally because the caucus and convention constitute the tools of a party machine. And yet it is perhaps not a wholly selfish attitude. The direct nomination plan has yet to be fully tested and justified by time. In one western state it has resulted in the election by a Republican legislature of a Democratic senator. If that is one of its first fruits what may the system not produce later on? It is a good plan to go slow in fundamentally changing methods of government. Such changes if they come at all should come very gradually, and as a result of proved worth.

O'Neil and Keliher Candidates

The friends of Ex-Congressman Joseph H. O'Neil say that he is in the majority fight if the party wishes him to run. It also seems that Congressman John A. Keliher is willing to lead the Democracy to victory in case he shall be invited to do so. Both these men would run well. In fact they would either of them represent fairly well the ideals of the Boston Democracy—not the ideals of the Fitzgerald Democracy, however. They are good Democrats, and would either of them take the party following. O'Neil was displaced from congress by John F. Fitzgerald, and would doubtless be willing to pay old scores by defeating Fitz for mayor of Boston. Keliher has never been beaten as a nominee. He is a shrewd politician, a genial and taking makeup, as the boys would say is a good mixer, and makes friends easily. O'Neil is rather more grim and sedate, with a dignity since he went into the banking business which was foreign to him as a congressman.

The Turk's Wonderment.

Writing on the battle of Navarino, a contributor to the Cornhill Magazine tells this striking little story.

"In the morning the surface of the bay was covered with floating spars to which many poor wretches were clinging, calling for help in different tongues. Among them were many Greek prisoners still with manacles upon their limbs. An English lieutenant who was putting ashore a Turkish official was anxious to save some exhausted men who were clutching a scorching mast. 'We must rescue them,' he exclaimed hotly.

"'Bah!' answered the Turk. 'They are only common soldiers and will soon die.' Then he laughed.

"'Good heavens!' exclaimed the Englishman angrily. 'What is there to laugh at?'

"'Laugh!' said the Turk. 'By Allah, you English are a singular people! Yesterday you came into the bay while we were quietly at our coffee. You knocked our ships to pieces, killed or mangled all our men till the fleet is one vast slaughter house, and this morning you pretend to be so humane that you cannot pass a score of wounded soldiers without putting yourself out of your way to save them!'

Rothschild's Play.

Baron Henri de Rothschild was once involved in an amusing incident, in which a well known Parisian theatrical manager took part. The baron offered him a play, which he practically accepted without looking at. "Yes, my dear baron," he said, "of course I'll produce it, and I am very flattered you should have brought it to me first."

"Yes, but you must read it," insisted the baron, "for it may not suit you. I am not at all sure that it will. I will come again tomorrow, when you will have had time to look over it."

"All right, do," answered the manager.

Next day, when the baron presented himself, he was received with enthusiasm. "It's a masterpiece, my dear baron—a masterpiece. I shall be delighted to produce it, and as soon as possible. We'll have it next season."

On the manager's desk lay the roll of paper Baron de Rothschild had brought the previous day. He picked it up, unrolled it and showed it to the manager. All the pages were blank.

His Longest Engagement.

At the Army and Navy club in Washington one evening a group of officers, most of them young men, were swapping stories of various engagements during the war with Spain and the subsequent troubles in the Philippines.

Among the silent listeners was one grizzled veteran, a naval commander of national renown. It must have occurred to one of the young men that it was peculiarly ludicrous that officers should be holding forth with respect to their exploits while this old fellow sat silent in a corner. So, turning to the veteran, one of the young officers blithely asked:

"What was the longest engagement you ever participated in, admiral?"

"It lasted three years," said the old chap, without a suspicion of a smile, "and, worst of all, the young woman married another man!"—Washington Star.

BICYCLING IS COMING BACK.

What a Visit to G. W. Libby's Bicycle Repair Shop Indicates.

At 618 Main street there are indications that bicycling is coming back, "big."

Libby's repair shop is as busy as can be or rather the expert repairer there is.

Riders of former days make Libby's the rendezvous for, with the fine weather and fine roads and the snap prices in good second hand bicycles, at Libby's, there is no reason why everyone should not ride.

G. W. Libby—"G. W." is the pioneer in the bicycle business in Winchester.

Second Congregational Church.

11 a. m. Morning worship with preaching by the Rev. Philip Adams, of Carlisle, Mass.

Wednesday, 7.45 p. m. Prayer meeting.

It is hoped that all interested will make a special effort to be present at all these services.

THE READING CUSTOM LAUNDRY.

Over in Reading is the Custom Laundry which makes Reading famous.

While the machinery is there for doing voluminous work rapidly the hand work department is particularly noticeable. The hand work is where the laundry gets its name "Custom" Laundry.

His Nightcap Privilege.

Among the many strange privileges granted by English sovereigns to their subjects probably the most remarkable was the permission given to the Earl of Sussex by Queen Mary to wear his nightcap, or even two nightcaps, if he so wished, in her royal presence. The earl was a victim of colds in the head, which, like the law, are no respecters of persons, and as he considered catarrh in the head too heavy a price to pay for loyalty he petitioned the queen for permission to wear his nightcap in her presence.

The patent conceding this unique privilege is one of the most amusing in royal annals. It runs thus: "Know ye that we do give to our beloved and trusty cousin and counselor, Henry, earl of Sussex, Viscount Fitzwater and lord of Eremund and Purnell, license and pardon to wear his cap or nightcap or any two of them, at his pleasure, as well in our presence as in the presence of any other person or persons within this realm or any other place in our dominions wheresoever, during his life, and these our letters shall be sufficient warrant in his behalf."

About Matches.

John Walker, an English chemist, was experimenting in 1827 with an inflammable mixture for use on ship-board. One day Walker happened to rub a stick dipped in this mixture across a table. There was a report—the stick took fire, and because John Walker was no fool the match was born. The match's inventor put his wonderful invention on the market in April, 1827. The Walker match was as big as a lead pencil, and it cost a shilling a box. Because it could only be lighted by drawing it through a piece of sandpaper folded in two the Holden match supplanted it in 1833. The Holden was a tuffer, it ignited more easily than the Walker, so it put the Walker out of business. Sweden is today the home of the match industry. Sweden exports annually about 2,000,000,000 boxes of incomparable matches. But there is no statue to John Walker.—Exchange.

The Trinket Worm.

Among the novelties in nature is a small worm, called the trinket worm, characterized by this peculiarity, which gives rise to its name:

On the leaves of a wild vine, called the trinket vine, is found a small worm, which looks at first like a small piece of white thread and is almost motionless. If the leaf be taken off and placed under a glass case in the room this little thread will in the short space of twenty-four hours grow into a good sized caterpillar, beautifully colored and studded with golden spots. When matured it will climb up the glass, fasten one of its extremities to the glass roof, and, leaving the other hanging in the air, will curl itself into a variety of forms, presenting exquisite patterns for gold trinkets, such as earrings, brooches and clasps, changing from time to time in great variety, whence its name is derived.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand are, first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Fibres, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk fibres is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It never gets damp, and is extremely light and clean. The strong points of a Silk Fibre Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

Take the best look looking on this mattress, and if you love one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they need one.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse-hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resiliency and, for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

DR. MEREDITH'S UNFINISHED BOOK.

A Love Story With a Lesson on the Value of Hygienic Living.

By LOUISE J. STARKWEATHER.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

It was early morning in northern Maine, and the big porch of the summer hotel was dotted here and there with groups of people who were planning for the day's pleasure. The air was almost crisp in its freshness, and the tall man in clerical garb who was walking slowly down the length of the porch shuddered a little in the chilly atmosphere.

As he approached a particularly jolly party one of the women started toward him and said eagerly:

"Well, what have you decided, Dr. Meredith?"

"That you will have a beautiful day for your picnic," he replied, smiling a little and glancing toward the lake and the mountains about which the mists still lingered.

"Then it is not to be our picnic?" There was an answering smile upon her lips, but her eyes looked troubled.

"I thought perhaps you would go, after all. You know you half promised?"

"I am very sorry, Miss Curtis, but I have some work which I must do today."

"But, Dr. Meredith," Miss Curtis

LET THE "BLUE BELL" SIGN REMIND YOU

- ☐ Of the errand you forgot to execute, and a ready way out of the difficulty.
- ☐ Of the order you were asked to deliver for your firm or for your home.
- ☐ Of the engagement for which you have been delayed and of the quickest way of explaining your inability to meet it.
- ☐ Of the call you promised to make, but failed to make through forgetfulness.
- ☐ Of a hundred ways in which, to use a quaint phrase, you may "Let your head save your heels."

REMEMBER:

The sign indicates the presence of a Pay Station.

FROM ANY PAY STATION you may talk, at a reasonable charge, TO ANY OF 290,000 TELEPHONES connected with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's system in the four Northern New England states.

ALSO WITH TELEPHONES IN 30,000 CITIES AND TOWNS connected with the Long Distance lines of the great Bell system.

With such a convenience at hand is it fair to your friends to "borrow" their telephones? You are liable to impede their channels of communication by making their lines "busy" when others are trying to call them.

A CONFIDING CONSTABLE.

The Way He Helped the Housemaid Repel the Burglars.

A good story is told at the expense of a constable in rural England, says a writer in the London Telegraph. Not long ago a young and pretty housemaid arrived at the big house of the neighborhood, and it was observed that our friend's beat often took him in that direction. At first she seemed to resent his advances, but suddenly she changed altogether, and the course of true love appeared to run smooth—for a time.

One night he called rather later than usual. It was dark, and his fair one greeted him somewhat coolly, he thought.

His doubts, however, disappeared when she suddenly declared that she would take him into her confidence. She had overheard the particulars of a plot to break into the house and steal the plate.

"Now, Jim," she said, "here's a chance for promotion. The burglars knew where the plate was kept, so we've shifted it. What I want you to do is to get into the plate cupboard and wait till they come and open the door. Then you'll have 'em."

Jim jumped at the chance and half an hour later was concealed in the cupboard. The burglars came, as expected, and promptly got to work. The constable chuckled to himself as he heard the muffled whir of a tool on the outside of the cupboard door, and he grasped his staff and waited.

After some minutes' waiting he resolved to take a cautious peep. But the door was fast, securely screwed on the outside by the burglars.

When Jim eventually roused the house and was released from his prison on the burglars and plate, together with the pretty housemaid (a confederate), had disappeared. Moreover, the constable's position took a good deal of explaining away.

A Good Verdi Story.

Here is a charming story about Verdi. A farmer living in the depths of the country was very desirous to hear one of the illustrious composer's operas. So, better late than never, he took his ticket, traveled up to Milan and, securing a good seat, heard "Aida." The farmer was very much disappointed and wrote to Verdi to say so, adding that he did not like the music at all and that under these circumstances he hoped that Verdi would see the reasonableness of at once returning him his money. There were his railway fare, his ticket of admission and his supper at Milan, for which he inclosed the bill.

The grand old maestro entered fully into the humor of the situation. He wrote back a polite letter regretting that his music had failed to please and inclosed the railway fare and the price of admission, but he added that as the farmer would have to provide himself with supper at home he could not admit the justice of that part of his claim and he absolutely declined to pay for his supper at Milan.

USE SIGNALS OF INDIANS.

Army Experts Adopt Many Ideas of the Aborigines.

Just as the fighting men of the United States army many years ago took lessons from the Indians and from their methods of warfare devised and perfected the system of extended order or skirmish drills which have proved so effective, so the signal corps of the army has followed to a large extent the red men's methods of conveying information from point to point where there is not time to string telegraph or telephone lines or where wireless telegraph is unavailable.

As the Indians since prehistoric times have used columns of smoke in various combinations to signal the approach of an enemy or to transmit other messages, so the army signalmen have found most effective what are known as smoke bombs or smoke rockets. The former are fired from a small mortar, the latter in the same way as Fourth of July fireworks. Each when reaching a desired height, regulated by a fuse, bursts and liberates a pteric acid compound, which ignites and burns colored fires, one after the other, so arranged in the cartridge as to convey a message to those who may be watching for it. These cartridges are made in sections, each containing its own different colored fire, and threaded to screw together in a fraction of a minute.

These military fireworks, as they might aptly be called, are packed in hermetically sealed cans, much in the same manner as tinned meats, with the same sort of thumb-screw attachment for opening them quickly. In this way they keep indefinitely in any climate and have been found particularly effective in the campaigns in the Philippines.

While the navy does not employ so complicated a system of rocket and bomb signaling as does the army, every warship carries a supply of powerful rockets, which liberate on bursting a series of brilliant white stars for the purpose of calling attention to other signals which are transmitted by a system of combinations of colored electric lights strung from a masthead and operated from a switchboard much on the plan of a typewriter, called the Ardois system. But both branches of the service employ an odd sort of pistol, the invention of a naval officer, which shoots from cartridges "stars" similar to those of a roman candle of any color. The combinations which can be made in this manner practically are numberless.—Popular Mechanics.

FATE OF THE BRAAKE.

A Treasure Ship That Lies Buried Off Cape Henlopen.

Somewhere in deep water off Cape Henlopen lies over half a million in British gold, and how much more in gold and silver bars and plate and other treasures can only be guessed at. In 1708 the British privateer Braake sailed for the west Atlantic bearing enough gold to pay off all the English troops stationed in various parts of the new world. As the soldiers had not been paid in many months the sum was a large one.

Whether the captain of the Braake decided to turn pirate or whether he merely was showing excessive zeal in making war on all the enemies of England that he met on the high seas and intended to turn over his loot to the crown on his return will never be known, but the fact that the Braake took no prisoners and sank every prize goes a long way toward proving the piracy theory. The Braake captured a Spanish merchantman coming up from South American ports laden with rich tribute from the Spanish colonies there, transferred the precious cargo to her own hold and burned the vessel. Another Spanish ship bringing a church service of richly jeweled gold plate to a new world cathedral encountered the privateer and suffered the same fate. The next to fall a victim to the Braake's rapacity was a Frenchman carrying silks, spices, brandy and bars of silver. That, too, was sent to the bottom after it was despoiled.

The Braake was overtaken by a hurricane when nearing the American coast, was blown far out of her course and sank off Cape Henlopen. Several of the crew escaped in a small boat and reached land. Their tales of the treasure on the sunken ship caused several expeditions to be fitted out the following year, but nothing was brought up save pieces of the anchor chains and a cannon or two. During the last hundred years every effort to raise any part of the treasure has failed.

The last attempt was made by Captain Charles Adams, who fitted out a ship under the auspices of the navy department, but was unable to locate the wreck, which is probably by this time deeply submerged in the ooze and mud of the ocean bed.—New York Press.

The Eternal Question

That confronts the wage-earner and the salaried man is: "How can I manage to meet all my living expenses and save a little from month to month besides?"

You are likely to find it a hard thing to do if you are handicapped by paying rent. By all means

Buy a Home

A few hundred dollars will secure you possession and an equity in it. Every dollar you pay towards that home will be practically a dollar saved.

MAKING A SUCCESS

Financial success is founded mainly upon three essentials: The capacity for MAKING money, the faculty of SAVING money and shrewdness in INVESTING money.

The capacity for making money counts for nothing without the "backbone" to save a portion of it.

If you not only earn and save, but invest wisely, there is practically no limit to your money making success.

The most attractive investment today is Winchester real estate.

I invite you to call and go over the situation thoroughly with me.

Housekeepers should not forget that all the stores in town will be closed next Wednesday, Traders' Day.

W. A. Bradley of Main street left Monday of this week for a business trip South visiting all the principal cities east of the Mississippi river and will be away about seven weeks. Mrs. Bradley accompanies him.

Dr. Alfred G. Richburg, dentist, has succeeded to the large practice of Dr. Robert W. Cram, Boylston Chambers, 739 Boylston street, Boston. Dr. Richburg is a first class dentist, and his many friends in Winchester wish him success.

The trees on public and residential properties do not show moth ravages to any extent. This is because more effective methods are employed and the forces fighting them better organized. The woodlands all around are at the mercy of the moths and this is the eve of largely increased expenditure if they are to be saved. The elm leaf beetle is increasing rapidly and is as dangerous to that tree as are the gypsy and brown tail to trees generally. The elms must be saved or the attractiveness of New England towns will go with them.

It cost nothing extra to have the Stans sent to you each week at your vacation address.

REV. DANIEL J. KELEHER, P.D.,
Pastor of St. Mary's Church who is to go to Lowell.

TRANSFERRED TO LOWELL.

Rev. Daniel J. Keleher P.D. of St. Mary's church announced this morning at the 7.30 mass that he had been transferred to Lowell, where he is to be pastor of St. Peter's church in place of the late Rev. Fr. Roman.

Rev. Fr. Merritt of West Medford has been appointed to succeed Rev. Fr. Keleher in Winchester.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The progress of temperance reform in Japan is most encouraging. The influx of Western ideas for a time resulted in a steady increase of drunkenness and the undermining of the moral principles which had made Japan what it was. This rapid deterioration soon awakened the leaders to a need of radical temperance teaching, however, and as a result various organizations have been encouraged to push their work.

Especially helpful is the work in the schools. All Japanese are desirous of learning and the clear presentation of facts is sure to carry conviction. In this as in so much else, very much depends upon the teacher and that is why the Women's Christian Temperance Union has chosen some of its ablest representatives to carry their gospel to the island kingdom. The temperance people of Great Britain are rejoicing over a distinct step in advance taken by the British Board of education. It has recently promulgated a syllabus of lessons on temperance for pupils in the elementary public schools. Heretofore the only specific teaching in this line has been provided by the various temperance societies who have had lectures or teachers go from place to place where the school authorities would give them admittance. This new plan, while it does not make the teaching mandatory, will give temperance ideas a standing hitherto denied them and will pave the way for something better.

RESPECT THE FLAG.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It has been my pleasure to attend several of the band concerts that have been given on Manchester Field on Saturday afternoons. The programmes as a whole have been well chosen and with the idea of pleasing the public, and the execution of the selections are worthy of much praise. The last selection at every concert is the Star Spangled Banner, as it should be; but here I wish to call your attention, and ask you to help to bring before the people who listen to these concerts, that it would show proper respect to the United States flag, if one and all would stand while the band is playing the last selection, and everyone remove their hat during that time.

This reminds me of the parade of Edward W. Kinsley Post, G. A. R., one hundred and thirteen of Boston, Memorial Day, of which I am a member. On that day I saw more gentlemen remove their hats as the colors passed them than on any previous occasion, but I am sorry to say that on almost every occasion the parties raising their hats, were of foreign parentage. They were from where they respected the flag, and now live in a country whose flag they respect, and I hope the time is near at hand when American born citizens will always respect it, especially in public.

Yours truly,
W. WALLACE WAUGH.

SUBSCRIBER FOR 29 YEARS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I enclose $2.00 in payment for the 29th volume of the STAR. I have had the pleasure of taking and reading every number of my favorite paper from its first issue. And what is somewhat remarkable, I can say that I have never destroyed one copy of my STAR.

Yours truly,
J. L. SMITH.

TRADER'S AT BASS POINT.

Most Successful Outing Enjoyed on Wednesday.

The most successful Traders Day outing in the history of the town was that of Wednesday, when about 125 merchants visited Bass Point, Nahant, with their families and friends for a day of complete and satisfying pleasure.

Winchester center presented a most deserted appearance to visitors passing through the town, for everything was shut up tight. Although ample notice of the holiday had been given for weeks previous, a few of the "never on timers" were seen wandering about the square seeking to make a forgotten purchase. But they had to do without, even a trip to Woburn availing nothing, that place being closed as tight as Winchester, its merchants being on a similar excursion to the same place.

At the Point things were lively all day. About 100 of the merchants succeeded in arising early enough to take the 9.30 boat, and the rest struggled in during the day. The great attraction for all during the early hours was the ball game between the East Side and the West Side merchants. The East Side won the game 15 to 5 in five innings.

There is no doubt but what the West Sides would have walloped the East Sides if the game had run the full nine innings, as they were only drawing the East Siders on and would have beaten them to a frazzle. But Mr. Collins of the Woburn Athletics wanted the field for their sports and the game was called at the end of the fifth inning. It was easy to see at the beginning of the game that Bob Sullivan had it fixed with Prof. Jones just how he should render his decision.

Messrs. Dotten, Covel and Farrow carried off the honors for best all round playing. Attendance, 24,784 or less. Messrs. A. B. Mills, Frank H. Knight, Charles Marsh, and party viewed the game from the grand stand and pronounced it the best ball game they had seen that day.

Bowling and the numerous other attractions occupied the attention of many and not a dull minute was spent during the day.

A first class dinner was served at the Greenwood Cottage Cafe, manager Harry F. DeShone having been notified in time this year, and he certainly fulfilled his promise. A good time was enjoyed by all and everybody returned happily satiated with the days outing.

AFTER STONE.

Abraham Stone, alias Samuel Stone, who has been working the flim-flam game in this town and Woburn, and who was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction and appealed, was unable to procure bail and was taken to East Cambridge.

At the trial Inspector Dammy of Somerville appeared, and if Stone was bailed he intended to re-arrest him for similar offences in that city. As he was not bailed the inspector will probably get a capias and bring Stone from Cambridge jail to Somerville and have him answer the complaints there.

Also it is understood that the Malden and Cambridge police are waiting to get a hold on him.

This young man has got himself into a lot of serious trouble, and no doubt will regret what he has done. At the trial he said he had a sick wife and his wrong doing was that he might assist her.

MACLELLAN APPOINTED.

Albert E. MacLellan has been appointed rural carrier on route No. 1. Moses P. Richardson, the present carrier, resigned about two months ago, but has continued in the service up to the present time. The new carrier is now covering his route.

Mr. MacLellan was one of the original carriers, and served for about 10 years. He has resigned to go into business.

POPULAR WINCHESTER GIRL WEDS.

St. Mary's Church Scene of a Largely Attended Ceremony.

St. Mary's Church was the scene of the largest wedding Winchester has witnessed for many months on Wednesday forenoon, when Miss Anna Margaret Lyons, daughter of Mrs. Mary K. Lyons of Oak street and one of Winchester's popular young ladies, was married by her brother, Rev. Henry K. Lyons of the Star of the Sea Church, Marblehead, to Mr. William Healey Bowen, a well known young business man of Lynn.

The church edifice was crowded with friends and relatives of the couple at the appointed hour, ten o'clock and many others attended the wedding breakfast and reception which followed, at the home of the bride's mother.

The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, sung by a boys choir of ten voices from Lawrence with an organ accompaniment by Miss Mahoney, supervisor of music in the Lawrence public schools. The bride was most becomingly gowned in a magnificent dress of duchess satin, en train, trimmed with imported lace and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. She was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. George A. Lyons, Harvard Medical School, '09.

Miss Mary A. Lyons, principal of the Chapin school, sister of the bride, was becomingly gowned in pink messaline with baby Irish lace trimmings. She carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. Mr. Mortimer Howard of Waterbury, Conn., was best man. Solemn high mass was celebrated by Rev. William Lyons of West Lynn, brother of the bride; Rev. Henry K. Lyons, also a brother, and sub-deacon Rev. Timothy Curtin of St. Mary's Church, Lynn. The master of ceremonies was Rev. John R. McCool of St. John's Church, Cambridge. Acolytes Rev. Francis Cronin of West Newton and Rev. John R. Powers of the Church of Blessed Sacrament, Cambridge. Rev. Walter J. Roache was Censor Bearer.

The church was decorated for the occasion with potted plants, palms, and ferns, pinks and sweet peas. The ushers were Messrs. Joseph P. Devine of Manchester, N. H., Neil Ahearn of Somerville, Joseph Feehan of Lynn and William McCarthy of Lynn. At the conclusion of the service the choir sang Mendelssohn's march. Monsignor Teeling of Lynn was guest of honor and a number of prominent Catholic clergymen occupied seats at the altar.

Following the ceremony at the church a wedding breakfast and reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 27 Oak street, attended by a large number of guests. The house was decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers, the newly married couple being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Lyons, Miss Elizabeth Bowen, sister of the groom, and the bridesmaid and groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen left at noon for an extended wedding trip, and upon their return will reside in Lynn.

THE BLACK-BALL STARS WON TIGHT GAME.

Notwithstanding the heat of mid-summer a number of juvenile baseball teams are daily playing some strenuous games in various parts of the town, and their games are well worth a half-hour's visit from any adult who enjoys real boy fun.

The latest aggregation to wear the laurel is the Black-Ball Stars, who defeated their bitter rivals, the Main Streets, in a tight game last Saturday by the score of 12 to 8.

The following description of the winning of the game has been furnished the STAR by the press agent of the nine:

Being 8 to 8 in the ninth inning, Maguire got up, knocked a two-bagger and got a run, and there were two outs. Loftus got up and did the same thing. McLaughlin got up, made a bunt, stole second and third and got home by a hit from "Bull" Boyle. "Bull" also reached home. "Bull" went home at 11 o'clock. Black-Ball Stars line-up: W. Kane 1b, 3b; H. Maguire 1b; A. Loftus c; p; Elmer Gray c; J. McLaughlin c; 2b; J. Boyle 1t; L. Monahan of; B. Budreau s; L. Budreau 1f.

AS OTHERS SEE IT.

The Firemen's Standard, a publication devoted to the fire departments all over the country, had the following paragraph in its issue of July 16th:—

"The central fire station in Winchester, Mass., is a disgrace to the town, and a menace to the health of the permanent men who by force of circumstances are compelled to stay there."

ACCIDENT RESULTED IN DEATH.

Mrs. Annie E. Healey, aged 63 years, widow of the late John B. Healey, died at her home, No. 27 Swanton street on Sunday as the result of a fall received the night before.

Mr. John Healey, a son, was sick in the house at the time, and it is thought that his mother arose from her bed under the impression that he had called her, for her daughter in the adjoining room heard her answer "what," followed a few seconds later by the crash of a fall. Investigation revealed that she had fallen down the front stairs, during the fall she having crashed into a swinging lamp in the lower hall.

When reached by her son and daughter she was unconscious, in which state she remained until her death, her skull having been fractured.

Mrs. Healey was born in Ireland, although she had passed the greater portion of her life in this town. She leaves six children Mrs. David H. DeCourcy, Mrs. William Maguire of Montello, Mrs. Daniel Tenney of Woburn, and Thomas, Margaret and John.

Funeral services were held from St. Mary's church on Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, high mass being celebrated by Fr. Walter J. Roache. The bearers were Messrs. David H. DeCourcy, William Maguire of Montello, Daniel Tenney of Woburn, Harry Vanwart, Michael Nagie and John J. Kane.

The display of floral offerings at the services were very beautiful and included with others the following pieces: pillow from Hose 3, wreath from Hook & Ladder Co., spray from Hose 1, spray of asters, Miss M. A. Kenney; spray of pinks, Mrs. T. P. Callahan; spray of pinks and roses, Misses May and Helen Crawford; spray of pinks and roses, Miss Della Leach and Miss Annie McColligan; pillow, family. The burial was in Calvary cemetery, Montvale.

FISHING TRIP.

Emblazoned on the front of a special electric car which left the centre Wednesday at 4.30 a. m. was a big fish and the letters "R. A." On this car some thirty members of Aberjona Council, R. A., embarked for a day's deep sea fishing.

Everything appeared to be propitious for a rare day's sport, and after a quick run to Swampscott, hot coffee and sandwiches were partaken of, and then boat was taken for the fishing grounds. All the arrangements had been most admirably made by Mr. Geo. E. Morrill some days before, so that there was no hitch whatever until the fishing grounds were reached. Here Mr. Morrill lost control, for in other words his plans miscarried, for the cod and haddock which he had relied upon so much, had given place to the pugnacious dog fish. And my, how they did bite; two at a lick, or as many at a time as there were hooks on a line.

Dog and other species of fish don't mix, the former being too ravenous and deadly in their attack. The fishing ground was changed several times, but the result was always the same—dog fish. However, during the day several cod and haddock were caught also a number of pollock. But nevertheless the day was one of enjoyment, weather conditions being perfect.

The prize for the largest fish went to Geo. E. Morrill for a 15-pound pollock. He also caught the heaviest haddock too. J. H. McEwen was given a prize for the largest number of fish, Wallace Mobbs for the second largest catch, Theo. P. Wilson for the first caught, and several men for the least number caught.

Those present were: Geo. E. Morrill, Norman Osborne, J. H. McEwen, Ernest Polley, J. O. Howard, Jas. Mosher, Dave Erskine, Benj. Edwards, Chas. Davis, T. P. Wilson, Geo. Arnold, Dr. Kelley, Chas. Lawson, T. W. Lawson, John Webber, Peter McDonald, Henry Dodge, Laurence Nichols, Geo. Bigley, C. W. Bell, Louis Poirier, Geo. Davidson, Wallace Mobbs, Maynard Johnson, Walter Chaffin, Chas. E. Adams, Geo. Ambler, Lester Davis, Chas. Eshbach.

MATURED SHARES.

Forty-five shares of the Eighth series of the Winchester Co-operative Bank matured with the August payment. Share value May 1, $196.71, four month's payment. Since then $4 interest since May 1, $2.46 matured value each share $203.17. The series has been in force 148 months which mean that $148 was paid in on each share. The profits for each share are thus $55.17.

Over three thousand dollars will be used in payment of loans, for which some of the shares were pledged. The discharge of the mortgage on one home is interesting. It was twelve years ago that one man in this town was convinced that he could pay for a home using just about the same outgo that he was paying for rent. He will have a discharge of his mortgage this month. Now he owns his home. Had he continued paying rent he would now only have a bunch of receipts.

New shares are issued May 1 and November 1 each year. We continue to advise this system as the best for saving and the very best ever devised for home-getting.

The officers of the Bank are always pleased at an opportunity to explain the operations of the Bank.

POPULARITY OF SANDY BEACH.

Sandy Beach on Mystic Lake is a very popular place for bathers during the summer and has been since this place was opened, and its popularity promises to increase. Bathing, young and old are surrounded with the safeguards that are provided at Revere Beach and other places, so that there is but little chance for an accident. Last Friday the actual count of bathers from the different towns surrounding Winchester was:

	Boys	Girls	Total
Medford	85	29	114
Winchester	86	90	176
Somerville	54	32	86
Arlington	63	53	116
Stoneham	23	0	23
Woburn	33	18	51
Cambridge	12	7	19
Total	555	229	784

This is more than an average day, but not the largest of the season, which numbered 905 for a total.

The beach is located at the northerly end of upper Mystic lake, on the peninsula opposite the police house. There is a good sandy stretch, which slopes out gradually into the water, so that the more timid ones can wade out and then swim in to the shore. For those more proficient two rafts are anchored farther out, from which they can dive. Beyond the rafts they cannot go without permission of the officer. This is only allowed to those who are able to take care of themselves, and then when he is in the boat, so that he can render aid if it should be needed.

Some of the boys and girls have acquired considerable skill in diving and handling themselves in the water. Probably the most proficient diver among the boys is Newcomb Bacon, while among the girls his two cousins can swim out to the buoy and back, a distance of about a mile. As the season advances a marked improvement can be seen in the way the boys and girls conduct themselves in the water. As they learn to swim and gain confidence in themselves they are learning one of the best lessons of youth, while the exercise they obtain under such conditions is of great benefit.

Other Phillips is on deck every pleasant day from 1.30 to 5, looking after his large and growing family, which up to this time has had no serious accident.

MRS. M. P. RICHARDSON ENTERTAINED.

Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Richardson entertained about twenty-five relatives at their new bungalow, celebrating the birthday of Mr. Richardson's mother, Mrs. M. P. Richardson.

The guests assembled on the lawn soon after six and had an opportunity to enjoy the beautiful and extensive view from that elevation. The supper table was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns and the center piece was a huge birthday cake with candles. After supper the guest of honor was presented with a birthday package from each guest on which was written an original rhyme suggesting the contents of the package which had to be guessed before it was opened.

This caused much merriment as the meter was not always true although considerable talent was shown in some directions. Mr. Park entertained with Scottish dances in costume to the music of the graphophone and several original poems suitable to the occasion were read.

Mrs. Richardson was given a Birthday Wish Book containing a wish from each member of the party, to be read at some future time.

Mrs. Richardson has lived in Winchester many years and is very much beloved by her hosts of relatives and friends who leave with her their best wishes for many happy returns of such a delightful occasion.

LEFT TOWN.

The Manufacturing, Equipment and Engineering Co., have moved their business to So. Framingham, Mass., where they have purchased the plant of the Framingham Box Co.

The new location affords better freight accommodations, much larger manufacturing space and good labor conditions, all very much needed for their large and growing business.

This Company reports some very large contracts demanding greatly increased facilities.

They are to completely equip the assembly building of Libby, McNeil & Libby of Chicago with metal clothes lockers and seats; this is the first building of this character in the Union Stock Yards. This Company also has the contract to furnish all of the metal lockers for R. H. Stearns new store Boston, and the Carter Ink Co's new plant in Cambridge, Mass. They furnish all of the metal lockers for the Post offices in this section, they also have a large foreign business.

Mr. S. D. Leland is the Pres. and Gen. Mgr. of the Co., and while his business will be at South Framingham, he will retain his residence in Winchester.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The conveniences of the street letter boxes is so well established that it is a matter of surprise that thus far no general provision is made for newspapers, so that one is obliged to place them on the top of the box, to be exposed to rain or snow or other effects of the weather. In the cities of the European countries underneath each letter box is a larger one for the reception of newspapers etc. Some arrangement like this here in Winchester and elsewhere would not be very expensive or difficult, and would answer the purpose of giving the needful protection to mail matter.

BAND CONCERT AND FIREWORKS.

The Italians of Winchester will celebrate their national holiday, Sauto Civico, tomorrow evening on Manchester Field. This day, Aug. 7th, is celebrated throughout all Italy, and the constantly increasing colony of Italians living in Winchester, make their first public observance of the fete this year.

The celebration will be from 5 until 10.30 p. m. Music is to be furnished by a full Italian band of 35 pieces and in evening a grand display of fireworks is to be given. The park commission and the selectmen have granted the use of the field for the purpose, and many declare that the fireworks at least will surpass those of the 4th.

The committee in charge of the affair are Joe DeAngelo and Peter Capone.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The trouble with most young people here in Winchester as elsewhere is that they want to begin where their parents leave off. Some of them, The Spectator really believes, would prefer to have a golden wedding at the start, rather than wait fifty years for it.

A lady well known in Winchester social circles awhile ago took up the reading of Browning and was found reading the Bible industriously day after day. Her daughter, a charming member of the sophomore class at Winchester High school, commented on her mother's new habit, and the latter said: "Yes, dear, I find it necessary to read the Bible now, Browning quotes so much from it."

Has any reader of the Star squeaky shoes? A gentleman passed along—street one afternoon this week and his shoes were squeaking badly. The Spectator doesn't like squeaky shoes. There are a number of people in Winchester who like to have their shoes squeak; it serves very much the purpose of an announcement of their presence and takes the place of the runner who, in India, precedes the great man's carriage, shouting, "make way for the rahik!" The Spectator is not one of those persons. He prefers mute shoes. But he can stand anything except a pair of shoes one of which squeaks and the other does not. To go down a room, in the face of a considerable company, with a pair of shoes making and alternating noises thus, "Squeak, clump! squeak, clump!" is one of the greatest trials in Winchester of any other place.

Family pride is no doubt an excellent thing, but it should not be continually advertised. There is a certain dandish young man who lives not far from The Spectator's home, who, perhaps, in an effort to get out from under the chilling influence of this same family pride, has lately committed a number of stupidities here in Winchester, as if in an attempt to appear independent and free and easy. And, his stately mother, remonstrating with him, has repeatedly exclaimed—"Oh, my son, never forget that you are a member of one of Winchester's grand old families!" "Stuff and nonsense," said the young man's maternal uncle, the other day, overhearing this admonition; "if he only wouldn't forget that he's an idiot, he might make a better impression!"

The little folks are full of practical theology, and the idea of God gets into their heads in a very realistic manner. A four-year-old Winchester Miss of The Spectator's acquaintance was being troubled by her older brother, when suddenly she rushed to the window and looking skyward, called out, "God, he's a naughty boy." Then turning to the offender, she said, "There! God'll give it to you."

A friend of The Spectator's acquaintance says that years ago when the passage was made by sailing vessels, slow and with few conveniences, there might have been some excuse for the solemnization of an ocean burial. But in these times, when ocean steamers are palaces provided with every convenience for the preservation of a dead body for a few hours, the reckless manner of the disposition of the remains of persons who unfortunately die on the voyage is revolting to every Christian principle. So The Spectator contends.

Attend to the needs. There are a number of backyards and front yards, too, that should be weeded. Nothing so impressive a visitor to a town as well kept premises. Indifferent Winchesterites would do well to give this fact thought.

Last Friday afternoon a canary bird belonging to a friend of The Spectator found the water in its glass too low to drink, and after a number of unsuccessful efforts to quench its thirst hopped back to the perch to reflect upon the matter. In the course of a few minutes it suddenly turned around, pulled a loose feather from its tail and dipped the end of this into the glass several times until water enough had been secured to quench its thirst. Could a Winchesterite have shown any more ingenuity?

A prominent Winchester medical gentleman has this to say regarding the subject of eating at night: "The old advice against eating in the evening needs some modification. When the man who is hard pressed with brain work and a weight of care and anxiety is troubled with sleeplessness, it shows an excessive flow of blood to the head, and this is often remedied by eating on retiring, or even in the middle of the night. Frequently, such a person, by rising from his sleepless bed at two o'clock and eating some light food will very soon fall asleep and sleep quietly until morning. All that was needed was food in the stomach to draw away the extra blood from the brain."

Winchester is said to be the healthiest town in the Commonwealth. In view of this fact these words of Martineau may be interesting: "The health of a community is an almost untailing index of its morals."

"It is a great mistake," said an excellent Winchester lady not long ago, "to think that boys, just because they are boys, need not know anything about taking care of their clothes or their rooms. I have taught my boys to mend their own stockings, to make their own beds and to sew on their missing buttons. They are none the less manly men for knowing how to do these things neatly, and they have often thanked me for making them so efficient."

That was a beautiful thought of a little four year old friend of The Spectator, who, when she first heard the gates of Heaven referred to in a story which her mother was reading, said: "I suppose the gates are God's folded arms, which he opens for all the good children who come to him, and so takes them into Heaven."

"The mouth piece of the telephone may be perfectly respectable, but there are a great many things said against it," remarked a Main street business man to The Spectator the other day.

A five year old Winchester youngster of The Spectator's acquaintance said one day last week: "Mamma, I wish I could run faster. It I only had hind legs I could run as fast as a dog."

What Fried Liver Is Good For.

A guest at an Atchison home came for three days and was still there at the end of five weeks. "I like all kinds of meat," she remarked one day as she passed her plate for the third helping, "but fried liver." That night there was fried liver for supper, fried liver the next day for breakfast, dinner and supper, and the next day, when the guest was asked to have fried liver, she packed her trunk and went home.—Atchison Globe.

PRESENT DAY INDEPENDENCE.

The senator from Missouri certainly forgot himself and the dignity of his office when he condescended to slap the face of a negro porter on a Pennsylvania R. R. train. However, we sympathize with Senator Stone, and the judge in the court before whom he was summoned on charge of breaking the peace, felt the same way, for in ordering Senator Stone's discharge he by implication complimented him on his courage in resisting such a palpable insult. The impudence of many of the minor employees in public places at the present time inclines one to slap their faces. Petty impertinences are becoming such a nuisance that a demonstrative expression against this sort of thing is not to be wondered at. We have been at the baggage room at South station when few people were about and the place back of the counter was occupied by numerous porters or baggage clerks, and it has been several moments before one stirred to come to us, while their air of superiority and condescension when they at last "got a move on" was highly annoying. One has to "tip" all out of proportion to what a service is worth to be treated with common civility. The attitude between those who serve and those who pay for service seems to have changed places. Most men feel themselves too good for the places they are competent to fill. How far our public school system is to blame for this and the wrong attitude towards the dignity of labor it would be interesting to know.—[Arlington Advocate.

This indifference is not seen altogether at the Boston terminals, but on the electric cars to a great extent, and indeed the traveller meets with it pretty much all over the country.

"THREE TWINS" TO OPEN. BOSTON THEATRE.

"Three Twins," the most successful musical comedy America has ever known will be the opening attraction at the Boston Theatre during the week of August 23rd. The original company with an entire new scenic and costume production will be shown to Boston theatre-goers at that time. This is the company that ran all last year at the Herald Square Theatre, New York, to the largest business ever played to at that theatre. Clifton Crawford and Bessie McCoy are the two principal players in a cast that is unusually strong.

"Three Twins" was made into a musical piece by Charles Dickson and was originally a farce called "Innocent" by Mrs. Pacheco, the lyrics are by O. A. Hauerbach and the music by Karl Hoshina.

The principal features that have made "Three Twins" the great success that it has achieved are its comedy and novel effects. The laughs are continuous from the time the curtain goes up until the finale of the first act, while there are novelties in music, stage settings, electrical effects, mechanical effects and in chorus ensembles.

HARRIMAN CALLED A "FINANCIAL PEST."

"Mr. Harriman is a great railway administrator, but he is a pest financially. The Government would be wise to pay him a million dollars a year to continue his work of consolidating the railroads of the country and to keep out of finance."

This frank opinion was given by Professor Charles Zuehlke, sociologist of Boston and former professor in the University of Chicago, in the course of a scathing arraignment of the modern business man, in which he declared that the business man who possesses courage, character and culture is a rarity.

As bad examples he made thinly veiled references to Marshall Field, A. J. Cassatt and Russell Sage and then turned to Harriman, declaring that there was nothing personal in his statements, but that these men simply typify the existing industrial system.

The business man in general Mr. Zuehlke attacked with equal fearlessness. "His sway is well nigh completed," he declared. "He is the master of industry, he controls the means of subsistence and communication, he subsidizes education and art in his own whimsical fashion, he harries the President and the Supreme Court, he shapes the moral code."

The decalogue has been supplanted by the business man's trilogy: "Business is business." "Stand pat." "I want what I want when I want it." "Business is business, is the masculine equivalent of the feminine 'because.' "Stand pat" is the most immoral of all economic or political watchwords and has never been proclaimed by a politician not subservient to business. "I want what I want when I want it" is the cry of the spoiled child, over specialization being akin to immaturity. We need a prophet today like Carlyle to proclaim the inanity and futility of the philosophy. "Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost," and to announce the discovery of a nobler hell than that of not making money."

If the business man would stick to his specialty and not attempt to meddle in everything else he would not be so dangerous in the opinion of Prof. Zuehlke.

"Our educational institutions are run by men who have an enormous amount of incapacity for the work, who have neither great education nor great efficiency in that line, because they have shown ability in something else," he said. "Our Congressmen are puppets. The absolute insignificance of the average representative of the people ought to convince us of the fact that Congress is in reality ruled by Cannon and Aldrich, who represent business."

"The business man subsidizes our religion. The Church is responsible for the slums, though primarily business is responsible for them. It is primarily because the Church has to be subsidized by the business man that it finds it convenient to overlook the conditions that he has caused."

WONDERLAND.

Wonderland is the great recreation ground nowadays for the thousands of New Englanders who find many ways of thoroughly enjoying themselves any pleasant afternoon or evening among the multiple attractions. There is a complete change of bill every week in the new open-air vaudeville theatre, new features every week in Kittle Bingham's female minstrels, new films and new illustrated songs in the moving picture theatre, new poses by Breng's Golden Graces in reproductions of bronze statuary and all along the line new things. The concerts every afternoon and evening by Teel's band are proving very popular. Combination tickets can be purchased this season for less than one half the regular charges, which admit to the park and to ten of the principal attractions.

RECONCILED BY ACCIDENT.

The Girl That Helped John's
Mother In an Emergency.

By CLARA LOUISE OTIS.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

"Six o'clock and all's well. Wind in the east and blowing like everything."

carried a muffled voice.

The woman in the kitchen smiled in spite of herself. "The dear child," she murmured happily, "so much like his father," then to the "child," a tall young man of twenty-four, just entering the kitchen: "You're early tonight, dear. Supper won't be ready for ten minutes."

"Oh, that's all right," John Williams gave his mother a vigorous hug.

"How is mother?"

"Well, And John?"

"Fine, say, mother?"

"Yes, dear?"

"How would you like a daughter-in-law?"

Mary Williams set down the frying pan and faced her son with a dazed expression. "A daughter-in-law?" she repeated blankly. A blinding rush of tears came to her eyes, and the little room seemed to be whirling around. "Oh, John," was all she said, but the bitter disappointment of those two words was not lost on the young man.

"I'm sorry," he said briefly and left the room.

Memories one after the other crowded fast before her. Her husband had died when John was three, and they had been so happy! And since John had grown to manhood how happy he had made her! Yet—yet he was going to bring another woman there—another woman! The odor of searing meat made her start.

"Come, supper's ready," she called in what was intended to be her natural voice.

"Tell me about it," faltered Mary after they had sat in silence for some minutes.

"Not if you don't want to hear, mother."

The hurt, proud tones brought contrition to her heart.

"I do want to hear." The words were true in more ways than one.

"Her name is Kitty—Kitty Marvin."

"And?"

"Oh, mother, mother! I've wanted to tell you so! Are you sure you want to hear?"

"Yes, yes!" She flashed out the words lest John should divine her sinking heart. She smiled too.

Seeing only his mother's smile, John launched into the dear topic. "She hasn't lived here long, only since May I didn't tell you because—well, to tell the truth, I was afraid you'd be all cut up about it. Besides, it wasn't settled until last night. Why, mother, you're crying! Are you sorry?"

"No, no! I'm glad! Go on!"

"I met her last year out at the lake. Do you remember my speaking of those girls out there? I knew then she was the only one in the world for me." John spoke very softly.

So he had cherished this girl in his heart a whole year, and she had thought herself to be his all in all!

"Wasn't it strange, mother," went on the young man in a subdued voice, as if his happiness was still a wonderful thing, to be revered and held in awe—"wasn't it strange that she should move here, not knowing it was my home?"

"Yes. Tell me everything, dear."

"All right. She is little and slim and has gray eyes." Mary Williams was built on generous, capable lines, and her eyes were brown. "Her hair is like yours—brown and heavy. She gives music lessons." Mary had no accomplishments except housekeeping.

"She sings, too—oh, mother, you ought to hear her sing! And she is as quick as a bird and the prettiest dancer."

"Can she cook?"

"Well, I don't know, but she can do everything else. You see, there are so many in her family that it's hard to tell just who does the work. I know she can sew, for she showed me a dress last night that she made."

After the supper work was done and John had gone off whistling Mary sat down by the fire. "O God, give me strength to bear it!" she prayed fiercely, holding tight to the arms of the chair, then relaxing in a sudden burst of resentful tears. "How can he—how can he bring that girl here—that Kitty?" ran her rebellious thoughts, and she forgot about her prayer.

"Why, her very name sounds good for nothing. If I was an old woman it would be different, but I'm only forty-seven and as strong as ever. This is my house, my own house, and I keep it my own way. Yet a girl is going to come in and shove me back—me, who loves John more than she ever could! Don't I always come home early from sewing society so as to have John's supper on time? Don't I make his shirts, when almost every man buys them ready made? Wouldn't I do his washing if he would let me? Oh, she can't love him as I do! Probably she won't even let him smoke in peace. Oh, she can't come—she just can't!"

For an hour she poured out the rebellion in her soul to the leaping, sympathetic fire, then sank back exhausted. "How selfish I am!" she cried aloud. "I'll have to bear it. John's a man now." As she grew more calm she looked with disgust at her outburst. "I act like a baby! I guess I'm made of better stuff than that, and this is the last foolishness you'll hear from me. If my son's going to be married, why, he's going to be married—that's all."

But she forgot to be on her guard the next morning when John enthusiastically remarked that she should have heard Kitty sing "Debbie" the night before. "Debbie"—what a foolish name for a song! And with that one contemptuous thought all the bitterness of the thing came back to her.

"Do you always have to talk about her—even at the breakfast table?"

John's lips came together in a straight line. "I thought"—he began, then stopped abruptly. Ten minutes later he left the house in silence.

Mary would have given all she possessed to recall those words. A sort of hopelessness came over her. If she could control herself no better than that now, what would she do later?

If she only could be sure that the girl would be sensible! From John's description it didn't seem as if she could possibly be. "He has lost his head over some little flirt," she told herself, "and I can't stop him. I wonder if he will forgive me. I—I'm afraid not."

At supper that night her doubts were confirmed. John talked steadily about the weather, the shop, the garden—everything but Kitty. She longed to break in herself with the subject.

Two days passed. Then she could stand it no longer.

"John, I'm sorry!"

He motioned her to silence. "You have let me know very plainly that you don't want me to talk about her, and I won't."

Nor did he. A week passed by, then two—distressing weeks for them both.

"You came near losing your supper tonight," announced Mary one evening.

"Why, how is that?"

"I was downtown, waiting to take the 4:30 car, when, all at once, I dropped one of my parcels and everything in it rolled into the street. The car was in sight, and you know there isn't another until 5:30. I knew I couldn't get all the thread and buttons picked up in time, and I was thinking, 'Oh, dear, John won't have any supper until 7 o'clock,' when, all of a sudden, some one said, 'Let me help you.' It was some young girl, and, I declare, I never saw any one pick up things so fast in my life! I knew just enough to open my bag while she shoved them in. Then the car stopped, and she helped me on—not as she would some old lady, but just as if I was one of her girl friends. I never expect to see any one so handy and sweet as that again. I didn't notice what she looked like—I was that flurried—but I did see that she had on an odd, foreign looking ring."

"What sort of ring?"

"Silver. It had two bands joined together by little crosspieces, and there was a big green stone. Wasn't it funny that I should notice all those little things, and—my, what's the matter?"

"Nothing, mother, only—that was Kitty!"

Quite Different.

"Maria," said Mr. Rawlins, laying aside his hat and overcoat and rubbing his hands gleefully together. "You know that for years we have been wanting to buy a building lot in Kennedy's subdivision, but couldn't afford to do it on account of the high prices they ask for land out there. Well, I've just learned that Quinlan, who owns one of the best lots in that entire neighborhood, will sell it for half what it cost him if he can get the cash. He needs the money and can't get it any other way. I have a great mind to buy it tomorrow morning. It comes easily within our means."

"I don't think you ought to do it, Joshua," said Mrs. Rawlins.

"You don't think I ought to buy it? Why not?"

"It would be taking advantage of his necessities."

"But, Maria—"

"Besides, I have just learned of a splendid opportunity to buy some furniture that we need. Grigson & Mullins are advertising parlor sets at one-third less than cost because they are overstocked and can't afford to carry them through the season. I'd like to buy about $200 worth of parlor furniture. We'll never have as good a chance again."

Being a man of excellent self control, Mr. Rawlins merely smiled.—Youth's Companion.

Love In the Kitchen.

Among the domestic servants of a Germantown woman is a very pretty Irish girl, not long in this country. Now, Bertha had not been at work more than a couple of months before she became engaged to a plumber's apprentice. She confided to her mistress, however, that she had no intention of marrying at an early date, but wished instead to save her money and incidentally afford the apprentice time to become a regularly registered plumber.

The mistress good naturedly assented to the girl's request that the lad be allowed to visit her in the kitchen. It was observed that on such occasions only the voice of Bertha could be heard coming from the kitchen.

"Your sweetheart doesn't seem to be much of a talker," said the lady of the house to Bertha.

"No, mum," said Bertha; "leastways not yet, mum. But he'll do better as time goes on. He's too bashful yet, mum, to do anything more than eat!"—Philadelphia Press.

A Handy Man.

"Why so sad?" queried the young man, looking at her fondly.

"Oh, nothing special, only I have troubles of my own," said the frail young thing, sighing.

"I insist in taking a hand in them," he said, seizing a dainty palm that was wasting its time in her lap.—Boston Globe.

Camper's Unique Bag.

Common twenty-five cent grain sacks make good duffle bags for campers. They should not be tied at the mouth when ready for shipment, but sewed shut. This method is a danger to curiosity and pilfering. These sacks serve many uses in camps. They take the place of and are better than baskets for carrying provisions, etc. Stuffed with browse, they make a good pillow, long enough for two. They make good sleeping bags also, for, after wrapping up in a blanket, pull a bag over your feet and you can roll from side to side without losing covers. One of these bags can be made into an easy chair very nicely as follows: Sharpen two poles at one end and tie them together loosely at the other end. Plant the sharp ends in the ground, three feet apart, and lean the roped ends against a tree. Lash each corner of the bag to the poles with cords in a comfortable elevation. The pebbles in each corner to keep the cords from slipping. If you don't make a chair sit on a folded bag; don't sit on the ground.—Recreation.

The First English Bible.

The first complete Bible printed in English was issued in 1535 without any publisher's name on it. It was the work of Miles Coverdale, who incorporated, with revisions, Tyndale's books of the New Testament of the Pentateuch and of Jonah and for the rest translated from German and Latin versions. It was thus only partly original and in that part just a translation of a translation. No perfect copy of this Bible is known to exist.

Coverdale's Bible is called both "the treacle Bible" and "the bug Bible," from two curious renderings. The passage in Jeremiah which we now read, "Is there no balm in Gilead?" is rendered, "Is there no treacle in Galahad?" And in the Psalms, "Thou shalt not be afraid of the terrors by night," reads "Thou shalt not be to be afraid for any bugges by night." In the Ninth Psalm, "Put them in fear, O Lord," is rendered by Coverdale as, "Set a schoolmaster over them."

Undue Haste.

No doubt Dennis appreciated to the full the excellent qualities of Celia, his wife, but he occasionally indulged in a sigh for the liberty of his years of single blessedness. "Yes, 'tis a good wife she makes me," he said to a returned traveler during whose absence the wedding had occurred. "And we were courted sixteen years. Aileen an' all o' the rest said 'twas time I married or Terry Leahy would be getting the prize away from me."

"Well, man, you've no regrets, I hope?" said the friend, who had just enjoyed a delicious supper at the hands of Celia. "She's a fine woman."

"Didn't I tell you that?" said Dennis impatiently. "The only thought I ever have is wance in awhile when it comes over me that I might 've waited another year an' still have got her, for Terry was not near so high in her estimation, after all, as them women made out 'em."

"A man in love is always hurrying, hurrying, ye mind!"—Youth's Companion.

Prevaricating Figures.

Those to whom the mathematical mind has not been given will appreciate the fun an Irishwoman, Mrs. La Touche of Harristown, has with numbers in "The Letters of a Noblewoman."

"I do hate sums," Mrs. La Touche confesses to a friend. "There is no greater mistake than to call arithmetic an exact science. There are permutations and aberrations discernible to minds entirely noble, like mine; subtle variations which ordinary accountants fail to discern; hidden laws of numbers which it requires a mind like mine to perceive."

"For instance, if you add a sum from the bottom up, and then again from the top down, the result is always different."

Enough to Scare Any One.

While out walking with her papa and mamma one day Florence, aged four, ran some little distance ahead. As she got near a mule hitched to a farmer's wagon the animal began to bray. She wheeled instantly and, running to her mother as fast as she could, said in round eyed astonishment, "Oh, mamma, sumthin' said sumthin'!"—Delineator.

A Mean Revenge.

"You seem to be considerably elated over something."

"Yes. I have a friend who is almost stone deaf. I took him out home with me last night, and my wife had to sit there all the evening and merely nod and smile while he talked."—Chicago Record-Herald.

She Knew Him.

George (dramatically)—You have decided that I must give her up? Farewell, then, mother! There is nothing left for me but to go out and destroy myself! Mother—Goodbye! Not a minute later than 6 for dinner, George!

A Foible.

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is a foible?"

"A foible, my son, is something somebody else is interested in and you're not."—Washington Star.

His Means of Support.

Magistrate—Have you any visible means of support? Prisoner—Yes, yer wushup. (To his wife, a laundress) Hemmer, stand up so's the court can see yer.—Throne and Country.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

Framingham is trying to secure the County Commissionership this fall. Many in that town think that Commissioner Upton should retire on account of his age.

ANOTHER TERM FOR GOV. DRAPER.

Everything points to a sweeping victory for Governor Draper this fall, and keen judges have no hesitancy in predicting his election. He has made an excellent Governor, just what might be expected from a thoroughly successful business man. He has opinions of his own and resents dictation from any and every source, and for these reasons the solid men of the State will stand behind him.

HOT AIR.

We lead in our line as usual, let others follow. Notwithstanding the ambitious young man's prophecy (when by urgent request from several good customers in Arlington, we opened an up-to-date Plumbing & Heating shop in that town) namely "Joe" was wise as he was down and out in Winchester.

We have the following contracts in Winchester, some not commenced, some not finished, none finished at present writing.

Hot water heating and Plumbing for Mr. W. G. Russell's new residence and garage Everett Avenue Winchester.

Plumbing new house for Capt. Nickerson wedge Avenue, Winchester.

Heating & Plumbing Mrs. M. Gallagher's new 2 family house Canal St., Winchester.

Hot Water Heating for Mr. Geo. H. Eustis, Stevens St.

Hot Water Heating & Plumbing in new residence for Mr. K. H. Damerin Sanborn St.

Steam Heating & Plumbing in Mr. Miller's new residence Parkway.

Plumbing Mr. John C. Harrigan's residence Glenwood Ave.

Installing Hot water heat and plumbing in 2 residences on Sheffield West for Mr. Geo. A. Woods.

Installing Hot Water Heat & new plumbing at No. 8 Myrtle St., for Mr. F. L. Ripley.

Installing new Plumbing in Mr. John Parks residence Mayfield.

The above work is not last year's jobs but real business in course of construction. We also have several tin roofs to repair, 6 faucets to tinker with, 3 dish pans to mend, 2 large size Garbage receptacles to make for a very popular business man who wants Laraway's goods always.

We can clean and repair heating apparatus no matter what kind, to the satisfaction of the most particular individual in Town or on earth. We have several of the above orders and room for more, delays are dangerous. After Sept. 1, we can take care of our regular customers any time they prefer, but to those who use us when their dear friends are rushed we would say get after your friends. Molasses runs slow this weather and may stop altogether too weeks hence.

It looked bad to see the old stand wide open all day Wednesday but our motto is make hay when the sun shines, cut ice next winter—Wednesday program. The unfortunate down and out Joe sold over $2700 worth of his Plumbing and Heating junk, worked at plumbing three hours and ten minutes, set out fifty strawberry plants, went to Boston and made several calls on business, travelled eight miles in the red ended Buick without any expense except gasoline, landed at Felledge at nine twenty five p. m., gazed at two hundred bills, wondered why many were not paid, retired at ten thirty happy and satisfied with his day's work. At 7 to a m. tomorrow I will be down by the Aberjona ready for biz as the old stand.

GRADE CROSSINGS GO.

The Long Island Railroad Company has resumed work upon the improvements on its line between Fiske Terrace and Manhattan Beach whereby fourteen grade crossings will be removed. Work is also being pushed on the Bay Ridge improvement, a large concrete viaduct having just been completed over First Avenue, Bay Ridge. It is planned by this improvement to remove forty five grade crossings between Bay Ridge and Fresh Pond road. Up to the present time the Long Island Railroad has spent approximately six million dollars in removing grade crossings in Brooklyn. One of the most important undertakings in view for the current summer is the tunnel to be built under the East New York hill just north of Manhattan Junction. This will remove dangerous crossings at fourteen streets. In spite of all that has been done to eliminate grade crossings in Queens' borough, some two hundred and three crossings, at grade still remain. The company itself is prepared to spend six million dollars more toward getting rid of these, it says, provided the city will continue its former policy of contributing one half the expense incidental to removing the crossings.

There are in New York ten thousand five hundred and fifty four places at which railroad tracks encounter public highways. At one thousand six hundred and ninety eight of these points the crossings at grade have been removed.

The protected crossings altogether number three thousand seven hundred and six, distributed among the different railroads according to the following percentages. Long island, fifty one per cent.; New York Central, forty three per cent.; Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, forty three per cent.; Erie thirty one per cent.; Delaware and Hudson, thirty per cent.; New York, Ontario and Western, thirty per cent. and Lehigh Valley, twenty per cent.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The church will be open every Sunday during the summer for morning service at 10.30 a. m. In the absence of the rector, the Rev. C. P. Mills will be in charge. He will be assisted in August by Mr. John Hamilton Robinette. The address of the rector and other details in regard to ministerial supply, etc., will be in the hands of the wardens, and also at Mr. Arnold's store, Common street.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If it would not cost too much our Assessors valuations in the town report should be by streets. Then citizens could compare valuations easily and profitably. Even if the money holds out, it looks as if the street department could not do both Forest and Washington streets this year with the other work that should be attended to. The weeds need looking after on some of the streets, particularly on Lebanon. The sign post corner of Pleasant and Washington has been out of plumb for three years. Isn't it time to fix it? Several streets need new signs. Some poles should come down and very many need paint. How about that inspector of wires for whom the Selectmen got their incidental account increased three hundred dollars?

The prominent citizen who thinks gates at the centre crossing are sufficiently up to date so that by changing the style the crossing will answer as it is, should have come to town meeting and said so. This crossing has got to be abolished and the sooner the better, and makeshifts are not wanted and will get no support.

Why does not the W. A. A. use some of its money to announce games and publish the scores? It should toss up with the Park Board to see which shall buy a water pot to lay the dust about the bases. That Board got an increased appropriation this year to put a supply onto the field. Has it forgotten it? No lights yet along the walk to Mystic Avenue. Did the powers of darkness prevail?

What a farce it is giving those band concerts in the afternoon to a handful of people. They should either be given at night or abandoned. It is what the people want or what the Commission wants that is to decide. The Italians are to have a time on the field tomorrow night and I predict it will "rag" anything we Americans have done there yet and be all right, too.

How do you account for the Chapin and Rutherford schools leading the more money schools by such a large margin in their savings accounts? Here is food for thought. It is more interesting than snob secret societies question, which seems to have been dropped for some time.

If our Congressman believes a tariff bill in its present shape will be well received by the voters of state, I think he will find himself very much mistaken, voters regardless of party, as I meet them, all hold the same view, that the big interests have controlled things all the way through and that the tariff has been made for them and not for the people. Several of the trusts have even managed to keep all reference to their interests out of the newspapers. The cream of tartar trust, for instance, which as the Royal and Cleveland baking powder companies is one of the biggest advertisers in the country and maintains a powerful lobby, has not been referred to at all. In its case the duty is a pure gift as it does not need it, excepting to swell its enormous profits, and no revenue is produced from the duty as no cream of tartar can be imported to compete with the trust and it makes just the amount of the duty more profit.

THE COUNTRY EDITOR.

The country editor is an animal common to all parts of the United States, portions of Europe, Asia and Madagascar. He is a biped, quadruped, centipede and every other kind of a "ped" known to natural history. If he didn't have so many hands and legs he couldn't perform the duties of a country editor. Your Uncle Toby was once an editor. But he had a strong constitution and recovered. In a majority of cases the patient does not recover. The disease is not contagious; you have to run after it. After that it has got you. As a rule the country editor is not ornamental, but is useful. Everybody uses him. The regular duties of a country editor are to gather news from all over the country, and all other countries where his subscribers have relatives living, write editorials, obituary and accounts of weddings, to set type, forms, do job work, print, fold and the paper, solicit ads and locals, smoke a cob pipe, swear at the devil and throw the shooting stick at the cat. He is also expected to attend all political meetings, church socials, baseball games, and funerals of his delinquent subscribers. In addition to the above he must in his spare moments cut wood, hoe in the garden, feed the pigs, sweep the floor, put up ash-hoppers, plant peas, patch the roof, repair the fences, and put new hinges on the gate. It is also his duty to get in debt as much as possible to every merchant in town, as this will induce them to "take more space" in the paper. In the midst of all these duties the editor is expected to have a good time, wear a ginger cake smile, a brass ring and at least one "gal-lus." A country editor of light weight can't afford to be the truth. If he did he'd get licked out of every day. He is handsome, freckled, dressed, and has a beautiful nose, a beautiful complexion, a candidate has a record that ought to put him in the penitentiary, the editor is expected to say he is "honest, upright and capable."—Exchange.

How to Patch a Canoe.

There are several different "home-made" methods by which to repair a crack or leak in a canoe. Perhaps the most permanent is varnish or shellac and silk. Put a little varnish over the crack, place a small silk patch over the varnish, letting it dry, then varnish or shellac over the silk. Two coats will be sufficient. If it is a varnished canoe, use white silk, and the patch can hardly be detected, the silk being transparent. This may be put on both inside and outside if necessary. White lead and varnish mixed well and put in the crack is also a good permanent repair. If on a cruise in the woods and without the necessary articles to make a permanent repair, get a little spruce gum off the trees, heat and add a little grease and put over the crack. The grease has a tendency to keep the gum from getting very hard, and it will not break so easily. The silk and shellac repair is the usual remedy for a puncture in a canvas covered canoe.—Recreation.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, of those that are most in demand are first, combination mattresses, made of African and Poplar. These, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in silk pillows. This floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre, which grows from the equator, and never gets damply and is thoroughly clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

The Price is $12.00

Use the best bed ticking on this mattress, and you have in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first-class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse hair. This hair is taken from the neck and tail of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Made in best ticking, two parts, five inch box, and full weight.

LOVE TESTED AND FOUND TRUE.

A Fourth of July Story In Which Cupid Plays a Prominent Part.

By MAY HALSEY MILLER.
(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

That Chester Trowbridge was in love he would not acknowledge even to himself.

He had first met Miss Collingwood at a ten given by one of his artist friends at her studio, and, despite what Mrs. Tom had said concerning her friend's beauty, he was unprepared for so much loveliness.

He had been promptly introduced by Mrs. Tom, who had made a particular point of making the two acquainted, and her eagerness perhaps accounted for a slight reserve in Miss Collingwood's manner toward the young man, or the coolness might have been due to the mental attitude of a much admired young woman toward all recent masculine acquaintances.

"I HAD NO REASON TO EXPECT THIS."

"Mrs. Tom has spoken so often to me of you that I feel as if we"—

"Mrs. Tom?" There was interrogation in her tone and slightly raised eyebrows.

"Yes; Mrs. Tom—Mrs. Walker, of course. You see, Tom having been my chum since we were boys I"—

"Oh, I understand."

He did not continue the interrupted sentence, but stood awaiting her pleasure in the choice of a subject.

"I suppose you are used to this kind of thing," she remarked at length.

"Oh, yes," he replied indifferently. Then, detecting a little smile of almost contemptuous tolerance on her pretty mouth, he wished he had answered differently.

"Where I live the young men have something else to do with their afternoons."

It was certainly not encouraging. They met often after that. It seemed to

The Curved Ball.

It was not until 1878 that the question of pitching a curved ball was settled once for all. George Wright's Boston nine was playing the final series of that year in Cincinnati. The curve ball controversy raged in the city of the Red Stockings. Wright was asked to prove that a ball could be curved. He agreed to test the matter after the final game.

The Cincinnati team put up two ten foot fences about twenty yards apart, with a post between them, all on a line. Tommy Bond, a right handed pitcher, stood at the left of one fence. After two trials he threw a ball which went to the right of the post and finished to the left of the second fence. He repeated this six or seven times.

"The wind did it," said the doubters. "Then we'll try it the other way around," said Wright. He stationed Mitchell of Cincinnati, a left handed pitcher, to the right of the first fence. Mitchell threw a curve ball to the left of the post, which finished to the right of the second fence. News of this telegraphed to every part of the country, settled the question forever.—Collier's Weekly.

His Shipwife.

The suburbanite was entertaining a friend who followed the sea. Showing him his room after his arrival, the host noticed that there was but one pillow on the bed.

"By the way, captain," he asked "do you use more than one pillow?" "Well, I use one for my head," replied the captain, "and one for a shipwife."

"Shipwife! What in the world is that?"

"It's evident that you're a landsman. Every sailorman knows what a shipwife is. It's an extra pillow placed under the legs or arms to ease the position. It isn't so necessary on land, where you have a wide, comfortable bed, but it's almost a necessity at sea, where you are cramped up in a narrow berth, with no room to stretch. Any one who has been at sea for a long period knows what a shipwife is. We get so used to using one that we're not fully at home on land unless we have one. Better let me have another pillow for a shipwife, John."—New York Press.

Henry Clay's Fame.

Erskine M. Phelps of Chicago was introduced at Nice to Lord Blank of England. As he was smoking, he said to Lord Blank, "Will you have a cigar?"

"Thank you, but I smoke only one brand, the Henry Clay."

"All right; I'll order some," said Mr. Phelps.

The box was brought. It was embellished with the familiar picture of "Harry of the West." As he took his cigar Lord Blank said, "When old Clay was alive he made a good cigar, but his sons don't keep up his reputation."

"Henry Clay! Why, he didn't make cigars. He was a statesman and ranked as high with us as Gladstone and John Bright do in your country."

"I beg your pardon," said the noble lord. "I've smoked these cigars all my life, and I tell you old Clay made a—slight better cigar than his boys do!"—Argonaut.

How Victor Hugo Proposed.

Adele, bolder and more curious than Victor (for she was a girl), wanted to find out what was the meaning of his silent admiration. She said: "I am sure you have secrets. Have you not one secret greater than all?" Victor acknowledged that he had secrets and that one of them was greater than all the rest. "Just like me!" cried Adele. "Well, come, now, tell me your greatest secret, and I will tell you mine." "My great secret," Victor replied, "is that I love you." "And my great secret is that I love you," said Adele, like an echo.—Love Letters of Victor Hugo.

Wanted to Know His Name.
"Is this the automobile registration department of the state of Ohio?" The voice over the phone was fluterie and sweet.

"It is," replied the office man. "Do you have records of the numbers of all the machines in Ohio?" "Of all that are registered, yes."

"Can you refer to any particular number without a great deal of trouble?"

"It takes only a few moments." "Can you tell me who owns machine No. 1234567890?"

"Only she gave the actual number of the machine."

"Just hold the phone a moment." The office man returned in less than a minute. "The machine is owned by Mr. So-and-so of Cleveland," he said, then hastened to inquire: "Is there any trouble about it? An accident perhaps?"

"Oh, no," said the sweet voice. "The machine has been in front of Miss So-and-so's home in East Broad, next door, every Sunday evening for several months, and I was just curious to know who was calling upon her. Ever so much obliged." And the receiver went up.—Ohio State Journal.

Women in Trousers.

In the pretty Alpine village of Champéry, in the canton of Valais, Switzerland, the peasant women wear trousers and waistcoats in place of skirts and boleros, and the only distinguishing badge of their sex is a scarf knotted around their hair, the bright red ends of which float coquettishly over their shoulders. The women of Champéry work in the open air, performing the same kinds of labor as the men, and long ago their ancestors found that they could work more easily in trousers than in skirts.

A Tiger in Wales.

Some years ago it was reported that a tiger had escaped from a traveling menagerie at Brecon, in Wales. Mangled sheep were said to mark its course across country to Llandrindod Wells, some farmers lost their dogs and on market days at Builth, Brecon, Penybont and Llanmarch the wild beast was the center of rumor. Country schools were closed because parents feared to let their children go alone the roads, and bands of armed men sought to hunt the tiger down.

This state of terror lasted a week, though no person was found who had actually seen the tiger, but only people who "had heard that some one else," and so forth. Then the truth was hunted down and the origin of the whole affair discovered at the remote hamlet of Eberislaw. One night the schoolmaster there, in dismissing the children, playfully had warned them not to loiter in going home lest a tiger should get them.

The scared children accepted the warning as real and hastened home with stories of a savage beast lurking behind hedges or growling in ravines. And so the story grew, as stories do under the culture of imagination.

As Clear as Crystal.

An English firm whose shipment of goods was delayed in reaching Japan received the following communication from its newly appointed Japanese agent: "With regard to the matter of escaping the penalty for nondelivery of this—there is only one way to creep round same—by diplomat. We must make a stir or strike occurring in our factory. Of course big untrue. I place my presence on enclosed form of letter and believe this will avoid the trouble of penalty of same. As Mr. — is most religious and competent man, also heavily upright and godly, it fears me that useless to apply for his signature. Please therefore attach same at Yokohama office, making force. But no cause for fear of prison happenings, as this often happens by merchants of high integrity. But if this involves that your honor look mean and excessive awkward for business purpose. I think more better a little serpentine wisdom of polite manhood and thus found good business edifice." The firm knows as much now about the delay as it did before.

Not Complete.

"Sir," says the sleek looking agent, approaching the desk of the meek, meandering looking man and opening one of those folding thingamajigs showing styles of binding. "I believe I can interest you in this massive set of books containing the speeches of the world's great orators. Seventy volumes, $1 down and $1 a month until the price, $600, has been paid. This set of books gives you the most celebrated speeches of the greatest talkers the world has ever known, and—"

"Let me see the index," says the meek man. The agent hands it to him, and he looks through it carefully and methodically, running his finger along the list of names. Reaching the end, he hands the index back to the agent and says:

"It isn't what you claim it is. I happen to know the greatest talker in the world, and you haven't her in the index."—Chicago Post.

The Turtle's Cunning.

Although not credited with any high degree of intelligence, the turtle when about to deposit its eggs exhibits considerable cunning. It scoops out a hole, as if to prepare a repository for its eggs, but in order to delude the birds and other enemies the turtle throws the sand again into the hole, leaving the surface rough, and waddles off to another spot, where it repeats the process. Sometimes this is done three times, and eventually the eggs are laid in an excavation within a few yards of the sham nest, the surface being smoothed and flattened down. When hunting for the eggs the Queensland blacks probe the sand in the vicinity of one of the sham nests and are usually successful.—London Globe.

When the Dog Was Dressed.

"Oh, mamma," said little Jacky, running into the house, "our dog Tige is dressed awful funny!"

Mamma looked out of the window. "Why, there is Tige," she replied, "and he's not dressed at all. How could a dog be dressed?"

Jack's eyes sparkled. "I wanted you to ask me that," he told her, "because I wanted to tell you that a dog is dressed after he's been running—when he wears a collar and pants."

Cause For Tears.

"What's the matter, dear?" queried the mother of five-year-old Helen, who was crying as if her little heart would break. "What are you crying about?"

"I w-want a-somethin'," sobbed Helen.

"What do you want?" asked her mother.

"I've forgot what I w-want," answered the little miss. "That's what m-makes me c-cry."—Chicago News.

Overwhelmed.

"Your pulchritude is peerless. You are an astounding aggregation of feminine faultlessness. Be mine?"

"Sure," responded the girl. "I never could resist that press agent language."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

We will take the Transcript's word for the boll weevil, but the gypsy moth is with us to stay, unless methods not yet thought of or attempted are resorted to. The gypsy moth campaign has been going on for years, is costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, and the area in which the gypsy moth can be found today is wider than ever, as far as the United States is concerned. From the standpoint of those who earn their daily bread by conducting the campaign on the gypsy moth, then, indeed, it is a success, but it is the gypsy moth that should report progress. —[Charlestown Enterprise.]

Who narrowly escaped being electrocuted.

DR. HARDING ALMOST ELECTROCUTED.

On July 12th Dr. F. H. Harding, formerly of Winchester, now of California, had the soles of both feet as well as one eye badly burned from a charge of 17,600 volts of electricity going through him. A high voltage transmission wire sank and hit him over the eye. After two hour's labor he was resuscitated but is still in bed, and will no doubt recover from his terrible experience.

AN ENJOYABLE CELEBRATION.

The Italians of Winchester gave the stay-at-homes a fine entertainment last Saturday evening on Manchester field, and they were not sparing of the expense either. The occasion was the celebration of an Italian national holiday, Santo Civioco, a day generally observed by all the people of sunny Italy. At about six o'clock the Savoy Band of Boston, a most excellent musical organization, gave a concert lasting until seven o'clock. At eight o'clock a second concert was given before a larger number of people, but a thorough enjoyment was not possible because of the antics of small boys playing tag in the crowd and pushing and talking. To get away from this nuisance one had to retire out into the field where the softer tones of the musical instruments were inaudible.

At about nine o'clock the fire works display was commenced and it was of a nature never before seen here. There were many set pieces that were so full of surprises that they kept the large crowd on the keen edge of expectation and wonderment. The bombs, of which there was a large assortment, must have been heard for miles around. It was the best display of a rival fireworks ever seen in Winchester, every bomb being a novelty.

Altogether the celebration was much enjoyed, not only by the Italians, but the people at large. There is said to be 600 Italians living in Winchester.

Joseph DeAngelo and Peter Capone were in charge of the celebration and they are entitled to credit for the fine shape in which everything moved along from start to finish.

STAR COMMENDED.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Dear Sir:
A word in commendation from me of the local advertising value of the STAR would seem to be eminently proper from the results which I have obtained from the last two advertisements inserted by me.

About two months ago I advertised for a child's watch which had been lost by my daughter and at 5 o'clock Friday evening I received a telephone from Mr. Fred E. Belcher that he had found the same and that he had waited until the STAR came out to see whether it was advertised, before taking the initiative himself.

Yesterday I advertised for a domestic and in the evening, about 8 o'clock, it was answered "with the goods."

The above results are extremely gratifying to me and no doubt you will be pleased to receive this expression of the same.

Very truly yours,
L. R. WALLIS.

SAD DEATHS.

One of the saddest cases in the history of the town is that of Angus McEachern and his wife Mary, whose deaths occurred within 24 hours of each other. They leave six children, ranging from a boy of 13 to an infant of less than a week. Mrs. McEachern died Saturday morning at the Woburn hospital of pneumonia. Mr. McEachern was taken ill last week, after a visit to the hospital, and his case became so bad that he was removed to the Homeopathic hospital in Boston, where he died Sunday morning, also of pneumonia. They have no immediate relatives nearer than Washington and Nova Scotia.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at St. Mary's Catholic church. Rev. Walter J. Roche was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Interment was in the family lot in Calvary cemetery, Montvale.

TWO SERIOUS FIRES.

Tuesday was an unlucky day for fires on Swanton street, two fairly respectable blazes developing in that territory within twelve hours. The first fire came about noon, box 35 being rung in for a roof fire in a two family house on the edge of the river, occupied by Italian families. The fire evidently started from a burning ember from the chimney, and fanned by the stiff breeze, the dry shingles were soon blazing all over one side of the roof. The men from Hose 3 had a line to the house before the alarm had finished sounding, and had the water pressure been sufficient, would have had the fire out in a jiffy. As it was, a stone lodged in the nozzle of the hose, so that the stream could not reach the roof, and the men were obliged to wait for the hook and ladder truck from the centre for a ladder to carry the line to the roof, which in the meantime was burning in fine style. With the arrival of the ladders the fire was soon extinguished. One side of the roof was pretty well burned to the rafters, and the other side will need shingles.

At about eleven in the evening two alarms, from boxes 31 and 38, were rung in simultaneously for a fire in the grocery store at the corner of Swanton and Holland streets conducted by Flora Flowers. Owing to the mix-up of the alarm the centre apparatus did not leave the house until a second alarm from box 38 was sounded, but Hose 3, located near the scene, had a stream on in short order. The fire was confined to the store entirely, which was fortunate, as the remainder of the building, which is owned by Mr. John Holland, was occupied by a number of Italian families. The store was badly gutted and the firemen receiving considerable credit for their prompt work in controlling the blaze. It is said that an open barrel of kerosene, containing some 50 gallons, was standing in one corner of the store, and by the time the fire had been extinguished sufficiently for the firemen to enter, was so hot that it was uncomfortably warm to put one's finger in.

USURPING SELECTMEN'S DUTIES.

Up in Spencer they have discovered that a town meeting has no right to take away duties incumbent upon certain boards of town officers and assign them to special committees, and the Selectmen have ignored special committees and have voted to rescind all votes taken while acting with the special committee, and "that the Selectmen do the town's business for the town."

The Spencer Leader, speaking of this action, says:

"The special town meeting committees that have been jammed through by aid of the chief political workers in the past few years have not had very pleasant sailing. A committee appointed to build sidewalks never did any business, the Selectmen holding that they were elected to do that work if it was to be done. A special lighting committee appointed two or three years ago put in lots of time and work upon the lighting proposition, but at the end had to retire while the Selectmen closed the deal. And now the sewer committee, after having one ray of hope given them, is cast down. One other committee appointed by the moderator at the last town meeting to appear before the gas and electric light commission for the purpose of securing a reduction in the price of gas, has just about as much legal standing and authority as the other committees.

SPARROWS VICTORIOUS.

At one thirty o'clock on Sunday afternoon hundreds of sparrows were seen coming out of the cupola of the court house, all yelling and screaming in a manner that would have done credit to any tribe of natives who whooped here in earlier ages. A closer observation of the strange action of the "feathered folk" disclosed a huge rat making his way before enraged innocence. The rat stopped a moment on the sill of the window and in the meantime the birds approached him and were seen to inflict wounds upon his hinder parts with their sharp bills all the while keeping up their tumultuous and terrifying yells. When the rat could no longer endure his merited punishment he dropped four feet to the ledge below.

But this change of base did not afford him the hoped for relief, for the birds encouraged by his further retreat, grew bolder and plunged more deeply their sharp pointed beaks into his bleeding sides. In a few moments more, evidently half crazed with agony and fright, he deliberately dropped from the ledge, twenty feet, to the concrete walk below, followed by the elated birds with their increasing chatter and noise. The rat was, apparently, severely hurt by the fall. He slowly crossed the walk, closely followed by his enraged foes who had no mercy for a sorely wounded foe and dropped in to the gutter below. At this point a merciful policeman came out and terminated the sufferings of the dying rat.

The birds quickly realized that the despoiler of their homes and the destroyer of their young was without further power for harm,—was dead. They quickly flew into the neighboring trees and, with savage tones of enmity and rage changed to pleasing tones of gladness and joy, began a jubilee of rejoicing such as has never before been witnessed in Woburn.—(Woburn Times.)

A GOOD JOB WELL DONE.

Supt. Dotten of the Water Department is just completing the laying of a 16 inch cast iron main pipe from the dam at the North Reservoir to Forest street. The old pipe was of cement, 12 inches in diameter, and was laid 35 years ago. This old pipe had outlived its allotted usefulness ten years ago, and to be on the safe side the Water Board decided to replace it with cast iron. At some places the old pipe was in an excellent state of preservation, but in others it was decidedly weak. It was a difficult and tedious job replacing the pipe because the digging had to be done through underbrush and trees, the time required being about 6 weeks. Three gates have been placed at the front of the dam, connecting with the down town supply and the high service, so that there is no chance of the supply of water being cut off for any reason the water from this reservoir should be stopped.

Si ten-inch iron pipe is fast taking the place of the old cement mains, and all that now remains is a piece on upper Main street from Lake street to the ice bridge, and from the centre to Chestnut street on the same street. In time all the cement pipe in town will give way to iron.

Thirty five years ago when the water system was being completed, Mr. Dotten put in a large check valve weighing a ton at the North Reservoir dam. The work was done without the aid of a derrick, and on Wednesday the valve was taken out of its deep bed where it had lain so long without hoisting apparatus, much to the satisfaction of Mr. Dotten.

The pipe running under the dam to the gate house was scoured out yesterday and all the rust and sediment removed with scrapers worked from either end of the pipe.

BASE BALL.

Winchester A. A. will play here Saturday afternoon against the North Woburn team. This is the first of a series of three games. The Woburn team is a strong one and there should be a large attendance.

The Woburn Times says: "Manager Hearn will complete the final arrangements for the game this afternoon. The former series between these teams were always interesting. The Winchester team has been playing all season and has put up a fine article of ball. They will of course be strengthened for this series and North Woburn will have to put its best foot forward to walk away with the championship."

DR. KELEHER'S LOSS IS FELT.

The transfer of Rev. Dr. Keleher, late of St. Mary's Church, was received with regret by his large congregation, who loved and respected him for his ability, his sympathy and interest in the church. Also he was respected by the people at large, irrespective of creed, for his scholarly attainments and his interest in the town during his brief pastorate.

Rev. Dr. Keleher is an able administrator, and he was probably selected for the Lowell parish because of this. The late Rev. Fr. Ronan had planned a magnificent parish property when death came and stopped this work. It will devolve upon the new pastor to resume the work.

Fr. Keleher is a priest of scholarly attainments and is a preacher of note. On several occasions he has been invited as the pulpit orator on notable occasions.

At the morning service Rev. Dr. Keleher, in referring to the severance of his connection with the church said, in part:

"His grace the Archbishop has appointed me rector of St. Peter's Church, Lowell. Before I leave I wish to say a few words of parting. This appointment has come to me as a surprise. I have not sought for a change. It will cost much to break the ties that have been formed in Winchester where I have been the recipient of unvarying kindness from people of every class and condition.

But I have the truest consolation a priest may have; the appointment of my Superior and his command to take a more important post.

I go with a heart full of gratitude to you the people of St. Mary's parish for the love and loyalty that you have shown me since my coming amongst you. I will never forget to pray God that his blessing may be with you and your families, and I ask your prayers for myself and my work. May God bless you all."

Rev. Dr. Keleher entered upon his duties at Lowell yesterday.

Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, for the past three or four years pastor of St. Raphael's church, West Medford, and who is to succeed Dr. Keleher, is known to clergy and people as one of the hardest and most zealous clergymen of the archdiocese. His efforts at West Medford, made in the face of almost unsurmountable obstacles, have proved the greatest successes and his promotion to a larger parish will be most pleasing news to a wide circle of friends.

Fr. Merritt was for some years stationed at the Gate of Heaven church in South Boston, then at St. Patrick's church, Dudley st., Roxbury. At the latter place he spent about 10 years and his time for the most part was devoted to the boys' Sunday school as well as the usual parish duties.

He went to his new duties a stranger to the people and to a place without a church edifice, previously the section being a part of the Medford parish of St. Joseph's. Fr. Merritt soon became well known to the people, and both those of his own faith and others took hold in giving him a helping hand, with the result that in one year St. Raphael's church was built and dedicated.

The Medford Mercury says:

The Catholic people of West Medford keenly regret the transfer of their beloved pastor. Rev. Fr. Merritt went to the West Medford church from Boston. He is a graduate of Boston college and the Grand seminary at Montreal, later returning to Boston to finish his studies in the Brighton seminary. He was ordained at the Christmas ordinations in 1882.

After his ordination he supplied a number of pulpits for a short period and later was appointed a curate at the Gate of Heaven church in South Boston. He spent about eight years at that church and did much toward promoting interest in the League of the Sacred Heart. Owing to the great amount of hard work done by him, he was advised by his physicians to go abroad for his health. He gave up the South Boston curacy and when he returned he was assigned to St. Patrick's church in Roxbury. He was made pastor of the West Medford church in 1905, and has done much toward building up the congregation of that parish.

CARRIE HOLTON SHEPHERD.

Mrs. Eugene E. Shepherd of West Medford, daughter of the late Samuel S. Holton of Winchester, passed away Wednesday morning having been a sufferer from Bright's disease for five years. Mrs. Shepherd was a continual sufferer for most of the time, the last two months being particularly sad. She leaves a husband, one son, Everett, who is married, a daughter, Lillian, and four sisters—one, Mrs. John D. Twombly of this town—and Georgie, Amanda, and Elizabeth, two brothers, Luther and Edward and hosts of friends in this town. The funeral will occur at two o'clock today, and the burial will be in Wildwood.

WINCHESTER THE BANNER TOWN.

Wakefield Selectmen have since January issued as many building licenses as all last year. Stoneham, with the prospect of the early completion of the Fells railway, is believed by its citizens to be on the eve of a building boom. The next census will show a considerable increase in population in Wilmington. In Reading there are more houses of the better class under construction and contemplated than at any time in the past. Winchester, in size and character of growth, is the banner town around Boston, and Arlington and Lexington are filling up in the right way. And in all the places civic pride is more marked than formerly. Aesthetic ideas are more generally in use in their physical development. It is not true, as the West seems to have it, that New England is in a state of decadence.—Reading Chronicle.

CUTTER VILLAGE WON.

The Cutter Village Juniors defeated the Black Ball Stars on Richardson street field last Saturday. In the first of the 8th inning the score stood 7 to 3 in favor of the B. B. S. Crampton, the pitcher, went the base, Dunberry doing the same and Pope knocking a two bagger letting Crampton in. The next man struck a double play, finishing that inning. The B. B. S. were easy out's for the Juniors, Noonan, the catcher reaching first base, Dunberry knocking a three bagger. Noonan reaching home on Dunberry's strike. Newlands getting first base let Dunberry in. King got a home run and let them in. The score was 7 to 6 in favor of the Juniors in the last inning. The line up of Cutter Village, Jr., team was: W. Noonan catcher; Crampton pitcher; Dunberry 1st base; Newlands 2nd base; Pope 3rd base; O'Laughlin right field; King centre field; R. Noonan S.S.; Meskill L. F.

W. C. F. U. NOTES.

A message to Mrs. Hamilton, the president of the local Union, from Mrs. Katharine Lente Stevenson, the State President, now making a round the world missionary journey in the interests of the work, conveys loving remembrance to the members of the Union and congratulation on their fine record in increasing the membership twenty-five per cent this year. She also speaks of the great interest she finds in all parts of the world where she has been presenting the gospel of temperance. In China and Japan audiences were large and enthusiastic and in the schools the teachers have taken up the work along with their manifold other duties.

The brewers' organ is making most desperate efforts to convince their readers that total abstinence means the final extinction of all good things. Evidently they see the handwriting on the wall and seek to discount it.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Palmer and family have returned from an extended and most interesting trip. They have visited Mrs. Palmer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Salem Wilder in N. Carolina, and Mr. and Mrs. Guy P. Palmer in Chicago, Ill., and have improved the opportunity, to see many points of interest on the way.

BILLY THE BORE.

He Was Very Different From the Poet and the Halfback.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

There was no denying that Billy was not deeply intellectual. He was tall and blond, with broad shoulders and a smile that was like sunshine on a gloomy day. But among the girls of the college these qualities counted for little, for they worshiped at the shrine of the poet and of the halfback. The poet had long hair, and so had the halfback, but otherwise they had nothing in common except that they both loved Dulcie Drayton.

Billy loved Dulcie too. But he hadn't half a chance, for the poet wrote sonnets to Dulcie's eyebrows, and the halfback let her shine in his reflected football glory.

Now and then she consented to make Billy happy. "Yes, I will walk with you," she told him graciously one October day, "only we mustn't go very far, for I have an engagement with the halfback."

"All right," said Billy and promptly forgot his watch.

The halfback was raging when they finally reached Dulcie's home. "We have missed the game," he said. "Of course if I had been playing I couldn't have waited; but, as it is, I have hung around."

"Billy forgot his watch," Dulcie apologized, "and we didn't realize how late it was."

"I should think he would bore you to death," the halfback said when Billy left them. "How can you stand that fellow?"

"He's not bad," Dulcie defended. "Of course he hasn't such an awful lot of brains, and he hasn't done such wonderful things as you have, but he's got an awfully good disposition."

And the halfback, remembering his own grumbling and growling, said "Oh, well," uncomfortably and wondered if Dulcie was hitting at him.

A few days later the poet took Dulcie to task about Billy. "You danced with him four times last night," he said, "and I wanted you to sit out those last two in the conservatory with me. I had a new poem to read to you. It was about young October's golden eyes, and it is dedicated to you."

"Read it to me now," said Dulcie. "I'd love to hear it."

"The atmosphere isn't right," the poet fretted, "not here on the campus, but last night there was a little moon, and there were red roses on the lattice."

"Billy is an awfully good dancer," Dulcie reflected, which, as the poet generally got tangled up even in a twostep, was not tactful.

For several days after that, however, the rivalry between the poet and the halfback was so intense that Billy was left completely in the background.

The poet sat up half the night writing verses, and the theme was "love, love, love," and he claimed every spare moment of Dulcie's time to read them to her.

"He writes about my hair," she told Billy, "and calls it 'soft spun silk shimmering in the sunshine.'"

"I don't see the use of stringing out a lot of shimmering sunshine sentences when your hair is too beautiful to be described," said Billy bluntly.

Dulcie smiled up at him. "After all, I like the way you put it, Billy," she said, "and I'm glad you like the color of my hair."

"I love it," Billy stated, "and I love you, Dulcie."

"Oh, oh, you mustn't!" Dulcie protested.

"Well, not now. If you don't want me to, but I shall tell you again, Dulcie," Billy answered.

"And he will," Dulcie told her most intimate friend that night. "He will ask me over and over again."

"Well, of course you couldn't marry him," said the intimate friend calmly, "not such a bore."

"I am not sure that Billy deserves that nickname," said Dulcie. "He doesn't talk moonshine like the poet or brag of himself like the halfback, but he does say some nice, sensible, good-hearted things, and he has a lovely smile."

The intimate friend sat up and looked at her. "Well, of all things," she said, "I believe you are half in love with him. How you can think of him when you have the choice of two such men as the poet and the halfback is more than I can understand."

"But are they really in love with me?" Dulcie demanded.

"They have asked you to marry them, haven't they?" Marlon asked.

"Yes. But somehow it seems to me that they are always thinking of themselves. But Billy thinks of me."

"Oh," Marlon said softly, "I know what you mean. If you married the poet or the halfback you would have to worship at their shrines, while Billy would worship at yours."

"Yes," said Dulcie, "that's it, and a man who loves you that way can't exactly bore you, can he?"

"No, he can't," said Marlon, "but of course you can never tell how long it will last."

"Sometimes I have thought I should like to put them to a test as ladies did with the knights of old," Dulcie meditated.

"But what test?" Marlon demanded. "Could you have in modern days?"

"In the old times it was a test of strength and skill," Dulcie stated, "but today there is one test, Marlon—money. You know I have a lot in my own right. And the boys know it, an' or them, the poet and the halfback and Billy. Perhaps that is what makes me the most popular girl in school—my money, not just me myself."

"You are a darling," Marlon encouraged her, "but you know how men are."

"Yes, I do," Dulcie agreed. And they then and there constructed a plot.

The next night the poet, lingering in the shadow of the elms, was met by Marlon. When they had talked for a moment she said, "Isn't it sad about Dulcie Drayton?"

"Sad?" the poet echoed. "Oh, didn't she tell you?" Marlon hesitated. "Then I ought not to."

But the poet urged her. "Well, she has lost all of her money," Marlon said, "I am her roommate, and I saw the letter. But please don't speak of it."

"Of course not," said the poet. "But that night he wrote many verses, and in all of them was a note of re- nunciation, and the next day he gave them to Dulcie. 'They are very sad,' he explained, 'but I have come to believe that a genius should not marry. Only in the sadness of solitude can talent be developed. I must give you up, my Dulcie.'"

"I am not your Dulcie," the girl started, with a little flame in her cheeks.

She did not reproach him. What was the use of reproaching such a feeble thing as the poet? But when Marlon had told the halfback the same tale and he had without compunction broken an engagement with Dulcie, giving as an excuse "I am going to cut out dances for awhile, and girls," she allowed herself the luxury of a retort.

"Then you won't miss me when I go away," she said pointedly.

"Go away?" he questioned.

"Yes. You see, I am eighteen tomorrow, and my money will be my own to use as I please, and I have so many plans."

"But," the halfback gasped, "I thought you had lost your money?" He stopped, red to the ears.

"So did the poet," said Dulcie. "Marlon told both of you some kind of tale, and both of you believed it."

"That wasn't the reason," the halfback excused.

Dulcie stopped him sternly. "Yes, it was. That was why you gave up girls—that was why you gave up me! And she left him abruptly."

"I am half afraid to have you tell Billy," she told Marlon that night. "If he should fall for me!"

But Billy when he heard the news came straight to her.

"Marlon has told me," he said simply. "I haven't much, Dulcie, but I love you, and I want you to marry me at once if you will."

Dulcie laid her hand on his arm. "Billy," she said, "I am not poor. I put you and the poet and the halfback to a test, and only you stood it. You are the knight of the true heart, and I love you."

After Billy had kissed her rapturously he asked, "Are you sure I won't bore you, Dulcie?"

"If you know how I hated the poet's poems and the halfback's boasting you wouldn't ask such a silly question, Billy," she replied.

Hospital "Boarders."

"There is a class which gives every hospital in the city a whole lot of trouble, especially in the winter time," said a member of the faculty of the Pennsylvania hospital. "It is made up of what we call 'steady boarders,' meaning men who have no homes, who are too lazy to work and who feign illness in order to secure a comfortable bed and good food for a week or so at a time. However, we have devised a scheme which is quite effective in driving them away. When one of these boarders arrives on the scene we can usually spot him. We know the earmarks of the species. He is taken into the receiving ward, solemnly undressed and laid upon the operating table, where a fake examination takes place. The trouble is finally located in the spine, and an immediate operation is advised. The patient writhes, protesting that he feels much better, but is not permitted to leave. Meanwhile a piece of ice has been sharpened to a point and suddenly, without warning, the ice is drawn down the boarder's back. With a yell he is off the table, out of the room and out of the building. We throw his clothes out after him, and he never comes back."—Philadelphia Record.

For Boots or Bedding?

His car had broken down. It was to o'clock at night. The rain was beginning to drizzle. Dash it, bust it and likewise blow it!

There was an inn near by. It was only just an inn, but it was an inn. The landlord growled when he asked for a room, but at last conceded it. They put his motor in the garage among the mangel wurzels.

He didn't have any supper. He just looked at it. Then he went up to bed.

A minute later he was leaning over the balustrade.

"Landlord!" he yelled. "Landlord! Do you think I'm going to clean my own boots?"

"Not's up?" called back mine surly host.

"What's up? Why, what's that boot polishing pad on my bed for?"

"Polishin' pad?" roared back the landlord. "That's not a polishin' pad, young feller. That's the pillow!"—London Scraps.

Capacity Limited.

To a swell cafe I led her, and on terrapin I fed her, yet methought I noted sadness in her eye. Then as we departed and for a street car started, she let out a large and soulful sigh. When I asked her trouble, her answer knocked me double. "I got so full of turtle that I had no room for pie."—Chicago News.

Mike Was There Too.

"I was there," said the reporter, "and I know this is true."

"It was during the Spanish-American war. Most of the boys had enlisted in the navy, and there were more than a score aboard the converted cruiser St. Paul, commanded by the then Captain Sigsbee, who was commander of the ill-fated Maine at the time she was destroyed in Havana harbor."

"We were slowly making passage out of New York harbor one bright, sunny morning, and several hundred of the crew were lined up along the lee rail of the main deck watching the various craft plying up and down the river."

"By and by a magnificent swanlike private yacht, owned by a prominent Philadelphia, steamed swiftly alongside of us, and when we were within easy speaking distance a beautiful and elegantly attired woman on the bridge called out in a clear soprano voice to the officer on our bridge, 'Is Captain Sigsbee aboard?'"

"Before the man addressed could reply a huge, brawny coal heaver, with a voice that seemed to almost make the ship vibrate, shouted from the main deck, 'Yes, Captain Sigsbee is aboard, an' so is Mike O'Neill!'"

"In the roar of laughter which followed even the fair inquirer after the captain joined, though the officer on our bridge turned purple with rage and mortification."—Philadelphia Ledger.

strictly. Her heart was like lead within her. "It would be absurd to suppose you had known Maurice Farrar there."

"Let me see," he repeated anxiously. "Yes, I did know a man of that name. What did your friend look like?"

"He was straight and handsome," she returned dreamily. "He had brown, beautiful eyes, a classic, clean shaven face and curling black hair."

"Oh, that isn't the man I know at all," he said positively. "The Farrar I know is rather stout and bearded and quite gray."

Miss Sherwin nodded indifferently. She glanced again appealingly at the clock in the tower. Fifteen minutes past 3! He was not coming.

"There is no use waiting," she said, rising. All the joyousness seemed to have left her. "Maurice would be here if he were alive!"

How dreary the golden day had grown, how cold! And what a moan there was in the wind, a desolate cry that found its echo in her heart.

The man on the bench sprang erect, a straight, robust figure. He thrust his smoked glasses in his pocket, swept off his hat and held out eager arms.

"Alone!" he cried. "Maurice is here!" For one wild, stunned, incredulous moment she stared at him. Then she took a faltering step forward. His arms closed around her as she sobbed out her gladness on his breast.

Marked by exile and labor, prematurely gray, and yet the same—the old sweet smile, the old loving eyes!

"It was no deliberate deception, dear. It was only when I saw you approaching that I remembered the glasses I must wear in strong sunshine and slipped them on. I cannot read with them on," he laughed, "but I bent over the paper just the same. My dearest own girl, will you forgive me? You have kept your girlish beauty. The fever that made my hair gray makes me look older than I am."

Her color had come back in a rose red tide. She smiled up at him, standing stalwart and dignified before her, and she cried to him: "You are handsomer than ever, Maurice! But even if you were really bent and crippled—yes, and blind—you would be, as you've always been, the only man in the wide world for me!"

And now the leaves had a merry rustle and the wind a song of joy.

Pleasures of Trout Fishing.

Catching trout is not the only thing that makes fishing a mountain stream worth while. The early morning ride to the place where you are to commence your day's sport is in itself pleasant to a degree wholly missed by those who take their rides later in the day. During the early hours of the day the air is fresh and invigorating. Every leaf and spear of grass by the roadside sparkles with dew, and the forest is pungent with pleasant and health giving odors that are dispelled as the sun rises above the treetops and dries the moisture on leaf and twig. As you drive quietly along you may have the good fortune to see a deer browsing in a roadside clearing. He stands watching you for a moment or two, then turns quickly and with graceful leaps disappears among the trees. An old fox steps out into the road and trots boldly along ahead of you for some distance, but when he discovers that you are gaining on him he turns for an instant, shows his teeth with a snarl and then slinks away into the bushes. Farther along a partridge with her brood of chicks has also ventured out into the road, and when she, too, discovers that you are drawing uncomfortably near there is a great to do. With outspread wings and uttering the plaintive cry made by a mother partridge when she believes her young to be in danger, she hastily collects the members of her family and leads and drives them back into the security of the woods.—Outing Magazine.

An Expert Should be Called.

The suggestion made by "Observations" that a study of the treatment of our ponds and river be made by an expert is a good one. It is a big question and an important one, too, and should be given the best thought obtainable. Winchester's future is bright and promising, but it would be a big mistake to allow the present condition of the ponds and river to remain as they are at the present time. The expense of making them beautiful and attractive would be far less now than would be the case a few years hence.

THE DIVORCE QUESTION.

That there are two sides to the divorce question was sharply shown by Judge Richardson of the Superior Court in a pronouncement he made last week in connection with a case under consideration. He said:

"The laws of Massachusetts in respect to divorce are founded on mercy—in a large majority of cases, as to practical results—mercy to a woman. Those persons who talk much against divorce and the divorce court mistake, among other errors, the cause for the consequence.

Divorce is the consequence of habitual drunkenness, cruelty, desertion and other crimes which are justifiable grounds for divorce and not the cause of them. To say that divorce, under the laws of this state, causes the crimes for which divorce is allowed, is no less absurd than it would be to say the law for the punishment of thieves produces larceny. The divorce court is an institution of civilization. Barbarians are not troubled by the law's delays, or a process of a court; they dispose of an unfaithful spouse more summarily. It is only within the last half-century—and under government purely secular—that married women have had adequate protection in respect to their property or persons."

How to Cure Insomnia In Summer.

Insomnia is more prevalent in summer than at any other period of the year. The excessive heat causes restlessness, and the HEART AND BRAIN ARE PROMPTED INTO INCREASED ACTIVITY.

A well known New York physician recommends the following method of inducing sleep in the torrid months:

"A bath of moderate duration in lukewarm water just before retiring will be found to be an encourager of sleep.

"But the person should take care not to dry himself thoroughly nor rub himself with a rough towel so that the circulation is stimulated.

"The idea is that by merely wiping off the body so that it is yet damp at the end of the bath the body retains the soothing and quieting effects of the warm water. The stimulus supplied by brisk rubbing would overcome those effects, as would water of extremes of temperature."

Pluck.

"Pluck," said the financier, "is the secret of success."

"Well," interrupted the shabby man, "I'll give you £10 if you'll teach me your method of plucking."—London Telegraph.

THE INCOME TAX.

Remarks of Hon. Samuel W. McCall
Before the Members of the House.

Mr. McCall, in his remarks before the House on the Income Tax, amendment to the constitution stated his position as follows:

I imagine that nothing which I may be able to say will defeat the prearranged programme and prevent the passage of the joint resolution, but for the House to perform its part in such a solemn transaction as amending the Constitution of the United States without having the form of the amendment seriously considered by one of its committees, strikes me as a proceeding of extraordinary levity. Mr. Speaker, if I were in favor of an income-tax amendment, I should be decidedly opposed to an amendment in the form of that which is now pending before the House. By doing away with the rule of apportionment it abrogates one of the fundamental principles of the Constitution. What was the great historic contest in the Constitutional convention? It was between the small States, selfishly struggling for more than their fair share of power, and the large States, representing the Democratic principle and trying to preserve some measure of equality between the man in a large State and the man in a small one.

The small States finally gained an equal representation in the Senate, with the great powers of that body. That is the price the large States paid for the Constitution, but they managed to secure some compensation, and there was conferred upon the Representatives chosen according to population, peculiar powers over taxation, which is especially related to liberty. The House of Representatives was not merely given the power to originate all bills raising revenue but it was provided by the very clause of the Constitution that fixed the basis of representation that Representatives and direct taxes should be apportioned among the States according to population. The framers of the Constitution did not desire to expose the small States to the temptation of combining and plundering the large States. They thought so much of this limitation upon taxation that they again referred to it in the Constitution, and there are two clauses which provide that direct taxes shall be apportioned among the States according to population. They did not withhold the power to impose direct taxes, but they declared that when they were imposed the people of small States should pay their share, man for man, with the people of the large States. Now, the undemocratic feature of our Constitution has been vastly augmented by the admission of small States.

In the Constitutional Convention, States having only one-third of the population of the country were in a majority; but to-day States having only one-sixth of the population elect a majority of the Senate, and yet it is proposed to throw away incontinently this important safeguard of the Constitution, this great democratic feature, and the Democratic party proposes to take a hand and throw the rule of apportionment to the winds. I submit that if you are going to give up the rule of apportionment, you should confer upon the representatives of the people some compensating power to take the place of the safeguard you take away. You should at least provide that the House should have the sole power to originate income-tax bills and that the Senate should not amend them; that its power should be confined either to vetoing or accepting them—the power which the House of Lords in Great Britain has in reference to all tax bills.

The gentleman from New York, my friend Mr. Payne, represents the greatest State in the Union. It seems to me he should be peculiarly concerned here, as his predecessors were in the great constitutional convention, to preserve in some degree the democratic principle. I have great respect for the man in Nevada, but it violates every notion of equality to give him in important processes of taxation 200 times the power of the man in New York. It is said that this tax is for use in time of war. That argument was made with great force in another body, but it strikes me that the ingenuously of it would be more apparent if it were not proposed at this very moment, in a time of profound peace, to stretch the Constitution in order to pass as much of an income-tax measure as we may pass.

So, Mr. Speaker, while they say that they desire this power for time of war, we see today in time of peace an attempt to exercise the power to its utmost extent. And why not, then, limit it expressly to time of war? Why not, for the just protection and the equal rights of the people of New York and of the other great States of this Union, five of which probably will pay nine-tenths of an income tax although they will have only one-ninth of the representation in the Senate—why not preserve the limitation upon the power of the Central Government? Why drag every governmental power to Washington so that a vast centralized government may devour the States and the liberty of the individual as well? I say this amendment should be more carefully considered than it has yet been considered.

It is liable to go into the Constitution of the United States and be forever a part of the organic law in the form in which it has been, I may almost say, extemporized or improvised. The character of the argument which has been made, that this tax is for use in time of war, leads me to observe that the chief purpose of the tax is not financial, but social. It is not primarily to raise money for the State, but to regulate the citizen and to regenerate the moral nature of man. The individual citizen will be called on to lay bare the innermost recesses of his soul in affidavits, and with the aid of the federal inspector, who will supervise his books and papers and business secrets, he may be made to be good, according to the notions of virtue at the moment prevailing in Washington. And, incidentally, and since every business secret in the country can be had access to by the authorities at Washington, the citizen may be made to see his political duty if you happened to have a President who confused the attainments of his ambition with the highest good of the universe and was willing to abuse his power in order to coerce the citizen. You are creating here an ideal condition for corruption and for the political Jack Cade of the future to levy blackmail.

And so, Mr. Speaker, believing that this amendment, with no compensation whatever, does away with an important part of the great compromise of the Constitution, and that it is not limited to the emergency for which it is said to be intended, I shall vote against it. The amendment has not carefully been considered by a committee of this House or by anybody else in the United States that I know of, unless possibly by Mr. William J. Bryan. (Applause.)

Mr. Douglas. Will the gentleman yield for a question, if he has the time?

Mr. McCall. I have completed what I have to say, but I shall be very glad to hear the gentleman's question.

Mr. Douglas. I want to ask the gentleman what he has to say as to this question in connection with his remarks—whether or not a large preponderance of the membership of the House from large States will not be a sufficient safeguard when the time comes to pass an income-tax amendment?

Mr. McCall. That is merely in the form of a veto. They do not have their proportionate share in legislation, when you take into account the whole legislative machine.

Mr. Douglas. They have in the House. Mr. McCall. It would amount to a mere obstructive power, but the tax can be remade in the Senate and mixed up with other taxes, and the Representatives may be obliged to yield.

I desire to say this Mr. Speaker, that it may be well to wait, before we pass this amendment, and witness the operation of the proposed corporation-tax amendment, if it shall ever pass. I believe, from the signs that we have already witnessed, that it is predestined to as great a measure of public odium and unpopularity as any tax bill ever received. (Applause.)

OBSERVATIONS.

I am informed that the over-lay this year is about two thousand dollars. This is enough if the Assessors have done their work carefully and only make rebates when they should be made.

The high school house entrance on the Main Street side should be re-built and made more pretentious. There is no danger of a library building being erected on the lot and the present entrance is not worthy of the rest of the building. It is a mean looking thing.

Although the tariff bill as passed is bad enough, I wish it had gone through just as the big interests wanted it, for the worse it is the sooner it will be changed. The Republican party is living in a fool's paradise and neither Roosevelt or Taft can save it much longer. It will be many years before it again controls the House and is bound soon to leave the Senate also. Complete control always kills off political parties because they lack honesty.

Winchester's Metropolitan district taxes for this year are $19,061.54, an increase of $489.24 over last year.

Would it not be good business to appropriate whatever is necessary to have a study made by a competent concern for the development of the public beauties of our river and ponds? We have had about special committees enough and what we need now is some studies by experts. Some citizens will remember that the Selectmen of 1905 offered such a motion in connection with the grade crossing abolition, but the town meeting voted it down as extravagant. In the lights of subsequent events which was right? When you are on a big job it pays to get big men.

Does W. W. W. think the flag is waving over "the land of the free" in the Philippines?

Mr. Van Alen says the view of the tariff is largely influenced by local conditions. In most parts of this country food, clothes, and shelter are still necessary as well as a few other necessities. How much consideration did the people get on those things?

Now that president Taft has decided for a "normal profit" in connection with protective duties, will he favor a reduction where the profit is abnormal? If he used these words designedly they are important and they are bound to be bothersome whether or no. "Normal profit" of the trusts and monopolies. This expression will stick and the people should not forget it.

In looking over the Assessors poll list book I see that thirty Woburn citizens have taken up their residence here since May first last year. Does Woburn think she can stop this exodus by getting that electric railroad? It isn't more railroads she needs.

Care of the Teeth In Summer.

Horace Fletcher is of the opinion that in the summer the dust laden atmosphere is particularly injurious to the teeth. He says:

"Dental defects cause far more disease than the public imagines. In the dust laden atmosphere of towns the teeth are very liable to disease," he says, "and even when healthy are necessarily dirtied. Some go so far as to advise all town dwellers daily to WASH OUT THE NASAL PASSAGES AND TO GARGLE THE THROAT; but, whatever may be thought of this, it is certain that under existing dietetic conditions special means are needed in order to keep the mouth and teeth clean.

"When man fed on raw food this was not necessary, the food itself and the copious flow of saliva, induced by prolonged mastication, effectually cleansing these parts, but under present conditions food tends to remain within the mouth, especially between the teeth and in their crevices, and therefore special means are needed to remove it.

"This is done by cleaning the teeth and by rinsing the mouth after each meal."

A USEFUL BOOK.

The town directory issued by the Board of Assessors, can be procured free at the drug stores, the Winchester News Co. and at Wilson's. This book as a means of reference is invaluable, and can be had for the asking as long as they last.

Misapprehensions.

"That was a very lucid document you prepared," said the friend.
"Yes," answered the statesman dubiously. "I made it so lucid that I am afraid the public will fail to regard it as able and profound."—Washington Star.

The Dogs of Turkey.

In the matter of kindness to animals it is said that the Turk cannot be surpassed. Thus at Stamboul the wandering dogs are treated with great gentleness, and when puppies come into the world they are lodged with their mother at the side of the street in improvised kennels made out of old boxes lined with straw and bits of carpet. And frequently when a young Turk happens to be flush of money he goes to the nearest baker's shop and buys a quantity of bread, which he distributes among the dogs of the quarter, who testify their gratitude by jumping up at him with muddy paws and sniffing muzzles.

A DREAM STORY.

The Startling Vision That Saved the Life of Lady Vernon.

The following dream story is told in "The Story of My Life," by Augustus I. C. Hare. The story was told to Mr. Hare in Rome in 1870:

Lady Vernon dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, crossing the entrance hall, and she awoke with a great start. After awhile she composed herself to sleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, on the middle of the staircase, and she awoke with a great shock. She got up. She thought she could not be quite well, and she took a little sal volatile. At last she fell asleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, standing at her bedroom door, and she awoke in a great terror, and she jumped out of bed, and she said, "I'll have an end of this; I'll have an end of these foolish imaginations." And she rushed to the door, and she threw the door wide open. And there at the door stood the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other. And when he suddenly saw Lady Vernon in her white nightdress, with her hair streaming down her back, he was so dreadfully frightened that he dropped the candle on the floor and rushed off down the staircase and off to the stables, where there was a horse ready saddled and bridled, on which he meant to have ridden away when he had murdered Lady Vernon. And he rode away without having murdered her at all, and he was never heard of again.

THERE WAS NO ACCIDENT.

And the Message She Received Was Not a Practical Joke.

She was reclining in a low chair in the drawing room, thinking about her dear Willie, who had been legally her property for the space of three months, when a telegram arrived for her. Hurdled tearing open the envelope, she scanned the contents, then fell back in a swoon. The message was from her brother in the city and read:

Will run over today. GEORGE.
Her maid at last restored her to consciousness. Her Willie run over! She could not grasp the full significance of it. One thing she would do—go to him at once. So she hastily attired herself and at length reached her brother's office, who, having sent the news, would be able to tell her all about it.

"How is he, and where have they taken him?"

Her brother stared at her stupidly.

"Oh, don't keep me in suspense! Tell me where he is."

"Where who is?"

"Why, Willie."

"At his office, I presume. I haven't seen him today."

"Then what does this mean? Isn't he run over? Is this one of your silly jokes?"

George took the telegram from his sister, read his own message, then exploded with laughter. It was a long time before he could convince her that this simple intimation that he would run over and pay her a visit was not a detestable and practical joke.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Talker.

You'll note the man who talks too much is always working round. He never seems to hold the job which some one else has found for him because he's bound to keep his tongue upon the wag and spend his boss' precious time in self bouquets and brag. He stays until his story's told and then told once again, and by this time the boss' ear is overfull of pain, and he is told to take his grip, although the boss feels sad, because he's lost his other grip upon the job he had. And yet he never, never learns, but talks his jobs away, because the habit's grown on him that he must have his say. And so he talks until he dies, up to his waning breath; he's talked his chances all away and talked himself to death.—Boston Herald.

Confessions.

The woman begged the bachelor girl not to go yet awhile. She was so urgent that the girl finally sat down again. Then the two sat perfectly still and silent, looking at each other.
"I know what you are thinking," said the bachelor girl by and by.
"What?" asked the woman.
"That, now you've got me to stay, you wonder why it was you insisted so. You don't know what to do with me or to say to me, now I'm here to stay."

"How did you guess it?" the woman laughed.

"I've felt just that way myself," said the bachelor girl, "many and many a time."—New York Press.

A Bad Hole to Get Into.

A gentleman was going round a strange golf course with a local caddy, and after playing part of the way he pointed to a rather high wall and inquired, "Is there a hole over there?"
"Yes, sir," replied the caddy solemnly; "there's the cemetery over there. Don't put yourself into a hole there if you can help it."—London Scrap.

His Transformation.

Little Harold, aged six, felt very proud when he donned his first pair of trousers. Taking his three-year-old brother behind the door, he was overheard to say: "Willie, Willie, do you remember me?"—Delineator.

All is not false which at first seems a lie.—Southey.

Philosophy of Sunburn.

Don't stay out in the broiling sun in the effort to get yourself burned. It may be fine to be brown in the summer, but it's very ugly to be YELLOW IN THE AUTUMN, and that is what you will be if you get deeply sunburned now.

MEDFORD BOULEVARD
SUMMER THEATRE.

Manager J. W. Gorman is confident that he is offering his patrons at the Medford Boulevard Summer Theatre for the coming week the strongest and best vaudeville programme yet given at this delightful resort. At least the bill as outlined looks good to the regular vaudeville practitioner. The list is headed by one of Manager Gorman's European importations that win unstinted plaudits wherever they appear. This is the Florenz Troupe of acrobats.

As a special added attraction there will be Elizabeth Otto and Katherine Nelson, the former presiding at the piano and the latter singing a repertoire of pleasing songs in an inimitable manner. Miss Nelson has a way of making the songs all her own. Miss Otto is a wonder at the piano, whether as an accompanist or turning out a Rubenstein in a dozen different ways.

The Azard Brothers who have no equal as equilibrists on the vaudeville stage will do their amazing stunts. A sure hit is the Mimic Four presenting a one act farce with breezy dialogue, and original music and dancing. Frank E. McNish and Thomas J. Penfold will present their good old time black face specialty in which the "Essence of Virginia" memories play an important part. The Konomograph will show some new motion pictures.

BOSTON LETTER

Re-election of Senator Lodge
Is Apparently Certain

IS NO ONE TO OPPOSE HIM

Democrats Prepare to Accept Vahey For Governor Nominee—Second Councillor District Has a Contest

The adjournment of congress has diverted attention from the tariff bill to state politics. Notwithstanding the hot weather the political pot seems to be fairly active in its boiling.

There appears to be no longer any doubt in regard to the re-election of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. As a matter of fact, there does not appear to have been any doubt at any time, although a number of people have anticipated that ex-Governor Bates might be a candidate. However, Mr. Bates has declined to enter the lists and it is extremely unlikely that anybody else will undertake to displace the senior senator.

There are many people who regard Governor Bates as one of the most popular men in the Republican party in this commonwealth. There is no doubt that his hold upon the party is extremely strong. At the proper time he will undoubtedly make a strong candidate for the senatorship, although there is not a shred of evidence that he has had any intention of opposing Mr. Lodge for re-election.

Mr. Lodge will undoubtedly have a clear field for another six years in the senate and his splendid work on the Payne tariff bill, aided by the silent but masterful Senator Crane, has made him even stronger with the party than he was before. His term does not expire until March, 1911, but the legislature which is elected next year will choose his successor.

Vahey For Governor

Leading Democrats in the state have settled down to the conviction that it will be impossible this year to draft any prominent party man to accept the gubernatorial nomination. Consequently ex-Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown will undoubtedly be given the opportunity to canvass the state at the head of the party ticket. The hope that Colonel William A. Gaston would run has evaporated, notwithstanding the liberal contribution which he recently made to the Democratic state committee. It does not look, at the present time, as if the state campaign would be a very strenuous affair. Mr. Vahey is not regarded as a dangerous candidate by the Republicans, and Democrats feel that if nominated, defeat will be certain. There does not seem to be any confidence in the Democratic party that any other candidate would fare much better this year.

Of course it is an off year and a much smaller vote is likely to be cast than last year, when the presidency of the United States was at issue. The Democrats, who expected that they might make some capital out of the tariff bill, have concluded that there are no votes in that issue. They are free to confess that the Payne bill is as satisfactory as any tariff bill is likely to be and that no considerable number of people has been aggrieved by its passage.

Three For Councillor

There are several small contests on in various districts of the state for nominations. One of these is in the second councillor district, where the present incumbent, Hon. Albion F. Bemis, is not a candidate for another term, having already served three. The district comprises Attleboro, Berkley, Dighton, Easton, Mansfield, North Attleboro, Norton, Raynham, Rehoboth, Seekonk and Taunton, Avon, Bellingham, Braintree, Brookline, Canton, Dedham, Dover, Foxboro, Hyde Park, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Needham, Franklin, Holliston, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Quincy, Randolph, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Weymouth, Westwood, Weymouth and Wrentham; also wards 20, 21, 22 and 23. There are already in the field J. H. Stearns, Cushman A. Stearns, manager of the Norwood Press, Representative Herbert W. Burr of ward 20, Boston, and ex-Representative Arthur B. Russell of Quincy, who are the three most prominent candidates. There are other possible candidates, but they have not taken an open stand as yet. Each one has his elements of strength.

There has been some news-making talk regarding a new candidate for state auditor, but nothing is likely to come of it. There is no question in the field. State Auditor Tamm has been in that position for many years and has been a most efficient officer of state auditor, and has won golden opinions from all quarters by the reforms he has inaugurated. He was an expert accountant by profession, and his experience in that line has suggested to him methods for saving money and for preventing waste in the departments which have saved the commonwealth thousands of dollars, and received the highest praise from state officials who were deeply interested in his work. If a candidate for the position were to appear it would be likely to be a fruitless task for him to attempt to displace Mr. Turner, in view of the facts which have been stated.

Parker Wants Another Term

There is a rather interesting situation in the eighth Suffolk senate district, where Senator W. Prentiss Parker is a candidate for renomination. Mr. Parker has not been on the best of terms with either the Republican state or city machine, and it is possible that they may not favor his candidacy, but on the contrary may be glad to see some other candidate go into the contest and win. Mr. Parker is a recent convert to Republicanism. He was serving as a Democrat on one of the boards of the city of Boston during the term of Mayor Fitzgerald, when the mayor removed him. Since that time he has been acting with the Republicans, having served last year in the board of aldermen, and this year in the senate. He is regarded as a very honest, conservative legislator, but as a diplomat not a success, giving offense to many by reason of his brusque manners. However, he is quite likely to be renominated.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers of those that are the most in demand are the best combination mattresses, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top, and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It never gets lumpy, and is extremely light and fleecy. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

Take the best hair ticking on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests to lie down in it when they visit.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse-hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Made in best ticking, two parts, new mohair box, and full weight.

THE VENDUE AT MRS. PICKETT'S.

Secret of the Old Oak Chest Turned Misfortune Into Luck.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

(Copyright, 1906, by American Press Association.)

"I never reckoned I'd live to see the day when my things would be sold at a vendue!" sobbed poor old Mrs. Pickett as she sat in her big green rocking chair, holding a corner of her checked gingham apron to her streaming eyes. "I reckon the very cheer I'm sitting in 'll have to go, and I'll be turned out with nothin' but the clothes on my back."

A tall, slender girl about sixteen years old who had been kneeling by her grandmother's chair vainly trying to comfort the old lady rose and said: "Oh, no, grandmother; I don't think it will be as bad as that. I will see to it that your old chair and grandpa's are not sold. You can save out such things as you care for most, but you know that we shall not need half of the things in the two little rooms that we're going to live in at the village."

"Two little rooms in the village?" cried out the old lady, throwing up both hands, with a fresh burst of tears. "And I've got to come down to two little rooms when I've been used all my life to plenty of room, with my big closets and buttry and good dry cellar and nice garden, and all that! Oh, Dotty, what would your Grandpa Pickett have been thinkin' of to be so careless? Dear me, dear me!"

"He didn't know, grandmother. None of us could know that he'd be taken away as he was," replied the girl, her own eyes filling with tears.

Grandfather Pickett had been killed instantly by a fall from his haymow two months before. He had been a kind and good man, but unwisely eccentric in some respects, since he had always made it a rule to tell no one, not even his wife, of his business affairs.

"Women hadn't no head for business. Their capacity lays in other spheres," had been one of Grandfather Pickett's sayings. So his wife had never been taken into his confidence, and at the time of his death she knew almost nothing about his private affairs.

Some truths she soon discovered, to her sorrow. One of them came home to her with stunning and cruel force five days after the funeral, when Mr. Hiram Parks, a money lender living in the village, came to tell her, in his cold, businesslike way, that the mortgage he had held for ten years on the Pickett farm had never been paid and that a settlement must now be made.

He had, besides, a note for $500 given him by Grandfather Pickett at the time the latter had built his new barn and added the last twenty acres to his

"When I'm done with anybody," she said, "I'm done with 'em!"

Acting on this unkindly and un-Christianlike principle, she had "dropped" a friend of her girlhood and early womanhood twenty years before the death of her husband.

Her son had quarreled with the only son of her dearest friend, Mrs. Rachel Day. The mothers had unwisely taken up the matter, and not even the common sorrow that came upon them in the deaths of the sons in after years had served to bring them together. Each had waited for the other to speak, and both had kept silence.

Mrs. Day came to the vendue, as Mrs. Pickett had predicted.

Mrs. Pickett sat in the big rocking chair on the little porch and watched the progress of the sale through a mist of tears.

Other friends came and spoke words of cheer and sympathy, but Rachel Day, prosperous and happy, kept aloof. Occasionally she glanced toward her old friend as she sat on the porch, a pathetic figure in her widow's weeds, her gray head bowed and her handkerchief often at her eyes, but if Mrs. Day felt sorry for Mrs. Pickett she did not say so.

"Going, going, going, gentlemen and ladies! Four and a half has been offered for this solid oak chest, as good as it was the day it was made. Four and a half I'm offered. Who'll make it five? Five, five, five—who says it? Are you all done, ladies and gentlemen? Third and last call and—sold for four and a half to the lady with the brown silk dress and black lace shawl!"

The lady with the brown silk dress and black lace shawl was Rachel Day. Mrs. Pickett fancied she saw a gleam of triumph in the eyes of the new owner of the chest.

pathetic "Dear me!" and a sorrowful shake of her gray head.

Mrs. Pickett and her granddaughter, Dorothy, were left alone. Dorothy was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pickett's only child, who, with his wife, had died when Dorothy was but five years old, and since that time she had been the light and joy of the time old farmhouse.

"And I've taken such comfort in thinkin' that your grandpa an' me would leave you so nicely provided for and in a home of your own when we were gone. Dear me, dear me!"

"It doesn't matter about me, grandpa," Dorothy said. "I am sorry only on your account. I can teach or sew or work in a store or do something else, and we can be very cozy and comfortable in our two snug little rooms. There will be some money left for you after the note and the mortgage are paid."

It was decided that there should be a public sale or vendue of the effects not needed for the new home to which they were to go. A "vendue" was usually attended by everybody in the neighborhood, and the occasion was a semi-holiday. So there was general interest when the posters appeared announcing that Mahala J. Pickett, executrix of the estate of Ira W. Pickett, would on Oct. 10 offer for sale such and such carefully described articles.

Mrs. Pickett had a sorrowful duty in indicating the things she consented to sell.

"They shan't have my mahogany chest of drawers, nor my haircloth sofa, nor my flowered carpet, nor my two big rockin' chairs that my father and mother began housekeepin' with. And they shan't have—oh, dear, dear! There's nothin' I do want 'em to have!"

Are You a Fixture in this Community?

Then you should possess a home, for no man is exactly "settled" until he owns a house and a few square feet of real estate.

Living in a rented house is living artificially; in a home of your own, naturally.

That might be called the sentimental side of the question. Practically it is an economy to be a home owner and I can give you the figures to prove it.

The initial step for the man of limited means is to acquire a good building lot. I believe I can show you something that will suite you.

From Cross Street to Sheffield West

It was announced in these columns a few weeks ago, that Mr. J. A. Laraway, the hustling plumber, had purchased a Buick car. He informed the STAR reporter the other day that he had more than half paid for the cost, in the saving of time in transporting his men to and from their places of work. He has about $15,000 of contract work on hand in various places, so that placing his men on the jobs in the shortest possible time means quite a saving, and thus enables him to make low figures, on this class of work. There are no vexatious waits when he takes a job of plumbing.

The announcement that Mr. S. D. Leland and family will not remove to South Framingham, where his manufacturing plant has gone, was received with much satisfaction. This estimable family have many friends in Winchester, and while they regretted that his business had to go to Framingham because of lack of accommodations here, are consoled by the intention of the family to remain here. Mr. Leland is a member of the Water and Sewer Board, and has always taken a deep interest in town affairs. Mr. Leland made every effort possible to keep his plant here.

The Lebanon street fountain ceased to flow last week Thursday, although the water from the spring continues to flow down the Lebanon street gutter the same as usual. The reason for this stoppage is said to be owing to the fact that when the town men connected the spring with the fountain they placed the pipe in the spring too high, so that when dry weather came and the water got low it failed to flow into the pipe but passed into the ground. This should be remedied, as hundreds of people who cannot afford ice resort to this spring for their drinking water.

THE PLAYROOM CLOSES.

The Vacation Playroom on Friday last closed a very successful season. It has been conducted by a committee of six, of whom Mrs. J. S. Woods was chairman, and Mesdames Pratt, Currier, Stone, and Misses Folts and Neal were efficient members. About sixty fortnightly members have acted as helpers, giving generously of their time and talents during weather which made idleness seem very excusable. Among those who have been present every week for one or more days are Mrs. Littlefield, Mrs. Currier, Mrs. Stone, Mrs. Hosea, Miss Folts, Mrs. Nichols, Miss Neal, Mrs. Robie and Mrs. Dorsey, who have each given a week. Among those who have given one or more mornings are Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Grover and daughter, Miss Haines, Mrs. Kerr, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Pike, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Root, Mrs. Adriance and daughter, Mrs. Barron, Miss Lucy Barard, Mrs. W. E. Belcher, Miss Belcher, Mrs. Blaisdell, Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. W. E. Cummings, Mrs. Dunning, Mrs. Edlefsen, Miss Elliott, Mrs. Daniel Kelley and daughter, Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. Winn, Miss Pierce, Miss Lucy Young, Mrs. Edgar Young, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Tufts, Mrs. Tucker, Miss Georgia Stone, Mrs. George Spaulding, Mrs. Smalley, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Preston Pond, Mrs. Ely, Mrs. G. L. R. French, Mrs. Gage, Mrs. Whitten, Mrs. Sarah Goffie, Mrs. Smith, Miss Hall, Miss White, Miss Enman, and Miss Herrick.

These ladies have worked mostly in the sewing room where an average of 35 girls have been taught. Of these girls 20 of them were home on the last day of school, a dress made by their own hands during the term. The other dresses were more or less near completion, but all had worked faithfully and well. The attendance in this room was remarkably good, and great credit is due the teacher, Miss Mary Barr, and her assistant, Miss Helen Adams, for their conscientious work.

The boys of the corresponding age—9 to 12—were kept very busy under the care of Miss Dowd of Lowell, learning the trades of cobbling shoes and caning chairs. This room was most fluctuating in number, but some very creditable work was done. Too much cannot be said of the work of Miss Folts in the line of caning chairs and to her watchfulness and painstaking thoroughness is due the remarkable showing of caned chairs which was one of the results of the session. It is to be hoped that some of the boys who have learned to tap their own shoes may have an outfit so that they may use the knowledge they have thus acquired in taking care of the family shoes.

The children from 6 to 9 years of age to the average of 15 were kept happy in the care of Miss Tarbell of Woburn. As no line of work is laid out for this room it required great ingenuity on the part of the teacher in devising work in paper weaving, color work, cutting, pasting and knitting to keep the children busy; but the bright faces and general air of good fellowship which greeted the visitor showed conclusively how successful Miss Tarbell was in her really difficult undertaking. Miss Pratt of Andover, with Miss Edith Adams as assistant, conducted a kindergarten of about 25 children. This room was a most ideal one and one only regretted that double the number of children could not be under the care of this accomplished and talented young lady. In every way approved by the child-lover and student, this room was above criticism. Nothing was too trifling to be done in the most dainty way, and the sight of the little ones at their lunch was a joy to all beholders.

A room which was a great attraction to visitors was the nursery, where thirty or more babies under four were cared for by Miss Elizabeth Cullen. The donation of a fine crib added greatly to the comfort of the little ones, and four sleeping in it at one time was the pleasing sight which greeted the eye on arriving in the upper corridor. The committee was very fortunate in securing Miss Cullen for this work, as she is especially adapted for it and in every way was most admirable. The lunch of graham crackers and milk which was made possible for all by the generosity of two of our townsmen, is of great benefit to the children. Through the kindness of Mr. John Lynch it has been served to the children straight from his refrigerator, and on some of the hottest mornings of the past summer it has been especially enjoyed. On Friday of last week all interested friends were invited to visit the playroom. About forty accepted the invitation and among them it was pleasant to notice Professor Currier of the School Board, Mr. March, the former superintendent of the city, Mr. Hubbard, Miss Taylor, Miss Fox, Miss Riley and Mrs. O'Sullivan, Winchester teachers, Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Mary Rickard, Mrs. Percy Metcalf, Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Blood, Miss Hulse, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Leland, Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Sweetzer, Mrs. Sanborn and Miss Nowell and many of the mothers from the neighborhood. The committee in charge of the work have been much cheered by the interest shown by the visitors during the season, and it is felt that this good work will not be allowed to languish for want of those willing and able to carry it on.

MRS. GEORGE P. BROWN.

Mrs. Sarah Caroline (Blanchard) Brown, wife of Dr. George P. Brown, died at the home of her son, Mr. Gorham B. Humphrey, at Wolfboro, N. H., on the 12th inst. Her sickness covered a considerable period, she being first taken ill last September. On the eleventh of June she went to the home of her son to pass the summer as was her custom, and anticipated a complete recovery, but her condition constantly grew more serious and for several weeks she had been hovering between life and death. The cause of her death was an intestinal trouble.

Mrs. Brown was born in Boston, her maiden name being Blanchard. For many years she resided in this town with her parents, living on Central street. Following her marriage to Mr. Leavett Humphrey of Hingham she moved to San Francisco, Cal., residing there until his death in 1866. She then returned to Winchester and lived here with her folks until 1873, when they moved to Dorchester.

Mrs. Humphrey was married to Dr. Brown in March, 1908, and resided in Winchester since. She was an old member of the Unitarian Church, joining upon its formation, and for many years was a prominent teacher in the Sunday School department of the society.

She leaves, besides her husband, two sons, Samuel, of Portland, Me., and Gorham B. of Wolfboro, N. H.

Funeral services of a simple nature were held at her late home on August 14th, conducted by Rev. H. C. Parker, pastor of the Unitarian church of Woburn. The burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery, Dorchester.

TEAM BROKE THROUGH STREET.

A heavy express team, loaded with soda fountain material from the Puffer factory became mired on Washington street at the head of Nelson street in the heavy rain shortly before six o'clock Tuesday night. One of the front wheels of the wagon sank through the street over its hub. The electric cars were unable to pass the wagon and were somewhat delayed by the accident, passengers being obliged to transfer around the obstruction. Owing to the great amount of water and ankle deep mud at this place the change of cars was a rather disagreeable trip in the pouring rain. Jacks and heavy timbers were secured and the team pried out of the hole later in the evening. The cause of the softening of the street was due to the rain undermining the recently filled in trench made in the construction of the new street drain which is being put in along Washington street at this point.

THE MISSING BARRELS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Once upon a time there were placed about Winchester's centre several stout barrels for the purpose of receiving rubbish—thereby keeping the streets clean. When they first made their appearance, it one may judge from the talk, they were the most important improvement the centre had ever had next to the man who later emptied them.

Our town is going backward. The barrels are no more. And yet I have not heard a single lament over this deplorable circumstance. Is the rubbish short of funds, and shall we take up a special subscription or perhaps the business in the centre will not be choked with rubbish after all.

An Old Broom.

WILL BE FOUND DIFFICULT.

The Dayton, Ohio, Street Railway Company is engaged in an interesting experiment in an effort to cure women passengers of the dangerous practice of alighting backward from cars. If the Dayton company should succeed in finding the solution of this really serious problem it will have earned the gratitude of all street railway managers.

The company has installed on its summer cars a shield directly in front of each handle and this shield is so placed that a person alighting from the car cannot grasp the handle to the rear, but must take hold of the one on the seat forward. Riders almost invariably jump off a car backwards if not held up by conductors.

NOTICE!

The person who left a small oak chair and a large oak rocker to be cared at the vacation school may have their property by calling at Mrs. Duncan's 125 South street, before Sept. 1st.

MRS. LUCINDA E. MASON.

Mrs. Lucinda Elizabeth Mason was born in Derby, Vt., Nov. 14, 1829. She was left fatherless when but three years old and was compelled to earn the money paid for her education. She was a student at Tilton, N. H. After completing the course she obtained the appointment as a teacher in Lowell, Mass., where she remained eight years. She was married to John Clark Mason in Lowell, May 16, 1866.

They moved to Winchester in 1865. She was a devoted wife and mother, and at the same time public spirited, and identified with the various organizations which worked for the betterment of the community where she resided.

Mrs. Mason was active in the early years of her residence here in the work of the Good Templars. She was a charter member and for many years enthusiastically active in The Fortnightly. She was a member of the Woman's Charity Club of Boston, one of the organizing members of the Winchester Union, giving to it for many years the most self-sacrificing service. She was one of the board of directors at the establishing of the Winchester Home for Aged People, and served the town as one of the board of Overseers of the Poor. She was a member of the Executive Board of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the New England Conference, and gave great help in carrying on the work of the Immigrants Home of East Boston, and also the Medical Mission, situated in the North End of Boston.

She was interested in the work of the education of the Freedmen in the South, and visited one of the schools for the colored people at Holly Springs, Miss. Of this school she has been a devoted and generous patron for many years. She was a charter member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association in Winchester.

Other, more than of any other, the Methodist Episcopal church of Winchester is the lasting memorial. The first notice of Methodist preaching in Winchester for Thursday evening, April 20, 1871, in Union Hall which was read in the several churches of Winchester, was signed by Mrs. J. C. Mason. The first Methodist class meeting was held at her residence. Her husband was equally zealous in advancing the new enterprise. He purchased the lot on the site of the present Methodist church, and it was the wise leadership, the devoted service and the unlimited generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Mason that made the existence of this society possible.

Mrs. Lucinda Elizabeth Mason died on Friday morning, Aug. 13. She had been so identified with the various interests of the church and town that many felt that the funeral ought to be held at the church where many friends might have attended. It was in accord with her retiring disposition that she requested that the funeral services should be of a very simple character, and held at her home.

On Sunday, Aug. 15, the services were held at the residence on Mt. Pleasant street. They were in charge of the pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. John R. Chaffee, Ph.D., assisted by Rev. John H. Mansfield, a former pastor and Rev. Charles F. Rice, D.D., of Newton, for many years an intimate friend of the family.

There are four children: John W. Mason, Mrs. R. H. Stone, Mrs. Walter H. Marsh and Mrs. Joel M. Learned.

The interment was in Wildwood cemetery.

DRIVER THROWN FROM WAGON.

Arthur Kenney, of Winchester, assistant superintendent at the tannery of T. F. Boyle & Co., Green street, Woburn, is suffering from a badly sprained ankle and several minor bruises as the result of the horse he was driving taking fright near Central Square last week.

The horse was owned by T. F. Boyle & Co., and was attached to a wagon of the Woburn Machine Co. The horse was going at a moderately slow rate of speed when a nut which holds the whiffletree in place became loosened and it fell against the horse's hind legs. This started the horse on a mad run and Mr. Kenney in an effort to stop the animal was pulled from his seat to the ground near the horse's hoofs. As he fell he dropped the reins and the horse broke away from the wagon.

With chains and harness flying in all directions the horse headed for North Woburn, but Driver Kerrigan of Horse 6 brought the frightened steed to a stop.

STATE ROADS.

The Massachusetts highway commission will spend more than $200,000 on maintenance alone this year, making the expenditure on roads for 1909 about $1,000,000. In order to reduce the cost of maintenance some of the roads are being constructed with the top surface of the macadam laid in tar, among which is the connecting link between Phillips and Baldwinville, while on others a heavy asphaltic oil from Texas is being used, as in Athol.

With the use of these preparations it is expected that the roads will withstand the heaviest traffic for a number of years.

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE RECEIVED VALUABLE PRESENTS.

Miss Sidney Robinson, daughter of William Robinson and Harry Francis Miller, son of Lewis Miller of 24 Elijah street, Woburn, were married last week at 86 Salem street by Rev. George H. Tilton of the North Congregational church. The couple were attended by Arthur Miller of Woburn, Timothy Stanton of Newton, Bertha Emerson of Woburn and Margaret Kernen of Winchester who were bridesmaids.

The bride was attired in white silk, with lace trimmings. The bridesmaids' gowns were also of white silk.

After the ceremony a wedding reception was held at their new home 86 Salem street, Woburn from 8 until 10 o'clock when the couple were assisted in receiving by their parents.

They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts, among which were:

FELLS RAILROAD OPENED.

The new road of the Boston Elevated to the Fells was opened to the public last Sunday and the travel must have been for longer than was anticipated, as the equipment was wholly inadequate to handle the throng of people who wished to see this beautiful reservation. Cars left the lower level at Sullivan Square at frequent intervals packed, leaving behind on each trip passengers enough to fill two more cars. The officials simply "told down," so to speak, and scores of people desiring to take the trip upon seeing the crowd bent on doing likewise, gave it up and returned to their homes.

Arriving at Spot Pond, the end of the route, many of the passengers, having in mind the experience at Sullivan Square, remained on the cars for the return trip. The others apparently did not know where to go or what to do with themselves, so that little of the beauty of the reservation was seen. Maps and literature can be made to perform an important part in showing it up to the people, and no doubt this will be forthcoming. There should be a large shelter and waiting room at the end of the route for the accommodation of the people, for it must be remembered that this is going to be one of the most popular resorts in the State, when its natural beauties become known. An electric car road from the terminal of the Elevated through to Winchester would open up the reservation to the cities and towns on this side of it, the people of which are as far away at the present time as ever.

NO. WOBURN DEFEATED.

North Woburn was defeated by the Winchester A. A., on Manchester field last Saturday afternoon, in the first of the series of three games arranged between these teams, the score being 10-7 in favor of Winchester.

North Woburn started off like a winner, getting two runs in the first inning, but failed to hold the pace and did not score again until the fifth, when they were practically given three runs. Winchester scored two in the first, three in the second, one in the fifth and two each in the seventh and eighth.

With two men on bases in the first inning, LeDuc made a sensational hit, a grounder that went skidding out into center field, good for two bases and two runs. In the fifth, Lane hit a long drive to right field and made three bases.

The Woburnians were out in full force, and there was the largest crowd that has been at any game on Manchester field this season.

OLD FRIENDS MEET.

Mrs. Warren Teel and her daughter, Jennie, from Davenport, Iowa, have been visiting in Winchester and other places for several weeks. Mrs. Teel had lived in this town many years in her younger days, but had not visited her old home for about forty years. Consequently she found many changes. She was sister-in-law of Miss Luthera Teel who owned the house on Highland avenue corner of Winthrop, now the home of Miss Abba and Nellie Mead, who arranged a very pleasant time in honor of Miss Teel and daughter.

Some of the old friends were invited and a most delightful time was enjoyed talking over old school day experiences some of them in the little red school house which stood on Washington street on what is now the Skillings' lawn. The old building can now be seen on the back land of the estate now used as a small dwelling house. Very few who attended the little school are now living; nothing gives more pleasure than to meet old school day friends whom we have not seen for many years.

Mrs. Teel was the eldest daughter of Mr. Stephen Nickols who was a respected citizen of this town until his death.

The old homestead still remains and not much changed.

Mr. Teel formerly lived in Winchester, but moved to Davenport where he has been the Assistant Post Master for many years until his death within the past year.

Mrs. Teel and daughter left on the 18th, for Davenport where Miss Jennie has been teaching for several years.

FIREWORKS LABOR DAY.

The Selectmen this week granted permission—with reservations—to Henry J. "Bucky" Lyons to give a display of fireworks on Manchester field on Labor Day night. The reservations in the permit are that the affair shall be under the jurisdiction of the Chief of Police and that extra loud bombs not displaying colored fire shall not be used.

"Bucky's" interest in giving the display is actuated solely by his patriotism, for he expects no personal remuneration from the event. It is his plan to raise the money necessary for the purchase of the fireworks by popular subscription, and for the music he will make the request that the Met. Park Com. hold one of its concerts on the evening of that day.

A GREAT OUTING.

When one considers the variety of inexpensive trips offered by the old reliable Plant Line, it is easy to understand why so many people are going that way to the Maritime Provinces.

A visit to Commercial wharf any Tuesday, Wednesday or Saturday will convince one that this ever popular line is carrying tourists in great numbers, whose only vacation thought is historic Halifax and a few days' rest in cool Nova Scotia. Many others, however, are only satisfied with the delightful 1400 mile ocean voyage to Prince Edward Island, the land of health and invigorated beauty.

MARTIN MORSE DEAD.

Martin Morse, well known to numerous Winchester people, died last night at his home on Cross street of consumption. For many years he has labored under the cruel, crossing and although crippled by lameness, was a most careful and faithful workman over the lines of the many people who daily crossed the tracks. During later years he was on duty during the night, in connection with the railroad until forced to give up by failing health.

He was born in Nova Scotia and was 75 years of age. The funeral will be held Saturday at 3 p. m. from the residence.

HORSE AGAIN RAN AWAY.

The Telephone company's horse again ran away yesterday and although no one was hurt this time, the wagon was smashed to kindling wood. Starting on Highland avenue, the animal ran down Walnut street, throwing out two men and tipping over the wagon at the corner of the Parkway. The wagon and contents were arranged about the street in a most complete manner. The horse, freed from the wagon then ran down the Parkway and up Main street through the centre, being caught in front of Hutchinson's Market by Mr. Madden.

THE STAGE IN JAPAN.

Origin of the Drama—Women's Arduous Preparations of Dress.

There is a legend in Japan that the theater had its origin in that country in the ninth century by reason of an earthquake which took place in the province of Yamato. A large crevice was formed by reason of the upheaval, from which emanated poisonous vapors which spread death and destruction all around. An awful scourge was the result until the priests conceived the idea of performing a symbolic dance of incantation on the grass covered hill outside the temple. As if by magic the death vapors vanished, and peace and happiness were restored to the country. The legend concludes that this is how Japanese acting originated. The Japanese word for theater, shibai-ya, is supposed to have come from its origin, shibai, meaning sad, and ya, a house.

In Japan when a Japanese lady intends to go to the theater she is called upon the day previous by a hairdresser to build up the artificial structure which is the pride of every Japanese highborn lady. This necessitates her spending the night in her state dress, reclining her head on a wooden block, called makura. A few hours before going to the theater she covers her lips with a thin layer of gold, as it takes several hours for this paint to change into the cherry color which lends charm to the artificial white complexion of the face.

As a rule, Japanese performances last from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., although certain historical dramas which follow the life of the hero through all his vicissitudes to his death go on for several days.

In Japan, officially, the social position of the actors is that of the lowest class of society, but in reality they enjoy great consideration and are idolized by the general public.—Washington Post.

HUGO AS AN ARTIST.

The Great French Writer's Opinion of His Own Drawings.

When Victor Hugo's "Marion Desormes" was read before the troupe of the Porte-Saint-Martin theater, the actor Lafontaine, then a young man, protested against the insignificant role assigned him, in which he would have only ten lines to recite. Hugo promptly reduced him to silence by thundering, "Ten lines of Victor Hugo are something not to be refused—for they endure." Hugo attached a similar exaggerated significance to everything he did and to every object that was in any way associated with him.

For instance, he considered his drawings, which were for the most part commonplace enough, of sufficient importance to make them the subject of a testamentary provision. In his will of Aug. 31, 1881, he wrote, "I give my drawings and everything which shall be drawn by me to the National Library of Paris, which will be one day the Library of the United States of Europe."

Hugo's drawings are said to have been produced more often than not in the following manner: If a blot of ink chanced to fall on his paper while he held his pen aloft in quest of a word or rhyme, he enlarged the spot almost immediately and made additions to it instinctively under the influence of a species of subconscious direction until he had produced a sinister moon light scene or a "venerable house dominating with its bristling chimneys the shuddering waters of a river of legend." He elaborated with great care, however, during his lifetime, and at Guernsey certain crude impressions he had transferred to his sketchbook during his journeys in the valley of the Rhine. Furthermore, being a great lover of children, he drew figures of the most extravagant sort for the amusement of the young people of his household.—Alvan L. Sanborn in Bookman.

Ending a Letter.

The simplicity of "Yours" as a letter ending would have astounded Jeremy Taylor, whose letters to John Evelyn often wind up with perfect triumphs of complexity in this respect. His best is, "Believe me that I am, in great heartiness and dearness of affection, dear sir, your obliged and most affectionate and endeared friend and servant," or "Your very affectionate friend and hearty servant." Even in his shortest perorations of the kind the "affectionate" and the "servant" are always the two indispensable words. Probably no man, woman or child would combine these two at the end of a letter today.—London Tatler.

A Division of Labor.

The following dialogue at the Bow county court deserves to be recorded:

Witness—One day I had some shrimps to sell, and I asked the plain-tiff to help me. He said, "I can't push the barrow because my arm is bad, but if you like I'll come along with you and holler."

Counsel—Why was that?

Witness—Well, it's like this, sir. A man can often shout when he can't shove.—London News.

Unreasonable.

"Your baby cries a great deal at night. Can't you do anything for it?" "Your dog barks a good deal. Can't you do anything to stop him?" "Confound it, such unreasonable people as you haven't any right to live in a flat!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

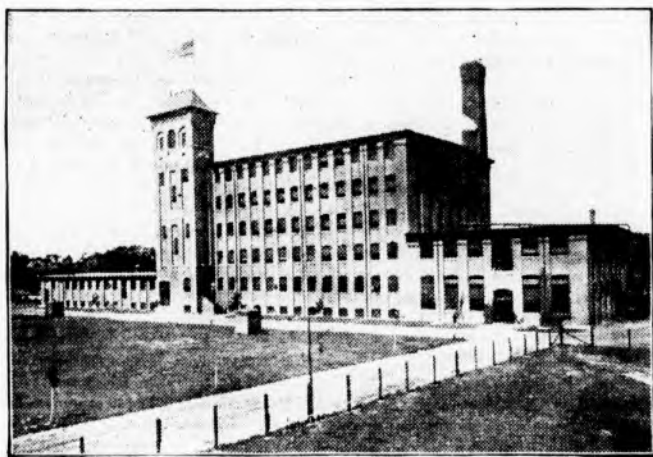

The Result the Same.

"Gimme some of that prune pie." "Son, you've had two kinds of pie already." "Then another kind won't matter. There's only one kind of stomach ache."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A GREAT FACTORY

Where Chocolate and Cocoa is Turned Out by Tons.

The regular monthly meeting of the Massachusetts Press Association took the form of an outing at Mansfield, Mass., Monday, where the Walter M. Lowney Chocolate factory was visited. Also the members inspected the plant of the C. D. Lyons Company, manufacturers of jewelry. This firm is noted for the class of goods it sends to all parts of the country, and its mark is a guarantee of honest goods and thorough workmanship. To Mr. William White, proprietor of the Mansfield News is due much of the pleasure of a most delightful day. Through the courtesy of Mr. Ellis of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, a special car was provided for the editors, and their ladies who numbered eighty. Arriving at Mansfield, Mr. White was on hand with a battery of automobiles, and the party was soon at the Lowney factory. After an interesting inspection of the huge plant a fine dinner was served at the Tavern, and shortly the party embarked on its car for home. Mr. Lowney personally escorted the visitors to the factory and explained to them in detail the evolution of the raw cocoa bean into chocolate in many forms and also into cocoa. From the time the raw cocoa beans start on their journey on the sixth story and drop from floor to floor, until they end in the shipping room as finished goods in cases, there does not seem to be one step wasted and no speck of dirt encountered. The cocoa beans are evidently of a choice variety from many parts of the earth to insure when blended, the finest flavor.

The roasting is a careful process with frequent testing of the bean so as to get just the degree of roasting that will insure the most perfect flavor of the blended beans. The crushing of the beans and removal of the tasteless shell is the next step, followed by the grinding, when the beans, under friction turn unexpectedly into a dark liquid like molasses. The visitors saw the process of making cocoa and how and why it differs from chocolate, and the making of eating chocolate, flavored either with the dark oily pods called vanilla beans, or with the cream from the dairy they were to visit later. They saw the interminable grinding under great stone mills which goes on hour after hour, and adds so materially to the cost of making high class goods which shall be ground to complete smoothness and solubility.

The battery of pumps and the refrigeratsumed by himself and his family, the better for them.

Across from the factory, screened by a growth of oaks in modest retirement, is Mr. Lowney's cottage, where the family spends the summer months, in an unpretentious out-of-door life.

Leaving the factory the party was escorted to the Lowney club house, fitted up with billiard table, bowling alleys, and other helps for the enjoyment of the employees. Here Mr. Lowney gave his guests a "talk" on the chocolate business that made most of them sit up and take notice.

At the Lowney dairy farm they saw a large herd of sleek Jerseys cheerfully giving streams of milk under the most encouraging conditions. Everything is done to make the cows happy, and they make their return in grateful milk. The sanitary conditions are perfect from the clean, concrete floors of the cow barn, to the elaborate pains taken to sterilize the milking machines, the separators and all receptacles. Perfection seems to be the watchword and they certainly take pains to reach it at this source of supply of cream and milk for the

To one remembering Mansfield as chiefly a junction where one hopped off to seize a sandwich or a piece of custard pie, and then board another train with as little delay as possible, the thought occurs naturally that it must be a blessing to a town to secure as good a hotel and as good a citizen as Mr. Lowney. How much better for the lasting vitality of a community to secure a citizen who upholds permanently, than to secure a mere philanthropist, who may do much and yet do nothing to get a town on its feet in self-supporting activity. It is the spirit of helping the town to help itself that has induced Mr. Lowney to start a new factory, a new dairy farm, a new barn, a new hotel, and possibly other ventures which the visitors did not have time to see. These productive investments which we hope are profitable and certainly deserve to be, are the most helpful contributions a town can receive, and in Mansfield's case, added to her other industries, have put new life blood into her. These men of affairs, captains of industry, or whatever you choose to call them, have a most beneficent side connected with their natural human ambition to make money. They seem to act like alternate rain and sun to raise crops of opportunity for others as well as themselves.

Fairhaven had her Rogers, Billerica her Talbot, Easton her Ames, Hopkinton her Draper, and so on indefinitely. Mansfield feels the impetus given by her new citizen, and we wish every town in Massachusetts might be fortunate enough to attract a man of the Walter M. Lowney type to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Hon. B.B. Lindsey, the famous Juvenile judge of Colorado, in an article in the Sunday School Times regarding is work in that Court uses this plain language: "I have been in the Juvenile Court nearly ten years, and in that time I have had to deal with thousands and thousands of boys who have disgraced themselves and their parents, and who have brought sorrow and misery into their lives; and I do not know of any one habit that is more responsible for the troubles of these boys than the vile cigarette habit." Judge Lindsey, a wisely lenient judge, with a heart that desires to be juvenile offenders to enter the better way of life, in the above paragraph makes a statement in harmony with the conviction of many other sincere workers for human welfare. Living illustrations of the evil effects of the habit referred to are before us every day. BARBARA'S DONATION

The Best of All That Was Offered to the Minister.

By ELIZABETH VAN NEST.
[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

If the young minister had been of a sanguine, easily satisfied temperament he might have accommodated himself to circumstances and drifted along as his predecessors had done. But James Morgan brought the enterprise of a modern theologian to the little hamlet, struggling down either side of a high hill, on a summit of which perched the church, like a snow temple.

As the church occupied the center of the village, the young minister reasoned that it ought to be the center of interest also. But, try as he would, he could not awaken the devotional spirit. His parishioners were niggardly in their offerings, the attendance was small and interest slight. His sermons were lost on the slow thinking worshippers; his musical departures were a failure.

But the Rev. Mr. Morgan did not despair. He had the square jaw that accompanies the aggressive nature. The elasticity of his hopes was phenomenal. He simply would not be discouraged. He had accepted the call in full knowledge of the drawbacks. The score of shabby houses classed under the name of Maywood represented only a tithe of the church membership. It was the prosperous farmers whose indifference he must change and conquer with his eloquence.

So James Morgan brought to Maywood a large stock of air castle material with which he beguiled his leisure. He would institute many reforms. The church should escape from an enveloping mortgage and, assuming a paying basis, make many missions glad from its plenty. It should be the mainspring, social and ecclesiastical, on which the village turned. He even proposed that the parsonage be let and the proceeds devoted to the county hospital, a proposal that met with unanimous approval, and the minister took up his residence under Widow Fleming's roof.

Until the end of the first quarter things moved smoothly. The new minister found work to do wherever he looked. And, being generous, he forgot to be cautious when need pulled at his purse strings. Hardly realizing it, he at length found his generosity must be governed by his means until he received his first quarter's salary. But at the end of the second quarter the first quarter's salary was still unpaid. With a board bill two weeks in delinquency the minister, blushing and stammering, informed his parishioners of their negligence.

While their profuse excuses satisfied him, he could not see his way clear to satisfy Mrs. Fleming. The fact that wheat was a failure would not recompense her for his board and lodging. Therefore the Rev. Mr. Morgan did the only thing possible from his point of view. He went to the city next day with a mysterious package. Shortly after the doctor drove three miles to borrow his microscope and was informed that he had disposed of it.

"I have so little time for experiments, you know," he explained, with heightened color. "I could use the money to better advantage."

From this emanated a rumor that at length reached Barbara Dean's ears. The new minister was so philanthropic he had given up his pet hobby to aid the poor.

A wee and timid question mark set itself upon her heart. Perhaps she had been hasty. There was none quite like him—so big, so firm, so brave. It was very singular that he had not asked again—who in theory scorned defeat. Pretty Barbara did not know that the hope crushed by her laughing was the only inelastic one in his stock of dreams.

As the third quarter drew to a close without remuneration the minister mentioned the fact again, this time with fewer blushes and a graver air. His needs were urgent. Day after day he scanned his mail anxiously for the expected check, only to be disappointed. But, appreciating the hard times, other trips to the city with mysterious packages were made.

Returning from one of these visits one night, Mr. Morgan was surprised to see a motley collection of teams and vehicles around Widow Fleming's gate. Lights shone from every window of the cottage, including his study and bedroom. The minister was tired and in no mood to participate in a surprise party on his landlady. But, knowing her limited space, it would be churlish to demand privacy. He must meet her guests, who had overflowed her apartments into his, with ministerial welcome. Forcing the weariness from his face, he ran lightly up the steps and opened his study door.

Ranged around the wall was a solid row of chairs, from which smiling faces gazed upon him in welcome. Overturning the center table and piled on the floor was a collection that at first seemed to be the stock of a grocery store. He singled out a sack of flour and various stone jugs with corn-cob stoppers as he picked his way to a small oasis of bare floor beyond. But, stumbling against one of the bulging packages, the paper burst and a stream of walnuts poured forth.

"Pardon me," he gasped, trying to repair the damage on his knees. "Very awkward of me, I'm sure."

The silence was portentous, and, flushed with confusion, the minister looked up straight into Barbara Dean's eyes. The light in them, tantalizing, amused, was his undoing. The walnuts slipped from his grasp and, striking another bag, liberated a peck of popcorn. He stood up guiltily.

"Please forgive me, Mrs. Fleming," he apologized. "I am sorry if my awkwardness has disclosed your gifts too soon."

"They're not Mrs. Fleming's," corrected Deacon Brown. "They're yours. We thought we'd give you a donation 'stead of money, times are so hard.'"

The Rev. Mr. Morgan unconsciously backed a step. "For me? But, deacon, I have no use for these—er—raw commodities. It is very kind of you—but—but—"

"Besides this, there's a side of meat and a hunk of butter outside," put in Mrs. Fleming proudly. "Now that you've seen them I'd better take the molasses out too. It's so warm in here," picking up two of the jugs.

"By all means," said the minister, wiping his forehead, and in the general conversation that ensued he found himself near Barbara Dean.

"I did not expect to see you," he said in a low voice.

"I am spending a few days with Cousin Bess," she answered. "Are you so devoted to Maywood that you have forgotten your old friends?"

"Only those who wished to forget me," significantly; then, with a despairing glance at the loaded table, "What shall I do with it?" he asked.

"A family of ten could not consume that perishable stuff before it spoils. Why did they bring so much?"

"The unwritten law of a donation party is that none may attend without bringing a present," she said composedly.

"Then what special donation must I thank you for," ironically—"the sack of flour?"

She laughed. His dismay was so comical. She did not know the desperate state of his finances. "I did not bring anything," she said. "I could not—to you."

Something in her voice lent sudden flexibility to his most inelastic hope. With her love to cheer him on he would yet make of Maywood his ideal church.

"Come with me a moment," he said, leading her to the deserted window nearest the church. "I had bright dreams when I came here, Barbara," he went on. "I have learned to love the church and the people. If I go away now my work will be wasted. But I think I shall go when my year is up."

"Where?" she asked quickly.

"Anywhere—to any church that pays a salary," he answered. "That collection represents my work for nine months. It is not enough, Barbara. You said that no one may attend a donation party without a present. I am waiting for yours. If you want me to stay here you must do your part. The deacons and elders have looked after the needs of the material man. You must provide for his spiritual nature."

She played with the widow's best curtains nervously. "You said you would not ask me again," she reminded.

"I have not. You did well to say no," bitterly. "If my work is worth only butter and flour you are justified in forgetting me as quickly as possible. Maywood can keep its donation. I shall leave at once."

A change flashed across her pretty face. The mischief vanished, and in its place stole a tender blush. "Don't be hasty, James," she whispered, with a furtive glance over her shoulder. "Perhaps with my donation we can use the rest. When will the parsonage be empty?"

"I'll give the tenant notice tomorrow," he answered happily. Then, under cover of the widow's voluminous curtains, with the church looking on in solemn witness, he accepted her donation with a kiss.

Using a Life Preserver.

"The worst trouble about a life preserver," said an old sailor, "is that few people know what to do with one when it's thrown to them. Many a man would drown in trying to get a life preserver over his head. The average person struggling about in the water would try to lift up the big life ring and put it over his head. That only causes the man to sink deeper and take more water into his lungs.

"The proper way to approach a life preserver in the water is to take hold of the side nearest you and press upon it with all your weight. That causes the farther side to fly up in the air and down over your head, 'ringing' you as neatly as a man ringing a cane at a country fair. After that the drowning man can be rescued."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Some Sayings of Napoleon.

You know my army. It is an ulcer that would eat me up if I stopped giving it other food.

You have made great use of algebra in all your campaigns. I seem to recollect that you had strength in it and that you could understand how minus multiplied by minus gives plus. I have applied this rule fairly well—Germany minus, Austria minus, Prussia minus, Italy minus—but you must allow that I make a fine plus.

Our text book told you and me that mass multiplied by velocity gives force in motion. I have what makes mass; I shall not fall in velocity, and all will be over before the sunset. The days are long in Russia when the sun shines. I shall fight two or three battles if he will stop to meet me.—"Baron de Cousseau's Memorials."

THE MOUND BUILDERS

Mystery of the Great Monuments Found in This Country.

RELICS OF A VANISHED RACE.

The Strangely Shaped Structures Are Thought to Be More Than Two Thousand Years Old—The Enigma of Those Who Reared Them.

Scattered through the middle west and in other parts of the United States are more than 10,000 monstrous, odd shaped "mounds." Some are built like forts, others in queer, sharp geometrical figures, others shaped like huge serpents, crocodiles, buffaloes, turtles, eagles, lizards, dragons with eggs in their mouths, etc. Some of these mounds are a mile long, some much smaller. In Newark, O., stands a continuous mound, constructed in a perfect circle, more than 5,000 feet in circumference. The mounds are often covered with trees that are many centuries in age. These strangely shaped structures are thought to be more than 2,000 years old.

Who built them?

Certainly not the North American Indians. The Indians have ever been a lazy, roving race, making their livelihood chiefly by hunting and fishing, seldom remaining long in one neighborhood and using tents or the rude huts as their dwelling places.

The mysterious people who built the mounds were not a race of rovers. An infinitely long time must have been required for erecting each huge earth shape. Nor were they ignorant savages, for the mounds show deep knowledge of geometry as well as of astronomy and of the principles of building. Carefully laid out military fortifications abound in the mound builders' country, indicating that the aborigines had martial lore and engineering skill and that they understood many modern principles of attack and defense.

There are also sepulchral mounds, some of them sixty feet high. These contain human bones, skulls, etc., as well as copper utensils and bits of pottery. The bones when exposed to air crumble at once to dust. As the bones of Europeans who died twenty centuries ago are often found intact and strong, many authorities believe the mound builders date back at least several centuries before the time of Julius Caesar.

Cleverly made pottery and copper or bronze implements of war and peace are found all through the mounds. Ancient abandoned copper mines on the banks of Lake Superior show that the mound builders well understood the art of mining. The workmanship of the copper bracelets, bronze knives, etc., prove their skill at the forge.

In one of the prehistoric Lake Superior mines has been found a mass of copper weighing eight tons, resting on a high platform, ready for removal to the upper earth. This implies the use of well constructed mine machinery. Pictures that have been found etched upon copper and ivory portray much artistic skill.

From all this it seems that in some remote age the central part of North America was inhabited by a race of warlike, industrious, decidedly civilized beings who had splendid skill at building, at the arts of mining, engineering and higher mathematics and who flourished apparently during numerous centuries. Yet so long ago did the mound builders cease to exist that in all Indian folklore there is no mention, no memory, of them.

None knew where the Indians themselves came from. Yet they apparently settled in America long after the mound builders had vanished. The skulls discovered in the mounds are not shaped in the least like skulls of Indians nor even of Europeans. Some archaeologists claim to find strong resemblance between the mound builders' skulls and those of the ancient Egyptians. If there were any connection between the two, who can explain how an Egyptian race came to flourish in the middle west?

The fate of the mound builders is as mysterious as the strange people themselves. After reaching so high a civilization and thriving for so long a time it seems strange that they should have been completely destroyed. No satisfactory explanation has ever been offered. Perhaps the mound builders moved south and became merged with the Mexican Aztecs or Peruvians, or some savage race from the north may have swept down and utterly destroyed them, or a wholesale pestilence may have wiped out their nation.

The weird looking earthen monuments (the purpose of most of them a puzzle to the best archaeologists) are the sole remaining proof that this great lost American race ever existed.—New York World.

How He Managed.

A man in an up state county owns a number of horses and has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse owner's little boy and said: "Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer. "Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill he gives it medicine, but if it is seriously ill he sells it."—New York Press.

Troubles must come to all men, but those who are always looking for them will have the largest share.

THE SUMMER.

Already hundreds of white and brown tents have been pitched along lake and ocean shores, on the banks of babbling brooks and far up among the mountains. This kind of camp has the advantage over the house and lot variety in that it is movable. If the camper doesn't like the first selected for an outing, all he has to do is to pull down his roof and travel on to a spot of fairer scenery and fewer mosquitoes. Outfits are made so light and so compact nowadays that they can be carried easily by one man. If one has an automobile, gasoline will haul the load and run the errands for supplies.

Tent life far from the crowd and close to nature permits of perfect freedom and results in real rest.

Your pantaloons don't have to be pressed, and you can wear a slouch hat without shame. The pure air is an inspiration and the clean water a tonic, whether taken as a drink or a bath. AND HOW YOU EAT! Food never tastes better than when cooked in a spider under an umbrella out of doors during a rain-storm.

Plain Talk.

"I think she's double faced."
"Oh, don't say that! One face like hers is bad enough!" Couple cuts.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

In spite of the enthusiastic predictions of the advocates of the dispensary system in South Carolina, but six of the twenty one "wet" counties in the State took advantage of the act permitting the reinstatement of the dispensaries. The larger majority in favor was, naturally, in Charleston. One half the State is already "dry" and the result of this vote will be to restrict the "wet" area still further, after the longer experience of no saloon conditions.

The Massachusetts Women's Christian Temperance Union is working zealously in the prohibitory amendment campaign. Hon. J. B. Lewis, accompanied by Professor Nichols, has been going from place to place where meetings have been arranged, they speaking from the automobile in which they travel. Mr. Lewis' automobile is dedicated to the temperance cause and this novel use of it has proven very satisfactory.

The exercises include singing by local glee clubs or other singers and the local union attends to the advertising and other details. The general plan of giving up all good work in the summer time has not proved entirely successful, and this new departure promises well.

ELECTRIC PEAK LOADS.

Says the Electrical World, an authority: "It is somewhat startling to realize that in a great system like that of the New York Edison Company, 97 per cent of the total yearly output is produced by 50 per cent of the total generating apparatus while the remaining 50 per cent is necessary merely on account of peak loads amounting to but 3 per cent of the annual output. The general public is very slow to realize the burden which these peak loads put upon the central station, and the consequent reasonableness of systems of charging which take into account the severe requirements of this peak service. The Edison Company maintains on Atlantic avenue, Boston, a large plant to care for these peak loads. This plant is only used during the shortest days of the year, and then only for a few hours.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

A Winchester physician gives The Spectator to understand that the average gain in height during the hours of sleep is five centimeters. It does not follow, however, that the Winchesterite who sleeps his time away will, at the end of the year, be head and shoulders above all the Winchesterites who get up early in the morning and keep their eyes wide open all day.

A tailor tells The Spectator that trousers are to be made still wider this season. The Spectator does not know what is going to be done about it unless the sidewalk can be spread out a little.

According to a gentleman living not far from the public library, "short men prefer tall wives, because they desire to rise in the world by proxy." Rather say, they desire to rise in the morning by proxy, friend; the real reason for short Winchesterites preferring tall wives is that they want women they can respect—look up to as it were.

The Spectator is firmly convinced that there is great hope for the Winchester boy when he develops valuable ideas of economy at the age of seven. Such a person is a youthful friend of the Spectator's, who managed the other night to get his face extremely dirty after he had partaken of his supper, and was told by his mother to wash it before he retired to his bedroom. "But, mamma," he said, "don't you think it'd be kind o' wasteful to wash my face now?" "Wasteful? What in the world do you mean, my son?" "Why what isn't any use is wasteful, isn't it? And it wouldn't be any use to wash my face now 'cause nobody'll see it in the night."

"The flower beds in Winchester are the prettiest I have ever seen," remarked a stranger to The Spectator the other afternoon. This will be pleasing intelligence to those good Winchesterites who spend so much of their spare time in their gardens. After a long observation of Winchester's gardens and lawns The Spectator is strongly of the opinion that they are unsurpassed in greater Boston.

The Spectator is delighted to see that so many of our influential citizens are taking a keen interest in the work of the Boston Floating Hospital. This is a very worthy charity. May the sympathy which it awakens grow and deepen, and bring all needed aid to the noble effort.

Certain it is that the good people of Winchester, the "Queen town of Middlesex County" have the hearing of a contented people, one and all, throughout the town. There is no feverish longing for the season of festivity at least, so far as the Spectator is able to see. Whether or not trade is dull, there seems to be no serious poverty here. There are no wretched men and women on the streets of our town, and everybody looks well-fed and perfectly contented. No one loves this town of pure atmosphere and general decency and contentment more than The Spectator does.

A prominent Winchester lady who uses a brass teapot for her five o'clock tea parties may be interested to know that a local physician says that these brass teapots generate a very poisonous substance. Fortunately, the use of brass teapots is not very general at the present time—at least here in Winchester.

There recently happened here in Winchester a very distressing incident, in which a professional gentleman who had occasion to visit a lady who was subject to aberrations of mind narrowly escaped participating in a tragedy of the most shocking kind. The lady had, in what was evidently one of her aberrations, requested him to accompany her to another part of the house, and he deemed it altogether best to follow. Suddenly he found that she had led him out upon the roof of the house. Once there, she calmly insisted upon leaping to the ground, and taking him with her. He struggled to save himself and her, and as her frenzy gave her unusual strength, the gentleman found his task a very hard one. When at last he had succeeded in getting her off the roof, and into a place of safety, he was rather more dead than alive, so great was his exhaustion and excitement. Perhaps he might have saved himself the strain if he had exhorted the presence of mind that was once shown by a friend of the mad English poet, Nathaniel Lee, who was confined in Bedlam. The friend visited him there, and found him apparently restored to reason. Lee showed him the "institution," and finally led him out on the roof. Then the poet seized him by the arm, and quietly but firmly remarked, "Come, let us immortalize ourselves by leaping off this roof." He meant it, and was strong enough to carry the other with him. "By all means let us immortalize ourselves," said the friend, "but any fool could jump down; that wouldn't help us any. Let's go down to the ground and jump up. That would make us famous." The maniac was taken with the idea and they went down; but Lee never got up to the roof again.

"Whether one admits the principle that the right of suffrage should be extended to women or not," said a prominent Winchester citizen to the Spectator "there must be general and popular sympathy with the proposition to allow women to vote on liquor license question. Certainly no members of the community are more vitally concerned than mothers, wives and sisters in the question whether the liquor shops shall be licensed and how they shall be licensed. That women are the most important moral force in the country is scarcely denied in any quarter, and that they should be consulted in any one of the most important moral questions seems to be a self-evident proposition."

A Pleasant street gentleman who is inclined to dispense "philosophy," favors The Spectator with the following original verse:

The reason why it does not pay
To meet your trouble half the way
Is that it often comes disguised,
And, so, may pass unrecognized.

When a Winchesterite likes himself sufficiently, it is not necessary for any one else to think much of him.

The Spectator has received from a young friend living not far from the Unitarian church a suggestion which is a very noble and heroic one—whether it is practicable or not. This friend desires to know why it would not be possible for many of the working classes to be educated and elevated through the employment of competent persons to read to them while they are at work, the rudiments being first taught to them in this way, and then a progressive course followed, derived from the works of the author's best suited to the purpose. Of course there are objections to such a plan, but there are objections to everything. Idle and trifling workmen and women would giggle and interrupt; but there is such a thing as public sentiment in a workroom and it does not always pay for individuals to go against it. Of course such a system would have to be based upon the voluntary action of the employees themselves; no course of instruction could be followed out against their will. But if wealthy people, who like to do good, were to form an association and employ thoroughly competent readers for such a purpose, and offer the employees of establishments a choice of subjects, is not there good reason to suppose that many of these readers would be demanded, and a great deal of instruction spread, and a vast amount of good done?

PROTECT THE BIRDS.

In an "inspired" article in the news columns of the Boston Post of July 25 there appeared a statement to the effect that wholesale millinery interests of Boston were about to co-operate with the New York dealers in "checking further legislation by the Audubon Society" in its efforts to prohibit the killing of other birds than song birds for millinery purposes. The Post, of course merely prints this as news, but the milliners who inspired the article evidently desired to ridicule the Audubon societies and to hold them up to the public as an organization of zealots and fanatics, acting on impulse without reason or judgment. To accomplish this purpose certain Boston milliners have not hesitated to promulgate false and misleading statements. It seems, if we are to believe certain of these milliners, that they are intending to test "the law exempting from use" the plumage of the heron and the barnyard fowl. It may be unnecessary to remark that no law ever was urged or proposed by the Audubon societies to exempt from commercial use the plumage of the barnyard fowl. There is no such law in existence. It would be quite as reasonable to legislate to prohibit the shoemakers from using the hides of slaughtered cattle.

STRAND MAGAZINE.

The September number of the Strand Magazine is rich in articles of the unusual and unexpected kind, for this magazine is famed. In "The King's Orders" is illustrated and described the numerous badges and decorations worn by King Edward on various occasions of ceremony. "How the World Looks to the Short-Sighted" names some strange forms in which not only the inanimate but animate world presents itself to the myopic. "A Museum of Bad Taste" presents a collection of useless and senseless things, articles of sham and shoddy, etc., a collection of what is termed "horrible examples." In "My Reminiscences," Harry Furness, the great English cartoonist, describes some very interesting incidents, serious and humorous in his busy career. "My Best Portrait of a Lady" is a synopsis of leading portrait-painters of the world. "Motoring Up Mountains" describes some feats of motoring which would seem almost impossible of accomplishment. "A New Illusion" consists of some distorted figures which are pure illusions.

The fiction in the September Strand is particularly attractive. Hall Caine presents a powerful instalment of his great story, "The White Christ." Conan Doyle contributes a splendid short story entitled "The Lord of Falconbridge." "Hardings Luck" is one of E. Nesbit's charming stories written ostensibly for children, but especially enjoyed by grown-ups. "Peter's Pence" is a delightfully humorous story by W. W. Jacobs. There are other splendid short stories by well known authors. The number concludes, as usual, with "Curiosities," contributions principally of freak or unusual photographs taken in all parts of the world.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The way to get a safe and sane celebration of the national holiday all over the country is to make strict laws and rules, and mean it, and then provide proper public celebrations. But be sure and have the charge of the celebration in the hands of those who are interested in them so that proper attention will be given and not simply throw out the money in any old way as was done in Winchester this year. If public officials, national, state and municipal, were as interested in the dear people at other times of the year as they are at election time their efficiency would be increased about seventy-five per cent.

Why should there be any sick public trees in this town? We have always voted all the money asked for and have supposed we had an efficient tree department. It would seem to be up to our Tree Warden to explain. There may be good reasons, probably are, but why is it? We can seem to get no information from most of our public officials through the year, but I have hopes this one is different.

Congressman Gillette says the way to get rid of the out of doors advertising signs nuisance is to boycott the things advertised. This is a good suggestion and if the cities and towns will take it up and act upon it the effect will be felt. What have we in this line in our town? The liquor signs should go first.

Nothing has been done about that wretched looking sand bin on the town lot on Linden street. How long would it remain so if in front of one of the Selectmen's places? Here are some poor, broken and destroyed street signs for the board to add to its list: High, Irving, Sheffield, Hancock, Forest. Poles needing paint are too numerous to mention.

There was heavy riding on the new Fells line opened Sunday, but after the people arrived at the terminus at Spot Pond, few of them knew where the streets led to, so most of them went down to the pond. A waiting station is much needed there, but probably the Metropolitan Park Board is opposed to it, judging by the past.

In reading over the stenographic report of the Boston and Lowell electric railroad hearing before the railroad commission in 1907, when its only route was through Lexington, I noticed that one of our citizens, who favored the road through Winchester at the recent town meeting, represented "a large number of Medford business men" in favor of the hearing of two years ago. Counsel Choate said then, "this railroad is for Lowell and Boston and practically for none others." Counsel Farley says the same now. "This being so, why should it come our way when we neither want it or want it and when it will cost three quarters of a million dollars to build it through Lexington and then connect it with a good road? It is a bad idea."

The shiruberry about Four House has not added to the beauty of the building. There is not a shiruberry but a good effect and the beauty of the structure suffers.

The grade crossing double is used as an excuse for not doing things near the center which well be affected. Finishing Manchester Park, clearing out the river and putting a new iron fence on the Pleasant street bridge, for instance.

EDUCATION.

May 30, 1908, President Roosevelt gave utterance to the following which is as applicable to-day as when published in a magazine:

"It is not too much to say that the most characteristic work of the republic is that done by the educators, for whatever our shortcomings as a nation may be we have at least firmly grasped the fact that we cannot do our part in the difficult and all important work of self-government, that we cannot rule and govern ourselves, unless we approach the task with developed minds and trained characters. You teachers make the whole world your debtor. If you did not do your work well, this republic would not endure beyond the span of the generation. Moreover, as an incentive to your avowed work, you render some well high unbelievable services to the country. For instance, you render to the republic the prime, the vital service of amalgamating into one homogeneous body the children alike of those who come here from so many different lands abroad. You furnish a common training and common ideals for the children of all the mixed peoples who are here being fused into one nationality. It is in no small degree due to you and your efforts that we are one people instead of a group of jarring peoples."

The school year of Miss Ryder's Day School for Girls begins October 6, High school grades. An early application will greatly oblige Annie H. Ryder, Principal, 208 Salem st., Medford.

WILSON THE STATIONER,
PLEASANT ST. WINCHESTER

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand are, first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre, which grows near the equator. It never gets lumpy, and is extremely light and fleecy. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

Use the best hair ticking on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first-class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Made in best ticking, two parts, five inch box, and full weight.

UNDER THE SURFACE

An Incident That Brought Content to a Dissatisfied Woman.

By ROY RICHARDSON.

"I'm sorry we're invited," observed Mrs. Edmonds to her husband as they dressed to go out. "We shan't have a good time."

"Why?" her husband inquired. "I always liked Ned."

"Yes," responded Mrs. Edmonds. "I like them both, but, Will, try as hard as I may, they make me absurdly jealous."

Mr. Edmonds grew serious. "The old excuse, Grace. I thought you had outgrown that bad habit. We've got so much that they can never have."

"There!" he cried, pinching her cheek. "Let's put it aside. We have each other, while you know they quarrel. We must have them here some evening soon. You can sing while I juggle the chafing dish. Ned Constable never could make a decent rabbit. His wife won't let him learn how."

Mrs. Edmonds sighed even at her husband's picture of a pleasant evening at home. "I shall depend upon you," she said as they rang the Constable doorbell, "to keep me contented tonight, Will."

It was quite an affair. Mr. and Mrs. Constable, whatever they might be when alone, were a charming host and hostess.

"How well they do it!" exclaimed Mrs. Edmonds to her husband as they sat eating. Then, with a dangerous tone in her voice, she said, "I wish oh, so much, that you and I—"

"There, there," Edmonds broke in gently. "We're not going to speak of that, dearie. By Jove!" he ejaculated suddenly. "I do believe there's old Tom Goodwin over there all by himself. You remember Tom, don't you, Grace—the fellow who was too poor to come to our wedding and who said he was sending forks instead of buying a railroad ticket? I haven't seen him for months. He writes things, I believe. You must meet him, good old chap."

"Do you know," Goodwin remarked a few moments later, seating himself beside his new found friends, "I always promised myself the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Edmonds. And now, and his genial face beamed with good nature, "I see how true it is that unexpected pleasures are the keenest. Funny thing, Mrs. Edmonds, but I didn't want to come here at all."

At this Edmonds smiled at his wife. "Neither did we. Now we are glad we did," he said. "But, Tom, why haven't you called? You might have found us before this in the directory."

"Oh, yes," Tom rejoined, "but you're such dreadful swells I didn't dare. You see," he explained while Mrs. Edmonds tried to tell him how modest they really were, "I'm just beginning. When you just begin people don't like you, and mostly you don't take to them, and so I have thought it best to keep away by myself until I had done something worth while."

Goodwin made himself very agreeable, and Mrs. Edmonds liked him. Her husband got deep in debate with a business acquaintance, and the two men presently drifted to the other side of the room, so when the music began in the conservatory Goodwin took Mrs. Edmonds upstairs.

"It's awfully good of you, you know," he said to her as they seated themselves next a dense mass of palms in the ballroom, "not to insist on dancing, but to talk to me. You're so cheerful and seem so contented. Will is a fortunate man, Mrs. Edmonds."

"How odd! I was discontented and blue when I came here tonight," she said, "all because I was—well, I was covetous."

Tom laughed. "We all get that way at times, I fancy," he remarked. "Look at those De Puysters standing over there, the richest people here. You wouldn't believe it, but they are ridiculously jealous of the Four Hundred. How the Four Hundred fare we never know, but the De Puysters are as poor as they can be, while some of us are silly enough to ape the De Puysters. I am glad you are not one of those."

Before Mrs. Edmonds could confess that indeed she was one of them there came to her ear from behind the palms by which they sat the sound of voices. They both recognized the tones of their host and hostess. It was an awkward position, but they could not have escaped being seen from over the palms.

Constable was evidently remonstrating with his wife. "You can't mean to pretend," he was saying, "to be keeping pace with the De Puysters. One would think you were to see us tonight. I tell you, Anne, I can't afford it, and that's that."

"That's what you're always saying—'can't afford this, can't pay for that,'" cried Mrs. Constable, with considerable heat. "Why don't you go into bankruptcy and be done with it? You never used to complain."

"We would look well bankrupt, wouldn't we?" her spouse cut in. "I never used to complain, as you say, because I was getting rich fast then. It is changed now, and I'm often pinched for money to the verge of desperation. I've told you so, Anne. While I've no objection to your entertaining and having a good time, there's a limit to our means, you know, and where the devil the money for this is coming from I don't see."

"You never told me," cried Mrs. Constable. "You merely said you were worried. And I'll tell you right now, Ned Constable, I do intend keeping pace with the De Puysters and flatter myself I have done so."

"He stuck me on change for $12,000 last week," muttered Constable. "You may be able to keep up the pace; but, by thunder, I can't at that figure, Anne."

There was a pause. Then he said pacifically: "You go at it wrong, and, as your husband, I must correct you. Look at Will Edmonds and his wife. They are poor, as the world takes such people, but they are richer and happier than we are."

"Yes," exclaimed Mrs. Constable, "and live in a little place where you can hardly turn

The Tight Belt an Evil.

The belt should not be worn too tight in summer. Belts that are too tight AFFECT THE ACTION OF THE HEART and of the digestive organs vitally in many cases. Physicians assert that they frequently have cases of palpitation of the heart brought to their attention in summer caused primarily by the habit of wearing tight belts.

The tight belt cramps the stomach and interferes with the circulation of the blood.

The pressure it puts directly beneath the heart causes the beating of the heart to become so irregular as to affect the condition of practically the entire body. Headache and shortness of breath are additional results, and continued wearing of a tight belt has been known to produce a chronic affection of the heart.

Men of the build known as "without hips" unfortunately find trouble in wearing a belt unless it is drawn in very tightly, and there seems no doubt that THEY SHOULD WEAR SUSPENDERS, no matter how uncomfortable they may prove.

Young boys are particularly prone to err in the matter of belts and should be carefully watched and instructed.

SEA MONSTERS OF OLD.

The Marine Monster That Was Thought to Cause Tidal Waves.

The kraken was one of the sea monsters of old, and if all the stories told about its wondrous size and doings are true it overshadowed the serpent as much as the latter does the common garter snake. An old writer says that this marine giant caused tidal waves by swallowing a goodly part of the waters of the ocean and then belching them out again. He also makes mention of the fact that its gigantic horny beak was often mistaken for mountain peaks suddenly shoved into sight by the internal convulsions of the earth.

Bishop Pontoppidan, a truthful member of the Copenhagen Royal academy, is much more conservative in his estimates of its size, giving it as his opinion that they were seldom found more than "the half of an Italian mile in length and not larger in diameter than the cathedral at The Hague."

He also says that its body was frequently mistaken by sailors for an island, "so that people landed upon it and were engulfed in a maelstrom of water when the creature sank to its hidden ocean den." Other authorities testify that its beak from the eyes to the point "was longer than the mainmast of a man-of-war."

The Sewing Machine.

The invention of the sewing machine is one of the most interesting evolutionary romances in the history of human progress. Stone, Handloom, and greenough had experimented extensively with the double plunger idea, one to seize the needle below and one above. Hoffmann used a double pointed needle, with the eye in the center, and Thimble and Ferrand had invented a chain stitch machine. In 1834 Walter Hunt originated the extension arm idea with a needle similar to the one now in general use, but before he applied for his patent in 1854 he had been forestalled by Elias Howe, who will always be known as the inventor of the sewing machine. If Hunt had not been so great a laggard he might have won fame as an inventor, but Howe is entitled to all the credit that has been given him. Like all great inventions, however, the sewing machine was the product of many minds.—New York Tribune.

Throwing the Shoe.

The peasants of southern France have the credit of originating the familiar custom of throwing an old shoe after the newly wedded pair. It was, moreover, the rejected suitor who first made it popular. The peasant bride is conducted by her friends to her new home, while the young husband is made to halt a couple of hundred yards from the house. If there is a rejected suitor he then arms himself with an old wooden shoe and flings it, with his best aim, at the bridegroom as he makes a dash for the house. When the shoe is thrown it is understood that the last feeling of ill will has been flung away with it.

An Easy One.

Billfuzz: If I had $3 and you asked me to lend you two, how much would I have left? Jub: Oh, I know the answer to that. You would still have $3 left, granting it were possible that you ever had that much at one time, because you wouldn't lend me any. Ask me something probable.—Pathfinder.

One on Papa.

Caller—Harold, when you get to be the head of a family what will you say to your children when they are naughty? Harold—Oh, I'll do like papa. I'll tell them how good I was when I was a kid.—Chicago News.

Cheap Living.

She—I'm living on brown bread and water to improve my complexion. He—How long can you keep it up? She—Oh, indefinitely, I guess. He—Then let's get married.—Boston Transcript.

The Honeymoon.

The honeymoon has no definite duration, but is longer or shorter according as the temper of the high contracting parties determines, or their relatives, or the weather, or the mode or the comparative cost of traveling and staying at home. Briefly, it is that interval during which the man, going out in the morning, remembers his kiss and forgets his overshoes as distinguished from the interval during which he remembers his overshoes and forgets his kiss.—New York Life.

Loose Corsets In Summer.

It is very important, especially in summer, that women should NOT WEAR THEIR CORSETS TOO TIGHT. A tight corset interferes with the circulation and affects the heart.

TEACHING HORSES TO JUMP.

There Are Three Methods Used—Coaxing, Lunging and Driving.

There are three methods of teaching a horse to leap—coaxing, lunging and driving. In the coaxing method the young horse is turned into a small paddock having a low hedge or hurdle across the center. In plain view of the pupil a rider on a veteran jumper should take him over the hurdle several times.

The trainer then goes to the opposite side with a measure of corn or oats and calls the horse, shaking up the grain and pouring it with his hand back and forth in the receptacle. The boundary will soon be cleared, and when a few mouthfuls have been eaten the station of the instructor should be at the other side of the hurdle and the lesson repeated. If this be done daily the hurdle may be gradually heightened.

The habit of jumping is thus acquired without those risks which attend a novel performance when a heavy burden oppresses the strength and whip and spur distract the attention. The horse's body, says Country Life in America, is not partially disabled by the imposition of a heavy load before the powers are taxed to the utmost and his capabilities are unfettered.

The second method is termed lunging. A long rein or cord is attached to the bit, and the animal is exercised in a circle in which a hurdle has been placed or a shallow ditch dug. A long lashed whip, used only to keep him in motion or lightly applied at the proper moment, will keep him up to his work. Soon the horse will enter into the spirit of the occasion and by unmistakable signs will manifest his enthusiastic enjoyment of the exercise.

The third method, driving, is exactly what its name implies. At first the obstruction should be slight. Any open space will answer the purpose, an earth or sod surface or tankard being preferable. Long reins, a straight bar or snaffle bit, a long whip and patience and perseverance are required.

All things considered, the driving method is the quickest and surest way of teaching the horse to leap. When he has become somewhat proficient, having thoroughly learned what is required of him, the saddle may be called into requisition and the practical lessons begun.

Almost any young horse can be taught to leap. Of course his proficiency will depend on the care bestowed on his training and on his general characteristics of wind, limb and nerve. An ordinary cob or Morgan will attain the proficiency of an Irish hunter, but any horse that is used for a saddle will be of far greater value to his owner if he can be taken occasionally for a cross country ride and put over ditches and low obstructions.

Ethics and Morality.

If a woman's husband has been silly enough to take more wine than is good for him, morality would lead her to send him to bed. Ethics would lead her to send him to Coventry. And theology would probably lead her to send him to a penal settlement for inebriates.

If a man's wife throws a teapot at him as happened recently in the aristocratic neighborhood in which I live, morality would lead him to go out of the house for an hour or so and give her nerves a chance. Ethics would probably induce him to go out of the town and write to her from a garden city that their temperaments were incompatible. What theology would make him do I hardly dare to think.—Chesterton in Illustrated London News.

More Accurate.

The pastor and his wife had called upon a member of the congregation, a widow with a small but exceedingly lively boy, and were on their way home. "Well," said the preacher, "she seems to be a very intelligent woman anyhow."

"Yes."

"And very positive in expressing her opinions."

"On the contrary," said his wife, "she struck me as being strongly negative."

"Negative? How?"

"Everything she said to her little boy began with a 'Don't, Johnny!'"—Exchange.

Sympathy of the Flowers.

More or less credence is still given in England to the old belief in the sympathy of the vegetable kingdom for human suffering. "I prayed all night," writes a gardener whose employer was very sick, "and the flowers on my window sill drooped, and I said to myself they were dead. But toward morning they picked up, and I was sure enough the master was better. And the same thing had happened to the flowers I had sent to his bedroom. They were dying, and they came to life again. And I knew when those flowers picked up that the master was better."

The Pins.

"Oh, dear," sighed her husband's wife, "I can't find a pin anywhere. I wonder where all the pins go to anyway?"

"That's a difficult question to answer," replied his wife's husband, "because they are always pointed in one direction and headed in another."—Chicago News.

Painter's Colic.

Mamma—What's the matter with Fido? Tommie—Oh, I was playing with my soldiers, and he came in and insisted upon licking the whole army.—Yonkers Statesman.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of Louise D. Caldwell, late of Winchester in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, certain instruments purporting to be the last will and testament and one codicil of said deceased have been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Edward P. Caldwell, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.

And are hereby ordered to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the sixteenth day of September, A. D. 1909, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing the contents in English of the foregoing petition, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by sending post-paid or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness Charles J. McArthur, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this fourteenth day of August in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine.

THE MAN WHO MAKES MONEY IS THE MAN WHO SEES THINGS AHEAD

"See that corner?" remarked the old timer. I could have bought that at one time for $100 and it's worth something like $1000 a front foot now. Why couldn't I see ahead?"

And so it goes. Boston is full of men who might be rich now had they bought real estate here years ago and held on to it.

Opportunity gone now? Not a bit of it. All you need to do is use good judgment in buying. Combine yours with ours, put your money into Boston realty and in a few years you'll be "on top."

The fire department was called out on Sunday evening from an alarm from box 38 for a fire on Irving street. The blaze was confined chiefly to an automobile, owned by Francis W. McAdams, who conducts a garage at No. 49. Owing to the small amount of steam, the whistle did not sound the full alarm loud enough to be heard all over town, causing some comment as to whether there was or was not a fire. The automobile was not seriously damaged.

The Medford Mercury has the following to say of Mrs. Carrie Holton Shepard, who passed away at West Medford, Aug. 11: "Mrs. Shepard was a daughter and Mrs. Samuel S. Holton, and born July 27, 1854, at Winchester, where she also attended the public schools. Immediately after her marriage, 31 years ago, she came with her husband to West Medford and identified herself with the West Medford Congregational church, May 2, 1878, by letter from the Congregational church in her native town. She was always one of the most active and helpful members in the church here, and in the Woman's Christian League held for some time the office of treasurer. Her personal qualities of true womanhood in her life with her family and in social circles with the friends of her life time will stand as a real memorial to her."

Labor organizations will make a mistake if active opposition is made to the reelection of Gov. Draper on account of official acts, as Governor. He is the chief executive, sworn to the performance of duty. That duty he has performed fearlessly and conscientiously, increasing his hold on the confidence and respect of citizens generally, regardless of party affiliations. Gov. Draper will receive the Republican nomination for Governor and will be elected by a normal Republican majority. Of course the figures will be reduced from those of last year, when he shared in the swelling tide of votes cast in presidential years. —[Arlington Advocate]

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 27, 1909.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

ENJOYED BY OTHERS, TOO.

This spring Mr. J. A. Laraway desiring to break up the lawn in front of his handsome estate on Forest street, preparatory to seeding it down for a lawn, planted it down to corn after giving the soil a generous coating of fertilizer. The corn grew like Jack's famous bean stalk, and became burdened with large succulent ears that soon became the envy of spectators. "Joe" was jolted a good deal for planting corn in so conspicuous a place, but he only smiled and said nothing as he watched it growing and tasseling. Ten days ago the corn began to ripen, indeed it ripened faster than the family could eat it, and that is saying a good deal when it is taken into consideration that there are a half dozen good appetites to be appeased. That others might enjoy the feast "Joe" concluded to give some of it to his friends, who are not blessed with the luxury of real fresh vegetables from their gardens and the editor of the STAR was fortunately included in the list. Three dozen or more ears was a generous portion, and it is needless to say that we have enjoyed the corn beyond measure. Mr. Laraway will accept our thanks.

When the corn has served its purpose, the land will be levelled off and smoothed down into a fine lawn that will be pleasing to the eyes of all who behold it.

COMMISSION TAKING A ROAD CENSUS.

Under the direction of the Massachusetts highway commission a road census is being taken to secure information about the use of the highways and their use by various vehicles in different parts of the state.

In October there will be another census taken so that comparisons may be made during the period when travel is heaviest because of many tourists here at present and when conditions are normal in October. This is the first time that such work has been undertaken, and it will cost about $5000.

In all there will be in operation during the week some 200 stations which will be operated from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m., daily. At 11 places there will be a tabulation made during the entire 24 hours. These latter stations are on the roads radiating from Boston and will comprise sections between here and Lynn, Medford, Lawrence, Lexington, Concord, Marlboro, Providence, Beverly, Lowell and Newburyport.

FRANCIS E. MURPHY, JR.

Francis Edwin Murphy, Jr., a young man well known to numerous Winchester young folks, died at his home on Marion road Sunday morning after a two years' battle with consumption. He was 19 years of age.

Mr. Murphy was born in Norwich, Conn., his parents being Francis E. and Maria (Rourke) Murphy. He has lived in Winchester for the past nine years, and was at one time in the employ of Mr. A. B. Grover the former druggist. When tuberculosis first made its appearance he went to Rutland for treatment, remaining there seven months, but the disease had secured a firm hold on his system and could not be shaken off.

Funeral services were held from St. Mary's Church on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, conducted by Fr. Roger. The bearers were John and Edward Murphy, brothers of the deceased, Alexander McMillan and John Murphy of Norwich, Conn. The remains were taken to Norwich for interment.

MRS. GEORGE B. GOODWIN.

Mrs. Annie Gibson (Munroe), wife of Mr. George B. Goodwin of Baldwin street, died at the Homeopathic Hospital, Boston, on Tuesday. She was 24 years of age.

Mrs. Goodwin was born in Winchester, her parents being Roderick and Margaret Munroe. She leaves besides her husband and parents, five brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services will be held from the residence on this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in Wildwood.

SOMETIMES "KICK OVER."

"Shall we always suppose that because a man gets the second place we must promote him to be governor, or will there be a stop to this senseless practice after a while?" asks the Newburyport News. Let us hope that "this senseless practice" on the part of the Republican party will very soon be abolished. It is right and proper that the lieutenant governor should be promoted if he is of suitable calibre, and otherwise qualified, but it should not be taken for granted that because he is elected to the second place on his party ticket that he is in direct line for the nomination for Governor, regardless of all other considerations. Too often the success of the party is jeopardized by such a course, as in the case of the election of Gascon, Butler, Russell and Douglas. The election of these able Democrats in a Republican state—and there are many others like them in the Two Handsome Apartment Houses to be Erected in Winchester.

HOHL & SUEK, ARCHITECTS
119 SUMMIT ST. BOSTON

This is a line drawing of two duplicate apartment houses, which are to be erected on the lot next to Waterfield Building by Mr. H. T. Schaefer. One building will front on Church street, and the other will be erected on the rear of the lot, facing the railroad. The Church street building will be erected first and will contain six suites.

In the rear and facing the station there are to be four sets of apartments, containing twenty-one suites.

These structures are to be absolutely fireproof, built entirely of solid concrete, reinforced with steel. The tops of these structures will have roof gardens.

The suites will be of seven rooms each, with bath; they will be finished in natural hard wood, with hard wood floors throughout, laid close to the concrete and nothing in them will be inflammable except the furniture and wood trim. They will be steam heated, equipped with electric lights and gas, with continuous hot water service. Each suite will have a storage room in the basement. The janitor will have a suite in the basement. These buildings will be finished in the most solid and artistic manner throughout, advantage being taken of the most up-to-date methods of construction, and will be a handsome and attractive addition to the architecture of Winchester.

PIONEER IN BUSINESS.

Burdett College Applies Counting Room Practice.

Burdett is now said to be the largest commercial school in the world. Its original methods and progressive spirit have established a record which makes its practical training widely recognized among business men.

This was the pioneer school in New England to adopt the actual counting room methods and its students are educated under the same general conditions to be found in the most modern conducted offices.

For many years it has been well known that the graduates of the book-keeping and banking departments at Burdett knew their business thoroughly. The same standard of efficiency is being insisted upon in its departments of stenography and typewriting, including the actual office letter practice and modern office appliance work.

The Burdett method of touch typewriting, enabling the operator to use a typewriter without looking at the keyboard, has made the Burdett graduates very valuable office assistants.

Doubtless the success which Burdett College has earned is due not only to its practical standards of training, but also to the care which the school takes of its graduates through its situation department.

The high rents in the heart of the city make it prohibitive for an institution to secure additional rooms until actually pressed by increased business to do so. No more pertinent comment can be made upon the remarkable success of Burdett than to state that during the past year it became necessary, in order to avoid a waiting list to add six schoolrooms to its plant. The enrollment to date is so much greater than that of a year ago today that during the past week, four more rooms have been leased, a total of six since September, 1908, in order for the school to keep abreast of its enlarging business. Burdett seems to have struck the keynote in educating students so that they are eagerly sought by the business world.—From Boston Herald.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Dotten wish to thank the many friends and neighbors who have been so kind and thoughtful to them in their recent sad bereavement in the loss of their son, Thomas P. Dotten, and also for the many beautiful floral tributes.

WILL WINCHESTER

HAVE A HOSPITAL.

It looks now as if Winchester would not have a hospital at least for many years to come, as the trustees of the $50,000 fund donated by Mrs. Sophronia A. Harrington for a hospital have voted to return the money to her. At the first of the meetings held by the trustees, Messrs. Lewis Parkhurst, William B. French, W. D. Richards, Preston Pond and Nelson H. Seely, it became apparent that the money donated by Mrs. Harrington would not be sufficient to buy the land, build a suitable hospital and maintain it. The trustees believed that the hospital should be so amply endowed that there would hereafter be no occasion to solicit money to pay the running expenses. Some time ago an appeal was made for donations, but these not being forthcoming, the trustees decided on the above action.

As there is much doubt about the authority of the trustees to return the donation, the whole matter has been referred to Atty. Gen. Malone for a decision on this point.

Mrs. Harrington is willing to have the money returned to her, taking the position that it may later be possible to secure the necessary endowment and proceed with the erection of the hospital.

Therefore it does not appear that the project for a hospital will be abandoned, so far as the generous donor is concerned. However, the realization of this project is now up to the public spirited citizens for further consideration and unless we are greatly mistaken action will be taken to augment the gift to proportions that will give to Winchester an amply endowed hospital.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Examinations for High school pupils who failed in some of their studies last term and who desire to make up the deficiency, will be held at the school on Tuesday, Sept. 7, beginning at 9 a. m.

Messrs. Hefflan and Wixom of the Wadleigh and High schools are expected in town next week to make the necessary arrangements with Supt. of Schools Heron, incident to their opening.

The contract for Sloyd tools for the school Dept. has been awarded to F. A. Newth.

The office of the Supt. of Schools will be opened Monday and continue open until school commences.

Schools open Wednesday, Sept. 8th. John T. Cosgrove has recently rented for George C. Ogden his house No. 10 Park avenue to Mr. George O. Fogg, who has taken a three years' lease. The same broker has also leased the house No. 7 Park avenue, owned by George S. Dover, to Edward A. Sprague, and the house No. 31 Parkway, owned by the Cutting estate, to F. M. Follansbee of Melrose.

AUTOMOBILE STRUCK TEAM.

Last Friday noon as Mr. F. A. Newth was driving up Mt. Vernon street from Pleasant street an automobile owned in Stoneham ran into his wagon, throwing him to the street and severely bruising his back. Mr. Thomas J. Bulmer, who was passing caught the horse and prevented a runaway. A gentleman on the seat with Mr. Newth was not injured.

According to Mr. Newth the automobile, which was owned and operated by a man named Howard, was on the wrong side of the street and there was no excuse for the accident. Furthermore he states that the owner of the car used very abusive language. He has entered suit for damages.

SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCE.

Three farmers living on "the Hills" of Winchester's beautiful far west side, each lost a valuable farm horse this week. One of them owned by Herbert L. Cox died Sunday, one by William L. Thompson Monday, and one by George L. Locke died Tuesday.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The John Craig Stock Company begins its second year at the Castle Square Monday afternoon and evening. The Castle Square will be under the sole lessorship and management of John Craig, and he will leave nothing undone for the benefit and enjoyment of his patrons. He has already secured a number of famous plays for his repertory, and he has reengaged the entire stock company that helped to make last season so notable. Miss Mary Young will be the leading lady, with Mr. Craig himself as leading man, and the personnel of the company will comprise Theodore Friebeus, Donald Meek, George Hassell, Wilfred Young, Bert Young, Al Roberts, Gertrude Binley, Mabel Colcord and Kate Ryan.

For his opening attraction, Mr. Craig has chosen the brilliant American comedy of "Clothes," and he will give it its first production in Boston. Its scenes are laid at a country estate on the Hudson River and in New York. Miss Young will appear in the role of the heroine originated by Miss Grace George, and Mr. Craig will play the hero, and the other members of the company as enumerated above, will have leading parts. "Clothes" will be played but a single week at the Castle Square, with performances every afternoon and evening.

SUBURBAN LIFE FOR SEPTEMBER.

The September number of Suburban Life is the annual building number, and is filled with interesting and valuable suggestions for the man who is building or planning a home. The illustrations, also, are a feature of this number. One of the principal articles is devoted to the use of brick in building the private house, and shows that wonderfully artistic architectural effects may be secured with this material. "When planning the House of Satisfaction" is an exceedingly well written and practical contribution. "Concrete Used in a Decorative Way" illustrates the tremendous advance made in the use of cement. "Running Water for Country Homes" is, perhaps, the most exhaustive and practical article of this kind ever published in a popular magazine. "Garages which cannot be burned," "Fireplaces Which will Not Smoke," "Choosing the Color for the House," "How Many Bathrooms Shall There be?" "Why Now is a Good Time to Build," "A House for Suburb or Country," "A $3,500 Bungalow," and "Three Rooms Worth Studying," are among the other important house-building articles. Although this is primarily a house-building number, other topics have not been neglected, the table of contents including such subjects as "Trees and shrubs for Fall Planting," "Evaporating Fruits and Vegetables," "Saving a Famous Old Tree," and "Country Life Brought Happiness."

RESIGNED FROM POLICE FORCE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I being a constant reader of the STAR I noticed where my name was revoked from the police department. It was not news to me, as I notified Chief McIntosh and also the Selectmen that I would not do any more police work. I have been Special Police for the town for nine years, and as far as I know was very successful. Thereason I am giving all my friends for resigning is because my principle would not allow me to do any more work for Chief McIntosh.

The Baby Turtle.

Turtles lay their eggs in the sand and let the sun hatch them out. They do not lay them all in one place probably because they think it safer to scatter them. Then, even though one be stolen or broken, the others may escape. The mother turtle covers them all carefully up, one after another, with a thin sprinkling of sand and then apparently never gives them another thought, considering her maternal duty done. Certain it is that she has never been discovered going near these egg babies again, and when they hatch at last the tiny soft backed creatures at once begin crawling around in search of flies and other food as independently as if there were no such thing as a mother in the world. A little girl who found one of these odd oblong turtle eggs on a sandy river bank in Louisiana took it home and put it in a tencup on the table for safe keeping. A few hours later a slight noise was noticed in that direction, and on looking in the cup again she found a baby turtle, full fledged, but tiny, scrambling about among the bits of its broken eggshell cradle.

Ravens and the Hapsburgs.

Henri de Weidell tells the story of the late Empress Elizabeth and the ravens which Maurus Jokel gave in an article at the time of her majesty's tragic death. Early in her life Elizabeth wrote some verses in Hungarian on the subject of the raven, the bird of ill omen, which plays a great part in the history of the Hapsburgs. According to the Imperial poetess, a flight of ravens was hovering over Olmutz when Francis Joseph received from his uncle's hands the crown which was destined to inflict upon him such miseries. A raven followed Maximilian and Charlotte on their last walk before their departure for Mexico, and when Maria Christina was starting to receive the crown of Spain, which was one day to be so grievous a burden, a raven flew over the horses' heads and accompanied the carriage to the railway station. These incidents were the subject of the poem.—Westminster Gazette.

Room for Improvement.

A certain estimable old gentleman is at all times worth listening to, though occasionally his grammar is scarcely perfect. He was dining on one occasion with the local squire, when, much to the disgust of his worthy host, a trifling error on the old gentleman's part was pointed upon and loudly repeated by the son and heir of the house. There was a painful silence, broken at length by the host.

"My son," he remarked quietly to the young fellow, "there are times, I admit, when our old friend's speech is a little peculiar. At such times, you might be of mutual assistance to each other."

"In what way, sir?" asked the son.

"Well," was the severe rejoinder, "you might give Mr. X. a lesson or two in grammar, in return for which I have no doubt he would assist you to patch up the holes in your manners."—London Tit-Bits.

Three Reasons For Declining.

Lord Broughton had a temper which sometimes exploded in a most disconcerting manner. It is related that on one occasion he dined with a large party at Thackeray's house, and after dinner some specially fine Madeira was produced. In his usual genial way the novelist pressed this on his guests and patting his neighbor, Lord Broughton, on the back, remarked, "Now, my dear old boy, you must try some of this."

A child fell on the company when the noble lord retorted, "I am not your dear boy, I am not old, and — your wine."

The Only Thing Left.

Jeremiah Jinks is rich and stingy. An acquaintance of his met Jinks' son the other day. "Your father seems to have lost a good deal of money lately. The last time I saw him he was complaining and saying he must economize."

"Economize! Did he say where he was going to begin?"

"Yes; on his table," he said.

"Then he must be going to take away the tablecloth," was the filial declaration.—Exchange.

A Big Birdcage.

A very peculiar institution in the New York zoo is what is known as "the flying birdcage." This magnificent aviary is the largest of its kind in the world, being 55 feet high, 72 feet wide and 150 feet long. Large oak and other trees grow in this cage, and the birds live within its wire netting bounds in the utmost freedom. The frame of the cage is built of iron pipes, which are covered over with thin meshed netting.

Literary Note.

Parried.

"And that young man kissed you on the lips! Why didn't you offer him your hand?" said the father.

"Oh, I didn't have to, papa," said the girl. "He's going to ask you for that."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Case For Sympathy.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The Spectator is going to call the attention of the housekeepers of Winchester to the fact that they should remember when making a bed, not to follow the old custom of seizing the slips by the teeth when putting pillows into them. There are several reasons why this should not be done. In the first place, there is a possibility of biting through the cloth. Then there is no one to see and admire your teeth, so the practice is uncalled-for in the display of one's pearly treasures. But the main objection lies in the fact that the teeth of the present day are not calculated to remain in position under the violent strain, which the pillow-slip act calls for. It is very humiliating to have one's teeth extracted unanimously by a pillow-slip.

Winchesterites who have long been subject to the annoyance caused by the noisy intimidation of the pestilential alarm clock in the early morning hours, when sleep is the sweetest, will be glad to know that a very cunning device has been invented by a Winchester lady of The Spectator's acquaintance who had suffered a great deal from the boisterous alarm clock. The device is simple, and can readily be copied and at small expense. It consists of a bag, made of any thick woolen material, of double thickness with a liberal layer of cotton or lamb's wool between the outer and inner envelope. The clock is then inserted in this bag, which is furnished with a running string, by means of which it can be tightly closed. It works to a charm. The Spectator is told, and it is safe to predict that it will soon be considered indispensable in all Winchester households unprovided with a domestic whose personal attractions are of that variety which is said to stop a clock.

The Spectator often wonders how many Winchesterites stop to reflect what a marvellous display of togs can be found in this town of ours. There are the King Charles, watery-eyed, but with their noses turned up at all the rest of the world with genuine contempt of all things not so aristocratic as they. On the street where The Spectator lives is a fantastically trimmed and shorn poodle, looking elegantly weary of life, on the same street is a dainty Dandy Dumont, a prize in his way. Then there is a quaint, bow-legged dachshund that once in a while is privileged to go on a sauntering with The Spectator. In his perambulations up and down the town The Spectator has met fox-terriers, who every Winchesterite will admit are very intelligent and companionable; pugs, in waiting favor here as elsewhere, but always jolly good fellows; Scotch terriers, and the most exquisite of Skyes; the black and tan; Yorkshire terriers. A friend of The Spectator is the proud possessor of an aesthetic deerhound, which is always barking and wringing his chains, and pleasantly suggestive of Walter Scott's novels; even the superb, Homeric Newfoundland, only too few here in Winchester—all these The Spectator has given a passing pat upon the head.

Speaking of dogs reminds The Spectator that a friend of his possesses a very valuable bull dog. In spite of the tragedy that is latent in every bull dog's aspect, the grotesquely humorous element in the beast appeals irresistibly to the average sentiment, the bull dog's reticent nose, his teeth forever displayed with comical utility, his ungainly body and his post-like legs, inspire the majority of Winchesterites to mirth. Children, however, are apt, with their fresher perceptions, to have a repugnance for these animals. One day recently The Spectator saw a little girl who edged uneasily away from this dog in question, just as her little brother, beginning to entice a lively interest in the dog, inquired, "Where is his nose, Mr.—?" "Oh," the little girl broke in, "you know dogs don't need any noses, 'cause they don't have any handkerchiefs!"

A Pleasant Street lady the other day favored The Spectator with a perusal of some gems she has reserved from the collections of small boy definitions gathered by a teacher friend of hers from her examination papers:

Hazardous—A female hazard.

Femur—The largest bone in the human body; it is situated in the ear.

Spine—A collection of small bones, extending from the head to the feet.

Ash heels—A Greek hero celebrated in antiquity. (Probably Achilles.)

If the Pleasant Street lady perseveres with her collection, she will probably sometime have as famous a one as Mark Twain's.

"The Winchesterite who has the reputation of always saying just what he thinks is either an exceedingly good actor or a fool," remarked a friend of The Spectator's who is frequently given to dispensing philosophy.

A Main street business man tells The Spectator that he quite lost his breath, the other day, upon hearing a young lady in a North Woburn car remark that "the lamb of nation sleeve will again come into fashion this fall."

A Winchester physician tells The Spectator that rocking chairs cause death. Ah! that accounts for it. When a young person gets into a rocking chair, and rocks away like all possessed, the young person is calmly serene while everybody else in the room is ready to go crazy because of the internal racket.

A six year old youngster whom the Spectator knows very well recently detected his small sister taking some cakes from the pantry. "That's stealing," he told her. "I'll tell the cook I saw the cat up there," she said. "But that'll be lying," little brother insisted. "Well, Lent's over."

At one time there was silence in Heaven for half an hour, which one Winchesterite of The Spectator's acquaintance takes for proof that there are no women there. But there are. That accidental silence was caused by the women all happening to be arranging their toilets at the same time, and each had a lot of hair pins in her mouth.

THE SPECTATOR.

USED CAMERA AS DETECTIVE.

There is at least one man in town, who has solved the problem of protecting his fruit trees from the depredations of the young miscreants who are very bold in their depredations. At least he has devised a scheme which will be likely to prevent a second visit.

Getting little satisfaction from the police to whom he and others have reported their grievances, he took the matter into his own hands and keeping a watch on his property, when the thieves made their appearance, he turned the camera on them, and armed with this very positive and conclusive evidence, has succeeded in at least one instance of securing a "conviction," leaving it for the parents of the culprits to pronounce the sentence and see that it is executed.

In the particular instance referred to, he took three "shots" at the youngster, showing him in the act of throwing a missile into the tree to bring down the fruit, in the act of gathering up the fruit and again in the act of eating what he had taken.

With these evidences of guilt, he went to the parents of the boy and told what had happened. His verbal statement of the case was not believed, the parent asserting very positively that her son would not do such a thing.

Asking her if she would know her son if she saw his picture, she was equally positive that she would. When the picture were shown her, the proof was overwhelming, and she was obliged to admit that the pictures taken by the owner of the fruit trees were unmistakably those of her son.

Satisfied to leave the matter of correction in the parent's hands, the man retired, and it is safe to say that there is at least one boy in town who will refrain from giving further trouble in this direction.

This is but one instance of how the scheme has worked, but the camera is "loaded for fruit thieves" and the evidence which it gathers will be used if occasion requires.—Woburn Times.

STAMP COLLECTORS WILL GET BUSY.

There will be chance for some of our local stamp and coin collectors to get another hustle on when Uncle Sam issues the new stamps.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has signed an order for the issuance of a new two-cent stamp in commemoration of the Hudson-Fulton celebration, which will be held in New York state Sept. 25 to Oct. 9.

There will be only fifty million of these stamps issued and it is hoped to have them ready for sale by Sept. 20. The design includes an engraved picture, showing the Palisade of the Hudson river in the background, with the Half Moon sailing up the river and the Clermont steaming in the opposite direction.

Indians are also to be seen in canoes, representing the first means of navigation.

The stamp will be oblong in shape and will be printed in the same color as the present two-cent stamp.

SELF-APPOINTED CENSORS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

There are certain individuals in Winchester who, in the local paper and at town meeting and in private conversation, are very fond of criticising town officials and of advising how town business should be transacted. If such persons devoted more of their time to earning an honest living and paying their just debts they would have less leisure for finding fault with their fellow citizens. Charles F. A. Currier.

SAVINGS INSURANCE.

BY F. W. COBURN.

Just how much savings bank life insurance has been written at a number of the leading agencies in the state is set forth in some figures which have been prepared at the office of the State Actuary, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston.

As is well known, the success that this Massachusetts plan has encountered thus far has been due almost wholly to the activity of managements of industrial companies which have authorized the establishment of agencies for the benefit of their employees. The general public outside of certain specified industries has still to discover the advantages of the new facilities, although now and then an individual applies for savings insurance at the State Actuary's office, or at one of the banks.

The largest amount of savings bank insurance for which application has been made thus far is at the George E. Keith Company, Brockton, where the total up to July 15 was $185,023. The average size of the policies at this place was just about $383, the maximum under the law being $500.

The establishment at which the employees have taken out the largest average policy is the United Shoe Machinery Company, Beverly, where applications for insurance aggregating $114,372 have been made, with an average of $488 per policy.

Other large contributors to the total of savings bank insurance in the Commonwealth are the following: American Shoe and Leather Company, Lowell; Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company, Whitman; Denison Manufacturing Company, So. Framingham; Fore River Ship Building Company, Quincy; Gillette Safety Razor Company, South Boston; Holtzer-Cabot Electric Company, Brookline; W. H. McElwain Company, Brockton; Regal Shoe Company, Whitman; Tuolumet River and Stud Company, Quincy; Typewriter Company, Woburn; Winslow Brothers and Smith Company, Norwood.

In the city of Haverhill a number of agencies in shoe factories, large and small, have thus far made up a total of $120,754. Smaller totals are recorded from many other industrial centers, department stores and social settlement houses.

The readiness with which employees of these important Bay State industrial concerns have taken advantage of the opportunities afforded by savings insurance has encouraged the advocates of the plan to believe that eventually a large proportion of all the wage-earners of the state will be reached.

Food Versus Character.

Observe the various operations of food and drink in several nations. Was ever a fatter fiercer and cruel? Upon the strength of water gruel? But who shall stand his rage and force? When first he rides, then eats his horse? Salads and eggs and lighter fare? Tune the Italian sparrow's guitar. And if I take Don Confuse right Pudding and beef make Britons fight.

Can you believe your senses?

When two of them, taste and smell, having been impaired if not utterly destroyed, by nasal catarrh, are fully restored by Ely's Cream Balm, can you doubt that this remedy deserves all that has been said of it by the thousands who have used it? It is applied directly to the affected air-passages and begins its healing work at once. Why not get it today? All druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

Her Home.

Some years ago, when a part of the Japanese Imperial palace was burned at Tokyo, the empress was forced to flee to one of the old daimio houses near by. It was not at all comfortable, and, as the story goes, her majesty, appreciating that her subjects would be much concerned at her living in such a mean place, sat down and wrote them a little poem in which she denied that she had changed her residence. The poem, which was in the best Japanese language, stated that her majesty's home had always been in the hearts of the people and that neither the flames nor the cold could ever drive her from that dear abode.

The Dead Larks.

In Baluchistan even the wolves go mad in his book, "The Frontiers of Baluchistan," G. P. Tate writes: "The shepherds give a strange reason for the epidemic of rabies. According to them, it was caused by the wild beasts eating dead larks. In some years, they said, the larks develop extraordinary vitality and pour forth such a flood of songs as they rise on the wing that they become suffocated and fall to the ground dead. A wild animal which eats one of those dead birds inevitably develops rabies. This is a widespread superstition and seems not unfamiliar to the natives of India who were with me."

AUNT ALINE'S TRYST.

The Coming of the Man She So Anxiously Awaited.

By JOHN ROXBURY.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"Why, Aunt Aline! How pretty you look! What have you been doing to yourself? And where are you going?" Little Mrs. Jordan had run into her aunt's cozy home on her way to the city.

"Is it so unusual for me to look nice, Dollie?"

Miss Sherwin turned from the glass before which she had been giving a final touch to the soft brown hair that waved around her white forehead and smiled quizzically at her niece.

"No," returned the little matron with cordial sincerity; "you always look lovely to Dan and Nell and me. But you never would buy yourself pretty clothes while we were with you, and as you were always doing something for us you seldom took time to look at yourself. That new golden silk is wonderfully becoming, and that mechina at your throat, with the quaint brooch of coral and silver, is most artistic. And you have such a pretty pink color in your cheeks. One would think you were a young girl going out to meet your lover."

The color of which Dollie Jordan spoke deepened to rose. Miss Sherwin laughed an odd, embarrassed little laugh.

"You mustn't come flatter me," she said. "And I don't wish to hurry you, but you'll miss your train to town if you stay much longer."

"Mercy me! So I will!" And with a hasty glance at the clock and a hurried kiss she rushed away at a rapid rate.

Miss Sherwin turned again to the mirror when she was alone. Dollie was right. She did not look her twenty-nine years. Indeed, the face that smiled back at her was very sweet in its bright serenity. The lips that parted over gleaming white teeth were full and rosy. And the large gray eyes, looking forth from under dark brows and lashes, had a beaming brilliance.

"Maurice won't see much change in me," she said as she put on her hat. She slipped on a wrap and took up her gloves. But suddenly she stood still, shaken by the cruel dread. Suppose he were not there! It was a long journey here from Australia. Accidents innumerable were occurring every week. What if he were the victim of one? What if he were ill and could not make the trip?

The one greatest dread of all she did not voice even to her inmost conscious. "How foolish you are, Aline Sherwin!" she said, with an impatient little toss of her head. "His last letter said he would meet you at the old trysting place on this day, the anniversary of our engagement there. Maurice would never break his word."

She walked at a brisk rate the many blocks which lay between her home and the park. The charming suburban pleasure ground was gorgeous in its autumnal robes of amber and crimson and living gold. There was a continual drifting of glowing leaves through the blue, hazy air. And everywhere children were making merry, running and laughing and playing games.

But when Aline Sherwin reached the great stone fountain where the leaping water no longer glittered her heart sank with sudden, sharp disappointment. There was no one there but a gray haired, spectacled man, who glanced up at her approach only to bend instantly again over the paper he was reading. She took out her watch and consulted it.

"My watch is fast! I am ten minutes too soon! How foolish of me to fear!" she said.

She walked up and down the gravelled path near the fountain. To sit still was impossible. She watched the different avenues up which he might come. It was ten years since they had parted. Five minutes gone! At 5 he would be there, he had written—seven minutes!

And he need never have gone away. If it had not been for Mary's unexpected death she might have gone with him. But Aline had declared herself bound to take care of her sister's children.

Six months ago freedom had come to her. Dan was a man and prospering. Dollie was married, and Nell had gone to live with her. So Aline Sherwin wrote to her lover that she was waiting for him.

The clock in the tower clanged out the hour of 3.

She started and her reticule fell to the ground. Three, and he was not here! Each clang of the bell had struck on her heart like a blow.

"You have dropped your bag!" The man on the bench picked it up and offered it to her, lifting his hat. "I'm afraid you are disappointed," he said pleasantly. "You were expecting some one?"

She hardly glanced at him. But she was in the mood for confidence, and his voice was sympathetic.

"Yes," she said and sat down. "A friend who has been long abroad was to have met me here this day, this hour, and he has not come."

"I've been a great traveler myself," the man said. "Where did your friend live abroad?"

"In Australia." Her eyes were still seeking an advancing figure along the paths that led to this fountain.

"I've been there. But of course it's a mighty extensive country, and the cities are populous."

"I suppose so," she assented abstractedly. Her heart was like lead within her. "It would be absurd to suppose you had known Maurice Farrar there."

"Let me see," he repeated musingly. "Yes, I did know a man of that name. What did your friend look like?"

"He was straight and handsome," she returned dreamily. "He had brown, beautiful eyes, a classic, clean shaven face and curling black hair."

"Oh, that isn't the man I know at all," he said positively. "The Farrar I know is rather stout and bearded and quite gray."

Miss Sherwin nodded indifferently. She glanced again appealingly at the clock in the tower. Fifteen minutes past 3! He was not coming.

"There is no use waiting," she said, rising. All the joyousness seemed to have left her. "Maurice would be here—if he were alive!"

How dreary the golden day had grown, how cold! And what a mourn there was in the wind, a desolate cry that found its echo in her heart.

The man on the bench sprang erect, a straight, robust figure. He thrust his smoked glasses in his pocket, swept off his hat and held out eager arms.

"Aline!" he cried. "Maurice is here!"

For one wild, stunned, incredulous moment she stared at him. Then she took a faltering step forward. His arms closed around her as she sobbed out her gladness on his breast. Marked by exile and labor, prematurely gray, and yet the same—the old sweet smile, the old loving eyes!

"It was no deliberate deception, dear. It was only when I saw you approaching that I remembered the glasses I must wear in strong sunshine and slipped them on. I cannot read with them on," he laughed. "But I bent over the paper just the same. My dearest own girl, will you forgive me? You have kept your girlish beauty. The fever that made my hair gray makes me look older than I am."

Her color had come back in a rose red tinge. She smiled up at him, standing stalwart and dignified before her, and she cried to him: "You are handsomer than ever, Maurice! But even if you were really bent and crippled—yes, and blind—you would be, as you've always been, the only man in the wide world for me!"

And now the leaves had a merry rustle and the wind a song of joy.

Pleasures of Trout Fishing.

Catching trout is not the only thing that makes fishing a mountain stream worth while. The early morning ride to the place where you are to commence your day's sport is in itself pleasant to a degree wholly missed by those who take their rides later in the day. During the early hours of the day the air is fresh and invigorating. Every leaf and spear of grass by the roadside sparkles with dew, and the forest is pungent with pleasant and health giving odors that are dispelled as the sun rises above the treetops and dries the moisture on leaf and twig. As you drive quietly along you may have the good fortune to see a deer browsing in a roadside clearing. He stands watching you for a moment or two, then turns quickly and with graceful leaps disappears among the trees. An old fox steps out into the road and trots boldly along ahead of you for some distance, but when he discovers that you are gaining on him he turns for an instant, shows his teeth with a snarl and then slinks away into the bushes. Farther along a partridge with her brood of chicks has also ventured out into the road, and when she, too, discovers that you are drawing uncomfortably near there is a great to do. With outspread wings and uttering the plaintive cry made by a mother partridge when she believes her young to be in danger she hastily collects the members of her family and leads and drives them back into the security of the woods.—Outing Magazine.

Mike Was There Too.

"I was there," said the reporter, "and I know this is true."

"It was during the Spanish-American war. Most of the boys had enlisted in the navy, and there were more than a score aboard the converted cruiser St. Paul, commanded by the then Captain Sigbee, who was commander of the ill-fated Maine at the time she was destroyed in Havana harbor."

"We were slowly making passage out of New York harbor one bright, sunshiny morning, and several hundred of the crew were lined up along the lee rail of the main deck watching the various craft plying up and down the river."

"By and by a magnificent swanlike private yacht, owned by a prominent Philadelphian, steamed swiftly alongside of us, and when we were within easy speaking distance a beautiful and elegantly attired woman on the bridge called out in a clear soprano voice to the officer on our bridge, 'Is Captain Sigbee aboard?'"

"Before the man addressed could reply a huge, brawny coal heaver, with a voice that seemed to almost make the ship vibrate, shouted from the main deck, 'Yes, Captain Sigbee is aboard, an' so is Mike O'Neill!'"

"In the roar of laughter which followed even the fair inquirer after the captain joined, though the officer on our bridge turned purple with rage and mortification."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Capacity Limited.

To a swell cafe I led her, and on terrapin I fed her, yet netherthought I noted sadness in her eye. Then as we departed and for a street car started, she let out a large and soulful sigh. When I asked her trouble, her answer knocked me double. "I got so full of turtle that I had no room for ple!"—Chicago News.

Go Barefoot an Hour a Day.

"If you can spare time and swallow pride and RUN BAREFOOT FOR AN HOUR EVERY DAY in the dew or simply on the ground," says the foot specialist, "your feet will be healed of all their troubles and your body will benefit also."

"If you can go in wading in a cool brook, so much the better. Did you ever see a cow standing knee deep in a creek while she composedly chewed her cud? Well, she is doing exactly what human beings ought to do for the good of their feet."

"Few people realize what an important part feet play in general health."

"They show even more quickly than the tongue what the physical condition is, and yet they are treated with little respect, squeezed and tortured, kept cold in the winter and hot in summer. IF LEFT BARE AN HOUR EVERY DAY and dipped in the early dew, corns and callous spots will eventually disappear, nerves will improve and insomnia be overcome."

"A wonderful bath for delicate, tired feet is prepared as follows: Cover with five quarts of boiling water and let simmer for twenty minutes one ounce of dried mint, one ounce of dried sage, three ounces of dried angelica, half pound of juniper berries, one pound of rosemary leaves. The bath should be moderately warm, and the feet should be immersed for about twenty minutes."

"A good foot powder is made as follows: Lycopersium, three drams; alum, one dram; tannin, thirty grains."

SUN PRANKS.

Irregularities For Which Science Cannot Altogether Account.

The sun is generally looked upon as a model of regularity which never fails in its duty, but the ancient historians mention several instances when it failed to give forth its usual amount of heat and light for periods varying from three hours to several months. Data on the subject have been compiled by the St. Louis Republic.

According to Plutarch, the year 44 B. C. was one in which the sun was "weak and pale" for a period approximating eleven months.

The Portuguese historians record several months of diminished sunlight in the year 134 A. D., and, according to Humboldt, this uncanny period ended with "strange and startling sky phenomena, such as loud atmospheric explosions, rifts in the vaulted canopy of blue above and in divers other rare and unaccountable freaks."

In the year 1091, on Sept. 29 (see Humboldt's "Cosmos"), the sun turned suddenly black and remained so for three hours and did not regain its normal condition for several days.

According to the noted Helmut's "Solar Energy," the days of seeming inactivity on the part of the sun (the days following the sudden blackening of the great orb) were noted for a peculiar greenish tinge and are marked in old Spanish, French and Italian records as "the days of the green sun."

February, 1106 A. D., is noted in the annals of marvelous phenomena as a month in which there were several days that "the sun appeared dead and black, like a great circular cinder floating in the sky."

"On the last day of February, 1206," says an old Spanish writer on astronomy, astrology and kindred subjects, "the sun appeared suddenly to go out, causing a darkness over the country for about six hours." In 1241 the European countries experienced another stage of supernatural darkness, which the superstitious writers of that time attributed to God's displeasure over the result of the great battle of Liegnitz.

Even today there are certain irregularities of the sun that science cannot altogether account for. These are the so called sun spots—enormous dark blotches which appear from time to time on the solar disk and which are supposed to have great influence on the atmospheric conditions of the earth. Scientists have long studied these phenomena, but neither their extent nor periodicity has ever been determined.

How to Kill Flies.

A good fly poison not dangerous to human life is a solution of bichromate of potash, one dram dissolved in two ounces of water and sweetened with a little sugar. Put some in shallow dishes and place throughout the house. Flies are no more dangerous now than they always have been, but the occasional mysterious occurrence and SPREAD OF COMMUNICABLE DISEASES have now been charged to their account.

Keep your good citizenship on straight. Do not wear it with the hind end to the front, as some Winchester dames wear their hats.

Let there be a united and strong effort on the part of every citizen to boom Winchester. And let the word boom be spelled in great big letter.

There are several Winchester men who have proven marriage anything but a lottery. It is said that there is money in the lottery business.

By the way, the chief reason why some of Winchester's married women are not more cheerful is because they do not associate with any children.

The returns made by the Assessors of the number of inhabitants is a disappointment to Melrose, for it shows an increase in the year past of only 124.

Things may go back rather far for a time, so far that some of us may get discouraged, but in reality they are only going back for a good start forward.

There are constantly 3,000,000 persons seriously ill in the United States, of whom more than 600,000 are consumptives. More than half of this illness is preventable.

The citizen's of Winchester should constantly bear in mind that good sidewalks enhance the value of property more than in proportion to cost of improvement made.

The increasing number of automobile trucks that pass through Winchester evidence that the time is not far distant when horses will be as obsolete in trucking as sails in the navy.

With thousands of new visitors going into the Middlesex Fells daily, since the opening of the new Fells line, the duty of the Metropolitan Water Board, to protect Spot pond reservoir, becomes doubly important.

Let the good citizens of Winchester prove their alertness to the indicator which points to the future greater prosperity of our town. Let us all pass toward the mark for the prize of an ever better and busier Winchester.

Boston papers repeatedly refer to Spot pond as being in Melrose, when as a matter of fact, that beautiful sheet of water, with the exception of a small portion at the extreme Southern end, which is in Medford, lies wholly in Stoneham.

The tax bills have been sent out by the Collector. There is a saying that "We are patriotic enough in our cheering, but not in tax paying." But this hardly applies to Winchester, especially this year where the rate has been reduced $1.20 on $1000.

Winchester folks who have ever sojourned for any length of time in California will be interested to know of the poet Edwin Markham's decision to return to the Pacific Coast. "Once the charm of that golden climate gets into a man's veins he may roam all over the earth, but he will always long to return to the sunset land," says Mr. Markham. To which more than one Winchesterite will agree.

Winchester philatelists are evincing a lively interest in the issuance of the new two cent stamps in commemoration of the Hudson-Fulton celebration. There will be 50,000,000 of them issued and they will be on sale on September 20. The Post Master General has expressed the opinion that it is one of the most artistic stamps that has ever been issued by the postoffice department.

To Defeat Gov. Draper.

The Labor Unions have lined up against Gov. Draper because he vetoed the eight hour bill passed last winter by cowardly and shirking Legislators who did not have the courage to vote against the measure, although they did not believe in it. Gov. Draper acted for the people of the whole State, when he vetoed the bill, and we do not believe he will be defeated next fall for doing so. The Labor Unions will make a mistake if they enter politics, as is now proposed. More can be accomplished for the workingmen in other directions.

Republican Caucus.

Winchester Republicans will hold their caucus on Tuesday, Sept. 21, at 7 p. m., in the Town Hall. Six delegates will be elected to the State, Senatorial, County and Councillor Conventions, and seventeen delegates to the Representative Convention, also a town committee of nine members. Caucus officers, consisting of a warden, a clerk and five inspectors for the year beginning Oct. 1, 1909, will also be chosen.

Nomination papers will be issued Saturday, August 28, at 8 a. m., from the office of Mr. Frank Eugene Barnard, Secretary of the Republican Town Committee, 41 Oxford street, Winchester. These papers must be filed at the same place on or before Thursday, Sept. 9, at 5 p. m. The earliest day and hour for filing nomination papers will be Wednesday, Sept. 8, at 8 a. m.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS DAILY.

There is no other Food Fair quite like that held in Boston because there is no great business metropolis that so surely calls to itself the purchasing public from 200 miles around, as does the Hub in October. Hence the fact that all summer long the railway systems cetering in Boston are planning for the fall excursions, tapping the most remote sections of New England and, reversing the summer's outward go, turn the tide of travel Bostonward all during the harvest month.

All this outside the 50-mile radius of Boston while within that radius as a population of more than three million people with better transportation facilities and a larger per capita of wealth than any where in an equal area in the United States. The Annual Food Fair in Mechanics Building is to the people as distinctively a New England Institution as is the State House of Boston Common. Mechanics Building is the largest Exposition Building in the world and there are not many New England people of adult years but have been within its walls. Few, however, realize what a Food and Home Furnishing Exposition like that to be given in Mechanics Building, Boston, from September 27th to October 30th, 1909, really means in an industrial way. The preliminary work by exhibitors alone, including the planning, the erection of exhibit booths, necessitate the employment of architects, designers, decorators, sign painters, carpenters, plumbers and electricians,—all skilled artisans—to the number of 2,000, whose average daily wages for the two weeks previous to the opening is not less than $5 each. During the Exposition not less than 3,000 people are employed in various capacities and these command salaries that average fully $5 each, a total expenditure per week for wages alone of nearly $5,000. In addition to this the management itself expands for music not less than $1,000 daily and for the other attractions an equal amount. These Expositions are not the hurried work of a few weeks but back of them is twelve months hard effort by skilled managers and the co-operative efforts of merchants in nearly every town and city in Massachusetts.

TROUBLES IN STREET RAILROADING.

Some of the difficulties of conducting a great rapid transit enterprise in these days of high prices of labor and equipment and of expensive improvements necessitated by public convenience are brought out in an article on "The Outlook for Street Railway Investments" in the August number of Moody's Magazine for Investors. The writer, who has collated interesting figures regarding the street railway situation in New York, Boston, Cleveland and other cities, pays special attention to the serious position in which the Boston Elevated Railway Company may find itself unless a halt is called upon the expansion of free transfers and the initiation of inordinately costly extensions. Notice is taken of the recent independent investigations of President James L. Richards which seemed to prove that unless relieved of some of its burdens the model transportation company of the United States "will by 1913 have reached the point where income and expense just balance each other, leaving nothing for dividends, maintenance and depreciation or any extraordinary expenditure."

It is shown in the article that the Boston Elevated Company, without reference to the many projects that from time to time are announced by sociologists and others as feasible and desirable, has definitely agreed to stand up under the expense of extensions of underground, overhead and surface lines, and construction of terminals and rearrangements of terminals, the aggregate cost of which will be more than $45,000,000.

And the only expectation of additional revenue with which to meet the largely increased charges lies in the increase in the number of fare passengers. This increase has at no time in the last ten years been phenomenally rapid and it is subject to depression—as in the dull months succeeding the panic of 1907. The conclusion is that it is not to be expected that "however admirable the transportation system becomes Bostonians will spend all their waking hours enjoying the pleasures of riding in the street cars, or that even under the efforts of a committee of energetic Bostonians to create 'the finest city of the world by 1915' the population of the metropolitan district of Boston is going to mount with unprecedented rapidity."

It is shown statistically in the article that the items of expense to which a huge company like the Boston Elevated Railway Company has been put in the last few years have mounted all out of proportion to the increase of revenue. The capitalization, which in 1888 was less than $12,000,000, has become nearly $87,000,000 and this without inflation of any sort, for stock watering is rigidly inhibited by the Massachusetts law. The ratio of gross earnings which was about forty per cent. two decades ago has decreased to less than 21 per cent. in 1908. Operating expenses have nearly trebled. The company now pays more than seven times the amount in taxes that it did in 1888. The troubles of the Massachusetts suburban companies are also referred to.

The most feasible remedy for the troubles that seem to be in store even for such street railway companies as the Boston Elevated Company, according to the writer in Moody's lies in educating the whole public to appreciate the conditions under which public service corporations now conduct their work.

Unless such education is effected it is probable that either the whole basis of charging for service must be changed or even that the management of some street car companies must pass into other hands.

WEDNESDAY CLOSING.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am one of those persons who believe it right and proper that the over-worked clerks in the stores should have one afternoon off each week. Nevertheless I think that the people, too, are entitled to some consideration. Memory at best, is apt to be treacherous, and the result frequently is that housekeepers find themselves short of household necessities and the stores closed. Now to make everything satisfactory to all concerned, why not hereafter keep one store open on Wednesday afternoons for these delinquents. This can be done by the stores taking turns. It is now too late to inaugurate this feature this year, but why not arrange for it next season.

One who Forgot.

DON'T WAIT.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I notice that conductors on the Arlington-Winchester line are now the ones that are not inclined to wait for connection with the Woburn cars. Sometime ago the reverse was the case. Notwithstanding that the white light showed denoting the approach of a Woburn car, some conductors have disregarded it, and failed to wait a fraction of a minute to the discomforting of many people. Fifteen minutes lost when in a hurry to reach home is aggravating.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In Norwood the Assessors were so derelict in their duties that spurred on by a tax rate of $25.60 last year the town appointed an able committee to thoroughly investigate, with the result that the committee finds the valuation should be nearly doubled, which would bring the tax rate down to ten dollars. What the assessors will do about it, however, has not been reported yet. While a similar committee could not find such striking conditions in Winchester it could find considerable, enough to bring our rate down to about $13.00. Assessing is going to get a shake up all over the Commonwealth and the common people will soon wonder why they were such fools for so long a time. I have talked with the tax commissioners office and know their opinion.

Seemingly the Selectmen's clerk picks out for publication the most trivial and uninteresting things that come before their meetings. Of course he is paid nothing extra for furnishing this news (?) and it is only natural that he should get out of it as easy as possible, particularly as the Board cares nothing about it anyway. But why publish it at all when what is furnished amounts to nothing?

I am glad to see that Henry Lyons is moving to have something doing on Labor Day. We need to be waked up. But why should the Selectmen specify the kind of bombs? They must know that our nabobs do not return until after Labor Day and the common people can stand all the noise as well as band concerts in the evening. We do not want to get too refined.

I hope the New Haven will hurry up and begin to operate the B. and M. soon so that we may be able to get attention to some of the small things, at least. This road is being run in an out of date and ridiculous way, and it is high time we had a change.

One of the strangest sights in Boston recently has been crows perched upon the dome of the representatives chamber of the State House and cawing away vigorously. What is the omen?

A short time ago I was surprised to read that a citizen had written to the Selectmen about the condition of Curtis street. We were told at the town meeting when its acceptance as a public way was up, that it was a thoroughly macadamized road.

It would be interesting to hear how much riding the Boston, Lowell and Lawrence electric railroad figures upon getting in Winchester and Woburn when its fares are so much higher than the railroad and street railway fares—North Woburn to Boston would cost 21c, from Woburn 18c, Lake street 17c, Winchester 15c, compared with 10c, on the street cars. The trip tickets are also higher than the B. and M. and street railway rates.

An alarm from box 37 called the fire department out last night for a blaze at the residence of Mr. Johnson on Harvard street, caused by the explosion of a lamp. There was no damage.

The first annual reunion of the Folsom family took place in the First Church, Exeter, N. H., Wednesday. Mr. Hiram W. Folsom of this town is one of the descendants of this illustrious family.

Dr. G. N. P. Mead has arrived home from his extended European trip.

Now that vacation is over for many, those who have been away will have many a laugh at the quaint sayings and sea yarns that you have heard this summer while sailing with a typical old sea dog down in Maine. As the days go on you will live over again some of the glorious sails you have had with lee rail under and spray flying. You will think possibly of plans for another vacation for next summer. With the thrill of these thoughts comes also the cost of a vacation. You have steeled down to business again as never before, having planned to save some money this year and you begin to study the cost of living. THE OLD QUESTION can I save money by paying cash, or shall I continue running a credit account.

Some people won't pay cash preferring to pay an additional price for credit. But many are surprised at the results accomplished in trading at a cash store.

One important factor in our business in asking you to pay cash, is that we must give you a price for the privilege of using your cash to do business with. That price must be lower than at a credit store.

We are making plans to double our business this fall and winter; in doing this we must make specialties of certain articles of food. Flour is to be one of the leading features of our business.

Our customers claim after giving Angelus Flour a fair trial that it is the leading flour on the market today of any kind. People realize more and more that flour advertised so extensively in all the daily papers and leading magazines, ADDS TO THE COST OF THE FLOUR but not to quality, you will not hear of Angelus Flour only in the STAR and from our pleased customers. We are trying to give you a higher quality in flour and a lower price in cost. You will help along this simple combination by buying the flour which will necessitate our buying in quantity and selling a large amount.

Angelus Bread Flour, and Pride of Niagara, a high grade pastry flour, from the same mill, are the two grades, we ask you to consider. Look in and see our country store.

MEDFORD BOULEVARD
SUMMER THEATRE.

The picturesque Medford Boulevard Summer Theatre with its high class all fresco performances afternoons and evenings throughout the warm weather months fills a place in the minds of its patrons that has no parallel known of in this country. Although only a summer vaudeville theatre it has a most positive clientele as much of a computable clientele as that possessed by any of the best theatres in the land in the days of high class stock companies. It has arrived at this enviable station, not by leaps and runs, but by steady up hill work, conservative judgment, and a master skill in providing superior and clean vaudeville. This has all been the result of a closely adhered to policy on the part of the manager, J. W. Gorman, whose years of experience as a special caterer to the vaudeville tastes of summer outdoor theatre audiences has taught just what his patrons want. Moreover, patrons have this delectable amusement feast spread before them with the best appointments.

The vaudeville programme for coming week, beginning Monday afternoon, August 30, promises to prove one of the best, if not the best of the season. The full list will be given in the Boston Sunday papers, and Manager Gorman is holding back some surprises for announcement.

When Linen Is Translucent.

The whiteness and opacity of dry linen, as of writing paper, are due mainly to the fact of repeated reflections at the surface, so that the light is wasted in these reflections before it can reach to any depth. The body of linen is a network of transparent fibers not in optical contact, which intercept the light by repeatedly reflecting it. Now, if the interstices of these fibers are filled by a body of the same refractive index as the fibers themselves the reflection of the surface is destroyed and the linen is rendered more transparent. Water does this; hence linen when wet is darker, but more translucent. Just as is the oiled paper used for tracings by architects and engineers. The same holds good with ordinary glass and ground glass, the repeated reflections of the latter making it far less transparent. To a similar cause are due the whiteness and opacity of snow, of salt and of pulverized glass.

An Entertaining Catbird.

Nothing escapes the eye of our pet catbird, for he is curiously personified. He wants to know the why and wherefore of everything that is a little strange and does not rest until he has found out. When let out in a room he will carefully examine every nook and corner. He is an inveterate joker and delights to play jokes on his fellow prisoners, while his sense of humor is almost human at times. The pin cushion is a constant wonder and delight to him. He flies to it as soon as let out of his cage and either pulls the pins all out or drives them into the cushion as far as possible. If he pulls them out, he hops to the edge of the table and drops them on the floor, flinging his tail and uttering a note of great satisfaction when they strike the floor. Suburban Life.

How He Felt.

He was an Englishman of the ultra sort and recently arrived, but he was striving strenuously to catch up with American idioms and New York slang. He had made some progress. He boomed up in the breakfast room of his hotel the other morning after a too convivial evening and encountered one of his companions.

"How do you feel, old chap?" asked the latter.

"Feel?" repeated the Englishman. "Feel? Oh, yes, I see what you mean old fellow. Well, really, don't you know, I feel like one and six."

"Like what?"

"Like one and six, as you chaps say here. No! Hold on, there! I mean 30 cents, you know; feel like 30 cents."

Yes," New York Globe.

A Brief Introduction.

Mark Twain said the only introduction to a literary audience that seemed to him the right word in the right place, a real inspiration, was as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I shall not waste any unnecessary time in the introduction. I don't know anything about this man—at least I only know two things about him. One is that he has never been in prison, and the other is I can't see why he hasn't."

BOSTON LETTER

Chairman McLeod Seems to Be a Hustler For Democrats

GREAT ACTIVITY IN CAMPAIGN

Coughlin's Candidacy for Governor—

Return of Fitzgerald—J. Stearns

Cushing Conceded Councillor Nomination

There has been considerable activity in the political field in the last week or more. The near approach of the caucuses has started all the politicians on both sides of the political fence working.

Evidently Chairman Frederick J. McLeod of the Democratic state committee has been busy for several months past. He has made a very careful campaign, organizing the city and town committees of the state and getting them into the best possible shape. It is somewhat remarkable, but in the great majority of towns he found no organization whatever. Evidently there has been none since the year 1903, when Colonel William A. Gaston was a candidate for governor. There was also a dearth of records and other data in regard to these committees. He also discovered that the state committee had been in the habit of ignoring all but a few of the large towns, and whatever was done in the way of campaign work was evidently in the cities and these few large towns.

Chairman McLeod thinks it difficult to diagnose the political situation at the present time, and does not feel inclined to make prophecies. On the other hand, he is not willing to admit that the Democrats have no show, so he declares that it is difficult to get any forecast on the result of the vote. He believes there is more evidence today of a breaking up of party lines among the Republicans than ever before, at the same time admitting that the Democratic party has been in that condition for three or four years. He thinks the result of this breaking up will be apparent in due time. The oracle at Delphi could not have framed an utterance more oracular than that.

The greatest activity at the present time is seen in the contests for the various nominations. In all the districts where there are such contests, there is the greatest activity on the part of the candidates. The most effective political work that is being done in a general way is in the line of registration in Boston. A good many thousand voters have moved since the last election and, to locate these, get them listed, and have their names registered as voters, has occupied the earnest attention of the Republican city committee. In the neighborhood of ten thousand voters have moved since 1905. To find where such voters have gone, mail letters calling attention to the necessity of registering, and similar work, makes business brisk at the headquarters.

The Democrats will have a field day on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 28, at Scituate, when the Young Men's Democratic club of ward twenty has its summer outing. Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell is the leading spirit in this club, and will preside, while the speakers will be Chairman McLeod of the state committee, President James Donovan of the Democratic city committee, James H. Vahay of Watertown, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and several congressmen from New York and Pennsylvania. All the candidates for the Democratic nomination for mayor have also been invited.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant is announced to speak on Thursday, Sept. 2, at the summer outing of the Young Men's Republican club of Dorchester. This will be his first speech since the passage of the tariff bill, and it is assumed that he will say something of more than ordinary interest in regard to the features of that measure, and the benefits it will bring to this commonwealth.

Some interest has been aroused by the announcement of the candidacy of Mayor John T. Coughlin of Fall River for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. It is not generally believed, however, that Mayor Coughlin will be able to capture the nomination. There are a good many Democrats who do not care much for Mr. Vahay, but it has been conceded, in a way, that the nomination should come to him, if he can get that will have some weight in deciding the question, without it Mr. Mayor Coughlin is reckoned among the conservative leaders of the Democratic party and he has generally been very little use for the purpose of a movement which seems to have been organized at the present time.

The return of John F. Fitzgerald to Boston has given added zest to the mayoralty campaign. Mr. Fitzgerald declares that he is a candidate regardless of which plan of city government is accepted by the voters. He is quoted as saying that he will run under any old plan. When he left for Europe, the trial of two of his subordinates while the mayor had just been completed, and both had received sentences on the charge of defrauding the city. In that trial Mr. Fitzgerald failed to remember nearly everything about which he was asked. District Attorney Hill openly charged him with attempting to "throw" the government case. His friends were

FRED L. PATTEE,

FRANK L. RIPLEY,

Directors.

Nearly a unit in advising him not to enter the mayoralty contest. It was believed when he called, shortly after, that he would on his return to Boston announce his withdrawal as a candidate. He has not done this, but is apparently as much of a candidate as ever. Nobody believes that he could win under the caucus and convention plan of nominating the candidates. He has announced himself in favor of the other method by which anyone securing the names of five thousand voters may run for the office of mayor. Under that plan he probably believes that he might win, if there was a sufficient number of candidates in the field to divide the vote of the opposition. He has the open hostility of President Donovan of the Democratic city committee, and it is believed that the city committee as a whole would oppose his nomination.

Thus far he is the only active, hustling candidate for mayor in the field. Mayor Hibbard is expected to announce his candidacy before long, while there appears to be considerable doubt whether James J. Storrow will allow the use of his name. President Donovan is believed to be for Mr. Storrow or ex-Congressman Joseph H. O'Neill. The Good Government association is for Storrow if he will consent to be a candidate. There are various other names mentioned, but these are the ones which command attention at the present time.

In the second councillor district, Mr. J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood is now unopposed for nomination as the Republican candidate. Both the other candidates, Representative Herbert W. Burr of Dorchester and ex-Representative Arthur P. Russell of Quincy, have formally withdrawn from the contest, pledging their support to Mr. Cushing. This, of course, means the nomination of the latter by acclamation in the councillor convention.

In the Boston councillor district, the Third, there is no one now in the field for the Democratic nomination with the exception of ex-Representative William F. Murray of Charlestown. It seems at the present time that no other candidate will care to enter the field at this late date. This district is as strongly Democratic as the second district is Republican.

GEORGE ADE'S MANICURE.

Of all the types drawn by George Ade, now recognized as America's greatest humorist none has hit the popular fancy better than his manicure, which he introduced in a short comedy, with the mayor as a western town as the other principal character. In the mayor's son while at college fell in love with the village manicure, and when he returned home, the woman followed him and tried to extort money from the father. The sketch is called "The Nail and the Manure" and will be presented at Keith's next week by Edwin Holt and company. This week will also be the last of the Fadeltes.

This has been the most successful season the Fadeltes have ever played, and the programs given by them have been of a higher order. Another novelty this week will be Kid Gabriel in his wonderful poses, being faithful reproductions of the famous Remington paintings of life on the cow ranch. Others will be the Four Rianos Acrobats, Smith and Campbell humorists, Arthur Rigby blackface comedian, and the four Dancing bugs, something that will prove a surprise in the dancing line.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand are, first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top, and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent, vegetable fibre, which grows near the equator. It never gets lumpy, and is extremely light and fluffy. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great durability, and for small sleepers, it is perfect.

The Price is $12.00

Use the best hair ticking on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of fine horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resiliency, and for small sleepers, it is perfect.

Price $20.00

Made in best ticking, two parts, five inch box, and full weight.

THE SKYLIGHT ROOM.

How Dr. Billy Jackson Found the Girl It Sheltered.

By O. HENRY.

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.]

First Mrs. Parker would show you the double parlors. You would not dare to interrupt her description of their advantages and of the merits of the gentleman who had occupied them for eight years. Then you would manage to stammer forth the confession that you were neither a doctor nor a dentist. Mrs. Parker's manner of receiving the admission was such that you could never afterward entertain the same feeling toward your parents, who had neglected to train you up in one of the professions that fitted Mrs. Parker's parlors.

Next you ascended one flight of stairs and looked at the second floor back at 88. Convinced by her second floor manner that it was worth the $12 that Mr. Townsend always paid for it until he left to take charge of his brother's orange plantation in Florida, near Palm Beach, where Mrs. McIntyre always spent the winters that had the double front room with private bath, you managed to babble that you wanted something still cheaper.

If you survived Mrs. Parker's scorn you were taken to look at Mr. Skidder's large hall room on the third floor. Mr. Skidder's room was not vacant. He wrote plays and smoked cigarettes in it all day long. But every room hunter was made to visit his room to admire the lambrequins. After each visit Mr. Skidder, from the fright caused by possible eviction, would pay something on his rent.

Then—oh, then—if you still stood on one foot, with your hot hand clutching the three moist dollars in your pocket, and hoarsely proclaimed your hideous and culpable poverty, never more would Mrs. Parker be eleusine of yours. She would blink loudly the word "Clara." She would show you her back and march downstairs. Then Clara, the colored maid, would escort you up the carpeted ladder that served for the fourth flight and show you the skylight room. It occupied 7 by 8 feet of floor space at the middle of the hall. On each side of it was a dark lumber closet or storeroom.

In it were an iron cot, a washstand and a chair. A shelf was the dresser. Its four bare walls seemed to close in upon you like the sides of a coffin. Your hand crept to your throat, you gasped, you looked up as from a well—and breathed once more. Through the glass of the little skylight you saw a square of blue infinity.

"Two dollars, huh," Clara would say in her half contemptuous, half Tuskegee tones.

One day Miss Leeson came hunting for a room. She carried a typewriter made to be lugged around by a much larger lady. She was a very little girl, with eyes and hair that had kept on growing after she had stopped and that always looked as if they were saying: "Goodness me! Why didn't you keep up with us?"

Mrs. Parker showed her the double parlors. "In this closet," she said, "one could keep a skeleton or an aesthetic or coal!"

"But I am neither a doctor nor a dentist," said Miss Leeson, with a shiver.

Mrs. Parker gave her the incredulous, pitying, sneering, icy stare that

"I'm just a poor little working girl," she kept for those who failed to qualify as doctors or dentists and led the way to the second floor back.

"Eight dollars?" said Miss Leeson. "Dear me! I'm not Hetty. If I do look green, I'm just a poor little working girl. Show me something higher and lower."

Mr. Skidder jumped and strewed the floor with cigarette stubs at the rap on his door.

"Excuse me, Mr. Skidder," said Mrs. Parker, with her demon's smile at his pale looks. "I didn't know you were in. I asked the lady to have a look at your lambrequins."

"They're too lovely for anything," said Miss Leeson, smiling in exactly the way the angels do.

After they had gone Mr. Skidder got very busy erasing the tall, black haired heroine from his latest unproduced play and inserting a small, roguish one with heavy, bright hair and vivacious features.

pearing in a cloud of smoke like an aerial cuttlefish.

Presently the tocsin call of "Clara!" sounded to the world the state of Miss Leeson's purse. A dark goblin seized her, mounted a stygian stairway, thrust her into a vault with a glimmer of light in its top and muttered the menacing and cabalistic words "Two dollars!"

"I'll take it," sighed Miss Leeson, sinking down upon the squeaky iron bed.

Every day Miss Leeson went out to work. At night she brought home papers with handwriting on them and made copies with her typewriter. Sometimes she had no work at night, and then she would sit on the steps of the high stoop with the other roomers. Miss Leeson was not intended for a skylight room when the plans were drawn for her creation. She was gay hearted and full of tender, whimsical fancies. Once she let Mr. Skidder read to her three acts of his great (unpublished) comedy, "It's No Kid; or, The Hell of the Subway."

There was rejoicing among the gentlemen roomers whenever Miss Leeson had time to sit on the steps for an hour or two. But Miss Longnecker, the tall blond who taught in a public school and said "Well, really!" to everything you said, sat on the top step and sniffed. And Miss Dorn, who shot at the moving ducks at Coney every Sunday and worked in a department store, sat on the bottom step and sniffed. Miss Leeson sat on the middle step, and the men would quickly group around her.

Especially Mr. Skidder, who had cast her in his mind for the star part in a private, romantic, unspoken drama in real life. And especially very young Mr. Evans, who set up a hollow cough to induce her to ask him to leave off cigarettes. The men voted her "the funniest and jolliest ever," but the sniffs on the top step and the lower step were implacable.

I pray you let the drama halt while Chorus stalks to the footlights and drops an epicurean tear upon the fatness of Mr. Hoover. Tune the pipes to the tragedy of fallow, the bane of bulk, the calamity of corpulence. Tried out, Falstaff might have rendered more real romance to the ton than would have Romeo's rickety ribs to the ounce. A lover may sigh, but he must not puff. To the train of Momus are the fat men remanded. In vain beats the faithful heart above a fifty-two inch belt. Avaunt, Hoover! Hoover, forty-five, flush and foolish, might carry off Helen herself. Hoover, forty-five, flush, foolish and fat, is meat for perdition. There was never a chance for you, Hoover.

As Mrs. Parker's roomers sat thus one summer's evening Miss Leeson looked up into the firmament and cried, with her gay little laugh:

By the "Blue Bell" Ye May Know:

HOW TO WIN.

Determination and Unity of Purpose Will Work Wonders.

Once you have chosen your occupation or profession hold fast thereto. Let nothing allure you from the main traveled road. Having chosen, hold like steel. Make everything feed into the main current of your life. Even modest talents, organized and unified, have conquered great distinction and worldwide success. History is full of illustrations of the unifying power of a great purpose. Witness the poor child Hastings looking at a distant manor house that, once had belonged to his father. The determination to win back that estate before he died lent power and momentum and produced Lord Hastings. Witness the influence of purpose upon that little Scotch boy, out upon a holiday on the banks of the Clyde, with three precious coppers as his entire possession. He determined to build a house on the hilltop overlooking the river and forty years later moved into the castle, from which he looked down upon twenty ocean steamers he had built. Witness the purpose of William the Silent, filling all the days and nights for the hero struggling to deliver brave little Holland from Spain. Witness Milton's vow to write a poem that the world would not willingly let die and who therefore lived an epic life. Witness Paul's resolution to do one thing and one thing alone and who, with that unit purpose achieved democracy for all subsequent peoples and centuries. Aimlessness will make your life like a sand heap.—Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis.

FULL OF HUMAN INTEREST.

Landscapes of the Dutch Painters of the Seventeenth Century.

The Dutch painters of the seventeenth century were as little concerned with poetic feeling as with idealism. They used their eyes and painted what they saw, but neither their imaginations nor their feelings were touched. While most modern painters interpret how the scene has affected themselves, the Dutch looked at it as something entirely outside themselves.

Otherwise the Dutch landscapes present us pictures of a pleasant workaday world or of the quiet evenings that follow after the labors of the day—never a hint of disturbance, though war and rumors of war were constant; instead, the perpetual suggestion of prosperous peace and thrifty comfort, for they abound with the evidences of busy humanity. Not only is nature brought into touch with human life by the little figures, so charmingly life-like, which animate the scene, but everywhere are the results of man's handiwork seen in little things as well as big—in the trimly kept fruit trees of a laborer's garden plot no less than in the handsome facade of a rich burgher's town house. There is no country in the world where the influence of man is so minutely imprinted upon every foot of ground, and as these artists were eager to represent the things they saw no landscapes are so full of human interest as theirs.—Charles H. Coffin in St. Nicholas.

A hypocrite despises those whom he deceives, but has no respect for himself. He would make a dupe of himself, too, if he could.—Hazlitt.

SUPERSTITIONS.

They Play at Times an Important Role in Human Affairs.

When Sir Charles Napier had conquered Mehemet Ali, he found it impossible to force or coax the wily Egyptian into signing the treaty which only would make his victory effective. He had nineteen interviews with Mehemet, in which the Englishman by turns argued, flattered and threatened his antagonist, who listened day after day with the same immovable, smiling countenance.

One day Sir Charles in speaking of England said casually that it "was governed by a lucky woman." A strange flash passed over the pasha's countenance, but he made no answer. As soon as Napier had gone Mehemet sent for the English consul, who was an Egyptian, and demanded:

"You were in London when the English queen was crowned. Were the omens bad or good?"

"All good."

"You think that good luck is written on her forehead?"

"I did not think upon the matter before, but now that you ask me I believe that it is. When she asked Allah to help her in her work, her eyes ran over. Allah loves the innocent."

"No doubt of that," said Mehemet anxiously. "She must be lucky."

Early the next morning he sent for Sir Charles and signed the treaty. English power and English cannon he could brave, but not "the luck" written upon the forehead of a good woman whom he had never seen.

General Gordon's remarkable influence over the Chinese was in a large degree due, it is stated, to their belief in his extraordinary luck. During the Taiping rebellion he was followed by an army which did not comprehend either his ability or his religious zeal, but which believed that he was protected by an invisible being who led them to victory. No sword could wound him or bullet kill. A certain black ebony cane which he carried was supposed to be the magic talisman which brought him victory, and General Gordon was shrewd enough all ways to carry this cane when he led them into battle.

These superstitions seem absurd to us, but they show that the ignorant men who hold them believe in an invisible power who can give good or ill fortune at his will.—London Truth.

Dickens and Diet.

Dickens is the novelist of the meal. No other writer, pile he up never such lists of delicacies fit for Lucullus, has the gusto in describing humble feasts which gives the very reader an appetite. Thackeray, for all his "Ballad of Bouillabaisse," never touched the hem of his garments in the recording of meals. Who that has read them can ever forget, for instance, Mrs. Gamp's directions to the chambermaid for her nocturnal refection, or the tea which awaited Joe Willett and Dolly on their return to the locksmith's dwelling on the occasion of Miss Miggs's final rout, or the unassuming meals recorded in "David Copperfield," or the more pretentious feasts in "Pickwick," not forgetting the leg of mutton "swarry" to which Mr. Weller was invited by the elite of Bath footmen? And has not every reader of "Martin Chuzzlewit" allowed a tender smile to curl his lips over the evolution of that incomparable pudding in the preparation and consumption of which such damage was done to John Westlock's affections? So go and read and acquire your appetite.—London Chronicle.

Above and Below Proof.

Before the means of determining the true quantity of alcohol in spirits were known dealers employed a very rude method to form a notion of the "strength." A given quantity of the spirit was poured upon gunpowder in a dish and set on fire. If the gunpowder continued dry enough it took fire and exploded, but if it had been dampened by the water in the spirits the flame of the alcohol went out without setting the powder on fire. This was called the "proof." Spirits which kindled gunpowder were said to be "above proof," those that did not set fire to it were said to be "below proof," but this did not fix the strength. Clark in his hydrometer, which was invented about the year 1730, fixed the strength of proof spirits on the stem, at the specific gravity of .920, at the temperature of 60 degrees. This is the strength at which proof spirit is fixed by act of parliament, and at this strength it is no more than a mixture of forty-nine pounds of pure alcohol with fifty-one pounds of pure water.—London Standard.

Case of Too Much Ham.

One morning not long ago there tripped up to a butcher stall in a Baltimore market a dainty little thing out for her first marketing.

"My husband bought a couple of nice hams from you not long ago," she announced.

"Yes'm," said the smiling butcher; "I remember well. Fine hams, weren't they?"

"They were delicious," said the young wife. "Have you any more like them?"

"Lots," responded the butcher, indicating a row of hams in the rear of the stall.

The young thing surveyed the hams thoughtfully. "Are you sure," she finally asked, "that they're from the same pig as that from which my husband bought?"

"Yes'm," answered the butcher without so much as a quiver of an eyelid. "Then you may send me three more of them," she said.—Pittsburg Post.

The Caspian Sea.

The Caspian sea is, as Herodotus said 2,500 years ago, "a sea by itself, having no connection with any other." Every schoolboy knows that now, but it is remarkable to find Herodotus saying so, because centuries after his time such authorities as Strabo and Ptolemy believed that it was connected with the northern ocean by a long and narrow gulf. Geography seems to have had a setback in the interval through false information received at the time of Alexander's conquests. Herodotus says that the Caspian's length was fifteen days' voyage with a rowboat, its breadth eight days'. Since the actual figures are 750 miles and 400, this shows that a rowboat of the time did fifty miles a day.—London Graphic.

Shank's Mare.

"I haven't got a limousine or any aeroplane; I haven't got a coach or six, not even a special train; I haven't got a bicycle nor yet a horse or team. I get along all right, by jinks, 'thout gasoline or steam. I travel just by shank's mare and never have no feat but what I'll reach my steppin' place the same day in the year. No artificial rigs for me, no bustled tires or bones, no landin' all up in a heap upon the highway stones. I may be slow a gettin' round an' cause the world to stare, but I will get there by an' by all right side up with care."—Boston Herald.

LOOKING AHEAD

That is what all wise persons do, young and old. They are not contented with living in the present only. They think, act and avail themselves of the great possibilities of the future.

Those men who make the greatest fortunes are the most foresighted. Astor looked well into the future when he bought real estate on Manhattan island at acreage prices that is now in the heart of New York City.

You too have a chance to profit by a future rise in the value of realty. In Boston fortunes have been made here by wise investments in the past. The hand of opportunity is extended to you now.

What I want to call your attention to at this time are several small investment properties in the Business Section which pay a fair income and will rapidly appreciate in value.

A young boy was seen on Highland avenue Monday afternoon with a string of fish. Upon being informed of the chances he was taking in fishing in the reservoirs, he replied that he had not fished in either the North or South reservoirs, but in the middle reservoir which was allowable, he said. The parents of the boy should set him right by reading the ordinances as promulgated by the Water Board.

The surface of Highland avenue between Park avenue and Lincoln street has unraveled quite badly. While the street plant is on the avenue, this should be repaired.

Last Sunday evening about one hundred persons were waiting at the corner of Marble street, Stoneham, for the Fells cars. On being told by a conductor of the Arlington line that the road was not yet open, these people would not take him seriously, saying that the papers had stated that the line was open to travel. The advertisement in the Boston papers by the Elevated road was misleading to a great many people who were led to believe after reading it that the entire line through the Fells was open. Many Stonehamites in the southern part of that town are walking to and from the Medford line for the purpose of riding on the new line to and from Boston, a walk of some twenty minutes.

Services at the Unitarian Church will be resumed on September 5th.

For the past ten days a large gang of men have been busily employed covering that portion of the Parkway which reaches from Main street to the Fells with tarvia. The preparation is run onto the roadway from a heated tank drawn by horses, the tarvia being kept at high temperature in the tank for a period of 12 hours without reheating. Crushed stone is at once sprinkled over the hot tarvia and immediately rolled down. This form of surfacing macadam roads is said to be the most satisfactory yet devised and the Parkway certainly looks to be in the best condition it has ever been since its construction.

Extensive improvements are now nearing completion at the Baptist Church, and on the first Sunday in September the members of that society will enter what will be practically a new house of worship, so far as the interior fittings are concerned. New steam heat has been installed, a fine new oak floor laid throughout the main auditorium, the platform enlarged and new pews and carpets are being put in place. The improvements have been in course of installation for the past two months and will make this church one of the finest in town in its interior fittings.

MAY STOP CONCERTS.

The Metropolitan Park Commissioners are considering a discontinuance of the concerts on Manchester field at the close of the present series, because of the small attendance of spectators. There is no question but what the attendance has not been as large as ought to have been the case, and yet the number has compared very favorably with those we have seen on several occasions at Revere Beach in the afternoon. We do not believe these concerts are appreciated to the extent that they should be in any part of the district. One reason for this, and we believe the most important, is the lack of publicity. The Park Commissioners arrange for the concerts, but the time and place is unknown to the majority of the people in the sections where the concerts are given. The newspapers would be glad to assist in any and every way to inform the people when the concerts are to take place, and also print the programs. But we have found that these latter have been very hard to procure from the leaders of the bands. Considering the importance of the doings of the Park Board, as affecting the people in the Metropolitan district, it should have a press agent.

Last Saturday afternoon, Mr. Higgins, the photographer, took several views in the vicinity of the band stand showing to some extent the number of people in attendance. These photographs will be shown to the Park Commissioners if occasion should arise as an evidence of interest in the concerts.

SELECTMAN WALLING'S RESIDENCE DAMAGED BY FIRE.

Shortly after noon last Friday Selectman Peter Walling's residence on Winchester street was damaged by a fire which broke out in the attic. How the blaze started is a mystery, it being confined entirely to the attic, which was used as a store room, and so far as is known had not been visited by any of the family for some time.

The alarm from box 61 was rung in by Henry Harris, son of Mr. Charles N. Harris, who saw the smoke issuing from the roof of the house. About the time the alarm commenced to sound Mr. Walling's daughter, who was in the house with colored help, cleaning, discovered the fire and telephoned the central fire station. Although the fire was small it made a large amount of smoke, which poured out of the front window in such clouds that the firemen were unable to enter for some time. The fact that this window was the only one on the floor made it rather hard to extinguish the blaze without wetting the inside of the house considerably, but the firemen succeeded in accomplishing their task without making very much of a water damage. The roof was somewhat damaged by ripping off shingles, and there was a slight water damage, the whole estimated at not over $500, as only some pillows, bedding, etc., were burned inside the attic.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. George B. Goodwin and Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Munro and family wish to thank the many friends for their sympathy and floral tributes.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

The funeral service were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Munro 13 Baldwin street, and were conducted by the Rev. W. I. Lawrence and the Rev. Mr. Chaffee. Two solos were sung by Miss Daisy McLellan. Will there be any stars in my crown, and Nearer my God to Thee, Mrs. Goodwin is survived by her husband, George B. Goodwin, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Munro, and two sisters and five brothers, Mrs. Edward McLellan of Winchester Highlands and Mrs. Harry Snelling of New York, Alexander and Roderick of Winchester, Charles of Woburn, David and Gibson of Beverly.

WATER SPORTS ON LABOR DAY.

The Winchester Boat Club will hold a program of water sports and music on the afternoon of Labor Day, commencing at 2:30 o'clock, with the following events: Single blade, Tail-end race, Tandem, Tandem—lady and gentleman, Rescue race, Jumping race, Swimming race, Tilt.

In the evening an orchestra will be at the club and an informal dance will be enjoyed by the members.

FIREMEN THANKED.

I wish to thank the Chief and the members of our fire department for the very efficient manner in which they managed the fire in my house last Friday.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

Trustees Can Return Donation to Mrs. Harrington.

Atty. Gen. Dana Malone on Tuesday handed down a decision that the $50,000 donated by Mrs. Sophronia A. Harrington to the town for the erection of a hospital, can be legally returned to the donor. The decision in part reads as follows:

"It became necessary to consider the matter of the support of the hospital after it had been erected and equipped, and an effort was made to secure by subscription or otherwise a fund of $50,000, the income of which should be used for the support of the hospital. After two or three months spent in an endeavor to raise funds it was finally determined that it would be impossible to raise a sum sufficient to justify the erection of a hospital.

"While this uncertainty existed as to whether the corporation would be able to raise a fund, two checks for $25,000 each were placed in your hands as treasurer of the corporation, with the understanding that if for any reason, the corporation was unable to carry out the scheme as originally proposed by Mrs. Harrington the checks were to be returned to them. The appeal for funds was practically without result, and the corporation has voted that the $50,000 should be returned in accordance with the agreement.

"From these facts I am of the opinion that the $50,000 was conditionally placed in your hands, as treasurer of the corporation, that the conditions have not been complied with and that if the corporation, in accordance with its vote, sees fit to return said sum no objection should be made by me to this course."

TO IMPROVE PONDS AND RIVER.

The special committee on the matter of improving conditions on the ponds and river, have got actively to work on this most important question. The committee is composed of Dr. C. I. Allen, James Hinds, town engineer, and James J. Fitzgerald—all energetic and rising gentlemen. The committee has been divided into three sub-committees of one each, and they will each cover a separate part of the town. Wednesday they started upon their investigations and when through a thorough report will be made up and presented at some town meeting. This whole subject is more far reaching than a great many persons suppose, as it extends to every part of the town that comes within the watershed of the ponds and river, and that is quite a considerable portion. The committee will suggest remedies, and the citizens will be called on to act upon them. It will, no doubt, cost considerable money to bring about the desired improvements, but from sanitary and pleasing-to-the-eye views it will prove to be money well expended.

FLOATING HOSPITAL FAIR.

A very successful sale in aid of the Floating Hospital was held last Friday on the lawn at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McLellan, Cross street. The little girls worked faithfully to make the sale a success, although few in number, and being extremely hot on the days which were appointed for the soliciting, the work went steadily on, and mothers and friends entered heartily in doing their share of the work, making cake and candy, and fancy articles. A good sum was realized. The girls having charge of the tables were the following: Katherine McLellan, Dorris Gage, Margaret Ray, Ruth Cladin, Ruth Winn, Jessie Dearborn.

May the good work go on. A Friend.

A DELIGHTFUL EXCURSION

Of the many excursions furnished by the Boston & Maine Railroad, there is none quite so delightful as that to Lake Umbagog, affording as it does a perfect panorama of mountains, woods and lake, under the most favorable conditions. On Sept. 10, a special train will leave the Winchester station at 8:19 a. m., thus affording the inhabitants an easy means of embarking on the day's outing. The fare for the round trip is only $2.00, including a grand and interesting steamer trip on this famous lake. You can't afford to miss the trip, but you must bear in mind to secure tickets early, as the accommodations are necessarily limited.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is indeed a great disappointment to many to read what is stated in your's of last week as to the proposed hospital. It is surely possible with a gift of $50,000 for real workers, for such a noble cause to have in our town a hospital built and paid for in five years. In your next issue I can show how it has been done in other places. I hope the gift of $50,000 will stand and give the people who want to have a hospital in Winchester a chance to do so.

Whitfield Tuck.

FISHING IN THE RESERVOIRS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Allusion has been made several times in the STAR to the fact that fishing still continues in the reservoirs. The fact is undoubtedly correctly stated especially as relates to fishing within Stoneham and Medford territory. Winchester now "maintains" game fish for the benefit and enjoyment of other communities instead of for its own inhabitants who can not afford expensive fishing trips to Maine and elsewhere.

As regards the wicked Winchester boys the STAR has been violating the majesty of the law by openly carrying strings of fish away from the reservoirs, would it not be well to advise them, or their parents, that fishing permits may be granted, under proper restrictions, by the State Board of Health who now have charge of the fishing in the Winchester reservoir according to vote of the town. The State Board has delegated the right to issue fishing permits to the Winchester Water Board according to the custom of the town for thirty or forty years. The present Water Board has declined to issue any permits but that fact does not prevent the State Board from granting permits on appeal from the Winchester Water Board. The law expressly states this fact and no doubt if such a petition was drawn up by John H. Carter, Esq., a few years ago and signed by a large number of citizens petitioning the Winchester Water Board to issue a limited number of very restricted permits was presented to the State Board of Health, it would be received much more favorably than was the Carter petition by the Water Board, the receipt of which was not even acknowledged.

The fact is, game fish are in the reservoirs, "cultivated and maintained" by the town of Winchester for many years. There is no doubt that large numbers of them will be taken out either legally or illegally. Which is the better way, is the question for Winchester to decide. The Winchester Water Board cannot decide the matter permanently excepting so far as its opinion is respected and is approved by the State Board of Health. Some other Water Boards might have a different opinion from the present board and the State Board of Health undoubtedly is not so strenuously against any and all fishing in the reservoirs as is the present Winchester Water Board whom it seems rather favors illegal fishing than legal, properly restricted fishing.

If the State Board of Health was opposed to all fishing in the reservoirs, it would have so decreed and not left the matter open as it has done by granting the right to issue permits to the Water Board of Winchester, subject to appeal by any one refused a permit by the Water Board.

Arthur E. Whitney.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The local union will hold its first meeting after its vacation next week, Friday, September 10, 3 p. m. at the home of Mrs. J. C. Adams, 22 Dix street.

Delegates for the State and County conventions will be appointed and work will be provided for those who bring their thimbles.

Miss Elizabeth Gordon, acting president of the State Union is pushing the work with enthusiasm and will have an excellent report to make when she turns the machine over to Mrs. Stevenson whose tour of the world is nearing its close. Mrs. Stevenson, in spite of the royal good time she is having, is getting somewhat homesick for the Old Bay State and will be as glad to get back as her associates will be to have her.

Some startling assertions concerning the prevalence of alcoholism among the children in Great Britain have recently been made and challenged by the leader of the Band of Hope. It is unfortunate that exaggeration should be used, because it gives the opposing forces a chance to criticize. The truth is bad enough. Drinking is as prevalent among women and children even in this country while in England it has long been a crying evil but it is probable that the recent statements were highly colored.

Our Southern brethren have a temperament which forbids half measures and it is interesting to see the different ways in which the drink problem is attacked.

Late in taking up prohibition measures, they have gone into them with enthusiasm which promises well for the future. It will not be long before the New England and Middle States will be the last stand of the liquor sellers in the east as California will in the West.

DONAGHEY—CARPENTER.

Mr. John F. Donaghey, a well known young man of this town, and Miss Ida E. Carpenter, one of Malden's popular young ladies, were united in marriage on Wednesday evening at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Malden. Mr. Thomas W. Donaghey of his town was best man, and Miss Annie F. Donaghey, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid.

Following the ceremony at Malden a wedding supper and reception was held at Mr. Donaghey's home in Winchester. They will reside in Somerville.

BALDWIN—KENDALL.

Miss Edith May Kendall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Kendall of Stevens street, and Mr. James Rumford Baldwin of Turner's Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laomi F. Baldwin of Woburn, were united in marriage at the Church of the Epiphany on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock by Rev. John W. Suter. The ceremony was witnessed by about 100 friends of the young couple, both of whom have claimed Winchester for their home for a number of years. The church was decorated for the ceremony with cut flowers, in a general scheme of pink and white, bunches of asters in each color being placed at the pews and about the altar. Mr. Joshua Plimpen presided at the organ, and the wedding party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by him. Mendelssohn's march being played at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Mr. Samuel E. Armstrong of Rochester, N. Y., was the best man. The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth C. Kendall, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Martha S. Tuttle of New York, Miss Marion Browning, Miss Florence M. Perry of North Wilmington and Miss Helen S. Mills of Medford. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride was most becomingly gowned in white ivory satin with pearl trimmings and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor wore a dress of pink messaline and carried pink roses, and the bridesmaids were dressed in pale green gowns of the same material, and their bouquets being of pink sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, attended by about 150 intimate friends and relatives, the house being beautifully decorated with asters, hydrangeas and fern. The parents of the couple assisted in receiving, and the ushers for both the ceremony and reception were Messrs. George Bruce of Boston, Frederick Eaves of Boston, Francis Cornell of Medford and LeRoy Robbins of Medford.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin left after the reception for a wedding journey. They will reside in Turner's Falls, where Mr. Baldwin is engineer of the Turner's Falls power company.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Aug. 30, 1909.

Board met at 7:30 p. m. Present, Messrs. Dwinell, Winn, Walling, and Smith.

Members of the Medford Club have been invited to enter the water sports at the Winchester Boat Club Labor Day afternoon.

WINCHESTER BADLY BEATEN.

On Account of Fiasco Woburn May Refuse to Play Final Game.

Winchester went to Woburn last Saturday afternoon and received such a drubbing at the hands of the Woburn team that the latter will all probability refuse to play the third game in the series. The Woburn Times says: "It was disappointing to the big crowd, many of whom left before the finish of the game disgusted. Manager Hearn, on account of Saturday's fiasco, will probably call off the balance of the series between the two teams."

The Woburn News says: "Winchester presented anything but its advertised lineup, in fact the most patched up team, and Manager Hearn has every reason to be sore at the treatment accorded him. It really doesn't look now as if the third in the series of Winchester vs. Woburn games would be played. Woburn knows what a 'raw deal' it seemed Saturday."

Last week the STAR was informed that it was proposed to send a weak team to Woburn to invite defeat so that the tie in the series of games might be played at Winchester and thereby draw out a big crowd. If this should be true then Woburn was not treated fairly, and Winchester has not added anything to its credit for doing as reported. It was a serious mistake.

There was a crowd of 2500 in attendance and to say they were disappointed at the slaughter is putting it mildly.

When North Woburn played at Winchester they brought a strong team and for Saturday's game they had an even stronger one in the expectancy of having a slashing battle. Instead of that several players did not show up and some who did quit cold when they reached the field.

Pitcher Somerville, who was expected to do the box work, arrived on the grounds in uniform, but when it came time to start the game he refused to pitch or even play in the field.

A CORN PARTY.

Mrs. Wm. T. Henderson of Cambridge street gave a very successful "Corn Dinner" Tuesday, at Camp Swan on Myopia Hill. A substantial wagon load of good things were spread on tables on the veranda, and from a three acre field of corn, growing nearly to the very piazza, corn was picked, and the camp-fire, over which hung three old fashioned kettles, soon furnished both boiled and roasted corn, which was pronounced by every one as "the best ever."

It was an ideal day for the picnic and about thirty responded to invitations, coming from Reading, Wakefield, Somerville, Everett and Winter Hill. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Swan, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hollis, Mr. and Mrs. George Swan, Mrs. Minnie Rawson, Mrs. Nettie Hight, Miss Louise Hollis, Miss Lillian Henderson, Miss Eugenia Commel, Mrs. Hooper, Parker and Harold Swan, Miss Louise Swan, Wesley Blank, Mrs. Elmira Davis, Mrs. John Blank, Mr. John Swan and Miss Mabel Swan.

A BURGLAR'S ADVICE.

Where to Keep a Revolver at Night and How to Use It.

I take my pen in hand to write you an answer to the mug that signs his name "Victim" what says that a bolt on your bedroom door nights will make you safe from burglars coming into the room and shooting your head off and to tell him the only way to be safe from harm by burglars is to lay still when they tell you to and after they has gone to collect from the burglary insurance company.

Your man "Victim" is a dull guy if he thinks a bolt will stop any one that knows his trade, because we always puts a gimlet hole through the panel right back of the bolt and slides it back quiet and easy just the same way as we puts holes through the panel back of dead latches on outside doors, because there ain't nothing will stop a man that knows the trade only a steel door with an iron crossbar back of it and electric contacts all round.

What's more is that any man that sleeps with a pistol under his pillow is a chump, because that's where we always feels for it the first thing and gets it before proceeding to the business of the evening, the right place to keep a pistol being in the front hall hanging on a nail where you ain't liable to do no damage to the bedroom walls and furniture with it, besides its being bad for nervous people to wake up in the night and feel for a pistol that ain't there no more.

If a guy wants to take a pistol to bed with him and thinks he's got nerve enough to use it the proper place for it is not under the pillow, because that's where we always look for it, but it's at the foot of the bed, about where you can stretch out with your toes so that when you wake up and feel the burglar's hand searching under your pillow you can lay still till he moves over to the bureau, when you will have plenty of time to get hold of your gun with your toes and pull it up gentle and slow like you was still fast asleep till you get your grip on it and then if you are quick enough to make the burglar shoot in the smoke all right, but if you ain't got the nerve for the job you'd better not have no guns around, because he will shoot next.

Having been in the bolt slipping and pistol collecting business for nine years, I guess I know the game, and if I knowed where your mug "Victim" lives I would just come up some even fine and pinch his gun for him to show him his bolt is no good.—Sloppy Mike in New York Sun.

NO IMPEDIMENT.

An Objection to a Wedding Ceremony That Was Overruled.

A popular politician tells a story about one of his electioneering campaigns. He had arrived about noon at a certain small station. He started out after dinner for a walk about the village, on the outskirts of which he came upon a building thronged with people.

The building was a church, and a wedding was about to take place. He edged his way through the crowd until he reached a spot where he had a good view of the bride and bridegroom and the clergyman who was about to perform the ceremony.

The church was packed, with the exception of a low, dark gallery near the roof. This was apparently deserted.

The minister proceeded with the ceremony until he came to the point where custom required him to pause and inquire if there was any one present who knew any reason why the couple should not be made husband and wife. A hush fell upon the assembly, and every eye waited in breathless suspense. Something of a sensation was caused when a voice came from the upper gallery, saying:

"Yes, I do."

All eyes were turned to the gallery, where, seated all alone in the gloom, barely discernible, was a meek looking little man, with a haggard face and disheveled hair. After the clergyman had recovered from his surprise he said sternly, "State your reason, sir."

The suspense was turned to mortification by the little man's reply:

"I want the girl myself," he said.—London Tit-Bits.

Rest Your Eyes.

The moment you are instinctively inclined to rub the eyes that moment cease to use them. Also it is time to give your eyes a rest when you become sensible of an effort to distinguish. Cold water is about the safest application for inflamed eyes. Never sleep so that on awakening the eyes shall open on the light of a window. Never read or sew directly in front of the light of a window, the better light being that that comes from above or obliquely or over the left shoulder. Too much light is an evil, just as is scant light. It creates a glare that pains and confuses the sight.

The Old Style.

No, this is not Esperanto. Known contain their various sands. And then took handle. Kepted brown eyes busy and lost. The world waives away.

Nor is it the song of a boy scout who is imitating the howl of the howler and at the same time whistling between his teeth. Nor is it Shakespeare's lyric, "Come unto these yellow sands," etc., as rewritten after the Ellzabherian style.—London Globe.

Approved.

The Young Doctor. Just think; six of my patients recovered this week. The Old Doctor—It's your own fault, my boy. You spend too much time at the club.—New York Life.

Enjoyment stops where indolence begins.—Pollock.

THE "1915"
BOSTON EXPOSITION.

To show the people of Boston and New England the resources and the possibilities of Boston as they can be developed between now and 1915, a "1915" Boston Exposition will be held in the old Art Museum building at Copley Square next November.

The object of this Exposition will be to show in a graphic and interesting form the work now being carried on by public institutions, benevolent, protective, reformatory and charitable; by public service corporations, and in fact all organizations at work for the betterment of the city.

Schools, colleges, and libraries have been asked to exhibit. Educational, Social and Economic problems will be shown in a lively and unique way, giving information which has hitherto been put forth in a manner intelligible only to experts.

This information will be put in the form of working models, moving pictures, photographs, diagrams, plans and stereoscopic pictures to present vividly to the public the needs and the possibilities of the city.

The Exhibit Committee has secured the entire city plan exhibit recently shown in New York and Washington. It has also secured from the Library of Congress the United States Government's famous set of models by Burnham for the replanning of Washington. Efforts are also being made to secure similar displays from Chicago, San Francisco, New York and Cleveland. Achievements of European cities in planning their streets, docks, harbors and houses for working people are also among material already secured for the exhibits. Each exhibit will be expected to present a graphic picture that will draw and hold the attention of even a casual observer. The Exposition will open on November 1st and close on the 27th.

All exhibits have been notified that their displays must be arranged with a view to showing definitely. What the organization proposes to do it is properly supported in the next five years; what it has done in the past, what it is doing at present; what is the best that has been done anywhere in this department; and what the conditions and waste will be if these things are not done. Such an exposition has long been desired by the agencies at work for the betterment of Boston, and when the proposition of holding this exposition was first broached in a tentative way, a number of the bodies consulted did not stop with declaring themselves strongly in favor of the project, but signed their intention of exhibiting. The Boston Chamber of Commerce which last spring conducted a tour of leading merchants through New England to strengthen Boston's work relations with other cities, has formally expressed its approval of the Exposition project, and has voted to cooperate in the undertaking.

The list of exhibitors is growing daily. An incomplete schedule of these will demonstrate the scope and the character of the organizations exhibiting, as well as the wide range of interests represented. Social Ethics Museum of Harvard University, Boston Public Library, School for Social Workers, Society of Arts and Crafts, Boston Association for the Relief and Control of Pauperism, Massachusetts Civic League, Young Men's Christian Association, Boston Elevated Railway Company, North Bennet Street Industrial School, Boston Society of Architects and the Boston Architectural Club, Brooke House, State Bureau of Statistics, Committee on Sex Hygiene, Boston Playground Association, Society for the Protection of Native Plants, Massachusetts Commission for the Blind, Committee on Milk and Baby Hygiene, Metropolitan Improvement League, American Peace Society, Massachusetts General Hospital, Massachusetts Institution of Technology, Boston and Albany Railroad, and the Federation of Boys' Clubs. The Exposition has been planned under four general departments: 1. The Visible City. 2. Educational and Social. 3. Economics. 4. Attractions. Under the first department will be included: City Plan, Parks and Boulevards, Sanitation, Illumination, Harbor and Docks, Transportation, Communication, Housing, Public Buildings, Health, Protection and Safety. Under the Educational and Social department will be: Schools and Colleges, Industrial Education, Playgrounds, Gymnasiums, Libraries, Cultural and Social Organizations, Citizens' Associations, Press and Publishing, and Charities. Under the Economic department will be: City Resources, Labor Organizations, Finance, Insurance, Advertising Boston. Under the department of Attractions there will be: Marionettes, Moving Pictures, Lectures, Music, Special Entertainments. Another important department of the Exposition will be an Information Bureau which will be equipped with a staff of men thoroughly informed as to the city affairs, the nature, character and relations of the exhibits and who will be ready to answer any inquiries regarding them. Realizing that the failure of most exhibitions of this kind has been their reliance on dull statistics and charts and diagrams, a special point has been made in preparing this Exposition to have all the exhibits unique and in concrete form. Thus the Telephone and Telegraph Companies will furnish exhibits showing their systems in a real operation. The Housing Committee of Boston-1915 will show an average tenement room as conditions are, and beside it a room in a model tenement. Several of the educational institutions will install classes who will do their regular work for the entertainment of the visitors to the exhibit. Picturesque Boston will be interestingly shown by models, maps and photographs, furnished by the Metropolitan Improvement League.

The running expenses of this Exposition will be borne by Boston-1915. A small admission fee will be charged to help defray this large expense, but there will be no charge for exhibits occupied by the display of non-commercial organizations, though each organization will pay the cost of preparing and installing its own exhibit.

An inventory of the estate of the late Dr. Daniel March of Woburn filed by the executor, showed a total personal estate of $107,411.

When two of the men, taste and smell, having been impaired if not utterly destroyed by nasal catarrh, are fully restored by Ely's Cream Balm, can you doubt that this remedy deserves all that has been said of it by the thousands who have used it? It is applied directly to the affected air-passages and begins its healing work at once. Why not get it today? All druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

Following a suggestion made about a month ago, Wakefield people travelling or spending their vacations in this or other States are sending to the Beebe Town library souvenir postal card views of the library buildings in the towns and cities in which they are stopping, with the result that the institution has a handsome collection of views which is something that no other library in the country has ever attempted. There are about 200 pictures of library buildings in as many cities and towns, representing a score of States from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Maine to Texas, and the collection grows at the rate of several cards a day. It is the intention of the library trustees to have them framed suitably and make them a part of the library decorations.

TANNERY SEWAGE.

Commissioner Carey of Woburn has received a rather petulant letter from the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board in relation to the drainage from the tanneries into the Metropolitan sewer. In his letter, inviting the tannery owners to a meeting, the Commissioner quotes from the letter received from the Metropolitan Board as follows: "It within five months from the date hereof, the drainage of the tanneries is not settled in adequate tanks, the size and character of which is substantially outlined by our engineer, or equally effective work is not performed, the Board will cause the connection between Woburn tanneries and the Metropolitan sewer near the Woburn line, to be broken and sealed."

This matter has been causing more or less trouble for a long time, and the State board has urged the necessity of something being done to reduce the conditions to which they have called attention. Now they have taken a decisive stand and issued what is apparently an ultimatum. This sewer is not able to provide for the sewage, and to care for the excess was the reason for the overflow pipes leading into Black Ball pond which Winchester objects to so strongly.

CLOSING STREETS TO AUTOMOBILES.

Just how far a town may go in closing its streets to automobiles has long been a matter of considerable importance, and the reply of the Massachusetts Highway Commission to the petition of the Sharon Selectmen for approval of their vote to exclude automobiles from thirteen of their streets shows how that body considers the matter. After a hearing on the question, the Commission approved the closing of only three of the thirteen streets, and said in part: "The streets which the Commission feels should be omitted are, in its opinion, of more than local importance; some are in a measure through routes from one place to another, from which automobiles should not be excluded; and a considerable number of motor vehicles are owned by persons residing on some of the streets."

WAYS OF THE ORIENT.

Queer Ideas About Alleviating Bodily Suffering.

MAGIC CURES OF THE TURKS.

The Treatment to Which Crippled Children Are Subjected—Bunches of Garlic and Strings of Blue Beads as Panaceas Against All Kinds of Ills.

A stone strikes some part of the body of an oriental and he is a woe. The truth of ideas that this accident would produce in his mind would run something like this: The stone is the cause of pain, the cause of the wound. It is the principal origin of the trouble. But the essence of every ailment is hidden, secret and therefore sacred. The stone becomes an awe-inspiring fetish. The wound is neglected. The fetter has to be grandfathered. This simple illustration is borne out and supported by every day experience which need not be multiplied in the east.

Another instance may be derived from the life of the lower classes of the Greek population of Constantinople. A child falls and cuts his head. The first thought of the parent is to secure not to be caught in finding the wound still fresh to call medical assistance. However, when the cut runs deep and to be. This is always an afterthought, which may often mean the loss of the child, or a surgeon's expense of no use.

The first thing that the parent of the injured child thinks of doing is to pour over the shoulder upon the place of the wound a libation of wine or sugared water and to whisper in performance this some mysterious formula supposed to possess supernatural efficacy against every form of evil.

The Moslems are addicted to the queerest remedies for purposes of healing or alleviating bodily pain. A Turk, for instance, in distress or suffering from some disease, however severe, knows of no better remedy than to fix a piece of lint, torn off with true oriental courtesy, to an iron bar of some corner, round or to drink water from a tin can into which he has previously put a sheet of paper with writings from the Koran. Sometimes he will take a bag, the interior of which has been rubbed all over with strange formulae and signs. He will then fill it with water and rub the formulae and signs have been thoroughly dissolved and drink the singular solution with an absolute faith in its wonder-working efficacy.

Sheltered by the southern expanse of the great Mohammedan cemetery at Scutari (the ancient Chrysopolis) on the Asiatic coast of the Bosphorus, there stands in picturesque solitude the tomb of a horse. Every Friday afternoon Turkish mothers carry to that tomb their crippled children to be submitted by a select "khalifa" priest to an extraordinary course of treatment. These children are dragged, with their diseased limbs dangling over the hillock, from one end of the tomb to the other and then back again in the same fashion. The result, influence emanating from this hillock is supposed to be an all efficient panacea.

It is not difficult to trace in this case the crude, imperfect association of ideas. The horse has long been considered an emblem of vigor, typifying, as Herkiss says, "the flow and force of life." Hence the belief of the oriental, inherited, no doubt, from the Greeks, in the all conquering virtue and influence of occult and mysterious effluvia which are supposed to emanate constantly from a horse's tomb.

The wearing of a necklace of blue beads or of garlic as a potent means of keeping away disease or of warding off the evil eye is quite a universal matter of sincere belief in the whole of Turkey. This superstition is shared, as is well known, by the lower classes of many a country in civilized eastern Europe. There, however, it is not so universal and devout as in the orient.

There is scarcely a house in the Moslem, Greek and Armenian districts of the population of Constantinople which has not hanging above its entrance door a collection of garlic and scarcely a house of the same which has not attached to some part of it a string of blue beads. Among the uneducated it is impossible to find an individual who does not pin absolute faith to the all healing power of such charms, especially of blue beads, which are supposed to be an infallible panacea against every possible ill.

Less general is the belief in the east in the beneficial influence of the planets Saturn and Mars upon the constitution of the human body, upon its four cardinal humors—blood, phlegm, yellow bile and black bile. These planets are considered by some orientals, especially in the far south, as the unmistakable causes of all sorts of ailments. Were upon him who begins any work when Saturn or Mars is in the ascendant—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A LAKE THAT RAN AWAY.

It Changed the Face of a Part of Northern Vermont.

One hundred years ago the sites of Glover and Barton, in the northern part of Vermont, were mostly swamp land. A mill was located by a brook which was fed from one of the large ponds three or four miles from what is now the village of Glover. These mountain ponds or lakes, two or three miles square, are high up in the Green mountains and are among the most attractive spots in New England.

On June 6, 1810, three men went up the brook to see if a little more water could be set down to the mill. They removed some earth, when suddenly the quicksands gave way, and they saw that the whole lake was liable to be upon them.

Tranquilly they questioned, "Who will save the miller and his wife?"

Spencer Chamberlain, the eldest of the three, ran as fast as possible toward the tangle of thick woods to give warning while the other men escaped to higher ground. He found the miller away and the miller's wife grinding at the mill. She became helpless with horror; but, breathless as her rescuer was from his flight, he succeeded in dragging and carrying her up the hill out of reach of the rushing water. The miller's horse was drowned and all of his hard earned property swept away from him.

The water rushed along, carrying everything before it, dizzling out ravines, filling up hollows and making a new surface to the land generally. Some of the first thing Lake Memphremont, now more than a dozen miles away, it brought down so rapidly that it filled the ravines and made them fit for habitation.

The site of the lake is now called Runaway pond or Fox pond and the road leading to it Runaway road. The ground which was once the bed of the lake is spongy and shakes when walked upon. Hay is grown there, but has to be cut by hand and carried off on pit forks, as a horse would sink into the soggy mass. Boston Globe.

TIDES OF PUGET SOUND.

The Swift and Turbulent Waters of the Narrows.

The waters of the narrows are treacherous. It is a place of terrible tides. Viewed from the precipitous shores, the surging waters are magnificent. The same has been compared with the Hudson above New York city. The waters of that part of Puget sound which extends to Olympia, Mud bay, Shelton and Huletson bay, a vast inland sea, within itself, all flow in and out of the narrows.

In the upper reaches of the sound some twenty five or thirty miles from the narrows the tides attain a height of more than twenty feet. When the tides begin to fall all the accumulated water rushes out the mouth of the narrows like a great river at flood. In like manner when the tide sets in the direction of Olympia the narrows become a swift and turbulent stream. Whirlpools are numerous. Streams running powerfully in contrary directions strike and the water boils.

Large steamboats struck by the contrary currents green and break and sway under the strain. This being so, it is no wonder that small craft often overturn in the narrows. A whittaker has been known to seize a rowboat and twist it round and round until the rowers almost desisted of coming out alive. It is a marvellously beautiful water with all its terrors, and hundreds and thousands will continue to find pleasure there, notwithstanding its occasional tragedies. The rumble of the tides when running at full is like the distant rumble of the ocean. The terrors of the sea are an element of its charm, and so it is with the terrors of the narrows.—Tacoma Ledger.

Two Apologies For a Hat.

A Kansas City man who had lost his hat at a public function in that metropolis caused the following unique advertisement to be published in the local papers:

The undersigned will deem it a great favor if the gentleman who inadvertently took the undersigned's new silk hat on the occasion of the reception of the Ladies' aid, paying an inferior teacher's salary, will have the goodness to return said silk hat. Not only will the gentleman receive the undersigned's warmest thanks for his kindness, but the apologies of the undersigned may have caused him and the apology for a hat which he has conferred upon the undersigned.

All Affected.

Sprag went to a noted physician to ask advice as to his health. In pompous tones he addressed the doctor:

"I—ah—have come to—ah—ask you—ah—what—what is—ah—the doosid matter with me—ah?"

"I find your heart is affected," said the physician gravely.

"Oh—ah—anything else—ah?"

"Yes; your lungs are affected too."

"Anything—ah—else—ah?"

"Yes; your manners are also affected."—London Answers.

A FLOWER FOR THE KAISER.

Decorations That Made His Majesty Explode With Wrath—A Medical Diploma For a Prince of Wales—The Duke and the Stockbrokers.

Some years ago a paragraph appeared in a Berlin daily stating that Prince Henry, who had just returned from his visit to the United States, had brought home as a present to his brother a number of plants of a new variety of crimson carnation. "As every one knows," the paragraph concluded, "the red carnation is his imperial majesty's favorite flower."

On the day after the publication of this news the Kaiser was due at Aix-la-Chapelle. A member of the town council suggested that every one in the town wear a buttonhole of the Kaiser's favorite flower.

The suggestion was at once acted on. The flock coated members of the deputations which waited next morning on the platform each wore proudly a buttonhole of the deepest crimson.

The poor fellows could not conceive why the Kaiser's demeanor was so freezing. He dismissed them with a few words, got into his carriage and drove off.

At the town hall was another deputations, similarly decorated. Then his majesty's wrath exploded. "What is the meaning of this insult?" he demanded. Some one explained, and then one of the Kaiser's attendants took the mayor aside. "My dear sir," he said, "simply you know that the red carnation is the emblem of the Social Democrats and of all flowers the one which his majesty chiefly detests."

Many years ago King Edward VII., then Prince of Wales, was the subject of a stupid hoax. He received a letter purporting to be of his unanimous election as honorary member of the Princeton medical faculty and signed by three students. With his invariable courtesy the recipient requested his private secretary to acknowledge it. The reply said: "His royal highness will remember with pride and satisfaction the mark of distinction conferred at the hands of the Princeton medical faculty."

As a matter of fact, there is not and never was such an organization.

As incident a hoax as ever was heard of was perpetrated in 1804 upon a Belgian paper. A letter purporting to be in the handwriting and above the signature of Princess Louise of Orléans was received by the editor, who very foolishly published it with out first ascertaining himself as to its genuineness.

This letter gave a long catalogue of the wrongs of Princess Louise and of her sisters and constituted a most brutal attack upon her father, the king of the Belgians.

The letter was at once copied by a number of other papers, including more than one in England. Naturally it gave great pain to the princess herself and the only wonder is that a prosecution for libel was not the immediate result.

Some years ago a young American woman who was staying in Copenhagen made a bet with a friend that she would propose to the king of Denmark.

On one of the king's public reception days the American lady found her way to the royal residence.

"What can I do for you, madam?" asked the king.

"Your majesty, I desired to ask you if you would like to marry me?" was the reply.

The king merely smiled.

"I am afraid I am a little too old," he said, and at the same moment he beckoned to one of the officials to conduct the lady to the door. He had put her down as a harmless lunatic.

A joke of rather a rough order was played upon the first cousin of the emperor of Austria, the Archduke Salvator, once when he was in Paris. He was passing the house, the Parisian equivalent of the Stock Exchange, when his companion, a lucky young French count, suggested that he might look inside.

"If you walk straight in," he said, "no one will notice you. They will take you for a stockbroker."

The duke took him at his word, but of course he was no sooner inside than he was recognized as a sightseer. His silk hat was instantly spirited away, and he was at once surrounded by a mob of dealers with notebooks shouting fabulous offers to buy or sell stock.

The duke had a desperate struggle to reach the front lobby, and when at last he got there, hatless and breathless, he found that some genial soul had pinned a long price list to the tails of his coat.

It is not likely that any reigning sovereign ever got a more unpleasant scare than did Ferdinand of Bulgaria some five years ago. His private secretary, a young baron, was away in Austria on a vacation when a letter arrived for his royal master announcing that he did not propose to return and that he would be glad for the sum of £100,000; otherwise, he wrote, he would be compelled to sell a number of secret documents which he had taken away with him.

Instantly Prince Ferdinand dispatched a couple of secret service envoys in chase of his missing secretary, whom they ran to ground peacefully shooting on his own estate. Further investigation proved the mischievous nothing but a hoax.—London Answers.

HOW CECIL LEAN WON

FAME OVER NIGHT.

That baseball is the American game, that it is a game with which every one is familiar and over which enthusiasm can be aroused, was never better demonstrated than one afternoon recently in New York, when Cecil Lean, who had long been the star of the Kiro-Lu Salle Company, sat on the back of a davenport, in his shirt sleeves and his coat over his arm and sang a song called "The Fan." This happened in a New York Theatre and before the chorus was finished crowded houses were shouting like wild. Lean with the song caught the spirit of the ball game and every move he made was a picture. He woke up next morning to find himself the most talked about comedian in New York. Mr. Lean will be the star attraction at Keith's next week, coming with Florence Hollbrook who has been associated with him as stellar features of "The Soul Kiss."

Another big feature will be Mr. Fred Lindsay, the gentleman whip expert from Australia who has done such startling things as to cut the ashes off the end of a cigar with a laser. Violet Black and Company will appear in "The Duke Detective." The "Three Bohemians" are European miscreants and the great Weston is the famous contract impersonator.

Others are Clark and Sylvia in songs and dances and the Person Brothers the European comedy aerial artists.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

For the second week at the Castle Square Theatre, beginning next Monday, Mr. Craig announces another play new to Boston. It is "Glittering Gloria," and it is a roaring farce that has been called "the funniest of all plays." All in all, Mr. Craig could not have chosen a better or a more laughable play for his second production of the new season at the Castle Square.

As we all know, every member of Mr. Craig's stock company is skilled in comic acting, and under the direction of William Parke, the cast will decidedly bring out all the humor of the play.

The leading roles will be played by John Craig as Jack James, Theodore Friess as Zebadiah Posket, Mabel Colcord as Dorothy Kenworthy, Wilfred Young as Robert Surrey, Gertrude Binley as Mrs. Jack James, George Hassell as Col. Pasquale Gallagher, Donald Meek as Archie Toddlery, Bert Young as Algoni Entwistle and Mary Young as Gloria Grant, known as "Glittering Gloria."

THE TARIFF BILL.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As Congressman McCall was a member of the Ways and Means Committee that framed the Payne tariff bill and also on the conference committee, I hope you will give space to his exact words as to the bill, and also the opinion of his own party Republican Senators, the so-called progressives.

No man in the Senate or House claims so much for this bill as S. W. McCall. He says it is the most effective revision downward undertaken by any tariff bill ever presented to the American Congress. Senator La Follette says it is a higher tariff than the Dingley bill.

Cong. McCall says: "It is one of the most monumental measures ever presented to an American Congress."

Senator Cummins said, I am opposed to the bill, it is not a fair and reasonable performance of the promise of our platform. I could give you the opinions of Senator Dooliver and the five other Republican Senators who voted against the bill, to show that they do not agree with the members from our 8th Congressional District if it was required.

It is enough to say: our representative has helped to place upon the backs of the people the most unjust tariff law ever enacted, is the opinion of the two Republican Senators from Iowa, and two from Minnesota, one from Kansas, one from Wisconsin, one from Indiana. There will be another contest and another revision, and it will be downward—So you will notice it. The N. Y. Times in an editorial Aug. 30th says: "The Iowa Idea" says the tariff as an issue is not settled. Courteously yours, Winfield Tukey.

Announcement of His Candidacy Fell Very Flat—Vahey Conceded Democratic Nomination—Suffolk District Attorney Fight

The Democratic campaign was opened in a bold way by the Young Men's Democratic club of ward twenty, Boston, with a summer outing at Squantum. Here two prominent Democrats of the state, Ex-Senator James H. Vahey, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and Chairman Frederick J. McLeod of the Democratic state committee gave their views on the situation. Mr. Vahey made an earnest plea that the Democratic party should nominate whomever it desired to be governor.

It was perfectly natural probably for him to take a rap at the Payne tariff act and he imparted the somewhat astounding information that a great number of Republicans in the state are greatly disturbed over the passage of that measure. If that is so, it will undoubtedly be in evidence at the state election on Nov. 2. It is very evident that Mr. Vahey has sources of information which are not open to Republicans or to other Democrats in general.

Mr. McLeod expressed the opinion that victory was within the Democratic grasp, and he made a strong plea that they should take possession of it. Taken altogether, Mr. McLeod's speech was optimistic and encouraging.

Really, however, it is very well known that Democrats with opportunities for knowing the sentiment of the state are not laying any heavy wagers on a Democratic victory this fall. There does not seem to be anything to indicate any such result. On the contrary, the evidence all seems to point to a Republican victory of the usual magnitude.

Vahey an Easy Winner

At the same time it may be conceded that Mr. Vahey will receive the Democratic nomination without any great effort. The announcement of Mayor John T. Coughlin, of Fall River, that he is a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, has evidently aroused no wave of enthusiasm anywhere in the state. So far as can be observed it fell flat, and if he succeeds in getting a few delegates, they will come almost exclusively from his own section of the state. Democratic leaders in Boston do not think he will get enough votes in this city to make any showing whatever. The same is true of the suburbs around the city.

While it is true that the candidacy of Mr. Coughlin fell rather flat, it is equally true that there is no particular enthusiasm for Mr. Vahey. It is conceded, however, by a large part of the Democratic leadership that, having made the fight last year and polled a fair vote, there is no reason why he should not have a re-nomination, in view of the fact that no one else of particular prominence or popularity desires it. If Col. Gaston had merely said the word at the time his name was mentioned in connection with the nomination, he would have been named on the first ballot, probably by acclamation, or if not, by a very large majority of all the delegates present.

The Democratic machine has never been successfully operated without a considerable sum of money. It takes for the ordinary and perfectly legitimate needs of a campaign a fund of several thousand dollars, at the very least. It has always been possible to secure a sufficient fund when a man of leadership and prominence in the party has been the standard bearer. Last year the situation was somewhat helped by the fact that a presidential campaign was in progress, but this year, with no such canvass under way, Democrats find it will be extremely difficult to raise money in sufficient amount to conduct a real campaign. With Gaston in the lead it is quite a different matter.

It was quite an event at Boston last week when Governor Murray and President Taft joined him in fraternal greeting. Massachusetts is one of the finest summer resorts in the country, and it is not only for Mass. residents, but Mr. Taft, that he held a session of her shore towns as his summer residence. It was a surprise, and these circumstances that the governor should pay his respects to the head of the nation during his vacation and show him the country, were from a governor to the president. Both the president and governor are enthusiastic voters. They are both great executives, each in his own sphere, and both have, to a remarkable extent, the confidence of their constituents.

Two Democrats in Field

It is interesting to note that thus far there are two Democratic candidates for the Democratic nomination for the district attorney in the county of Suffolk. One of these is Councilor Edward P. Barry of South Boston, and the other is Felix W. Mc-

Gettrick of Boston. Barry has served two terms as a member of the governor's council and was formerly a newspaper man. He is now a lawyer and his specialty is said to be the theatrical business. How that should particularly fit him to be district attorney has not yet been made apparent. Mr. Gettrick came to Massachusetts from Vermont some years ago and was appointed assistant district attorney by John R. Moran while the latter held the office. Mr. Gettrick while in Vermont was in the federal's review and is reported to have been severely criticized in the past. The party leaders do not care for either one of these two candidates and it may be possible that some other stronger man may be entered for the nomination later on. In the meantime, District Attorney Arthur D. Hill holds the position, and many Democrats predict that he will continue to occupy it even after the election on Nov. 2. He has made such a splendid showing in that office that he has won the sympathy of the Boston voters regardless of party affiliations. He has secured a conviction in practically every case he has tried, and this has given him a prestige which will win him many votes at the polls.

Fletcher for the Council

Councillor Seward W. Jones of Newton is not a candidate for re-nomination and there is every evidence that Herbert E. Fletcher of Westford will be nominated to succeed him. Thus far, there is no opposition to Mr. Fletcher and none is expected. The district is strongly Republican. Mr. Fletcher served several terms in the house and also in the senate, and made an excellent record there.

In the third Suffolk councillor district, Ex-Representative William F. Murray is extremely disappointed because, as he claims, he had received assurances from Mayor Fitzgerald and many other Democratic leaders that they would push him for the nomination. At the end he found Lawrence H. Sullivan of the Charlestown district in the field, although he had withdrawn some time ago. Mr. Murray evidently thinks Sullivan was put into the fight to prevent his own success. It is charged by some of Murray's friends that Sullivan, who claims a residence on Essex street, Charlestown, does not now live there and never has, but that his home is in Somerville and that he has lived there for several years. He is a saloon keeper in Boston. It is the evident intention of some of the Democratic leaders to prevent Murray from getting the nod in this district. He is a young man just out of the legislature, where he was one of the youngest members ever chosen.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Superintendent Herron has arranged to seat one room each of the advanced sixth grades in the Prince, of the advanced seventh, the eighth, and the ninth in the Wadleigh Grammar School, and of the first and second years in the High School with boys and one each with girls exclusively. This is an experiment which the School Committee believes will be distinctly advantageous if conditions permit its continuance.

The teachers of these rooms are as follows: 6th grade, Prince—Miss Hopkins girls and Miss Spencer boys; Advanced 7th grade, Wadleigh—Mrs. O'Sullivan boys and Miss Sprague girls; advanced 8th grade—Miss Knodes boys and Miss Laft girls; 9th grade—Miss Bartholomew boys and Miss Pierce girls. First year High school—Mr. Thompson boys and Miss Rand girls; 3d year—Miss Palmer boys and Miss Weeks girls.

Probably at least fifteen per cent. or about two hundred children will enter school this week or next. In consequence, several grades may have more pupils than usual, and in fact may require some readjustments.

The High School is larger than ever before and study desks will be placed in room thirteen, recently occupied by the Handicraft Society who have been assigned another room.

As already announced telephones have been placed in all buildings. It is believed that these will be of great service to the school authorities as well as to parents. The fact that telephone calls may disturb the work of the school rooms should, however, be kept in mind.

In the Wadleigh Grammar School, following out the plan of placing boys and girls mainly in different rooms, there will be separate recess periods, the girls from 10.45 to 11.05 a. m. and the boys from 11.05 to 11.30 a. m., and in the High School the girls will use the east and the boys the west entrance door respectively.

Supr. Herron conducted the opening exercises of the High School on Wednesday morning and gave the students some pertinent advice as to the purpose of their work, and the method to follow to secure the best results. He noted the great satisfaction felt by all that the High School is to enjoy the advantage of having Mr. Lovering as teacher and Principal Emeritus and said that excellent as the record of the High School has been it is the wish of the School authorities that the quality of this work should steadily continue to improve. Mr. E. C. Wixom, the new principal, was received with applause and after expressing his appreciation of his cordial welcome he suggested the importance of regularity and punctuality in attendance and announced that work would begin at once. The singing led by Mr. Brown, Supervisor of Music, was excellent.

The High School chorus will evidently not lack for voices and the annual concert next spring will be awaited with interest.

During this work it is expected that Principal Wixom will consider with each pupil the best choice of course and subjects.

A special meeting of the High School Athletic Association was addressed by President Theodore Mann, Mr. Lovering, Mr. Wixom and Mr. Herron, who emphasized the importance of general interest and the fundamental principles necessary in conducting the High school athletics.

Mr. Wixom, Principal of the High school, and Mr. Herron, Principal of the Wadleigh Grammar School have been on duty since September first and their preliminary work indicates that the boys and girls in their respective buildings will be under progressive and thoughtful leadership.

The members of the School Committee, Mr. Charles E. L. Wingate chairman, Mr. Charles F. A. Currier and Mr. Marcus B. May, were interested visitors on the first day's work.

Miss Blanche L. Strickland, Supervisor of Physical Training, has resigned on account of ill health. Miss Adeline M. Tipple, a graduate of Dr. Sargent's School of Physical Training with successful experience as a grade teacher and as a Supervisor of Physical Training has been elected to the position. Miss Tipple is highly recommended by Dr. Sargent and others who know her and seems well qualified to care for this important subject.

As has been previously noted in these columns Messrs. George E. Pratt & Co. are installing building cup drinking fountains in all the buildings not previously so provided. The unsanitary common drinking cup will not in future be used in our schools. This work has been somewhat delayed by the manufacturers but will be completed this week.

The High School diploma has been awarded to Miss Catherine Frances Doherty who was unable to finish the work last June because of sickness. The work was made up during the summer. She will enter the Lowell Normal School.

Messrs. W. D. Richards, Geo. C. Coit, F. L. Hunt and H. R. Russell returned this week from a very successful fishing trip to Katadun County, Me.

ALFRED HALE.

Mr. Alfred Hale, father of Mr. Arthur W. Hale of Black Horse terrace, died at his home on Lagrange street on Saturday. He was in his eighty year.

Mr. Hale was one of Winchester's most respected citizens, and during the 20 odd years of his residence here made many true friends.

He leaves besides his son Mr. Arthur W. Hale, one other son, Mr. Charles A. Hale of Watertown.

He was born at Boxford, Mass., Nov. 11, 1829, living there until manhood. He subsequently removed to Georgetown, Mass., where he was engaged many years in the manufacture of shoes. Failing health compelled him to go Colorado, where he spent two years in Denver. He then returned to Ipswich, Mass., the family home of his wife. In 1888 he moved to Winchester which was his home until his death. For a number of years he conducted a provision store on Main street on the site of the present High school building.

Mr. Hale was an Old Fellow, being a member of the Georgetown lodge, and was also a member of the First Congregational church of this town.

The funeral service was held at his late home, No. 3 Lagrange street, at 11 a. m., September 8. Rev. S. Winchester Adair officiating. The burial was at Ipswich.

PREMONI-LAFORTE.

Miss Mabel Laforte and Mr. Arthur Premon, both of Winchester, were married at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon at St. Mary's Parochial residence by Rev. Nathaniel J. Merritt.

The couple were attended by Miss Grace Jones of Woburn as bridesmaid and Mr. Alfred LaForte, brother of the bride, as best man.

WATER SPORTS MUCH ENJOYED.

The Winchester Boat Club held a regatta of novelty water sports at its club house on Mystic Lake Monday afternoon, participated in by the boys of both the Winchester and Medford clubs. The events were well contested and brought out a large entry list, and furnished much entertainment to a large crowd of spectators who crowded the club house and shores of the lake. The bay in front of the club presented one of the prettiest pictures of the season, dotted as it was with the varied colored canoes and boats.

The results of the races were as follows:

Mixed tandem—won by Fred Bates and Miss Amy Newman.

Tail-end race—LeRoy Pratt.

Single blade—E. C. Clements (Medford).

Jumping race—LeRoy Pratt.

Tandem single—Jack Sheridan and Fred Bates.

Swimming race—Kirk Hueglin.

Tip-over race—Jack Sheridan.

Tilting—Jack Sheridan and E. Russell Murphy.

The judges were Messrs. Ward C. Smith and Chester Baldwin. Philip Sheridan was starter.

In the evening the club house was illuminated and an informal dance enjoyed by a large number of the club members and their guests.

Owing to the fact that so many of the tennis players at the Winchester Country Club are still away from town, the handi cup singles scheduled for Saturday and Monday were not played.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

TRUSTEES MAKE STATEMENT.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In order that the citizens of Winchester may know why the fifty thousand dollars which was given to this corporation by Mrs. Harrington has been recently returned to her, we should be pleased to have you print the following statement:

This money was given to the corporation with the understanding that it the conditions which accompanied the gift could not be carried out in a reasonable time it was to be returned. The conditions were that substantially the entire amount should be used in erecting a building or buildings which should be a memorial to her son Frank, recently deceased. We found that a considerable amount would have to be paid for a location suitable for such a building as was contemplated. At one time we hoped that such land might be given by some public-spirited citizen, but in this we were disappointed. Mr. George Harrington offered to contribute $5,000 toward the purchase of land and it was hoped that others would add to this fund, so that practically the entire $50,000 could be used for the buildings, and it is possible that an amount sufficient for this might in time have been secured.

But after purchasing the land and erecting a building a still greater problem remained to be solved—and that was how the hospital to be maintained? After visiting several hospitals and examining the reports of many, we came to the conclusion that it was the universal experience that hospitals such as was contemplated by the donor could not be self-supporting. A hospital's income naturally comes from three sources: First, from patients; second, from endowments; and third, from charitable disposed persons or institutions. While we felt very certain that the citizens of Winchester would contribute as liberally towards the third of these sources of income as any town in this Commonwealth, we did not feel that it was safe to erect so expensive a plant without an endowment behind it, and accordingly we set about to secure such an endowment, believing that it was not safe to go ahead unless we could have an endowment of at least $50,000 or preferably $100,000.

No considerable amount of such an endowment having been raised, about the middle of June the corporation asked Mrs. Harrington if she would be willing to modify her original plans. This she declined to do, and as she wished to have her money expended in some suitable way during her lifetime she thought that it would be inadvisable to wait any longer to secure this endowment and asked that the money be returned. Under these conditions, we felt that there was no other course to pursue but to return it and by vote of the corporation the money has been so returned. With the advice and consent of the Attorney-General of the state, who by virtue of his office is expected to enforce the due application of funds or property given to public charities within the Commonwealth.

CHIPMAN-PARKER.

Miss Constance Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Parker of Main street, and Mr. Reeve Chipman of Boston were quietly married at the bride's home last evening. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Cheney of Chicago, assisted by Rev. D. Augustine Newton, pastor of the First Congregational church. The ceremony was private and attended only by members of the family. Mr. and Mrs. Chipman will reside in Brookline.

The condition of Miss Clara McDonald, who is very sick with typhoid fever, remains about the same, showing a slight improvement.

NEWLY FURNISHED AUDITORIUM.

During the summer extensive repairs have been going on at the Baptist Church and on next Sunday the congregation will worship in a newly furnished auditorium.

A new hard wood floor has been laid, new oak pews have been installed, new carpet runners for the aisles have been laid, the platform and choir gallery have been enlarged, and a new curtain placed between the choir and the platform.

A new steam heating plant has also been installed. The kitchen also has had a thorough renovation, new hard wood floor, new sink, new shelves, and the walls newly painted.

The appearance of the auditorium is greatly changed. It looks larger than before. This is due to the higher pews and to their circular setting. The seating capacity has been enlarged to about 350. The church is exceedingly grateful for all these improvements and is very happy in the prospect of increased efficiency for service in these most pleasant surroundings.

The Committee in charge of the repairs are Mr. Harry C. Sanborn, Mr. Wallace P. Palmer, and Mr. Willard A. Bradley.

FIREWORKS GOOD.

The fireworks on Manchester Field Labor Day evening were very good, the only one being the smallness of the display, which lasted less than one-half hour. There was a big crowd in attendance, perhaps as large as is brought out on the occasion of the Fourth of July. These fireworks are manufactured by an Italian of Woburn, who has been in this country only a short time. He is said to have received medals for the displays originated by him in his home country and what he could do here if he had the appropriation would, no doubt, be grand. He should be given an opportunity by the town next Fourth of July. The display Monday evening, despite its briefness, was a fitting close of the summer season.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

The Democrats of Winchester will hold their caucus in the Town Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 22, at 7.45 p. m., for the purpose of electing two delegates each to the Democratic State, Councilor, County, Senatorial and six delegates to the Representative conventions; also to choose a town committee for 1910 to consist of nine members. The chairman of the town committee is John T. Cogrove and the secretary, James H. Roach.

THE PREDICAMENT OF ANGLIN, SENIOR.

His Own Love Affair and That of His College Chum.

By HENRIETTA G. ROBINSON.
[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Halfway down the steps of the fraternity house Anglin turned and went thoughtfully back to the room that he shared with Beresford.

"You're dead sure you'll not change your mind and come?" queried Anglin. Beresford, with a volume open on his knee and a pipe gripped between his teeth, nodded emphatically.

"Then I suppose you don't mind if I take your skates? They're sharper than mine."

"Take them, of course."

But when Fred Anglin had slung the skates over his shoulder and buttoned on his thick gloves he still lingered. It seemed as though this were not what he had come back to say after all.

"I ought to tell you, Tom—we've been such pals right along—that I'm going to put my fate to the test tonight. The Tremaine girls will be at the skating party. And tonight I intend to speak to Gerla."

Beresford jumped up and wrung his friend's hand enthusiastically.

"Good for you!" he cried. "Go in and win! As long as it isn't Geraldine I can endure the thought of your happiness. If she says yes, I'll be able to listen to your raptures without experiencing a perfectly legitimate desire to sling you through the window."

"Thanks, old man," laughed Anglin, adding: "Lucky we're not set out on respective hearts on the same sister. Now, I'm blessed if I understand your infatuation for Geraldine. But, as long as you are her captive, why do you hold back? You are older than I, and—"

Beresford shook his head with a grim smile.

"It isn't that. You've a wealthy father and a settled income. I've only enough to put me through this final year. When I get my diploma—well, I shan't have much more, in a material line. I don't dare ask Geraldine to wait until I have attained—achieved—arrived. It wouldn't be fair to her."

"It would—her promise—be a tremendous incentive to you?"

"Oh, I know that. But she must be considered first."

There was another handclasp, a firm and silent one. Anglin swung away for the tramp into the country, where the skaters were to assemble at 7 1/2 o'clock.

The star studded night closed down early. When Anglin reached the appointed place the amusement of the evening was already in full swing. The expense of ice was clear swept and of an opaque, turquoise tint. Strings of Chinese lanterns dangled in the multi-lined propinquity from bare tree to tree and from pole to pole. In a decaliv, semi-shaded by a fly tent, a royal fire blazed and crackled. In and out, around and about, in dulness under the sullen stars or in red relief where the flambeaux, set at regular intervals, flared fantastically, sped and flashed the dark figures of the skaters.

Fred Anglin got on his skates as quickly as possible and started out across the frozen pond. Many turned to look after the athletic young figure circling through their midst with such easy, swiftness and grace of motion.

But he noticed neither their presence nor their admiration. He was looking for one particular little figure. She would wear a short skating costume of blue velvet, the Russian blouse, which was girt with heavy cords that swung backward when she raced. The high peaked cap would make a penthouse over a mass of fair curls and mischievous eyes, bluer than any violets that ever mocked the blueness of a June time sky. And—

"There she is!" he said suddenly to himself.

Alone in the shadow of the wigwam shaped refreshment tent, apparently fancying herself unobserved, a slender young form was whirling on heel and toe, cutting a pattern of intricate tracery on the ice.

"Come with me," he cried as he dashed to her side. He held out his hands, crossed at the wrists in the old approved carry-the-lady-out-of-town style.

Together they swung gracefully down the strip of gleaming ice which was least covered.

But when they were quite away from the merry crowd of skaters, whose voices came to them musically through the frosty night air, Anglin turned their impetuous progress to one very deliberate. And then, as he took a firmer hold of her mitted hands, he began, after the manner of many another lover who has been compelled to force his courage to the sticking point.

"Dear," he said desperately, "I can't keep silent any longer. You know how I've cared for you ever since—well, ever since I entered college. Although I've never been obliged to consider ways and means, still a legacy has made it possible for me to ask you to give me your promise. I know," he added hastily, "you won't care about this sort of thing, but I ought to mention it. There's only one question now—do you think you will ever love me—a little?"

His words, voice, even the tensing with which he retarded his flight holding her hands tight pressed to his side, did not escape the girl's alert consciousness. But she answered in steady accents. There were trepidation in her tone and dread, the dread of a sweet girl experiences who hates to give pain.

"I'm sorry—sorry—sorry than I've ever been about anything in all my life," she began. "I—I did not dream it was I for whom you cared. Had I done so I never would have permitted you to say—this."

As one stunned he relaxed slightly his grip on her fingers, while he accelerated their speed.

"Don't worry," he answered bravely. "I must have been awfully stupid to have fancied you are sure you're quite warm enough? We are almost at the tent now. I'd better bring you some hot coffee, Gerla."

They were at the tent. Yellow streaks of light from its canvas apertures were glinting out at them. The girl came to a standstill, her hand still on her companion's arm.

"What was that you said?" she asked sharply.

"Gerla, I suppose I should have said Miss Tremaine," and then, as she did not at once reply, he wheeled swiftly and confronted her.

She had dashed back the peaked hood of her skating coat. He saw a little, dark, unknown face looking up at him in the wavering amber light—a face that looked uncertain as to whether it ought to break into smiles or quiver into tears—the face of Gerla's twin.

"Geraldine!" he exclaimed as he fell back in astonishment.

It was her turn to be amazed. "Why, did you think it was Gerla?" she cried. "Sure," he added, with enthusiastic relief. And then when her merry peal of laughter had died away he queried, "But how do you happen to be wearing Gerla's costume?"

She laughed again—a relieved sort of merriment that made Anglin think suddenly of his roommate.

"Oh, that's what—what fooled you, was it? Why, we changed them just for fun. But is Tom?"—she flushed furiously at her slip of names—"I mean if Gerla had thought?"

"What?" exclaimed Anglin ambiguously. "Geraldine, do you think?"

"Oh, as to Gerla," she broke in. "She is coming back of you. Ask her yourself." And she skated swiftly away.

The next instant Anglin was facing a girl in a suit of wine-colored velvet. The peaked cap was drawn high over tousled golden curls and eyes of deepest blue.

"How you stare!" she laughed. "Am I unbecomingly pretty?"

"I've proposed to one girl tonight," he confessed as he whisked away to the waltz band was playing, "and I don't want to make a similar mistake again, for she was not the girl at all whom I meant to ask to marry me."

"Are you quite sure you're not mistaken now?" she asked quizzically.

"Quite," he assured her. "But I would like positive proof and corroboration."

And both Fred Anglin succeeded in securing before he strode home to ask Tom for congratulations and to hearten him with the fondest of hopes.

A Transformation Scene.

That great statesman William Pitt, upon whose word so many tremendous issues hung, was in the habit of retiring to his country house for seasons of relaxation. There he dropped his chair of august prime minister and became for the time a rousing schoolboy. One day he had been skylarking with his young friends. He rushed into every fray with the ardor of the youngest present. When the fun was most furious a servant entered the room and informed the prime minister, who was careless and embellished with burnt cork, that Lord Hawkebury and Castleburgh had arrived from London on important business. "Ask them to wait," remarked Pitt and proceeded with the game. When that was finished Pitt said that he must attend to two noble lords and retired to his dressing room to repair damages. Presently he returned, and a remarkable transformation took place. Standing in the middle of the room, the prime minister drew himself up to full height of unapproachable dignity. To the astonishment of the young people present the two lords came into the room almost on their hands and knees and with abject obsequiousness explained the object of their visit. Mr. Pitt listened with an air of distant hauteur and with a sentence or two dismissed his noble guests.—Westminster Review.

A Train Load of Monkeys.

A plague of monkeys some years ago sorely troubled the officials at a small station on the Saran railway, in north-west India, says the Bombay Gazette. Trucks full of grain for export were often stored up in the station, and the monkeys came down in large numbers from a neighboring grove to help themselves to the grain, picking holes in the tarpaulin roof of the wagons. The officials were wearied out with keeping watch and scolding away the thieves, who daily grew bolder, till an ingenious guard hit upon a stratagem. For several days sweets and fruits were put on the roofs of the wagons, with the result that the whole of the monkey colony were attracted to the spot and soon became perfectly indifferent to man. One morning when they were all busily feeding an engine was stealthily attached to the wagons, and suddenly the train moved off. The monkeys were quite scared and made no attempt to escape, sitting crouched together till the train had gone several miles and stopped at the jungle. Then they wanted no hint to leave. Every monkey leaped down howling and fled into the jungle, whence none ever returned to trouble the railway.

A CLEVER RECTOR.

How He Got All the Young Men to Church on Sunday.

"Many interesting stories are told of Bishop Wilmer of Alabama, who was noted for his wit and sharp repartees," said a clergyman. "A story which is considered characteristic of the man was told by a Virginia minister:

"When Bishop Wilmer was rector of the little Protestant Episcopal church at Upperville, Va., he was much worried by the nonattendance at service on Sundays of the majority of the young men of the community. On inquiry he found that instead of going to church they were in the habit of playing marbles for stakes. Marbles in those days, it must be remembered, was a much more serious game than it is now, occupying much the same position in the realm of sports as do billiards and pool in these days.

"Bishop Wilmer, then a person not well known, determined to break up this practice. He himself had been an expert marble player in his boyhood. Accordingly one Saturday he came across a number of the young men engaged in a game. The good bishop asked several questions and finally challenged the lot to play him for 'keeps.' They readily consented.

"Much to their astonishment, the young minister won steadily, and soon they had to go to the stores to replenish their stock. Toward the close of the afternoon Mr. Wilmer had won every marble in the town of Upperville. Putting his 'windings' in a bag, he remarked as he walked away, 'Now, gentlemen, since you can't play marbles tomorrow I hope to see you all at church.' And he did."—Washington Herald.

SERVED THE TERRAPIN.

Crossed the Ocean to Supervise One Course of a Dinner.

George W. Harvey, the inventor of steamed oysters and a famous restaurant keeper, was once the hero of an incident that in some respects made the exploits of Lucullus and other noted gourmets of ancient Rome look cheap and commonplace. He made a 6,000 mile journey to cook or supervise the cooking of a single course of a dinner.

A wealthy Englishman noted for his love of good living while on a visit to Washington, was given a dinner at Harvey's, at which terrapin formed the piece de resistance. It was the first time the Englishman had encountered the famous Maryland delicacy, and it made an instantaneous and profound hit with him. He decided that he would introduce the dish to his London friends and at once entered into negotiations with Harvey to come to London and do the cooking.

Harvey named his price, and it was accepted without a murmur, although it was a stiff one, as he was a very pretty man and did not like to travel. At the appointed time he engaged his passage for England, took a sufficient number of live terrapin along with him and sailed for London. He supervised the preparation of the turtles in the kitchen of his generous employer, saw that they were cooked and served properly, collected his £200 honorarium and his expenses and took the next steamer back to New York.—Exchange.

The New Kind.

Among the passengers in a parlor car attached to a southern train leaving Washington were a retired individual desirous of reading his paper and a talkative person equally desirous of engaging the reserved one in conversation. At first the reticent man took the questions of his neighbor in good part, returning short but polite answers. Finally, however, he grew somewhat irritated at the persistence of the other.

"The grass is quite green, eh?" was the idle query that next came from the garrulous one as he gazed through the window.

"Quite," said the bored one, with a smothered growl. "But, then, consider what a change it is from the pink and mauve grass we've been having lately!"—Harper's Weekly.

Encouraging.

It was Bilkin's wedding day, and he was teasing his young brother-in-law. "Well, Johnnie," he said solemnly, "I'm going to take your sister a long way off and have her all to myself, where you won't see her any more."

"No; really, are you?" said the lad curiously.

"Yes, I am. What do you think of it?"

"Nothin'. I can stand it if you can."

—Pearson's Weekly.

Generous.

"What's your fare?" asked old Flint, skin of his caddy the other day and was met with the stereotyped reply:

"Well, sir, I will leave that to you."

"Thank you; you're very kind," said old F., buttoning up his pockets and walking off. "You're the first person who ever left me anything yet."—London Fun.

Not at First.

"When you first saw Niagara falls did you feel that almost irresistible impulse to throw yourself over the precipice that so many experience?"

"No, I hadn't seen my hotel bill yet."—Cleveland Leader.

Quite Simple.

"What will you do with your money when you die?"

"I shall leave it to my children."

"But suppose you have no children?"

"Then it will go to my grandchildren."

There is not more tranquility for tranquility may be indifference.—Buff. Ind.

Dr. Cook will find life a burden in trying to prove that he did actually reach the North Pole?

Anybody can make good under perfect conditions, but it requires a real man to make good with imperfect conditions.

One Winchester tonsorial artist had occasion to flatter a bald headed citizen Saturday evening and he did it by asking him if he didn't want a hair cut.

One member of the Winchester town government is said to be so cold blooded that the mosquitoes which work on him wear overshoes on the job.

Brag about your "Merry widows" and "peach baskets" all you want to, but you ought to see some of the contraptions men wear on their heads in Winchester lodge rooms.

An Atlanta mule recently kicked a trolley car off the track. That mule ought to be brought to Winchester and be matched against two or three obstreperous automobiles.

If Boston's tax collector carries out his announced intentions that city will have to enlarge its jails. He says that poll tax dogers have got to settle up or go to jail. There are 50,000 delinquents who have not paid the 1908 tax.

If the government should discontinue the coinage of nickels it would make it necessary to revolutionize the present carefree system, the telephone pay system, and would make changes in the price of practically every small article. But then in the idea of government officials, that is nothing.

Some of the Boston Elevated company's semi-convertible cars now have straps the whole length of the aisle instead of simply at the ends of the car. As long as we are obliged to stand it is convenient to have a strap to hang to. This is why those cars are in such favor by the managers of the electric. But for real pleasure, the people prefer the real open cars in the summer time.

Within a few days, the leading manufacturers of this State, Douglas and others, announce that, for reasons which seem good to them "shoes will not be any cheaper on account of the removal of duty on hides, and that the only benefit to the public resulting from the change is that prices will not be advanced." This is about what the people can expect from tariff reductions.

Watertown is in luck, or rather it is receiving the benefit of public-spirited citizens. One man gives a site for a new High school building, another contributes $40,000 toward the building itself. A noted architect gives the plan and superintends the construction and still another comes forward with $50,000 for a Town hall. That's doing something for your own town.

Now who will do as much toward supplementing the gift of Mrs. Harrington for a hospital for Winchester.

It has been remarked that inasmuch as there are 27,000,000 of the Lincoln pennies with V. D. H. artist initials in circulation, those who are "bulling the market" in hope of scarcity are about 50 years too soon, even if there are no more to be minted.

For the next two years Winchester will have to depend upon a West Medford man to look after the town's interest in the Legislature. Some time in the not distant future, Winchester will comprise a Representative district, and when that time does arrive we will have lively politics.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

Hon. Samuel J. Elder attended the reception given in honor of President Taft Tuesday by the Yale Club of Boston at Clydehurst, Mr. Sherman Whipple's estate in Brookline. Mr. Elder enjoyed a round of golf in company with the President and two companions during the morning, and in the afternoon played center field for the "Senators" in the base ball match. He is reported as having had luck at both sports, the President and his partner beating him four up on the links, and he being hit by the pitcher in the ball game, besides being on the losing side. However, it is understood that Mr. Elder is offering no regrets.

Miss Jennie L. Crawford, a well known young lady of this town, will sail from San Francisco on Sept. 22nd for China where she will act as a medical missionary for the Women's Baptist Missionary Board. She will be away for six years or longer. Miss Crawford is well known as one of most competent nurses in Winchester, and will leave hosts of friends, all of whom wish her good speed.

An accidental alarm of fire was rung in on Tuesday morning about eight o'clock in a peculiar manner from Box 21 at the corner of Mt. Vernon and Washington streets. The street department was at work repairing the gutter at this place and in the course of their digging it became necessary to attach a stay to the pole on which the box was located. In order to attach a chain to the pole a spike was driven in, and the hammering caused the box to sound. The apparatus responded, but returned at once to the house, there being no doubt about the cause of the alarm.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

There is not the slightest danger of fishing permits being issued for the Winchester reservoirs, and if fishing is going on without them the officials having the enforcement of the laws should be called to account for not attending to their duties. To make our ponds and river waters pure enough for fish to live in should be our aim now and let the other settled question remain settled, no matter how many Honorables and Esquires may draw in, or sign petitions. There are many other public things more worth while attending to.

Why is not High street macadamizing, at least on the Cambridge street end, completed? This was in part a contract job of last year and one of the pieces of street work the Selectmen specified they would certainly do this year. It would seem to be good policy to finish up jobs before beginning new ones. This end of that street is very prominent from Church street and looks badly as it is. Many comment upon it.

If we have become a World Power, why is it our newspapers give us so little foreign news? We hear nothing from the Philippines, where we have a considerable army and large investments in people and property. The Far Eastern news which the foreign press follows up closely we get nothing of. The government has it of course, but the people are not told.

A motion will again be offered at the fall town meeting to indicate in the Assessors printed report those who have made a sworn return this year. But it will be to instruct instead of request, as the tax commissioners office says we have a right to instruct on this matter and furthermore approves of the idea. The assessors have always approved this motion and very likely will again, but it should pass, and no valid objection can be made to it. Publicity is what we need in taxation matters and there is ample evidence of it.

Is there to be any good public entertainments at popular prices next winter? We ought to have a course that would be instructive, and if well handled it should be successful. For a number of years our shows have been only high priced ones, to which many did not feel they could afford to go.

We certainly must have a separate appropriation for side-walks next year, as we are away behind on such work and some of our main street walks even are very poor indeed.

Let us see, the grade crossing business was to be settled before the year was out. The proposition must first be beaten into shape and then submitted to a town meeting, and when it comes to getting a final decision it will necessitate a regular campaign in order that a plan shall be agreed to and that it shall be a good one for the town. But first we must have the proposition. That progress is being made with it. Speak up town council.

At Young's you will find the largest assortment of winter candies in town. Always fresh and pure.

SUNSHINE SHOP

Hardly a day passes but what we have someone come in our shop and ask the question: "Can you sell me groceries at Boston prices?"

It makes all the difference where in Boston you purchase your goods. If you buy first class goods, we say YES.

At present we are not trying to sell you all your groceries. We are trying to sell a few articles that you use every day. We have taken flour—something you use each day, and know its value as a leader.

Take the two leading brands of flour for example, the ones you see advertised everywhere in daily papers, magazines, street cars; add that bit of cost to your flour and you have one reason why you pay $1.05 and $1.10 per sack today. (This is an age of can't be done.)

THE SUNSHINE SHOP sells one kind of flour—a flour that is placed on the market without any noise, by quiet fellows, who know what they are talking about. People who use it say it is the best bread flour they have ever used. All we have to say regarding it had better be said personally at the SHOP. A TRIAL sack costs 90 cents. If given a fair trial you will find ANGELUS FLOUR equal to the best flour on the market today at any price.

We would be pleased to sell you a quart or a pint of Rae's Sublime Lucca Olive Oil at 80 cents the quart, 40 cents the pint. Call up 124-2 and we will try and interest, either with the flour or the olive oil. We have other goods to sell such as you will find at a first class country store.

CHANGES IN ELECTION LAWS.

The town clerk has received from the secretary of state a pamphlet containing changes in the election laws made by the Legislature of 1909. Only three of these are general in character. One changes the date of registering voters from May 1 to April 1; one permits assessors to arrange lists of taxpayers alphabetically or by streets; one changes the date of filing nominations for local officers in towns; one changes the date of primaries in cases of special elections; the fifth provides that when the registrars place a new name on the voting list they shall notify the assessors.

This being what is termed an "on year," there is somewhat less to do than usual on the official ballot as he ascertains dates are concerned.

Pencil boxes at Wilson the Stationer's.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Intense interest in woman's suffrage especially in Boston has resulted in a short play on the subject, written by one of the Suffragettes themselves, Mrs. Teresa Crowley, who was chairman of the big Suffragette meeting held in Symphony Hall, and conducted all the hearings on the subject before the Massachusetts State Legislature.

Mrs. Crowley has written a number of sketches and in this particular one she is said to have done her best work. It will be of particular interest from the fact that it will mark the return to the stage after a number of years of Miriam O'Leary Collins, who was one of the greatest favorites of the Old Boston Theatre Stock Company ever had.

The bill for this week will be notable in many respects. It will include Lewis Simon and Grace Gardner. They will appear in their former success, "The New Comedian." Others will be the Temple Quartette, Ray Cox, the Southern girl, Al Crum, Wainwright, Vesta and Teddy, Mewhot and Phelps and a number of others.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

An especially strong movement in the National Capital has for its object the cleaning out of many low dives that have so long disgraced what should be the finest city in the world. Unfortunately the majority of the Congressmen, early decent at home, are quite willing to let conditions alone in Washington and the residents who have most at stake have no voice. Strangely enough the many protesting disaffected men in the District are quite indifferent to the outcome of the woman suffrage agitation although it is much the same thing—denial of representation.

The last number of the Union Signal and late numbers of the Survey give accounts of the recent International Congress on alcoholism which was held in London. Very interesting is the description of the London Temperance Hospital, where some of the meetings were held. Its practice is to use alcohol only in extreme cases and those doctors who at first prescribed it often have practically given it up, especially in fever and pneumonia cases.

Among the topics discussed at the Congress were "Alcoholism and Muscular and Mental Fatigue," "Alcoholism and Tuberculosis" and "Alcohol and Immunity." It is expected that very good results may come from this careful sifting of evidence by scientific men whose researches are inspired by no fanaticism but by the passion for truth.

POLITICS IN STATE ACTIVEDemocratic Organization Stirs
Republicans to Action

NOT TO BE CAUGHT NAPPING

The Income Tax Issue to Be Considered—State Already Assesses Such Tax—Representative Tolman Has Clear Field—Hill as District Attorney

There is apparently a good deal of activity now, both at Republican and Democratic state headquarters. It is beginning to be realized that there is to be an earnest campaign by the Democrats to elect James H. Vahey governor, and that a sharp canvass will have to be made to offset it. It is realized that the Democratic city and town committees have been organized in a pretty effective manner, such as has not been in evidence since the years when Colonel William A. Gaston was either running as the Democratic candidate, or was at the head of the organization and attempting to put the machine into thorough fighting trim.

One of the elements which always has made the result uncertain and hard to estimate in recent years is the labor vote. It is true that it has always been arrayed against Mr. Draper so far as it was possible for the leaders of the labor movement to control it, and that, so far as may be judged, it is the same situation this year as in the last four preceding it, but not all the labor men have ever voted against the governor. There is a deep suspicion among the rank and file of the labor army that the men who have engineered the fight against Mr. Draper are not sincere, and that some of them at least are trying to use the move as a political engine of their own selfish ends. The fact that they have never scored against him has disheartened most of the leaders.

Buncoed in 1904

Labor men recall with some bitterness that they were urged to vote against Governor Bates because of his attitude on labor measures, and that they helped defeat him and elect William L. Douglas, only to find that Mr. Douglas as governor took almost identically the same attitude upon such bills as had the man they had defeated. The Democratic party had simply used the labor issue to elect their candidate, and when he had assumed office and taken up the burden of responsibility he found himself compelled to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor as a matter of public duty. It is mighty easy to promise any old thing when a man is a candidate for office without much hope of winning, but if an accident lands a man in office he has to think twice before acting, and consider all the people rather than a certain class.

Last year was presidential year, and there was a full vote cast. It cannot be expected that any such vote on either side will be thrown this fall. Just how much it will fall off is uncertain, but the Republican vote always shrinks more than the Democratic. Then there is the vote cast last year for the Independence league, now defunct as a political organization. That amounted to 23,000, and the Democrats claim the most of it. The Republicans think it will be split, the greater part going to the Democrats and perhaps a quarter of it finding its way back into the Republican fold.

Republicans are not claiming a tremendous majority this year, but they think there will be enough to elect Mr. Draper comfortably. He had over sixty thousand majority last year. Probably half of that would satisfy the party leaders this year. No presidential year majorities are looked for in off years.

Democrats Very Active

The activity of the Democratic state committee in perfecting its organization has set Republicans at work, also. By reason of this a sharper campaign will be made than was expected. It is not in the it is planned to be caught napping at sleeping at the switch. They are glad to know early in the season that the enemy is up to, so as to be ready for action.

It is expected that the state convention Oct. 2 will be a very enthusiastic gathering. There are over 1800 delegates, and with Governor John D. Bates as chairman of the so-called resolutions, and ex-Mayor Edwin U. Curtis of Boston as speaker of the convention, there will be oratory of a pleasing sort, and interest. It is quite probable that Senator Lodge will be present, and if so the delegates are not likely to let him get away without an important speech. There will be plenty for all the participants in the oratory to talk about, what with the special session of congress, the new tariff bill, the advancing wave of prosperity and the record of President Taft.

There is a good deal of speculation as to what is being done in regard to the income tax. The great majority of the Democrats and some of the Republicans favor the election of men to

Warren

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand are, first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in soft pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It never gets lumpy, and is extremely light and buoyant. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

Now the best tickling on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress I make of pure South American horse-hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Made in best tickling, two parts, five inch box, and full weight.

Housekeeping as a Business

Requires brains and executive ability on the part of the housekeeper.

There are so many details in the provisioning and management of the household that a woman must have help in order to do everything.

The business man would not think of trying to do business without a telephone.

Is it fair for him to expect his wife to try to do business without one?

HE IS THE CAPITALIST.
SHE IS THE MANAGER.

A residence telephone is as necessary as an office telephone.

IN SUMMER DON'T—

DON'T fail to take a bath every morning. If you can't manage a full bath, take a sponge bath.

DON'T wear the same stockings two days running nor the same shoes if you can afford to keep several pairs on hand.

DON'T wear shoes that are too small for you.

DON'T drink cold water or you may have an attack of acute indigestion.

DON'T eat meat more than once a day and then as little as possible. Bread and milk or bread and fruit are enough for the midday meal in very hot weather.

DON'T wear a high, tight collar. Leave the blood vessels of the neck free.

DON'T wear stiff, starched clothing. You will find the soft garments much more comfortable.

DON'T drink whisky or other alcoholic drinks. They are poison on a hot day and breeders of sunstroke.

Of all these don'ts the two most important to be observed are those regarding alcoholic drinks and tight clothing. The others are for comfort; THESE ARE FOR SAFETY.

Cleaning a Summer "Lid."

To clean an ordinary flat straw hat CUT A LEMON IN HALVES, protect the band with a thick width of cloth and rub the hat with the lemon. When the acid has loosened the dirt, RINSE THE HAT with a meager quantity of water.

Wisdom For Hot Weather.

As a man thinketh, so is he heated. Constant fuming wears away the chill. Take plenty of fresh air and salt water. Fanning drives away the heat and brings more to the fanner. Some folks get all heated up working so hard to keep cool. Don't run to catch a street car. The next one will be cooler.

Alice Alias Alys.

Mr. Squigles—What's the little No. 9 girl's name? I couldn't catch it when her mother introduced us. Mrs. Squigles—Plain Alice, only her mother's trying to pronounce it so you'll spell it "Alys"—Philadelphia Bulletin

BROKE IT GENTLY.

The Reason the Brakeman Quit Railroad For Awhile.

Danny Winthrop was a brakeman. One day while his train was on a side-track at a town in Ohio another train that was doing some switching on the same track suddenly bumped into the caboose on the rear platform of which Danny was standing, and he was severely bruised. He was taken to a local hospital, where it was found that his injuries were so serious as to necessitate his remaining several weeks for treatment. At the end of a month he surprised his mother at her home in Pittsburg by walking into the house on crutches.

"Why, Danny," she exclaimed, "what is the matter? What has happened to you?"

"Why, I wrote and told you, mother," he answered with a grin.

"No, son, you didn't. All you wrote was that you were going to quit railroad for awhile, that you had found something else to do and that it was an indoor job. You didn't say a word about getting hurt or anything of that kind."

"I surely did, mother. I told you what happened to me."

"You surely didn't!"

"How did I say I came to be staying in that town?"

"You said you happened to be caught there between trains."

"Well, I was."—Youth's Companion.

OUR MILLIONAIRES.

American Money Kings From a German Point of View.

In a satirical article entitled "The Natural History of American Millionaires" a writer in the Berliner Tageblatt says: "They all came to New York, Chicago or Philadelphia with one shirt and with one cent in the pocket of the only other garment. All served as bootblacks, errand boys or even in more humble positions and in the second week had saved enough to buy a waistcoat. After one month they appeared before their respective employers clad in new clothes and told them with imposing self confidence that the organization of their business was defective and required reorganization. A year later the boy has become a partner, in two years he has outstripped the former boss in wealth, and a year later he has grown smart enough to kill off the benefactor of other days. All American millionaires arise at 3 in the morning, eat and drink almost nothing, cease their work at midnight and allow only those to live whom they think are good enough to invite. Every dollar king founds a university, an opera, a museum or a picture gallery. Life becomes a burden to them when there are no more competitors in their branch worthy of destruction. Then they lie down and die of ennui."

Almost Heavenly.

"That is Saturn you see now," explains the astronomer, while the visitor to the observatory peers through the telescope at the mysterious orb with its rings and with its moons showing as little points of light.

"It's away off, isn't it?" asks the visitor.

"Oh, yes. Saturn is so far off that it requires thirty of our years to make the circuit around the sun."

"Thirty years?"

"Yes."

"My! Saturn must be pretty close to heaven."

"I couldn't say as to that."

"I should call it almost heavenly not to have to buy spring dresses and hats for my wife and daughters not more than once in thirty years."

For fear the visitor would have something to say about the summer engagements on Saturn being responsible for the rings, the astronomer quickly pointed the telescope toward Jupiter.—Chicago Post.

Doing a Man's Work.

The Widow Skinner has been twice bereaved, and she was telling me about her two husbands over a cup of tea.

"Boggs was the first," she said dreamily, "a ornery bound wot used to git drunk and come home and lam-baste me all over the place. After Boggs died I married Skinner. He was a good for nothin', ornery critter wot 'nd turn up full, and I'd lam him till he couldn't see."

She chuckled with quiet amusement.

"Well," said a listener, "the last was better than the first, at least."

"No, twan't," she said. "I'd kinder got used to Boggs' little ways, and in Skinner's case I never cottoned to the idea of doin' a man's work about the house."—Exchange.

Drifted Into It.

"Yes, I've managed to get into debt pretty deeply," said Kayrliss.

"Indeed," remarked Wise. "I gave you credit for more sense than you seem to have."

"Him! The trouble was that my tailor gave me credit for more dollars than I seem to have," said Kayrliss.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Nothing to Offer.

"Have you," asked the judge of a recently convicted man, "anything to offer the court before sentence is passed?"

"Yes, your honor," replied the prisoner. "I've never took my last farthing!"—London Mail.

Wise Poets.

"Poets ever write poems in their letters to their sweethearts?" asked the sweet young thing.

"No," replied the near famous bard. "We've got more sense than to queer the game in that manner!"—Milwaukee Journal.

How Much Does it Cost You to Pay Rent?

Figure it out for the past ten years. Hasn't it been enough to pay for a comfortable home?

And what have you to show for it? How much have you saved? Doubtless not enough to pay one-half or one-third cash for a lot.

You may never have a home unless you start now by purchasing for a reasonable payment down.

Many cannot save in any other way. The plan is a boon to them, for it enables them to build a home and let their rent pay it out without increasing their expenses. Come in and see about it.

The police were out for automobile speeders Monday afternoon on Cambridge street but found none who exceeded the limit. The news of the trap was carried almost into Lowell, and with this ample warning the drivers of the cars were on the watch for the officers. Persons taking the electric cars at the Winchester Boat Club during the late afternoon had a lively time dodging the almost endless stream of cars, and numerous narrow escapes from accident were recorded. The boat club is in especially dangerous point when taking or leaving the cars and it is a wonder that a serious accident has not already occurred there.

The fire department was called out at 12.30 last Monday night for a fire in the house on Loring avenue occupied by Peter McInnis. The blaze started from some unknown cause in the cellar, eating its way up through the partitions to the second floor and the outside of the building. A dense smoke was caused, and when two of the young ladies of the family entered the house shortly after twelve they found the interior stifling. The sleeping inmates were hastily awakened and the alarm rung in. About an hour's work was necessary before the all-out stand was sounded. The damage was considerable.

NO PUBLICITY OF SWORN RETURNS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

"Observations" states that a motion will be offered at this fall's town meeting to print in the Assessor's report the names of those who have made a sworn return this year. There are various reasons which lead the careless observer to state that this motion will surely be defeated.

First, The Assessor will undoubtedly object to this vote. Notwithstanding observations well known ability, won't it be difficult to prove that he ever made any progress in reforming our Assessors?

It was interesting within a few years to listen to a most ingenious, ingenious and valuable argument from the Board of Assessors through the Chairman as to why it was wise to fail to do certain acts.

It is refreshing to read the last two lines of the special oath administered to an Assessor: "that I will neither overvalue nor undervalue any property subject to taxation, and that I will faithfully perform all the duties of said office."

Now "Observations," is it not true that the first duty of an Assessor is to see that our suspected (meaning "reputed") wealthy citizens are treated so carefully and considerably in probing the pocket nerve that the said wealthy citizens shall desire to live in Winchester rather than to move to Cohasset or Nahant? Don't you "Observations" believe that our Assessors are elected to conserve our wealth rather than to find it? And don't you also, "Observations," believe that our citizens as a whole so regard the duty of an Assessor?

Defender.

CHASED FRUIT THIEVES IN AUTOMOBILE.

The first serious case of the usual autumn fruit thieves came up in the Woburn court on Monday, and Chief McIntosh of the Winchester police had the satisfaction of securing judgment on two of the offenders.

It appears that on Sunday afternoon a gang of about fifteen half grown boys from South Boston took an excursion to Winchester, evidently searching for grapes, apples and other fruit. They alighted from an electric at the foot of Highland avenue on Main street, and naturally the large orchard of Mr. Marshall Sumner came in for their first attention. Mr. Sumner was unable to do anything with the gang, who sailed in and helped themselves to peaches, a few others, sampling the grapes at the Godda estate a little farther along the road.

The police were telephoned to, and with one officer sent up the avenue, others started down Main street. Mr. Napoleon Godda picked up the officers as they left the station in his big touring car and started for Sumner's corner. When the party were passing Mystic avenue the gang was seen headed for the boulevard, and so the car was run down Bacon street to intercept them. When the car met the crowd the bunch scattered and ran up the steep bank at the rear of Mr. Harrison Parker's house, one of them falling and severely sustaining his leg. The officers succeeded in capturing seven of them, others managing to make their escape.

In court Monday John White and John Harrigan, both of South Boston, were fined $5 each. Five others were allowed to depart with a reprimand.

The Chief means to put a stop to the stealing of fruit about town this fall, and all cases are to be prosecuted actively.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the Athletic Association held Monday in the assembly hall, Theodore Mann was re-elected president; Kenneth Grant, '10, was elected vice-president; Robert Leland, secretary and Alfred Dover, treasurer. The present outlook for foot ball is encouraging. Capt. Small, Main, Tuck, Hanson, Neiley, Sheridan, Hamilton, Donovan and Hurd all played on last year's team. The other candidates for the team are Emery, '12, Badger, '10, Barta, '10, Donahue, '11, Marshall, '11, Grant, '10, D. Wheatley, '13, H. Wheatley, '12, Taplin, '10, Saltmarsh, '10, McNally, '10, Locke, '10, Evans, '11, Meincke, '13, Farnsworth, '12, Hawes, '11, Hicks, '10, Capt. Small, '12, Main, '10, Sheridan, '10, and Hamilton, '10, look good in the line, while Tuck and H. Wheatley show class in the back field.

A SATURDAY AFTERNOON ON MANCHESTER FIELD.
How the Winchester Who Stayed at Home Spent His Half Holiday

CHILDREN BROUGHT TO WINCHESTER.

Patrolman McKenna, of Woburn found two little children wandering about on lower Main street, last week. The children were unable to tell their names or where they lived and a search failed to reveal the identity of the little ones until a child coming on the scene from Winchester, said that she thought the children lived on Glen road, Winchester.

A youth in the crowd, volunteered to take the little ones home.

Considering the two flaxen haired children safe on their way home, Officer McKenna proceeded along his beat, but was soon met by a man living on Glen road, Winchester, who told him that two strange children had been left at his home. The officer told him to notify the Winchester police, as the case was in their jurisdiction.

Shortly after meeting the Glen road resident, the police officer was accosted by a Mrs. Johnson, of Garfield avenue, who inquired if he saw two children, describing the little ones which had been sent to Winchester. He then put the woman on the right track and telephoned the Winchester police. The woman finally found her little son and the son of Charles Jewell of the Winchester police station, where they had been taken by Patrolman Kelley of that department.

BOWLING STARTS AT CALUMET CLUB.

The Calumet Club opens its bowling season tomorrow night with a Dartmouth tournament for which a number of the enthusiasts among the club members have already been getting into shape.

The tournament is arranged so that all the bowlers may participate, handicaps being given by the bowling committee.

Three successive strings, with handicaps, rolled on the same day, entitles a member who has entered to put his name on the list, which is limited to twenty names. As soon as the list is filled, the lowest man drops out when a better three string score is rolled. Members may increase their scores by as many attempts as they wish until the list is closed. No strings rolled in any other tournament are to be counted in this.

The bowling opens Saturday, Sept. 18, at 2 p. m., and the list closes Oct. 16 at midnight. The twenty remaining on the list will roll a semi-final three string contest with handicap on Tuesday, Oct. 19, at 7:30 p. m. The eight highest on this list will roll a final contest of three strings with handicap on Friday, Oct. 22, at 8 p. m. The three highest in this contest will take the prizes.

Already the candidates for the league team which the club will enter in the Amateur Bowling League are out for practice two nights a week, under the direction of Mr. Sewall E. Newman, who will captain the team.

The bowling alleys at the club have been planned and scraped this week, and the new pin setters installed on all four alleys. This will insure the rollers of enjoying alleys second to none.

The regular fall tournament of the club will commence on Oct. 25th.

BEST SELECTED NINE HOLES.

The play at the Winchester Country Club on Saturday afternoon was for the best selected nine holes, one-third handicap. The best net score was made by W. E. Kinsley with 33, handicap 3. He and Dana Wingate tied for best gross with 36 each.

The results:

MURRAY—MELAUGH.

Miss Bessie Melaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Melaugh of Railroad avenue, was married on Sunday evening to Mr. Matthew Murray of Montvale. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's Parochial Residence by Rev. Fr. Rogers. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. James Murray and the bride's sister, Miss Harriet Melaugh, was bridesmaid.

THIRTEEN AUTOISTS HELD.

With the numerous complaints of fast speeding by automobilists through the town lately, the police have been active putting a stop to it, and as a result of their work of last week and Sunday thirteen owners and drivers were in court Wednesday and Thursday. All of the cars were held up on Cambridge street, the majority of them at the Country Club. This section has been unsafe for travel lately, owing to the fast speed of the numerous cars, and while the police desire to give all cars passing through Winchester a fair show, they do not intend to be taken advantage of.

The list of hold-ups included Duncan McAnley of Manchester, N. H., Hugh W. Russell of Boston, Arthur Mosier of Boston, Kenneth Metcalf of Arlington, Herbert Holbrook, of Sherborn, Edward E. Wood, Jr., of Brookline, Joseph W. Woodward of Brookline, George A. Waterman of Boston, William S. Jameson of Cambridge, L. Edward Gladi of Weyland, Chas. E. Fish of Burlington, Robert H. Sprague of Burlington and Ralph S. Morgan of Worcester.

They received fines varying from $5 to $20, some of them being held over until next week.

THE NORWOOD PRESS.

On Monday, Sept. 13, the members of the Massachusetts Press Association, with ladies, met at the United States Hotel in Boston, and shortly before 11 o'clock boarded car 1601 of the Old Colony Street Railway which stood in front of the hotel, in charge of an inspector, a motorman and a conductor of the Boston Elevated. The trip was through Beech, Washington and Eliot streets, to Park Square, thence up Columbus avenue to the junction of Washington street and then through Forest Hills and Rosindale to Germantown. Here a new trio of railroad employees from the old Colony System took charge and the trip was through Dedham and Westwood into Norwood to a point opposite the Norwood Press, which was reached about 12:15. The fifty occupants of the car disembarked and proceeded on foot to the residence of J. Stearns Cushing known as "The Colonial." Passing along the driveway to the front entrance of the mansion, they were welcomed by the owner, his good wife, their comely daughter and seven of the principal owners and superintendents of the Norwood Press. After inspecting the appropriately named house, the party was invited to a large tent on the lawn and solid, liquid and frozen refreshments served to quiet the keen appetites, which the pleasant trip had developed. The masculine members of the party were also regaled with fragrant cigars.

After this delightful repast, the party was lined up in front of the house and several snap shots were taken by representatives of the Boston Press. A short walk through the pleasant streets of Norwood was taken to the Norwood Press Club. The house and grounds were fitted up by Mr. Beswick one of the partners and donated to the club which is composed of employees of the establishment. Bowling, billiards, a gymnasium, a ball field, tennis courts and a good lecture and concert hall are among the facilities afforded.

Another short walk and the Norwood Press was reached. An exterior view of the buildings gives the impression of a considerable establishment, but not until over two hours of rapid inspection of the interior does one begin to realize the vastness of the enterprise. In one series of buildings are employed over 700 people. Three distinct concerns attend to various parts of the book-making. The J. Stearns Cushing Co. does the typesetting, electrotyping and monotyping in all their details. The Beswick and Smith Co. does the printing and E. Fleming Co. attends to the putting into book form and binding. Stored in the basement are plates of the value of over $3,000,000. The buildings, machines of more than a thousand varieties, stock of paper and books in process and complete make-up, another $3,000,000. The average output is 12,000,000 books each day. School and college text books are a large part of the product. One-half a million of Bibles are printed and bound each year. 90 percent of the work of the great McMillan publishing house is done here. We saw 50 pages of a Bible printed at one impression. The lines of the original plant were pointed out to us and it can be seen to have multiplied seven fold since the start and, some of the work has to be done in Boston to keep up with the demand. An order for 500 books is regarded as moderate, one for 5,000 more in accord with facilities.

All too soon at 4 o'clock the special car 1601 hove in sight and the party started for home with hearty thanks to J. Stearns Cushing and his associates for a pleasant visit, and to the Boston Elevated and Old Colony Street Railroads for the courtesy in the way of transportation.

35 HOUSES TO BE BUILT.

It is understood that Mr. George C. O'Brien has purchased conditionally that tract of land on Main street lying between Salmon street and Mr. J. W. Russell's estate of Mr. Samuel Sumner. A stone retaining wall will be built along the Main street front and a street constructed through the property. 35 houses, costing approximately $10,000 each, are to be erected, two fronting on Main street and the remaining 33 on the proposed street.

Dr. Cook's North Pole Trip

DR. FREDERICK A. COOK, the courageous explorer who has gained undying fame by his discovery of the north pole, is a resident of Brooklyn. For years he has given his attention to arctic explorations and in 1891-2 was surgeon of the Peary arctic expedition and in 1897-9 surgeon of the Belgian arctic expedition. He has received numerous decorations from the geographical societies of Europe for his research and writings in the polar field.

Dr. Cook started on his present expedition in the summer of 1907, sailing from North Sydney, C. B., on board the schooner John R. Bradley, built by John R. Bradley of New York, who financed the expedition.

The party was reinforced with sledges, dogs and arctic equipment at Etah, Greenland, whence it sailed March 3, 1908. Dr. Cook's plan was to set aside all tradition by making the dash to the pole during the winter months, when the elements are considered least advantageous for an advance northward.

Without a big ship, without the company of a single white man, Dr. Cook's dash for the north pole was made under incredible hardships, and he had not been heard from in more than a year and had been practically given up for lost. But his indomitable courage carried him through where white ships' companies have come to grief.

The one man who started with him, Rudolph Franke, was left to guard the supplies at Amootok, twenty miles north of Etah, west Greenland. This man remained alone for several months and then seized the first opportunity to leave, when Commander Robert E. Peary arrived with his expedition on board the ship Erik. Cook had sent one letter to Franke by Eskimo messenger before Peary arrived, but if he sent any more or returned for supplies after Franke left it is not known. According to Franke, Peary insisted on obtaining a large number of valuable blue fox skins and narwhal horns which had been left at the supply station by Dr. Cook and which were expected to defray the cost of his return from the arctic.

There was some mystery about this affair when the news of it came out on Franke's arrival in New York, and charges and countercharges flew back and forth with increasing bitterness between the Cook adherents and the friends of Peary. As month after month passed without further sign from Cook there was talk of a relief expedition. Admiral Winfield S. Schley, the hero of the Greely relief rescue, was named as one of the leading figures in raising the money necessary for the movement to find Dr. Cook, and a short time ago an expedition started to seek the missing explorer.

Until recently no word was received from Dr. Cook since March 17, 1908. He was then on the polar ice north of Cape Thomas Hubbard, about 500 miles from the pole. He was the only white man, with several Eskimos and a big equipment of dogs, sleds and supplies. He was then on the eve of making a desperate dash for the pole over the ice. He was making a straight course for the pole and said that if he were lucky he might reach his supply station at Amootok by the end of May.

Dr. Cook's dash was hastily conceived. He started on a hunting trip in the spring of 1907 with John R. Bradley, a wealthy New Yorker who had hunted game in all corners of the world except the polar regions. Mr. Bradley bought a Gloucester fishing schooner with an auxiliary gasoline engine and in this vessel went north. Dr. Cook being in command.

The hunting trip ended in the latter part of August, 1907, and on Aug. 26 the schooner stopped at Amootok, on the northwest coast of Greenland. Almost up to the last it was thought that Dr. Cook would return to New York, but he decided to remain and make a one man attempt to reach the pole. One of the crew of the schooner, Rudolph Franke, a young German American, volunteered to stay at Amootok and guard the supplies.

The first week the two men began building a house for the long winter's habitation. Then they hunted for a month, laying in a stock of meat. The thermometer went down steadily with the approach of the long arctic night, and while they were hunting it was constantly between 30 or 40 degrees below zero.

They spent the winter preparing the sledges and the supplies for Dr. Cook's trip and discovered a way of preparing dog food which gave Dr. Cook a great advantage in weight over all previous explorers. During January the thermometer registered 73 degrees below zero, but Dr. Cook and his man went out to look for some people who were supposed to have been shipwrecked in Flagler bay, but found nobody.

The last two weeks were spent in testing out the sledges, the dogs and the supplies, and on Feb. 26 Dr. Cook started for the farthest north. Franke went with him as far as Flagler bay, and then Dr. Cook sent him back to Amootok on March 3, 1908, to guard the winter quarters. It was nearly a year later that Peary reached the neighborhood of Amootok, where Franke was keeping his lone vigil and who claims that Dr. Cook had ordered him to go back by one of the whalers' ships at the end of the preceding June.

It is no new thing for Dr. Cook to attempt difficult and extremely hazardous feats of exploration. In every case in which he has set out to discover new paths in the wilderness of uncharted seas or mountains he has displayed a dash and resourcefulness which marked him as extraordinary even among explorers. It was this valiant courage and resourcefulness, added to a very vigorous physique, which his many friends in Brooklyn had in mind when they assured anxious inquirers that Dr. Cook would appear somewhere in Norway or Greenland alive and well.

Dr. Cook is a married man and has a home in Brooklyn, where his wife and two children live. He is not often home, having been engaged in exploration work on and off for the past eighteen years. Dr. Cook was born at Callicoon Depot, a very quiet little hamlet in Sullivan county, N. Y., on June 10, 1865. He received his early education in Brooklyn and graduated with the degree of doctor of medicine from New York university in 1890. He was married in 1892 to Mary Fiddell Hunt in Brooklyn.

Exploration at both ends of the earth and near the top of its highest mountains has attracted Dr. Cook for years. In 1891 and 1892, just after his graduation from the medical college, he served as surgeon of the Peary expedition to Greenland. In 1897-9 he was surgeon of the Belgian expedition to the antarctic. He tried to ascend Mount McKinley, in Alaska, the highest peak on the North American continent, in 1893 and failed. In 1906 he tackled Mount McKinley again and won.

He is the author of several books descriptive of his travels and discoveries, and he has lectured extensively. In an interview about six months before he left on the fishing trip to Labrador Dr. Cook said:

"Some day I am going to find the north pole."

Dr. Cook once had a scheme for sailing to the south pole, and he worked on this for some time, trying to figure out exactly how to do it. His trip with Amundsen gave him the inspiration for this. He finally, in his efforts to arrive at some method of reaching the south pole, hit upon the idea of an automobile with some arrangement for traveling over ice fields. He worked upon this machine for some time at Callicoon. The automobile was kept in a barn, and Dr. Cook would allow none excepting the workmen and himself to see it.

In speaking of the automobile at that time Dr. Cook said:

"The device I have invented for my automobile would not help at all in getting to the north pole. Up there the pole is surrounded by a shifting sea of constantly moving ice. An automobile would be lost.

"At the south pole one can approach by ship no nearer than 500 miles. It then becomes necessary to travel over the fields of ice. The snow there has no crust and the ice is rough. I observed that in my trip to the antarctic. With the automobile I will be able to get over these fields. When I have the first one completed and have tested it I shall build others and then dash for the south pole."

Dr. Cook's dream of getting to the south pole never has been realized. He abandoned the idea some time later for the dash for the north pole which has been so successful.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

Now that the schools have reopened for the year's work I hope all good citizens will pay particular attention to the cigarette vice in an effort to eradicate it from our midst. While the vice isn't so widespread here in Winchester as it is in other communities of even lesser size there is too much cigarette smoking by school boys to pass unnoticed. The question is one closely connected with the mental vigor and progress of the boy. No fact is better established in my mind and in the mind of every good citizen that the use of tobacco by a growing boy in years seriously with school work. A remedy lies chiefly with the parents, but the attitude of all school authorities should be one of emphatic condemnation. Certainly their active influence should be combined with that of all good citizens for the suppression of a vice, the growth of which cannot fail to result in impaired health and vigor, physical, intellectual and moral.

Every good Winchesterite is a deadly enemy of the fly. A Pleasant street gentleman has recently shown me a picture of a newly invented fly trap capable of catching ten thousand flies an hour but the Spectator cannot generate much belief in the idea that the fly problem is going to be solved by inventive genius. Without entering into any protracted discussion of the problem here, I would like to point out that every Winchesterite can clip off all but a small fraction of the danger we are now under. It is in the fifth or other fated places that the fly gets its power for harm; and no matter how efficient this new fly trap may prove itself, the Spectator believes it will never command a high price among the people of Winchester, who practice cleanliness elsewhere than in the bath tub.

I noticed that there are a number of strange faces in Winchester now. A live town like Winchester, a moral town, and an excellent school town will bring and hold here the best class of citizens. I believe Winchester holds out more real inducements than any town of like size, in the Commonwealth. A prominent Boston educator once told me that Winchester was the best school town in the State. Whether that is so it is a fact that our people are second to none in point of social, intellectual and moral culture.

The Spectator admires that Winchesterite who, when he has a grievance, feels that he has the courage and the manhood to come forward and file his complaint, and if he has been wronged, demand restitution. Some Winchesterites are strangers through lack of this quality by neighbors who get an impression that they have been wronged, and go up and down the town hugging imaginary injuries against good neighbors, who notice the change and wonder what brought it about. It some one has mistreated you, go and tell him so, and specify when, where and how. If he cannot or will not "make good," hold him out and scratch him from your social list. If he "makes good" with apologies, explanations or corrections, extend to him your hand and thank him for setting you right. I know plenty of men here in town who too often nurse the recollection of a wrong, while many deeds of kindness are all too soon forgotten.

cellar. Mr. Farrow ran to give an alarm, but meeting William Hargrove in his carriage, had him drive to the centre and notify the department. The place was occupied by Patrick Madden and Patrick Stewart, and none of the inmates knew of the fire until notified. Although the blaze was of a good size the house did not take fire, and two chemicals extinguished
it. As the apparatus arrived James Madden, about 16 years old, living in the house had an epileptic fit, and later damaged the house with an axe, breaking doors, etc. It is thought that he was responsible for the fire. The police were

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The electric railroad heating which was to have gone on Monday the 28th inst. before the Railroad Commissioners has been postponed until Thursday because the commissioners are going to New York.Senator Crosby deserves a unanimous renewal. He was one of the very best members of this year's legislature and a credit to the district and the State.It is high time that cities and towns were permitted to appropriate money to build and maintain hospitals. What is as of so much importance as the public health? Money should be more readily and freely voted for this purpose than for any other.It is very evident that the W. A. A. needs reorganizing. It will be impossible to raise any money for the games this winter or next spring unless there is a decided change in the management.One of the grade crossing commissioners said to me lately that he noticed that the Tyler property was not on the damages agreement paper and he thought they would want heavy damages. Dear me! the Assessors' value the whole property at only $14,000. How much do they think it would be damaged? We could better afford to buy all of the properties affected than take the commissioner's plan."My policies" was not in evidence at the big Tait dinner Tuesday night, which would seem to indicate that the President is not carried away with the tariff bill, when he could say nothing in favor of it.
His speech was extremely conventional and very different from what could have been confidently expected from T. R.
under similar circumstances.If the STAR would print or reprint, if it has already done so, the full text of the Harrington bequest it would interest many people. The explanation of the corporation last week was not satisfying to many and does not seem to fully cover the matter. If the proposition had been put up to a town meeting it would have found a solution and would never have returned the money. Up in the vicinity of Ridge street sufficient land could have been bought for five hundred dollars and dollar and maintenance could have been provided by the town and paying patients. It looks as if somebody had cooled off.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Now that the citizens are finding out a little about the noble gift for a hospital,
I would like them to be told by Mr. Parkhurst what is considered a reasonable time to comply with the requirements of the gift.I wish the Trustees would investigate the work done for hospitals in New York,
R. I., Laconia, N. H., St. Johnsbury, Vt.
If they will also go to work in earnest there will be no doubt but what an up-to-date hospital will be completed in Winchester within 5 years and paid for; eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.Courteously, Whitfield Tuck.Modern Photography

NEW BUSINESS

Is What THE WINCHESTER LAUNDRY COMPANY is Keen after This Fall.

We Want your Trade if we Haven't Already Got It.

Our old customers stay by us from year to year. Unexcelled service and quality of work holds them; they tell their friends about us, so that we really have hundreds of unpaid solicitors working for us.

We want by merit to win every possible customer in this territory, and we'll do it.

Send Us Your Laundry This Week and You'll Be Our Customer for Years.

SUNSHINE SHOP

Hardly a day passes but what we have someone come in our shop and ask the question: "Can you sell me groceries at Boston prices?"

It makes all the difference where in Boston you purchase your goods. If you buy first class goods, we say YES.

At present we are not trying to sell you all your groceries. We are trying to sell a few articles that you use every day. We have taken Flour—something you use each day, and know its value as a leader.

Take the two leading brands of flour for example, the ones you see advertised everywhere in daily papers, magazines, street cars; add that bit of cost to your flour and you have one reason why you pay $1.05 and $1.10 per sack today. (This is an age of can't be done.)

THE SUNSHINE SHOP sells one kind of flour—a flour that is placed on the market without any noise, by quiet fellows, who know what they are talking about. People who use it say it is the best bread flour they have ever used. All we have to say regarding it, had better be said personally at the SHOP. A TRIAL sack costs 90 cents. If given a fair trial you will find ANGELUS FLOUR equal to the best flour on the market today at any price.

We would be pleased to sell you a quart or a pint of Rae's Sublime Lucca Olive Oil at 80 cents the quart, 40 cents the pint. Call up 124-2 and we will try and interest you with the flour or the olive oil. We have other goods to sell such as you will find at a first class country store.

NEW MUSICAL STAR.

Muriel Terry who has scored an exceptional individual hit as Volunteer Cadet Marosi in "The Gay Hussars" at the Boston Theatre, will be starred by Henry Savage next season in a new operetta called "Prince Willie" in which the little comedienne will play the title role.

Miss Terry made her first public appearance singing in English at the Broadway premiere of "The Gay Hussars," and the daughter of Col. Charles Terry, of the British Army, who is stationed with his regiment at Lahore, India, where Miss Terry was born.

When her parents objected to a stage career for Miss Terry the latter unceremoniously left England and went to Germany in search of an operatic engagement. As she could not speak German she had a trying time until she mastered the language and secured an engagement at the Hof und Nationaltheater in Mannheim, where, ultimately she became the leading mezzo-soprano.

Among the grand opera roles which Miss Terry sang at Mannheim, and during engagements in Innsbruck and Aachen, were Hansel in "Hansel und Gretel," Nicklaus in "The Tales of Hoffman," Amneris in "Aida," and the Prince in "Fledermaus."

Usually singers proceed from light to grand opera, but Miss Terry has reversed the rule. She retains but one grand opera ambition—to sing in "Samson" the role of Delilah, which she was studying when Mr. Savage engaged her for "The Gay Hussars." Miss Terry is the first woman in several years to score a big success in America playing a boy's role in operetta.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The regular order of service, morning and afternoon, will be resumed next Sunday. Besides the services at 10.30 and 5, there will be the service of the Holy Communion at 8 a. m.

The first session of the Sunday School will be held next Sunday at 12.15 p. m. The Kindergarten and Primary meet in the Choir Room, and the higher grades at Waterfield Hall.

THE PROHIBITORY

AMENDMENT.

Before this amendment can be secured two legislatures must vote to submit this question to the people and then a day will be appointed when the men can vote on this question alone. It takes it out of party politics.

We really are asking for a referendum, an opportunity for the people to vote on this question. It is twenty years since the people voted on this question and the great prohibition victories all over the country and the increase of prohibition territory in Massachusetts justify us in affirming that the time is now ripe. Law is an educator.

Our standard is, "All license of an evil thing is a sin." A state-wide prohibitory law is the only law consistent with this standard. To work for this is right. We believe there would be as much sentiment in favor of enforcement as there is for the enforcement of other just laws. The agitation for the law will in itself educate public sentiment.

Vote to send men to the legislature who will favor this bill.

STATE POLITICS

Caucuses Will be Held Next Week, Then the Campaign

DRAFTER HIS OWN PLATFORM

Some of the Fruits of His Administration Seen in Reduced State Tax.

Merging of Boards and Departments.

to Save the Taxpayers' Money

The caucuses to elect delegates to the various conventions will be held next week and the active campaign will then be practically on. After the caucuses it will soon be determined who are to be the nominees for the various offices. So far as the state tickets are concerned, the leaders of both sides are already well known.

Governor Draper will be unanimously renominated and all the other state officers now serving will be added to the ticket without opposition. The governor is extremely busy these days representing the state at various functions throughout the Commonwealth. The best platform he can possibly have is his record as acting governor and governor.

Under his administration the state tax has been reduced by the enormous amount of $1,000,000. It will also be noticed that during the last session of the legislature there were no recess committees drawing pay for work which was practically useless to the state but which furnished occupation and compensation in the past to a considerable number of members of the great and general court. This was a saving which the people will appreciate.

Merging of Departments

Another splendid piece of work carried out on the recommendation of Mr. Draper is the consolidation of the state board of education and the commission on industrial education. There was no necessity for both these boards when one could do the work as well. Another piece of legislation for which the governor is responsible is the change in the method of making appropriations for improvements in harbors and public lands, whereby there is provided an annual appropriation of $100,000 for each year for the period of three years. Under the previous long-rolling policy of making these appropriations piecemeal in the legislature, a great deal of money was wasted and some work which was really needed was neglected.

The agitation for the conservation of the state's lumber supply has been materially aided by the passage of a law relieving from taxation newly planted woodlands for a term of years. The new fire laws, also, passed for the preservation of the forests, are measures recommended by the governor. The consolidation of the Charles river basin commission and the metropolitan parks commission merges the former with the latter after a certain date and thereby will result in a large saving in salaries and office expenses. Whatever work remains to be done on the Charles river basin after that commission goes out of office will be handled by the park commission. Another money-saving change was the merging of the gypsy moth commission with the office of the state forester. This merger has been found to work well. Another piece of legislation recommended by the governor was that permitting towns to lease lands to individuals for the culture of lobsters and mollusks.

The Boston Charter Measure

There is another measure which had the recommendation of the governor and was supported by the leading citizens of Boston, namely, the Boston charter bill. This was enacted after considerable opposition and under it the governor has appointed a finance commission which stands as one of the strongest ever named by a Massachusetts executive. Its members include ex-Congressman John A. Sullivan, John F. Moore, ex-Police Commissioner Charles P. Curtis, Francis N. Bailey and George F. Leary.

Another matter which had the warm support of the governor throughout was the Act incorporating the Boston Broad Holding company. This corporation was organized to purchase the stock of the Boston and New Bedford Railroad held by a man named Ballard, a citizen of Connecticut, his holdings constituting a controlling interest in that road. Under the new majority of the directors of the holding company must be citizens of Massachusetts, this bringing back to this state the control of the New Bedford and Maine. For two or three years this control has been held by a man of the state, ostensibly by Mr. Ballard but probably through him by the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. Very shortly it is expected that the holding company will secure the transfer of these shares from Mr. Ballard to its own vaults, thereby consummating a result which many citizens have desired, and straightening out a vexatious tangle, a continuation of which would have benefited no one.

Appointment of Arthur D. Hill

One of the notable appointments made by Governor Draper was that of Arthur Dehon Hill of Boston to be district attorney for Suffolk county in place of John B. Moran, deceased.

STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS.
County of Middlesex, SS.
I, C. E. BARRETT, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

C. E. BARRETT, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 17th day of September, 1909.

Correct Attest: FRANK L. RIPLEY,
GEORGE A. FERNALD,
FREDERICK E. HOVEY,
Directors.

The governor had known Mr. Hill for some time and when the vacancy in the office occurred, he looked about him to find a keen, energetic, person, capable of being put in the place. He sized up Mr. Hill as a man who could fill the position in a manner acceptable to the disinterested Boston public. That his judgment of Mr. Hill was accurate has been proven beyond a doubt by the brilliant success which has followed his trial of a number of cases left on the docket by John B. Moran. Mr. Hill has certainly covered himself with glory and proved a distinct credit to the governor who appointed him.

Another excellent appointment was that of Arthur R. Chapin of Holyoke to be bank commissioner. Mr. Chapin was state treasurer at the time he was selected but his term would have expired at the end of this year, and having served in that office five years, he was not eligible for re-nomination; consequently the governor, knowing his sterling qualities and his keen business judgment, believed him to be just the man for the place. It is the general verdict that Mr. Chapin in the five or six months he has been in the office has made good in every sense.

Former Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown will undoubtedly be the Democratic candidate for governor unless something entirely unforeseen should occur prior to the convention. While he is acknowledged to be a fair campaign speaker, he will find it necessary to present something besides eloquence to overcome a record such as Governor Draper has made during the present year.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Since his arrival in Boston a week ago, travelling in a palace car, and lurching with a large party at hotel Touraine, Peter the famous chimpanzee created more talk than anybody, with the possible exception of the explorers Perry and Cook.

At Keith's his performances have been so startling and the theatre is crowded daily to see his wonder. Besides eating at a table, smoking like a man, and doing the ordinary things of life, Peter is an expert bicycle rider, goes on roller skates, and does other stunts that are surprising when done even by men and women on the stage. He remains at Keith's for another week at the head of one of those bills that is making this theatre more talked about than ever. On it will be those famous New England comedians, Will Cressy and Blanche Dwyer, who will present one of their sketches of New England life; The Kamos, the English luring act; Pat Rooney and Marion Bent in a sketch; Oscar Lorraine who impersonates great musicians; The Vivians and others.

For balls and parties have Smith's Orchestra. Absolutely the lowest prices and the best music that can be had. A postal to Charles Smith, 47 Harvard street, or telephone 317-2, will secure prompt attention. No union, so can make price and suit conditions. Post.

MARRIED.

MURRAY — NELAUGH — Sept. 12, Matthew Murray of Montvale and Beside Nelaugh of this town.

Warren

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand are, first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk floss is a non-combustible vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It is soft, gets ridges, and is extremely light and clean. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great springiness for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

Use the best bed ticking on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse hair. This hair is taken from the necks and tails of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great spring qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Made in best ticking, two parts, five inch deep, and fully warranted.

THE COMING OUT OF MAGGIE.

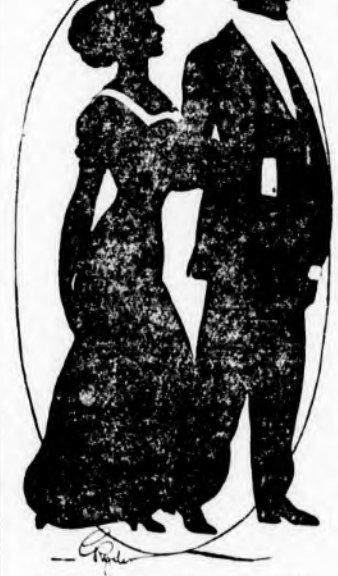

How a Whilom Wallflower Blossomed Into a Belle.

By O. HENRY.

(Copyright, 1909, by McClure, Phillips & Co.)

Every Saturday night the Clover Leaf Social club gave a hop in the hall of the Give and Take Athletic association on the east side. In order to attend one of these dances you must be a member of the Give and Take, or if you belong to the division that starts off with the right foot in waiting you must work in Rhinegold's paper box factory. Still, any Clover Leaf was privileged to escort or be escorted by an outsider to a single dance. But mostly each Give and Take brought the paper box girl that he affected, and few strangers could boast of having shaken a foot at the regular hops.

Maggie Toole on account of her dull eyes, broad mouth and left handed style of foot work in the twostep went to the dances with Anna McCarty and her fellow. Anna and Maggie worked side by side in the factory and were the greatest chums ever. So Anna always made Jimmy Burns take her by Maggie's house every Saturday night so that her friend could go to the dance with them.

The Give and Take Athletic association lived up to its name. The hall of the association in Orchard street was fitted out with music making inventions. With the flairs thus built up, the members were wont to engage the police and rival social and athletic organizations in joyous combat. Between these more serious occupations the Saturday night hops with the paper box factory girls came as a relaxing influence and as an efficient screen, for sometimes the tip went around, and if you were among the elect that tipped up the dark back stairway you might see as neat and satisfying a little waterweight affair to a finish as ever happened inside the ropes.

On Saturdays Rhinegold's paper box factory closed at 3 p. m. On one such afternoon Anna and Maggie walked homeward together. At Maggie's door Anna said, as usual, "Be ready at 7 sharp, Mag, and Jimmy and me'll come by for you."

But what was this? Instead of the customary humble and grateful thanks from the unescorted one there were to be perceived a high poised head, a prideful dimpling at the corners of a broad mouth and almost a sparkle in the dim brown eyes.

"Thanks, Anna," said Maggie, "but you and Jimmy needn't bother tonight. I've a gentleman friend that's coming around to escort me to the hop."

The comedy Anna pounced upon her friend, shook her, chided and besought her. Maggie Toole catch a fellow—plain, dear, loyal, unattractive Maggie, so sweet as a plum, so unsought for by a twostep or a moonlit lurch in the little park? How was it? When did it happen? Who was it?

"You'll see tonight," said Maggie, flushed with the wine of the first grapes she had gathered in Cupid's vineyard. "He's swell all right. He's two inches taller than Jimmy and an up to date dresser."

MR. BUSINESS MAN!

Would you deliberately expose your wife or child to sickness by sending either of them out to deliver a message on a raw, stormy night?

Would you care to go yourself?

THINK A MINUTE!

Your wife, or some member of your family, is obliged to do this very thing,—perhaps go way in town on some domestic errand nearly every day,—unless there is a telephone in the house to do it for them.

If you have not a telephone, don't you think you owe one to your wife and family as a safeguard to their health?

The cost is but a few cents a day.

Decreasing Weight In Summer.

To the many persons who desire to reduce their weight during the summer months, the following is a ready and simple solution to their problem.

The surest way to reduce flesh without adopting means that will strain or weaken the body or system is to WEAR A WOOLEN SWEATER on warm days and take walks or other moderate exercise. Jockeys, prizefighters and other athletes to whom weight is a vital matter follow this plan.

The discomfort of the heavy garment in warm weather decreases as the person becomes accustomed to the procedure, and the burden becomes less onerous day by day.

Of course if a person will wear the sweater and perform some violent forms of exercise his weight will decrease all the more rapidly.

"University of the Stomach."

"We need a university of the stomach," said a well known St. Louis physician recently, "with a full set of professors of nutrition, digestion, assimilation and waste, as well as of general physiology, anatomy and general biology, or, better yet, each college and every common school in the land should teach how to take care of the body and how to save the stomach, particularly in the summer months, when carelessness in diet and living renders a person especially liable to disease."

Suggestion For a Day's Food.

Kate Upson Clark gives the following menu for a hot summer day:

If you want breakfast, dry toast or a crusty roll, with whatever beverage, preferably cocoa, you like, may suffice. Fruit or eggs may be added, and some feel that they cannot get along without a chop or a bit of steak.

For luncheon cold meat, salad with little or no oil and iced tea or lemonade are generally enough.

For dinner a light soup, with fish, lamb, beef or game, green vegetables, salad and fruit, either stewed or raw, should serve.

If coffee is desired it is best without milk.

Curious.

If a man is bettered his condition is improved; if he is "bested" he is really "worsted."

An Apt Simile.

Some men have a career like a golf ball. They are helped out of one hole only to get into another.—Lippincott's.

A Night Hawk Baby.

"Don't you ever put the baby to bed?" an astonished visitor at last exclaimed after the better part of the evening had worn away and the child of six months was still sitting up, cooing cheerfully. The young mother laughed. "Oh, yes," she explained with serene wisdom. "We put baby to bed at 12 p. m., and he sleeps until 12 m. Then he has his bath and goes out in the go-cart and sleeps most of the afternoon. Haven't you known many mothers who simply sacrifice all their time to the babies while they are little? I made up my mind before baby came that he would have to conform to our ways, not we conform to his. He has just as much sleep as babies who go to bed at 6 and sleep until 6, and he doesn't interfere with our evenings. We can take him with us when we go out or we can go feeling that he will be perfectly happy while we are away, because he won't cry for mother until midnight. We're regular night hawks, and so is baby."

The visitor was speechless. "Don't you think it's a good system?" the mother continued. "We think it is splendid."

"I think," the visitor answered in noncommittal tone, "that it would take a New York mother to invent the system."—New York Press.

No Wonder She Swooned.

Mrs. Lyndor John Appleton's mother instinct divined last evening that her son, Chumney Devere Appleton, was in trouble, so she took him to her room and said, "My son, tell your mother what troubles you."

It turned out that the young man was having a hard time. The girl he has been "going with" had refused him. Mrs. Appleton was indignant. She thinks it would be a honor for any girl in the west to marry an Appleton. "Why did she refuse you?" she asked her son, with fine scorn.

"Well," the boy replied between his teeth, "she objects to our family. She says she's a leader, that you're too fat and that everybody laughs at Daisey Mayne because she's a fool and talks about nothing but the greatness of her family." Chumney threw water in his mother's face, but at 3 o'clock this afternoon she was still in a swoon, with four doctors working on her.—Arlington Globe.

Applied Christianity.

Mother had baked several varieties of cakes, among them being some small, decorated ones for the children. All had received their share and were busy disposing of them upon the back veranda—that is, all except Isabel, who for some misdeed had been refused a share of the feast. Now, Isabel was four years old and had been attending a Sunday school for several weeks past, and in the school she learned a number of texts. She stood by the window watching the others make merry until her longing was too much for childish patience. So she walked over to the table, reached out her hand and solemnly repeated, "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Then a little fist closed firmly upon the largest, finest cake.—Woman's Home Companion.

Funeral Stories.

The great French artist Ingres when in Rome had a violent cold, and Mottez asked him how he managed to catch it. Ingres replied that it was through attending the funeral of M. X. "What—X, the art critic?" said Mottez. "I thought you hated him."

"That is why I went to see him buried," said Ingres.

Several years ago, at the funeral of a well known fire insurance official in Liverpool, much detested by his staff, it was remarked that an unexpectedly large number of them attended.

On one of them being asked for an explanation he said: "We wouldn't have missed it on any account. We want to be sure that he is buried."

The great artist, like the obscure clerk, has his littlenesses.

All For the Man.

A parson was sent for by a dying parishioner, who had always sternly refused to have anything to do with him before. He hurried to her bedside, found her in a most contrite mood and made the best of his opportunities in a long extempore prayer, ending with a sonorous "Amen."

The last word made her sit up with sudden energy. "Aye," she exclaimed, "that's it! It's a' for men and nowt for us poor women in this world!"

Wind Wheelbarrows.

One of the strangest sights in China is the wind wheelbarrow. It is drawn by a donkey, and when the wind is fair a sail is set. The wheel turns in the middle of a wooden frame, sustained by iron bars. Upon the frame are hung all kinds of utensils. The donkey is generally mounted by the paterfamilias, the son and heir is at the stern assisting all he can, while the mother and younger ones ride on the wheel.

The Truth Forced Home.

"I'm afraid," she sighed, "that I'm getting old."

"Why?" he asked.

"When I go to the grocery now the clerks don't nearly break their necks trying to beat one another in getting my orders."—Exchange.

Too Eminent.

"Why don't you ask your office boy to fetch those windows?"

"I ain't got the nerve to do it, old man. He was the valet-de-tour of his class."—Washington Herald.

PLAIN FACTS

The person who can afford to pay rent, can afford to buy a home.

After the first payment—which a part of your savings account will probably cover—the “carrying cost” of a home is less than the cost of rent for a similar house.

And a large part of this “carrying cost” is applied to paying for the property. This is important don’t you think?

We can show you some properties at figures that will strongly tempt you to own your home if you’ll let us.

A copy of the Shanghai Mercury received this week gives an interesting account of the very cordial reception given Consul John Fowler at Chetoo, China, on his arrival July 14th. Mr. Fowler, who is a Winchester boy, became prominent in the public eye during the Chinese uprising in 1900, and for the past winter and spring made his home in Winchester. He has now again taken up his duties at Chetoo. According to the Mercury account his reception was the event of the summer at Chetoo.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the question of the building of Washington street. It appears now that the street will not be built this fall. Numerous reasons are given—the recent ly built concrete drain must have time to harden and settle, a new drain has yet to be built at the foot of Lebanon street, the gas company has a main to lay and the electric road has still got its new rails to lay down. All these things make it out of the question to rebuild the street during the present year. Next year? Perhaps, if the street is still there.

It is understood that the Winchester Rock and Brick Co. is to resume work at its plant at Winchester Highlands shortly.

Messrs. Kelley & Hawes Co's new brick fire-proof storage building on Park street is finished and is ready for the storage of furniture and valuables. This is the best equipped and safest storage building in this section and patrons are assured that their goods will receive the best of care and attention. $25.00

FLETCHER-STORY.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Eldridge on Forest street Tuesday evening, when Miss Mary P. Story, sister of Mrs. Eldridge, and Mr. Percy I. Fletcher of Marlboro were united in marriage by Rev. Henry E. Dodge, pastor of the First Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at six-thirty in the presence of about 60 invited guests and relatives.

The bride was becomingly gowned in white satin, en train, with lace insertion and trimmings, and carried a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Warren A. Whitney of Worcester was matron of honor, and wore a dress of white satin and lace, carrying pink roses.

Mr. George Fletcher of Marlboro, brother of the groom, was best man. The wedding march was played by Mr. Alton B. Paul of Fairhaven.

At the reception which immediately followed the ceremony about 250 friends of the couple extended their good wishes. The ushers for the reception were Messrs. Edward Howe, Carl Stevens, and Edward Kingsbury of Marlboro, and Kenneth Eldridge, nephew of the bride.

The residence was handsomely decorated for the occasion with hydrangeas, palms, woodbine, wild barberries and pine boughs, and during the evening a spread was served by Young.

Many handsome presents were received by the couple from their hosts of friends, including checks, silver, cut glass and other valuables.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher will reside in Fairhaven, where the bride is well known as a former teacher in the public schools. Mr. Fletcher is engaged in business in New Bedford.

W. C. F. U. NOTES.

The local Union is busy making preparations for the Rummage Sale next Thursday, Sept. 30, afternoon and evening. A committee has been appointed to have charge of this but every member is urged to take an interest and solicit contributions from friends and neighbors so there may be an abundance of stock on hand to satisfy the customers. Any and all kinds of articles will be acceptable and everybody has something to discard. Contributions may be sent to the store next Miss Bowser's on Pleasant street, Wednesday or Thursday morning or will be called for if word is sent to Mrs. G. H. Hamilton, 31 Vine street, Tel. 125-4.

The proceeds of the sale are to be devoted to the various lines of work in which the Union is engaged, among them being the flower Mission, which supplies also delicacies for the sick; the sending of literature and comfort bags to soldiers, sailors and lumber men; helping in the support of the Willard Settlement on Chambers street, Boston, etc., etc. It does not often call upon the public to assist, but the past year it has been so generous that the treasury needs replenishing and so its friends are given the privilege of helping.

The twenty-fifth annual Middlesex County convention was held at South Acton, Wednesday, Messdames Hamilton, Rowe, Blood, Newth, Winn and Kelley went as delegates from the local union. The reports showed great increase of membership during the past year. Mrs. Rowe as County Superintendent of Sunday School work was one of the speakers.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the senior class held Tuesday, Walter Badger was elected president.

At a meeting of the class of 1911 Tuesday, Ruth Carpenter was elected president and Kenneth Caldwell vice-president.

At a meeting of the class of 1912 Tuesday Harold Wheatley was elected president but later resigned and Homer Colgate was elected in his place.

The freshmen held a meeting last week and organized the class of 1913. Ora Wingate was elected president, and Dean Wheatley vice-president.

At a meeting held last week Louis Goddu was elected class basket ball captain of 1912 and Stanley Mobbs was elected class basket ball captain of 1913. On the same day Kenneth Hilton was elected hockey captain and Dean Wheatley was elected class foot ball captain.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Alice Michaud one of the popular employees of the apron factory of Mr. Lucius Symmes on Pleasant street, was given a surprise party by her fellow employees on Wednesday night at her home on Nelson street.

During the evening she was presented with a silk umbrella and a gold pin from her friends, Mr. Symmes making the presentation speech. An evening of general enjoyment was spent by all.

Among those present were: Misses Ida Hendrickson, May Harold, Louise Delorey, Claudia LaForte, Elizabeth Delorey, Katherine Harold, Angie Harold, Tena McNulty, Anna Sullivan, Sadie Michaud, Pauline Harold, Mr. L. Symmes, Messrs. Birrell Ayer, Carl Small, George Lizotte, Ralph Frost, Thomas Burr, Joe LaForte, Jack Irving.

FRANKLIN W. PERRY.

The late Franklin W. Perry, who passed away last week at his home in Wilmington was prominently known among Winchester residents.

He was born in Norway, Maine, May 14, 1827, and was brought up in that town. He married for his first wife, Miranda Buck also of Norway and by her had only one son, Eugene. For many years he was in the leather business, in Peabody, Winchester, Wilmington and Boston. He built for Alexander Moseley, the first tannery on the site now occupied by Beggs and Cobb and was for many years in the employ of the Moseley concern. He afterwards was partner in the concerns of Perry and Shephard, Perry and White, Perry and Coverse and Perry and Harriman. His tannery at N. Wilmington was built by him in 1847. About three years ago he sold out all interest in the leather business and bought a farm in Wilmington at Brown's Crossing and formed the Wilmington Gray I Company and furnished sand, gravel and stone to contractors. He married for his second wife Mrs. Jennie Harriman of Haverhill and after her decease, was married for the third time to Ellen Shannon of Cambridge who survives him, together with three grandchildren, the children of his son Eugene.

He was for many years an active member of William Parkman Lodge, F. and A. M. He was present at the first meeting of the Winchester Unitarian Society held in the parlor of Dr. Frederick Winsor and was one of the building committee of the first church built by that society. He died Sept. 15, 1909, at North Wilmington from the effects of an apopleptic shock.

The funeral services took place Saturday, Sept. 18, in the Unitarian Church in Winchester and were conducted by Rev. William I. Lawrence. William Parkman Lodge conducted masonic ceremonies. The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

MRS. HENRY J. RICHBURG.

Mrs. Bertha (Wallace) Richburg, wife of Henry J. Richburg of No. 4 Winchester Park street, passed away at her home Wednesday, Three weeks ago she had a third in a series of paralytic shocks, which caused her death. She was 70 years of age.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Richburg leaves six children—Mrs. F. G. Field of Brockton, William H. of Lowell, George W. of Dillham, Bertha J. of this town, Mrs. C. E. Demain of Maplewood and Dr. Alfred G. of Winchester.

She was born in Germany, coming to this country when very young. For the past 35 years she has been a resident of Winchester. Besides being an attendant at the First Congregational church, she was a member of Medford Home Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor.

Funeral services will be held from the residence this Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. D. Augustine Newton. The burial will be in Wildwood.

THE MOTHER'S ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Mothers' Association was held in the High school on Wednesday, attended by about 100 members and interested guests. The speakers of the afternoon were Messrs. E. C. Wixom, principal of the High school, and I. H. Hefflon, principal of the Wadleigh school. Both gentlemen spoke entertainingly upon the general subject of school matters of interest to parents. Mr. Wixom emphasized the necessity for regular attendance of the pupils, punctuality, thoroughness, diligence and persistence, and suggested that parents could be of great service in the first two items. Mr. Hefflon suggested in his remarks that parents see their children's teachers occasionally, advise them regarding their pupils and interest themselves in the school life of their young folks. With much truth he stated that the child, with the best of intentions, often misrepresented what had actually occurred, both at home and school, and frequent intercourse with teachers on the part of the parent often prevented such misunderstandings.

A social hour was much enjoyed, refreshments being served to the guests by Miss Louise Taylor, Miss Elizabeth Hopkins, Miss Eleanor Barta and Miss Florence Estes.

WINCHESTER TO LOSE INSPECTOR OF MILK.

The announcement that Mr. Alfred W. Lombard of Eaton street is to move from town next month will mean Winchester will be obliged to seek a new inspector of milk. Mr. Lombard expects to leave town about the middle of October, going to Somerville, where he has leased a house on Electric avenue. He has sent his resignation as Milk Inspector to the Board of Health.

Winchester has been particularly fortunate in retaining Mr. Lombard's services, and through his energy and untiring efforts the town probably enjoys as good milk as is distributed in any part of the State. When Mr. Lombard took the office he inaugurated an entirely new system, which with his careful inspection, immediately improved the conditions surrounding the milk delivery in town. His experience in State work was of great value, and in his removal Winchester will lose a most efficient servant.

OUR PONDS AND STREAM.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

All citizens of Winchester share in the lively hope of the STAR that the forthcoming report of the town committee on ponds and stream will lead to beneficial results. Already the STAR reports that one family has been discovered which has polluted the stream with its drainage for two years in succession. This is a greater "find" than the last committee brought to light as it simply reported what all knew before the committee was appointed, that our ponds and stream are in bad condition and need attending to.

It is to be hoped that the new committee will report on every case of improper use of ponds and stream it can discover. Private individuals, the owner of the mill pond, manufacturers in town and out, the State of Massachusetts and the Town of Winchester should be strictly reported upon as to their respective uses of ponds and stream for drainage purposes. The committee should especially report on the effect on the water of the town and State filling the ponds with thousands of loads of street washings. It should decide whether it is better to keep naturally shallow ponds as deep and cool as possible by keeping out filling, or to deliberately shallow ponds and stream by street and parkway washings, thus causing the water to become super-heated in summer time, killing fish and encouraging all forms of lower water-plant growth. All these questions are as important to report upon as that of the family who has polluted the stream. If the committee thought best, it might also report on the equity, or propriety at least, of the practice of the town and State filling up a private mill pond without permission of any kind. If the town or State owned the ponds would it think it right for a private individual to do as they are doing, helping to make a nuisance of private property. How long would it take the Metropolitan Park Commissioners to stop such use of the ponds and stream if it had control of them? W.

WILL CLOSE SEASON OCT. 18TH.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Winchester Boat Club last Saturday night it was decided to close the club house for this season on Oct. 18th at which time the services of the Steward, Mr. Bernard M. Cooper, will terminate. Arrangements have been made, however, to keep the house open Saturday afternoons and Sundays for a few weeks following if the weather proves mild. After Oct. 18th no personal effects of the members are to be taken from the house, as it is to be absolutely closed.

It will be necessary for the club to build a new float next spring, and a committee has been appointed in view of putting in a new concrete float, or wharf, and runway.

At the meeting Saturday night three new members were elected to the Club. The club house is to be oiled and painted this month.

The first practice for the League team make-up was held on the Calumet alleys Tuesday night. About 25 bowlers are out to make the team this season. A match was rolled between two picked teams, and from now on the practice will go on actively. On Tuesday night the new ebonyite balls were used. These balls are 4 1/2 inches in diameter and weigh 2 lbs. 6 oz. The ordinary balls formerly used weighed from 2 lbs. 2 ozs to 2 lbs 4 ozs, varying with the grain and texture of the wood. According to the new rules made by the League, the ebonyite ball will probably be used almost exclusively. At the close of the bowling, those present enjoyed a substantial lunch, provided by Judge Littlefield.

INTERESTING EUROPEAN TRIP

Winchester Lady Enjoyed Many Sights in Foreign Countries.

The following account of the "Bachelor Party's" European trip recently appeared in a Lowell paper. Among the party were Mrs. John Walker, jr., of this town and her sister, Mrs. Lowe, of Lowell. The party made a flying trip through the picturesque parts of Europe and their itinerary was remarkably complete for a summer visit, occupying but some ten weeks. The story of the trip is given as follows:

We sailed from Boston, a party of 15 persons, on the White Star line steamship "Cynire," June 29, and landed at Queenstown July 4. Taking the first connecting train, we proceeded to Cork, where at the Hotel Metropole we spent our first night on European soil.

In Ireland, we drove to Blarney castle, where two members of the party, kissed the famous Blarney stone, heard several selections played on the bells of Shandon, spent two days at Glengarriff, where 60 of his majesty's warships were anchored in Bantay bay, directly in front of our hotel, made a coaching tour of 40 miles between Glengarriff and Killarney, were rowed across the beautiful lakes, carried by the ponies through the Gap of Dunloe, and entertained by a descendant of Kate Kearney at her world-renowned cottage.

From Ireland we crossed the Irish sea and entered England. One day's stay at old Chester, with its walls, its "rows" and its beautiful cathedral, and we were off again. Another coaching trip was made between Leamington and Stratford-on-Avon, Kenilworth and Warwick castle being visited on the way. The four days in London were busy ones, the different points being visited most of the time of intelligent guides. At Oxford, carriages were found waiting for us at the station, and a half-day was spent in visiting the college buildings.

Paris came next in order. No one of the party failed to see Whistler's picture of his mother at the Luxembourg gallery, as each felt that in that picture he had a special interest.

All were delighted with Switzerland, Geneva, Mont Blanc, Lake Lemann, Montreux, the castle of Chillon, Tell's chapel, Interlaken the Jungfrau, the Grindelwald glacier, Lucerne, the Lion of Thorwaldsen, we had read about them, and now we had actually seen them. We were fortunate in being in Lucerne August 1, which is to the Swiss people what our Fourth of July is to us. We witnessed their celebration, which consisted of music and a series of tableaux, the exercises being conducted in the plaza directly in front of the historic hotel. The city was beautifully illuminated during the evening; the figures in the flames from the summit of Mount Pilatus presenting an appearance so weird that it could never be forgotten.

In order then came Heidelberg, with its castle and university, Weissenhof and its celebrated baths, the Rhine and Cologne. Again fortune favored us. In Cologne we stood in front of the famous cathedral and saw Count Zeppelin in his airship. Zeppelin II, come over the city and sail around the two massive spires. The event was considered of so much importance that every store in the city was closed, the entire population either standing in the streets or mounting the house tops. One of the most interesting features of the trip was the visit to the battlefields of Waterloo from Brussels in Belgium. An intensely interesting and graphic description of the battle was given us by a retired officer of the British army. Though he spoke in terms of highest praise of both Wellington and Napoleon, he remarked that the last century had produced but one man who was both leader and commander, Gen. Stonewall Jackson.

We saw two very distinct phases of Dutch life in our visits to the Isle of Maarsse, where the people live in a very primitive way, and to the famous watering place, Scheveningen, the "Atlantic City" of Holland.

One incident of the tour, of a somewhat personal nature, may be of interest. I planned to go from Antwerp to Brussels to meet two ladies who were to leave Basel at 8:05 in the morning and reach Brussels at 8:11 in the evening. A train left Brussels for Antwerp at 8:18. The porter at my hotel assured me that I should have no difficulty in making the connection and said he would send his "bus" to the station to meet us. As the time for the arrival of the Switzerland train approached, I was a little anxious and asked the station master if the train, making so long a run, was not frequently late. His reply was that that train, though making a run of over 100 hours, had not been one minute late for three months.

Though the party was a unit in agreeing that they would prefer America for a home to any place visited by them, the question frequently arose, "If you were compelled to live somewhere in Europe, and in some place visited during the summer, what place would it be?"

There was always a division of opinion, the answers being either Glengarriff in Ireland, or Montreux in Switzerland.

The party returned the first of this month on the Red Star liner Menemsee from Antwerp.

No one thing will give so much pleasure to so many people, for so long a time, at so little cost, as a Columbia Graphophone. Yours truly, GENE B. FAIRBANK.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

The fellow who travels up and down the town with elongated disease-spreading whiskers often feels a trifle fussed up of course. Rip'em off brother.

A prominent churchman wants a censorship over the press established, and news papers prohibited from printing literature which describes crimes, tragedies and social evils. While The Spectator agreed that some of the details could be belittled, nevertheless, such a rule as this churchman proposes would prevent the republication of certain parts of the Bible, and the repetition of the story of the crucifixion of the Son of Man.

A Winchester Grand Army man recently informed The Spectator that during the Civil War every soldier performed learned something of cookery by experience. "Roasting it is half the charm of camp life," says this veteran, "and if guardsmen should acquire the rudiments of cookery and prepare their own plain meals in camp they would find a new zest in their annual outing and learn one of the prime essentials of soldier life." When The Spectator was a little fellow his grandfather, who was a major in the Army of the Potomac, often told how he fried hard tack and pork grease in the half section of a tin can, with a stiff wire for a handle.

The Spectator is a frequent visitor in the best homes of Winchester and he knows of no town where husband and wife understand each other better than they do here in Winchester. The Spectator has found Winchester husbands the most companionable on earth and the wives, well, there are none better on earth. Winchester is a town of happy homes and domestic felicity is a thing almost unknown.

A prominent citizen interested in those of our townsmen afflicted with the dread tuberculosis suggests the erection of two or three shacks for the treatment of those in the advanced stages of the disease, but as The Spectator pointed out, Winchester is such a healthy community that the White Plague has never had much of an opportunity to secure a foothold here. From what local physicians give The Spectator to understand, there cannot be a half dozen consumptives in the whole town, and these can be just as well at home as in their own homes. Therefore this citizen's suggestion is not the wise one that it would appear to be, at least so far as Winchester is concerned.

A Main street gentleman wants a drastic automobile law passed. He says that many of the speed maniacs are so wealthy that a fine is no hardship, and for such men he suggests imprisonment for not less than sixty days.

The Spectator is in receipt of the following:

Dear Spectator—Your paragraphs are very interesting and they are being very favorably commented upon by our best citizens. Let the good work go on. An Old Subscriber.

Thanks, brother, thanks! The Spectator hopes this citizen and many others may find something in this column every week to merit attention and to meet with approval.

At the post-office the other day The Spectator saw a stunningly attired young woman, but was pained to notice that she wore a pair of gloves with the finger-tips protruding.

Bible readings in the parlors of Winchester will be a feature of society—diversion shall it be said?—this winter. STAR readers who may conclude from this preface that society is becoming pious will be disappointed when The Spectator points out that the new movement finds its supporters among the agnostics, and that the old Bible will be selected solely with the rhetorical and oratorical possibilities of its stately language in view. The Spectator understands that a very prominent Winchester young gentleman has studied the Psalms this summer for the purpose of reading them aloud this winter, and is very eager for the opening of the reading season, which usually dates from about November 15th. From the Psalms he hopes to progress to the Book of Job, smile upon the select of Winchester graciously smile upon the bold experiment in its first phase. Perhaps to a portion of his hearers A. Conan Doyle is more familiar than the Holy Scriptures. But does this young Winchester reader pitch his estimate of his powers rather high in assuming that he can do justice to the eloquent possibilities of the melancholy and majestic poetry of the Old Testament? The Psalms, read in reverent tones untrained by the elocutionist, are beautiful and impressive, the more so from the absence of any studied effort to attain effect. Hear the trembling voice of the white-haired old woman who finds her Bible a very present help and comfort as the gloom from the land of shadows and great darkness gathers about her failing sight; the ease with which her tones lend themselves to the pathetic language is beyond anything elocution could teach. Listen to the voice of the old preacher, the man of simple, earnest faith, who, through the gathering shadows, describes the spires of the holy city, and who reads the glorious promise of the future in the exultant strains of the soldier whose eyes brighten as he approaches the field of assured victory! In these we have an effect that elocution seeks to teach, but which comes here untaught. Literary curiosity is scarcely the atmosphere that prepares a Winchesterite to read the Scriptures. Judged from the standpoint of elocution alone the requirements of the Book of Job might doubt the greatest reader that Winchester ever produced.

A Pleasant street gentleman has established a great reputation for his repartees, among his own set. "I suppose," The Spectator heard him say one day, "that my repartees will get me into trouble some day, but if a Winchesterite is blessed with a natural gift of that sort, why, what has he to do but exercise it?" This sort of talk made The Spectator a little curious to hear one of the Pleasant street gentleman's repartees. His curiosity was gratified the other day when a friend remarked to him: "I think, my dear fellow, that you really ought to govern your tongue a little." "Shut up!" said the Pleasant street gentleman. It was one of his repartees.

"Doctor, can you tell me what will prevent my food from hurting me?" said The Spectator to one of our Winchester physicians not long ago. "Nothing easier. Don't eat it," said the doctor. Of course The Spectator laughed heartily and said "very good joke that." "Not at all," said the physician. "Two dollars, please, if you have any further trouble, come again and we'll try some other course."

A Winchester physician tells The Spectator that before retiring for the night the corners of the eyes should be massaged to help keep away crow's feet. For this the forefinger should be dipped into cream and rubbed in rotary motion about the eye corners, making the upward stroke harder than the downward. A little prevention such as this obviates a later cure, he says.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

Services at the regular hours were resumed last Sunday.

The Sunday School opened last Sunday with a good attendance and it is hoped by Sunday that all the members of the school will be in their places.

The September meeting of the vestry was adjourned from the regular date and the vestry will meet a week from Wednesday, October 6, at the rector's house at 8 p. m.

The first meeting of the Woman's Guild comes Tuesday, October 5th.

The town is full of old-timers who regret that they did not buy Winchester real estate years ago. You'll be doing the same thing a few years hence unless you get some property now. See Geo. Adams Woods.

THE DOG AND THE CARRIER.

The postman may pass his hat, "Cave emen!" A new postal bulletin runs as follows: "Carriers are not required to deliver mail at residences where vicious dogs are permitted to run at large."

This rule will bring relief. Too active dogs will be chained up by persons who enjoy the electricity with which the postman sorts letters while repelling flank attacks of an agile terrier, or the ponderous attacks of a lumbering St. Bernard. They prefer passive delivery to a walk to the postoffice.

The gas man and the bill collector, however, are left on the anxious seat. They have nothing the householder is anxious to get, and only the employer would care if their services were suspended. We recommend for their protection a gun guard and a horse ball catcher's mask.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. PARK THEATRE.

Special Correspondence.

Vacation's end and the return to Boston finds all theatres open again. To make a first choice was difficult, indeed; so, I let myself out of the difficulty by hiring a car to the Park Theatre to see "A Gentleman from Mississippi." The reason for my choice was that I had seen it already, not once, but twice in New York, where it ran right through the heat of the summer in piling up its honest year's record in the Bijou Theatre.

12" DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.

As it does in "A Gentleman from Mississippi"—Park Theatre, Boston.

The five girls were the same quintette I had seen in New York. Indeed, the entire cast is just the same, down to the jolly clerk who tells inquiring tourists that "The B. & O. stops everywhere," and bids the bell boy show young Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed to "Suite sixteen." It is a cast just as splendid as the bottom and on the sides and through the middle and around the edges as it is at the top, with the beaming, infectious Wise and the sprightly, magnetic Fairbanks. As to those girls, it is hard to begin with any one of them without seeming to be slighting the other four.

And I intend seeing a great deal more of "A Gentleman from Mississippi." Believe me, I am certain that Boston is going to just wild over this play, as did both New York and Chicago.

Faithfully yours,
Mary Dacombe.

ELECTRIC SHOW, BOSTON.

An attraction that will draw thousands of visitors to Boston in November will be the great Electric Show which will be held in Boston, Nov. 15th to 25th. Already hundreds of novelties have been submitted to General Manager Chester L. Cam bell, and from present indications the highest attainments and most modern electrical achievements will be represented. In fact, the possibilities are unlimited in making an exhibition of this character of great interest and educational value to the general public. The diversity of exhibits will prove a veritable "wonder world."

Manager Campbell has evolved an entirely new scheme for decorating and illumination, which will give the exhibition floor, and in fact the whole interior, not only a uniform but extremely harmonious and beautiful aspect. Approximately one hundred thousand incandescent electric lights will be used presenting a sight never before witnessed.

Particular attention is being given the industrial exhibits, which will represent manufacturing processes of all kinds in actual operation and show the great strides that have been made by the manufacturers since the electric motor has been in use.

There will also be comprehensive exhibits of modern electrical appliances in every day use all the novelties in time and labor saving and comfort giving devices. When it is realized to how many uses this power is now put in modern housekeeping it will astonish even those who have thought they were up-to-the-times. There will be something of interest to the layman the expert the manufacturer the jobber the housekeeper the ladies and even the children.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

For two weeks, Peter, the man monkey has been the most talked about being in New England; in fact it is doubtful whether any attraction that has ever come to the theatre has can ed more comment than this wonderful Simian who has been giving exhibitions at Keith's. Peter has become popular with all classes and in a number of cases the demand for seats has been so great that thousands have been turned away.

For next week another strong bill has been secured, one of the features being Tom Edwards, the famous English ventriloquist.

Will M. Cressy and Blanche Dwyer, the New England character delineators, will remain for another week presenting that ever popular comedy "Town Talk To-night."

Another strong comedy feature will be James Harrigan, the tramp juggler, and others on the bill will be the Kellins, Paul Stevens the wonderful pole balancer Arthur Cameron who sings English non-sense songs, and others.

SHORT EDITORIALS.

That Winchesterite who picks his teeth in public appears deucedly carnivorous.

"One noise nuisance in Winchester that should be abated is the bill collector who talks loud."

The reason some women get off the trolley car the wrong way is because men get off the right way.

There are some persons who boast of their genealogical trees who can't spell them without consulting the dictionary.

The only trouble with the climate here in Winchester is that it give a man such an appetite he gets hungry while he is eating.

Winchester is to be congratulated upon its progressiveness and general morality. It is a fact well known that Winchester is one of the cleanest towns in the Commonwealth.

It should ever be born in mind that the sale of pure meat means a great deal to the health of the people of this community. As far as we know the dealers of Winchester sell only the very best obtainable.

The other day we heard a young lady remark that a certain young Winchesterite was "awfully good looking." Thinking the dictionary might have changed along with the varying modes in all things else, we consulted it. According to Webster, "awful" means "that which strikes in the dread and terror, ugly and despicable." We are at a greater loss than before to determine whether the young lady meant to compliment him or "hand him a lemon."

In discussing the suffrage question the Christian Register says—

"But the one great obstacle to the success of the suffragists is, in our opinion, the employment of wrong methods. The persons to be convinced are not the men, not even the men who are legislators, but the women who surround them and whom the men represent in legislation. Every legislator is the centre of a group of women. A normal group would consist of mother, two or three aunts, several cousins, his wife, and one or two daughters. Now it is inconceivable that if each legislator went to his seat to serve as a lawmaker with the definite knowledge that three-fourths of the women in his family group desired him to vote for suffrage, suffrage would not be voted before the end of the next session. That the majority of the women in the most of these groups are either indifferent to suffrage or opposed to it is the one consideration that affects the mind of the average legislator, and makes him stubborn in his resistance. Let woman convince women, and the work is done."

THE CHOATE HOSPITAL AT WOBURN.

The following article clipped from the Woburn Journal, sustains the local committee in its recent action in returning Mrs. Harrington's bequest:

A short time ago the Journal suggested that the city of Woburn ought to contribute to the support of the Choate Hospital by taxation. The following strengthens that proposition. It is taken from a communication by Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, President of the Winchester Hospital Association.

Mr. Parkhurst says: "But after purchasing the land and erecting a building a still greater problem remained to be solved—and that was how was the hospital to be maintained? After visiting several hospitals and examining the reports of many, we came to the conclusion that it was the universal experience that hospitals such as was contemplated by the donor could not be self-supporting. A hospital's income naturally comes from three sources: First, from patients; second, from endowments; and third from charitably disposed persons or institutions."

In these sources of income there is not much encouragement, at the present time, for the Woburn Association. It has no endowment; its revenue from patients cannot go very far towards supporting the Hospital; and as for popular contributions, everybody knows that they are an uncertain quantity.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. Charles S. Adams, for many years connected with Mr. George E. Morrill in his store on Church street, has entered partnership with Mr. George A. Dupee in the grocery and provision business.

For the first time since last April the town was entirely free from scarlet fever this week. So far this year there have only been two cases of diphtheria in town, the last one occurring some months ago. The two cases of typhoid fever in town at the present time were both contracted in other places, and these patients are both convalescing.

Secretary Stewart of the Public schools, had as callers at his office Theodore P. and Mrs. Wilson, publishers of the Winchester, (Mass.) STAR, and L. W. Brewster of the Portsmouth (N. H.) Chronicle. Secretary Stewart showed the visitors through some of the schools, and the teachers gave brief exhibitions of the work of the scholars. The visitors from the States were much impressed with the morale of the different rooms visited, and also with the brightness of the teachers and the interest manifested by them in their charges. Mr. Wilson made interesting remarks on school matters to some of the classes. The guests decided that the schools of Charlestown are fully abreast of those in the New England States, and that the city had an exceedingly able and progressive man at the head of the public school system. —Charlestown, P. E. L. Guardian.

The double house No. 1 and 2 Rangeley has been let to Messrs. E. C. Wixon, principal of the High school, and Mr. Schuyler F. Herron, superintendent of schools, the former gentleman taking the apartment at No. 1, and the latter No. 2. The rental was made through the office of Sewall E. Newman.

All are cordially invited to attend the opening of Fall and Winter Millinery at Boston Millinery Shop, Stoneham, Oct. 7th, 8th, 9th. Miss Lahan has just returned from New York and will display a large line of New York and Boston Pattern hats.

The engagement has been announced this week of Miss Susan Clapp Hills, daughter of Mrs. Henry F. Hills of Amherst, to David Nelson Skillings Jr.

THE NEXT REPRESENTATIVE.

During the last two years Winchester has had the representative, Lewis Parkhurst in 1908 and Frank E. Barnard in 1909. For the next two years the office comes to Medford and inasmuch as ward 6 had it during 1906 and 1907, it is well understood that ward 3 will have it for 1910 and 1911. Mr. Fay was the undisputed choice of the Republican leaders in the district and except for the fact that Edward C. Walking has filed nomination papers for delegates, Mr. Fay's list of delegates to the representative convention would be the only one printed on the ballot. Mr. Walking was the unsuccessful candidate for mayor last year on the poultry breeders' platform and his candidacy is not taken seriously by the Republicans of the district.

For six years Mr. Fay was chairman of the Republican Ward and City committee of Medford and for one year previously he was treasurer of the committee. He has also been treasurer of the Eighth Congressional district committee for the last eight or nine years. —Medford Mercury.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

It is an entertaining play of New England rural life that Mr. Craig and his stock company will give next week at the Castle Square Theatre. All those qualities which have made the popularity of "The Old Homestead," "Way Down East" and many others, are equally apparent in "Our New Minister," which has not been seen in Boston for a period of nearly ten years.

Many types of quaint character as it is seen in a New England town are included in the cast of this play. The stage settings, too, will bring to life the rural surroundings that we know so well. The leading roles of Thaddeus Strong and Nance Ransom will be respectively acted by Mr. Craig and Gertrude Binley, while in the other important characters will appear Mr. Friebeus as Lem Ransom, Mr. Meek as Darius Sturte, Mr. Hassell as Curtis Hotten, Mr. Roberts as "Skeezicks," Wilfred Young as Jack Frazier, Bert Young as Hannibal Chapman, Mabel Colcord as Dorcas Tattlebury.

John P. Leonard was found guilty of assault and battery on John P. Conneally in the Woburn District Court, before Judge Maguire Friday morning. It is alleged that a crowd of boys of which Leonard was a member had made considerable trouble for Mr. Conneally and that last week while passing them on his way home he had trouble with the result that Leonard was brought into court.

Miss Katherine Dolan and Miss Annie Scanlon with a party of friends from Boston left Wednesday to spend a week at the White Mountains.

The people of Woburn will be glad to learn that some more of the improvements in transportation asked for by the Woburn Progress League are about to be granted. In an informal talk the other day, Supt. Robinson of the Southern Division informed Mr. William W. Crowley of the special committee that an express train leaving Woburn at 7:50 a. m. would shortly be put on. Another afternoon train leaving Boston at 5:03 p. m. is proposed. It is still hoped that the 5:44 p. m. train may be made express to Woburn.—Woburn Times.

FELLS SIGNAL SYSTEM.

A modern police signal system is being installed throughout the Fells, and one may see here and there through the forest lands, along the highways and sequestered paths, linemen stringing double wires, twisted and insulated, that will soon make it possible to police the great woodland reservation in the manner of a big city. In most cases a novel kind of insulator is being used, a rod of iron with angles, fixed to the trees with heavy screws. Along the main roads hollow cast iron post are already in place, and to the tops of these the familiar blue signal boxes will be fastened in a few days, and as soon as possible the new system will be inaugurated along the boulevards and principal roads. The Mystic Valley Parkway is also to be included, as well as the entire circuit of Spot Pond and the long stretches of woodland around the Winchester reservoirs and Turkey Swamp.

The central signal office will be at the beautiful new Middlesex Fells police station on Forest street in Medford. In all it is planned to have twenty-four signal boxes at widely diverse points, and several miles of wire will be required to cover the district.

WINCHESTER INDEPENDENTS DEFEATED TOWANDA CLUB.

The Towanda Club of Woburn was given a severe defeat in its game with the Independents on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon, the home team clinching the game in the first inning when five runs were scored. Towanda scored one run in the seventh.

Outside of the first inning, the game was a good one, both sides playing good ball. Sevens made the feature play for Towanda, getting a two-bagger, and LeDuc for the Independents made a sensational catch off first base. Wall pitched a fairly good game, passing but one and striking out six. Foley passed one and struck out ten.

Towanda was slow in getting into the game in the first inning and the Independents by bunting their hits and aided by three errors by the Towanda fielders, got their five runs. After the first inning Towanda steadied down and played a good game as shown by the result, not a run being made against them. The score stood 5 to 1 at the finish. Benjamin F. Matthews, jr., captained the home team, which was composed principally of High school boys.

I manufacture all kinds of good mattresses and sell them at retail. I find that among the best sellers, or those that are the most in demand, are first, my combination mattress, made of African and Poplar Fibres, with a good thick layer of clean cotton on the top, and bottom, made up in the celebrated Webster ticking in two parts, and sold for

$5.00

This mattress is made to sleep on and for wear, as well, and is the best mattress that can be made for the price.

Another mattress that is fast growing in favor is one that I make of Silk Floss, the same kind that is used in sofa pillows. Silk floss is a non-absorbent vegetable fibre which grows near the equator. It never gets lumpy, and is extremely light and fleecy. The strong points of a Silk Floss Mattress are its lightness and softness, great qualifications for a mattress.

The Price is $12.00

I use the best hair ticking on this mattress, and if you have one in your guest chamber, you need not hesitate to ask your guests in the morning if they rested well.

A mattress that has always proved satisfactory in every way, and has added more to my reputation for making first-class mattresses than any other, is the mattress that I make of pure South American horse hair. This hair is taken from the manes and tails of live horses, and is thoroughly cleaned and purified, rendering it absolutely clean and wholesome. It does not absorb moisture, and will last a lifetime. It has great resilient qualities, and for sound sleep has no equal.

Price $20.00

Made in best ticking, two parts, five inch box, and full weight.

MR. BUSINESS MAN!

Would you deliberately expose your wife or child to sickness by sending either of them out to deliver a message on a raw, stormy night?

Would you care to go yourself?

THINK A MINUTE!

Your wife, or some member of your family, is obliged to do this very thing,—perhaps go way in town on some domestic errand nearly every day,—unless there is a telephone in the house to do it for them.

If you have not a telephone, don't you think you owe one to your wife and family as a safeguard to their health?

The cost is but a few cents a day.

Confer with our LOCAL MANAGER.

NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

WHAT TO EAT IN SUMMER.

According to some dietists, the summer don'ts are so numerous that there appears to be little left that is appetizing. It is agreed by observers that it is rational to avoid all forms of food known to be injurious at other seasons. There is no reason to suppose that they are less likely to make trouble during the heated term.

EAT MEAT NOT MORE THAN ONCE A DAY and alternate this with fish if it can be procured absolutely fresh. Get the needed strength at two meals from milk and eggs and from dishes in which these foods have been incorporated, such as milk soups and custard puddings.

Use crisp breads instead of fresh ones or pasty cereals. Use fresh green vegetable salads freely. Dress these salads with plenty of oil and a dash of vinegar. Oil and butter are heat giving to a certain extent, but they are not heavy and are useful in keeping up bodily tone.

For desserts use perfectly ripe fruits, water ices flavored with fruit juices or the custard puddings spoken of.

Use tea and coffee as seems best for the individual.

A sudden cutting off of either of these beverages is not advisable, according to most physicians, but one should not depend on the stimulation gained from their free use for refreshment in hot weather.

Jet.

In his "Mirror of Stones" Camillus Leonardus calls jet "black amber" and states that it possesses the peculiar property of attracting to it when rubbed light substances of all kinds. He also tells us that the thin smoke produced by this friction of rubbing was used by the ancient Britons for driving away devils and dissolving spells.

"Jet," says Dr. Young, "appears to be wood in a high state of bituminization." And certainly jet often appears with traces of ligneous structure. At the same time there are specimens of bones which seemingly have been gradually impregnated with and at last wholly replaced by this substance. Among the jet rock there is found a liquid hydrocarbon somewhat resembling petroleum oil, which occurs in the cavities of ammonites, etc., and is also sometimes found in nodules, the presence of which is generally supposed to point to a rich vein of jet.

From these and other observations it would appear that jet existed as a liquid substance and that this substance gradually permeated between the laminations of the shales, etc., covering over or in some cases entirely replacing any woody matter which it met with.—New York Post.

How He Raised It.

"How on earth did you ever cultivate such a beautiful black eye?" asked Brown's friend.

"Oh," replied Brown, who had unintentionally been illustrating the fall of man on roller skates. "I raised it from a slip."—Everybody's Magazine.

HOUSES IN FEZ.

The Roofs In the Early Evening Are Exclusively For Women.

In Fez, the capital of Morocco, most of the houses consist of several stories, each being provided with a light veranda running round it and connecting the rooms. All the windows and doors open out into the patio, or courtyard. The window openings in the upper stories being covered with close trellis-work. All the houses have flat roofs, with a wall some four to six feet high running around, and from 4 p. m. until sunset the roofs are given over to the ladies exclusively, who can then walk about and take the fresh air without being seen by any of the opposite sex. This reservation is a law which is never broken, and no man would be guilty of being seen on his or on any other roof during the forbidden hours. Owing to the fact that the women of the house are not allowed to be seen by any other man than their lord and master all domestic offices are situated away from the house proper. In many of the larger houses, besides the water fountains, others playing scent or scented water are to be found. Sections of the courtyard also are slightly sunk, and these portions are filled with scented oil, which is used to perfume the rooms. The Moors are exceptionally particular in discarding their foot gear before entering a room or crossing a rug or carpet. They even change slippers before entering the courtyard from the street. Thus the houses are kept beautifully clean and sweet and are not, as many people would suppose, musty or close.

WATER SPLASHERS.

A Swedish View of English Life and Manners.

A sharp tongued correspondent of a Swedish paper, the Svenska Dagbladet, thus comments on some of the peculiarities of English life and manners.

English cleanliness is much spoken of. The Englishman must have a great deal of water to wash with. A quantity must be splashed all over the room, and in particular there must be a great pool near the washstand. When an Englishman washes his face, in seventy-eight cases out of a hundred he simply takes the water in his hands and blows it all over the face.

Englishmen are mad over fresh air. The expression may seem ironical to those who know how in London one does not so much breathe the air as swallow it. Tramway car windows stand open the whole year round, and there is no country like England for the prosperity of dealers in cough and cold medicines.

Hygiene may appear to be perfect in London, but they still say that much remains to be done. Spitting is not allowed in the parks, at least not near the seat. I have found that one of the cheapest and best places for spitting is the British museum, where it costs only $10. On the Great Eastern railway it does not cost more the first time, but afterward the price is $25 a time, in direct opposition to the usual business principles of discount.

Inhaling Water.

Undoubtedly the majority of bathers who are drowned meet their deaths from cramp. Cramp is liable to seize anybody at any moment and when it comes in deep water few swimmers have sufficient presence of mind to turn on their backs and wait quietly until the attack has departed. So they go under. But there is another danger quite as imminent as cramp, though it is probably less known. This is water inhaling. A swimmer or even a wader is always liable to inhale spray through his nostrils, which, passing through the pharynx and behind the epiglottis or windpipe guard, gets into the windpipe and causes death. As one would expect, water inhaling is almost wholly confined to the sea and very rarely occurs in fresh water. All the same, it may happen anywhere.—Exchange.

Dolphin and Flying Fish.

A ship was lying at anchor at Boca Grande, says the Punta Gorda Herald, lately when the crew observed a dolphin chasing a flying fish, both coming directly toward the ship. On nearing the vessel the drier arose in the air and passed over the bow just abaft the foremast. As it did so the dolphin went under the ship and, coming up on the other side, sprang from the water and caught the flying fish on "the fly" just as it was curving gracefully down in its descent to the water.

Fooled His Doctor.

The late Rev. H. R. Hawes, who was equally notable as preacher, journalist, lecturer and musician, suffered from a dangerous hip disease when a boy of nine. The celebrated Sir Benjamin Brodie, who was asked if a change of scene would benefit the afflicted youth, answered, "Take him anywhere—it does not matter."

Hawes lived to laugh at his doctor, and half a century later, after a life of exceptional industry, he was in vigorous health.

Practical.

Walking leisurely around the Egyptian sphinx, the traveler from America inspected it from all points of view. "It's a shame!" he exclaimed, "to leave the thing in that shape. If I had it out in Chicago I could clip a good old-fashioned nose on that face so quick I could make its head swim!"—Chicago Tribune.

Grass Baskets.

To restore the fragrance of baskets made from sweet scented grass after they have apparently lost it, plunge them into boiling water, removing them almost instantly.

Can you believe your senses?

When two of them, taste and smell, having been impaired, if not utterly destroyed, by nasal catarrh, are fully restored by Ely's Cream Balm, can you doubt that this remedy deserves all that has been said of it by the thousands who have used it? It is applied directly to the affected air-passages and begins its healing work at once. Why not get it today? All druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

MIDDLESEX, SS. PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Leonida E. Mason, late of Winchester, in said County deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Edward H. Stone, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the fifth day of October, A. D. 1909, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petition is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be on the day of said Probate Court, and by mailing post paid, or delivering a copy of this notice to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, my hand and the Seal of said Court, this thirtieth day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine.

sep24,09.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the subscriber has been duly appointed executor of the will of Louise D. Caldwell, late of Winchester in the County of Middlesex, deceased, testate, and has taken upon himself that trust by giving bond, as the law directs.

All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased are hereby required to exhibit the same, and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to

EDWARD P. CALDWELL.

Executor.

Mortgagee's Sale.

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Edward A. Clark to Louisa L. Pierce dated February 15, 1905, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds Book 2342 page 35, and duly assigned by mesne assignment to May L. Pierce, will be sold at public auction for breach of the condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, on the premises hereinafter described,

On Wednesday the 6th day of October, 1909, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises covered by said mortgage and therein described substantially as follows:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situate in that part of Winchester in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts called North Winchester, being Lot numbered two (2) as delineated on Plan of Lots belonging to Samuel S. Holton, drawn by Josiah Hovey, Surveyor, April 21, A. D. 1775, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds Book 1345, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the Southwesterly side of East street, being Lot numbered three (3) of the said plan; thence Northwesterly by said Lot numbered three (3) one hundred feet to the point of beginning; containing five thousand square feet of land, and being the same premises to said Edward A. Clark conveyed by James E. Walker by deed dated April 12, 1886, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds L. 2186 fol. 232. Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes and other municipal assessments, and the hundred dollars to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale, when other terms may be announced.

MAY L. PIERCE, Assignee and present holder of said mortgage.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett N. Curtis of Boston have recently moved to town and are now residing at No. 3 Cottage avenue where they will stay for the winter. Mr. Curtis is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1898, and of the Boston University Law School 1900. He was first associated in the practice of law with Congressman Charles E. Littlefield of Maine, and later with Judge Charles F. Perkins of Brookline, on whose staff he was leading counsel for about eight years. On January 1st, 1909, he opened an office for the general practice of law at No. 84 State street, Boston. Mr. Curtis is known as one of the rising members of the bar, and his ability and integrity are well recognized. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis were married on June 8th last at Manchester, New Hampshire, the home of the bride, who was Miss Katharine M. Hall, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark B. Hall of that city. Mrs. Curtis is a member of the class of 1906 of Mt. Holyoke College, and of numerous organizations in Manchester.

As a testimonial of regard and in recognition of his indefatigable services as first pastor over St. Raphael's church, Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J.
